Camel Cigarettes
Pronounced a Decided Hit

Although R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company's new Camel Cigarette has been on the market less than a year, it has already been accepted as a standard brand wherever it has been offered to the public. The blend of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos in Camel Cigarettes has proven thoroughly satisfying to cigarette smokers. Instant recognition as well as much sincere praise have been accorded these CAMEL Cigarettes in the various localities where they have been offered for sale.

Another cigarette which R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company intends making a leading seller is RED KAMEL.

This brand was formerly put out by a small manufacturer through whom R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company acquired its title. RED KAMEL has been favorably known to a limited portion of the trade for many years. It is an oval, Turkish Egyptian Cigarette and is attractively put up in a hinge box, which is of striking design and which features the RED KAMEL in beautifully lithographed colors. The rich appearance of this package very suggestively prepares one for the goodness of the smoke.

NEW RULINGS FOR THOSE WHO WISH TO MANUFACTURE IN BOND

Many Requests for Information Cause Issuance—Internal Revenue Service Has Been Given No Jurisdiction in Matter—Inquirers Referred to Nearest Collector of Customs

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 31.

THE Commissioner of Internal Revenue has issued the following instructions to his collectors relative to that provision in the tariff act permitting the establishment of bonded warehouses of manufacturers of cigars:

"In view of the number of inquiries made to this office, collectors and deputy collectors relative to the manufacture of cigars in bond under the provisions of the Tariff Act of October 3, 1913, that part Section IV, Paragraph M, of said act relating thereto is here quoted:

"'That cigars manufactured in whole of tobacco imported from any one country, made and manufactured in such bonded manufacturing warehouses, may be withdrawn for home consumption upon the payment of the duties on such tobacco in its condition as imported under such regulations as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe, and the payment of the internal revenue tax accruing on such cigars in their condition as withdrawn, and the boxes or packages containing such cigars shall be stamped to indicate their character, origin of tobacco from which made, and place of manufacture.'

"The regulations prescribed in this statute, governing the manufacture and withdrawal for home consumption of cigars made in bonded manufacturing warehouses so far issued will be found in Customs Decision No. 33783, dated October 10, 1913. The Internal Revenue Service, having been given no jurisdiction in the manufacture of such cigars, all persons making inquiries in regard to same should be referred to the nearest Collector of Customs.

"Premises now operated as cigar factories under the Internal Revenue Laws, can be opened as bonded manufacturing warehouses only after making proper disposition of all material, cigars and stamps on hand and closing their accounts as manufacturers under the Internal Revenue Laws; that is, all tobacco and cigars shall have been removed, leaving only the manufacturing equipment on the premises.

"Customs regulations made applicable to the manufacture of cigars in bonded manufacturing warehouses require bonds to be given in triplicate and approved by the Collector of Internal Revenue. Such approval should be given as a matter of course. Collectors of Internal Revenue may suggest that the penalty of a bond be increased, if it is deemed insufficient.

"Cigars made in bonded manufacturing warehouses, when withdrawn for home consumption, will be treated similarly to cigars imported from a foreign

Assistant Secretary of Treasury Hamlin Rules That Under the Exemption Law Only This Number May Come in Free

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 31.

ASSISTANT Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin has ruled that cigars, cigarettes and tobacco shall not be included in the free tariff exemption of $100 for personal effects of passengers returning from abroad. He has written a letter to the collector of the port of New York on this subject as follows:

"The Department is in receipt of your letter of the 29th ultimo, in regard to the construction to be given paragraph 642 of the tariff act of October 3, 1913, so far as the inclusion of cigars, cigarettes, liquors, and food stuffs within the $100 exemption is concerned.

"In the opinion of the Department cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, liquors, and food stuffs cannot be included within the $100 exemption allowed returning residents of the United States under the last proviso to said paragraph 642. Said exemption should be confined to such articles in the nature of personal and household effects, curios and souvenirs as are usually purchased by tourists and carried in baggage, such as wearing apparel, made up or unmade, table linen, pictures, books, musical instruments, pipes, cutlery, chinaware, stationery, bric-a-brac, etc.

"Not more than fifty cigars, or three hundred cigarettes, or three pounds of prepared smoking tobacco, and one quart of spirits, wines or beverages, when brought by passengers for their own use, may be passed free of duty under Article 618 of the Customs Regulations of 1908, as amended by T. D. 32406."

Tobacco Sales in Amsterdam

"The total sales of Sumatra tobacco at auction in the Amsterdam market during 1913 amounted to 282, 920 packages, at an average price of 136 Dutch cents per half kilo, or 49 cents United States currency per pound. In 1912 the sales were 280,704 packages, at an average of 142 Dutch cents per half kilo, or 52 cents per pound. The average price at the sales from January to July was 61 cents per pound in 1913, and 62½ cents in 1912. The higher price during the first half of each year is due to the fact that the best tobacco is marketed at that time.

"The total auction sales of Borneo tobacco during 1913 have been 18,609 packages, at an average price of 76 Dutch cents per half kilo, or 28 cents per pound, as compared with 15,231 packages, at 90 Dutch cents per half kilo, or 33 cents per pound, in 1912. With Borneo tobacco also the best prices are obtained during the first half of the year. The average price was lower in 1913 than in the preceding year, owing to the superiority of the crop sold in 1912."

Tobacco Products Corporation Reduces Stock

AT a special meeting of stockholders of the Tobacco Products Corporation held December 29, ratification was given to the plan to reduce the authorized capitalization from $30,000,000 common to $16,000,000, and from $20,000,000 preferred to $8,000,000, a portion of said reduction being the retirement of $2,000,000 preferred stock recently purchased in the open market. The foregoing procedure now places the capitalization and outstanding stock on an equal basis.

Concerning the retirement of the $2,000,000 preferred stock, we quote from a statement issued to the stockholders:

"The company now has surplus cash in excess of $1,500,000, which is all that is necessary for its present needs, and the board of directors considers that the best interests of the corporation will be served by decreasing the authorized capital stock to the amount thereof actually issued and outstanding, thereby effecting substantial reduction of taxes."

A director of the Tobacco Products Corporation states that practically all of the 20,000 shares of preferred stock were purchased at a price below 90 a share.

Heard on Broadway

Jac. L. Hoffman, formerly with P. Lorillard & Company, starts the new year with the Falk Tobacco Company as general sales manager. He has also been elected a vice-president of the company.

"Fifty-six" cigarettes are receiving a number of splendid window displays on Broadway. The rapid growth of this cigarette and its unvarying quality seems to have appealed to the smoker who seeks the best in Turkish tobacco.

In order to devote his entire attention to the development of the Riker-Hegeman business, Herbert S. Collins, the recently elected president of the concern, has resigned his office as vice-president of the United Cigar Stores Company.

Morris Levi, of the recently established firm of Levi-Kaften Company, has returned from Porto Rico, where he has been looking after the interests of the house.

The Ritz-Carleton Cigarette Company will place their new brand of "Old Drury" Turkish cigarettes on the market during the coming week. Their package is exceedingly neat, the boxes being finished in old gold, with "Old Drury" and crest embossed in one corner.

Leonard D. Greenhall, assignee of the firm of Teodoro Perez & Company, the leaf tobacco house, formerly in business at 212 Pearl Street, advises creditors that all firms having claims against the estate should file the same, duly verified, on or before the fifth day of February, 1914, at the office of Charles L. Greenhall, attorney for the assignee, 320 Broadway, New York.

Larger Home for "Stratford" Cigars

The El Draco Cigar Manufacturing Company, for many years located at Second and Arch Streets, Philadelphia, have moved to more commodious quarters at 104 North Front Street.

The change was made to secure additional room and facilities to meet the increasing demand of the "Stratford" cigar, as the entire building, except the first floor, where the offices are located, will be devoted to the manufacture and shipping requisites.

The shipping department will occupy a portion of the second floor and the remainder used for testing and stripping purposes, leaving the third, fourth and fifth floors for manufacturing.

Local Trade Good

Holiday trade among the local stores was satisfactory to a degree, as all the down town stores report a better season than last year, and a number of the large retailers claim the best year to date.

One noticeable and encouraging sign was the increased demand for cigars of high quality, and while in one or two cases the demand for imported cigars fell off to some extent, this was more than counterbalanced by the demand for Tampa and Key West goods.

In the cigarette line, the same demand for high-grade goods was noticed, as well as larger quantities to the individual buyer.

Song Coupons With "Dubec" Cigarettes

Song Coupons are being given away by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company to boost the sales on "Dubec" cigarettes in Philadelphia. The songs offered are those that are popular on the local stage. One recent advertisement had for a headline the title "What A Fool I'd Be" and the first line of the song, which was sung by Sadie Burt in the "Passing Show." By hooking-up the cigarettes with popular songs it is not likely the name "Dubec" will soon be forgotten.

New Salesman for S. R. Moss Company

The S. R. Moss Cigar Company, located at Lancaster, Pa., has recently secured the services of F. C. Clough, who will represent them in the Northwest beginning January 1. For some time Mr. Clough has been connected with the Lagora-Fee Company, of Detroit, Mich. Mr. Clough's headquarters will probably be in one of the Twin Cities.

Cut Prices on Imported Cigars

That efforts to establish a price on imported cigars have not been successful, is indicated by a recent move of the Liggett Drug Company, in New York. They recently advertised imported perfectos at seventeen cents. This price is astounding in view of the fact that small dealers cannot buy them as low as that from the importers.

It is said that many dealers took advantage of this low price on the imported cigars, and that many of these cigars found their way into the small independent shops.

Announcement was made by an officer of the Liggett Drug Company that the price was an advertisement and that its repetition was unlikely.

Imperial Will Enter Market

A report from Owensboro, Ky., indicates that the Imperial Tobacco Company will again purchase tobacco in Kentucky. It is said that the company's representative in that place, W. H. Clarke, has received advices that the company would purchase tobacco in Kentucky, and that he is also in receipt of instructions in regard to buying. This means that the company will be in the local market to purchase from 5,000,000 to 7,000,000 pounds of tobacco.

W. D. Duncan With Havana-American Company

W. D. DUNCAN, formerly a member of the firm of Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, has become a member of the road force of the Havana-American Company, and will be assigned his territory shortly after January 1, 1914.

Mr. Duncan was formerly connected with this firm, but resigned about nine years ago to become manager of the wholesale department of the R. & W. Jenkinson Company, Cleveland, O.

After severing his connection with this latter firm, Mr. Duncan formed the partnership with Albert W. Terry, Jr., and was the traveling member of that firm until its dissolution.

Albert W. Terry, Jr., is now the sole proprietor of the Terry & Duncan store, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, he having purchased the share of Mr. Duncan.

The firm name of Terry & Duncan will be continued for the present at least, as the purchase by Mr. Terry includes the good will as well as stock and fixtures.

No change in the management or brands is contemplated by Mr. Terry, but just what steps will be taken to care for out of town trade has not been decided.

Among the visitors at the "Bold" factory recently, was Seaton Faber, of Williamsport, who is an enthusiastic believer in the famous Bobrow Brothers brand. Frank J. Guiffra, of Millville, N. J., dropped in the office the other day to give another "repeat" order on "Bolds."

J. G. Atherholt, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, is making an attractive window display of "Imperial Manhattans," in perfecto shape, which are manufactured by H. C. Nolan & Co.

Announcement has just been made that the "Goodloe" cigar and "Fink's Havana Smoker," formerly marketed by Speed Goodloe, will be retained by him in his new connection with Dusel, Goodloe & Co., 112-114 North Seventh Street, Philadelphia.

Just what plans will be followed has not been disclosed, but indications are that these brands will be distributed through the regular salesmen of the above company, and that Mr. Goodloe will use personal efforts to increase the number of dealers now handling these goods.

New Store for Yahn & McDonnell

Yahn & McDonnell, with headquarters at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, have added another store to their chain scattered throughout this city.

The new store is located at the corner of Market and Juniper Streets, and will carry the usual high-grade cigars that are to be found in the stores of this firm.

A feature of the new store will be the underground humidor which will hold over a half-million cigars.

The new enterprise is in charge of Frank Guppy, who has been a member of the selling staff for a number of years, and knows the lines thoroughly.

"Blue Boar" Free With Pipe

In an effort to further the sale of "Blue Boar" rough-cut tobacco, it is being offered free with a $2 calabash pipe. As the pipe costs that much, smokers have an opportunity to secure a good smoking tobacco to use in it without cost.

The deal is being featured by display placards with a picture of the pipe at the top and descriptive matter concerning the pipe underneath. The tobacco is not played up as strongly as the pipe. At the bottom appears a space for the name of the dealer who handles the combination.

"Lord Colbeck," a New Favorite

Reports from the De Lisser Schneider Company, indicate that their new brand, "Lord Colbeck," is taking well with the trade wherever introduced. The cigar is made in two sizes, brevas and perfectos, the former retailing for ten cents each, while the latter is the two for a quarter shape.

Pipe Display at Terry & Duncan's

The pipe department of the Terry & Duncan store, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, occupies one-half of the store. The display comprises every pipe requirement from the old penny clay to the twenty-five dollar meerschaum, and almost equally expensive calabash.

In conjunction with the display of pipes are pouches and jar humidors for smoking tobacco, suitable for the desk or den.

For the cigar smoker there are innumerable styles of meerschaum and amber cigar holders, and cases made of silver, bronze, gun metal and gold.

Cigarette holders and cases are also carried in large and assorted varieties, so there is no desire of the smoker that cannot be gratified.

Mr. Cleveland, of Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., was in Philadelphia last week and gathered several orders for Christmas delivery.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

SOMETIME ago I referred to the family cigar of the Philippines, and now I have run across an interesting query concerning the chewing of the betel nut by Filipinos and the Malay tribes in general—which practices resemble our tobacco chewing.

It is not a betel nut at all, says an authority on the East, but a singularly complicated form of appetizer or stimulant to have been evolved by people so primitive. The ingredients are a slice of the nut of the areca palm, about one-sixteenth of an inch in thickness and about as large around as a quarter. Upon this is laid a paste of the chunnam of unslaked coral lime mixed with oil, and sometimes this is fortified with a lump of terra japonica to give color. In the Philippines a piece of tobacco leaf is added, but this addition is seldom practiced elsewhere. The whole assortment is wrapped in the green leaf of the betel pepper and chewed contemplatively. It is a disgusting habit, for the mixture stimulates the flow of saliva, which trickles in a dark red flow from the corners of the mouth. The effect is much like that of chewing coca leaf, it takes the place of a meal and enables its users to undergo long sustained toil; in fact, it must be included in the rations of all Malay labor. The teeth are permanently blackened by this appetizer and it is not infrequent to find them so overloaded with tartar deposits that the lips cannot be closed.

If it comes down to a question of a chew I should much prefer a plug of good American tobacco.

E. P. Jacquith, member of the Chicago Athletic Association, had an alarming increase in his cigar account the other day when word was received in Chicago that E. P. Jacquith, of Chicago, had been pinched on the shores of Lake Keuka, N. Y., for shooting ducks from an aeroplane.

When Mr. Jacquith arrived at the club next day, he was confronted with the story and the members gathered around him to learn the details of his aerial hunting trip and its unhappy ending.

Mr. Jacquith stoutly denied the story but could get no rest until he had contributed heavily to the cigar and tobacco department of the club by setting up to cigars.

As a matter of fact, the man arrested in New York State was E. K. Jacquith, who is a student at an aeroplane school on the shores of Lake Keuka.

Mr. Jacquith, of Chicago, is very seriously minded and does not relish being charged with operating an aeroplane at sixty miles an hour, as well as shooting ducks from it at the same time. He has served notice that he will buy no more cigars.

My tale in a recent issue about Mr. Brown, who put no value on tobacco in figuring the cost of his cigar production, because of the fact that he did not pay cash, but gave his notes, has brought out the fact that a great number of our readers know a "Mr. Brown." The story brought out a number of similar tales, but I think this one in particular is about the same "Mr. Brown."

It was approaching Christmas, and it seemed as if everyone that Brown owed money, was clamoring for it. He continually "robbed Peter to pay Paul," as the adage goes, and consequently his bank balance was generally below the fair weather mark.

The day was drawing to a close; several heavy demands had been made upon him for money, and to satisfy these creditors Brown had not only exhausted his bank balance, but had given a post-dated check as well. One can easily imagine his state of mind in this situation, to say nothing of the worries of the usual holiday rush orders that had to be gotten out.

About half-past four in the afternoon, Mr. Blank, representing a lithographing house, called at the office and after greeting Brown pleasantly, presented an overdue account for some five hundred dollars, with the request for a check in full. Brown protested that it was impossible. Mr. Blank insisted. More protests from Brown. Mr. Blank remained obdurate, and finally said he would not leave the office until he got some security. Mr. Brown swore, did more protesting, pleaded, begged and almost cried for mercy, but to no advantage. Finally, seeing that he must do something, he offered to give a thirty-day note for the amount. The representative said that the house would accept it, but that he must take it with him that night.

Groaning, and with the sweat pouring from his brow, Brown took a blank out of the desk drawer and drew up the note. With trembling hand he signed it, and passed it over to the already impatient Mr. Blank.

"There," cried Brown, "now for the luff of Himmel, vill you let me alone?"

"Thank you very much, Mr. Brown," said Mr. Blank, as he walked out of the office.

And as the door closed behind him, Brown sank down at his desk with perspiring face, and lifting his shaking hands, cried with joy: "Tank Gott in Himmel, dot is paid."

During the recent visit of King Alphonso of Spain to Paris, French officials were amazed at the number of cigarettes he smoked. It is said that he appeared to use a fresh box of twenty cigarettes every hour without showing the least effect of excessive smoking. The Spanish King is known to be among the greatest of royal cigarette smokers.

The Queen Dowager is said to smoke constantly except when asleep and lays down the principle that smoking is a great aid to thought. Among the royal women smokers, the Dowager Empress of Russia is well known as a devotee of the cigarette.

With the advent of 1914, manufacturers throughout the United States are looking with pleasure over the reports of the year just gone. Splendid progress has been made in all lines of the cigar industry. Manufacturers in this city have had the most encouraging season in 1913 and quite a number of the makers of 5-cent cigars have had the biggest year in their history.

Tobacco Industry Has Good Year

In Philadelphia we are witnessing, also, the slow but steady growth of the manufacturing of high-grade cigars. Several factories have exceeded by millions their output of previous years, while others have been taxed to their utmost to supply orders. It has been pleasing to note that many of the manufacturers remark on the number of 1914 orders that are in hand. They accept this, generally, as an indication of the sound condition of business.

The year has been free from any sensational movements in the tobacco industry, and except for the usual vexing problems that are continually harassing the manufacturers, conditions have been excellent.

The jobbers and distributors have enjoyed a year of good business, and this argues the same for the retailer.

In the retail trade throughout the country the effect of the demand for higher priced cigars is being constantly felt, despite the fact that the growth of the nickel smoke is still on the increase.

Buying Higher Priced Cigars

Retailers remark that during the holiday rush the call for high-grade cigars was on the average greater than usual. The demand was for quality, and there seems to be indications that the consumer is willing to pay for it.

Tampa and Key West cigars have had an exceptional year and the imported cigars have done well. There must be more smokers getting into the Clear Havana class. If that is true, then there is a general sign of prosperity. A man smokes, as a rule, according to his pocketbook. Even though he smokes a pipe, you can judge his income by the kind of smoking tobacco he purchases.

The annual report on the different crops shows that while the value of the tobacco crop for 1913 was $122,486,000, or approximately $18,500,000 more than that of 1912, the annual production fell 900,000 pounds short of the previous year.

Big Prices for Tobacco

This year has been marked by an increase in the cost of leaf tobacco, and no doubt the increase in value is due to the shortage of the crop, and also to a difference in quality.

The fact that there is only so much tobacco to be had, has permitted the growers to hold for good prices and they have gotten them, generally, this season.

The fact that the season has been a good one for the growers in most of the states, may lead to an increased acreage in tobacco in 1914. If the 1914 leaf should be produced in abundance no doubt there would be a decided change in the price of leaf.

New York Smokers Get Slammed

The holiday spirit did not affect the Public Service Commission in New York sufficiently to prevent them from handing about 72,000 smokers a real pert slam, in the form of a refusal to accede to their request for smoking cars or compartments on the elevated trains. The message was given out on Christmas Eve!

Thus we see that the fair Annette Hazelton, who was discovered to be Dr. George C. Pease in ordinary life, stirred things up in New York so strenuously that the Public Service Commission started to enforce their rules regarding smoking on elevated trains and surface cars.

The smokers, who never have been given a chance anywhere but in Chicago, and not enough to brag about there, immediately fell in line for the petition which the United Cigar Stores Company had made up. About 72,000 smokers in New York signed this petition, which asked that one car in five, on the surface lines, be set aside for smokers, and that similar limited concessions should be granted on the elevated lines.

The commission is of the opinion that it would be unreasonable to require the companies to make such provisions, that it would be impossible to space the cars properly, and that it would be impossible to prevent non-smokers from taking up space in the smokers.

Just how much the commission cares about the request of 72,000 smokers is evident in the following resolution passed by them last week:

"Under the circumstances appearing, it would not be reasonable to require said street railroad corporations to operate smoking cars or cars containing smoking compartments."

TAMPA TIPS

Tobacco Examiners Meet January 20th—Another Factory Preparing to Bond—Leads State in Value of Importations for Month of November.

TAMPA, FLA., December 29.

TAMPA has added still another laurel to her crown of progress. According to the report for the month of November, received from J. F. Griggs, Collector of Customs for the District of Florida, this city easily led the State in the value of its importations, tobacco being the principal product. Of the goods imported, those dutiable amounted to $322,315, while the non-dutiable products aggregated $52,379, making a grand total of $374,694.

Much interest is being manifested in the meeting of tobacco examiners, representing the tobacco importing ports of the Union, to take place in Tampa on January 20th, at which plans will be formulated for standardizing so far as possible, the methods now in use by the various inspectors. It is estimated that there will be at least six or eight delegates present, inasmuch as there are sufficient tobacco-importing ports in Florida, requiring the services of special examiners, to make that number necessary. Colonel J. D. Calhoun, assisted by Captain J. T. Park, is arranging a thorough exposition of the cigar business in Tampa for the visitors, in order to facilitate as much as possible the purpose of the meeting.

To plagiarize a well-known quotation: "Of the making of 'cigars in bond' there is no end." The spirit seems to have taken hold among the large cigar manufacturers of this city to an extent that augurs well for the trade. Among the latest additions to the ranks is A. Santaella & Co., who will manufacture in bond, beginning January 1st. It is stated that a large portion of the factory will be devoted to the making of clear Havana cigars, backed by the Government's guaranty as to quality and material. The "Optimo," the leading brand of the Santaella Company, is to be made in bond shortly after the beginning of the new year. In the division of the factory, the greater portion will be utilized for bonded purposes, the dimensions of the department to be devoted to that branch being 165 by 45 feet. The regular factory will occupy but 100 by 45 feet. Gustav M. Seckbach, manager of the A. Santaella & Company factory, states that he has confidence in the new plan and that the "Optimo" and other established brands will not suffer under the new conditions. It is reported that 350 workmen, at least, will be employed for the "making in bond."

February 7th, is the date set for the civil service examination, to be held by C. L. Patch, secretary for the local board of examiners, for the purpose of the appointment of storekeepers for bonded cigar factories.

Lawrence Guust, who spent the holidays in New York, is expected to return home about January 1st.

W. B. Moore, the genial representative of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., accompanied by his family, spent the holidays here.

Harvey Hester, who has been attending Florida University, and a son of E. G. Hester, a former resident of Tampa, has made connections with the Reynolds Tobacco Company, acting in the capacity of salesman.

Among the many handsome Christmas gifts received by Eli Witt, the well-known cigar jobber, none pleased him better than the solid-gold-headed cane, presented to him by the employees of his retail department.

M. F. McLeod, the American Tobacco Company's representative, spent a few days in this city on business during the past fortnight.

Among the prominent visitors spending the holidays in Tampa, were J. J. French and family. Mr. French is well known here, having been manager of the Havana-American Cigar Company for a number of years.

William Solomon, local salesman for the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, left Tampa on December 21st for Jacksonville, where he planned to be with his parents during Christmas time.

Mr. Rey, of Cuesta, Rey & Co., accompanied by A. Wolf, recently made a trip to Havana for the purpose of inspecting the new warehouse, which the firm has built in that place.

PERFECTO.

John Janssen

After an illness of only a few days, John Janssen, for fifty-five years a cigar manufacturer in New Orleans, La., died at his home, 1331 St. Roch Avenue, that city, on December 20th. He was eighty-three years old.

The deceased is survived by a widow, three sons and two daughters.

country. Sales of stamps to be used in bonded manufacturing warehouses in stamping boxes of cigars for withdrawal for consumption in the United States, will be made upon the requisition of the Collector of Customs in the same manner as stamps are sold to owners or consignees of cigars imported from a foreign country, as provided in Regulations No. 8, revised July 1, 1910, page 62, under the head of 'Purchase of Stamps.'

"Extra copies of this decision will be furnished collectors upon requisition to be supplied to persons making inquiry on the subject."

An Analogy

"A man resembles a cigar."
I heard a jester say;
"For he, like a cigar, is bound
To meet his match some day."

Just so, and then the man flares up
And like the "weed" gets red,
Which as a rule precedes the fact
Each soon doth lose his head.

A man, like a cigar, gets "short,"
And sometimes of the town
Becomes the butt—he also may
Be by a friend "thrown down."

Some weeds, and some men, too, are rank
Some scarcely have a flaw,
Some are like actors, though well puffed
They can't be made to draw.

Wives see another likeness still (Though this their husbands flout)
A man, like a cigar, is spoiled
If he is let go out.

And lastly, this analogy
Their finish does not mar;
Both come to ashes in the end,
The man and the cigar.

M. S. Globe & Son Make Assignment

M. S. Globe & Son, Inc., wholesale dealers in candy and tobacco at 505 East 171st Street, have made an assignment to Nathan Bardach. The company was incorporated on September 30, 1913, with capital stock to the amount of $10,000. M. S. Globe was president, and Isadore Globe, secretary. Their store was damaged by fire on December 7.

Judge Holt appointed John V. Irwin receiver, bond $2000. The liabilities are said to be about $7000, with assets amounting to about $6200.

CIGAR MAN IN BANKRUPTCY

Arcade Smokery in Dayton Makes Assignment—Small Assets Partially Covered by Chattel Mortgages

ROWLAND W. MYERS, of Dayton, O., proprietor of the Arcade Smokery in that city, has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court. Schedules accompanying the petition lists liabilities at $13,966.70, of which $9,261.84 are unsecured. Assets are placed at $4,760, a portion of which are covered by chattel mortgages.

The J. B. Moos Company, of Chicago, is the largest unsecured creditor, holding a note for $1,550, and a merchandise account for $773.38.

Other large creditors whose claims are unsecured are: The American Tobacco Company, New York, $522.19; Dayton Savings and Trust Company. Dayton, $500; M. J. Schwab, Dayton, $450; the Monypenny-Hammon Company, Columbus, O., $320; William Demuth & Co., New York, $327.98; F. Perez Company, New York, $206.75; Henry Straus, Cincinnati, $100; Reuben F. Myers, Dayton, $300, and M. J. Gibbons, Dayton, $464.04.

The assets consist of cash on hand, $18; stock in trade, including the property mortgaged and that upon which there is a conditional sale, $4,200; debts due on account, $42, and household goods, $500. Exemption of $500 asked for.

Immediately following the filing of Myers' petition, the J. B. Moos Company and other creditors, through Attorneys Matthews and Matthews filed a petition for the appointment of a receiver to take charge of the bankrupt's business and continue it as a going concern until after the holidays. Judge Hollister appointed Philo G. Burnham as receiver and instructed him to act as receiver until January 2, 1914. His bond was fixed at $5,000.

FRENCH TOBACCO MONOPOLY YIELDS AN IMMENSE PROFIT

Leaf Returns $105,000,000 to French Government—Profit Made from a Capital of $30,000,000—Twenty Factories Make Up Products for Whole Country

WITH a capital that approximates $30,000,000, the French tobacco monopoly realized profits in excess of $105,000,000 during the past year. This is the largest return on their money that the Government has realized in the one hundred and two years of its business life in the tobacco field.

Visitors to France are inclined to criticise the quality of tobacco supplied them, principally because they are unable to find their favorite brands such as are on sale at home. But as Frenchmen have no knowledge of tobacco in any form, except such as is supplied them by the government, they are content with the qualities of tobacco, although they may grumble at the prices. Much of the tobacco smoked in France is grown in the country itself. The government keeps a sharp eye on all raisers of the leaf, and the whole of the crop must be sold to the state at a fair appraisement.

Twenty great factories work up the whole of the tobacco manufactured in France and the right to retail is jealously guarded by the state. Permits to open tobacco shops are usually granted to widows of officers of the army and navy, or of other employees of the government. The widows usually lease their permits to other persons in consideration of fixed annual payments.

The price of a cigar of a given quality is the same all over France, and the same if one cigar or a thousand are purchased. The hotels and restaurants put their cigars at the same prices as they are sold to the general public, but they add from 50 to 100 per cent. as their own profit. There are 47,250 authorized tobacco plants in France, who grow about 40,000,000 pounds of tobacco on 50,000 acres. The monopoly besides buying all the tobacco grown in France, purchases 55,000,000 pounds of foreign grown tobacco, most of it being American leaf.

The C. N. Foreman Cigar Manufacturing Co., of Red Lion, recently shipped one-third of a million cigars to the West.

Big Year in York Cigar Factories

The situation with the cigar manufacturers is easing up a bit now, and the boom which has been enjoyed since the summer is now about over. The heavy demand for Christmas cigars has affected the factories for the past three months, and cigarmakers have been in demand. These orders have now been filled and business is returning to normal.

Following the holiday season, manufacturers look for a quiet period of a month or so. Not for several years have York cigars been in such demand as this year. The Christmas trade has been partly responsible, but a steady growth has been felt by a number of the larger firms.

"United" Store in Chicago Robbed

Burglars in Chicago went to considerable trouble on Monday night to rob the United cigar store, located at 1053 West Twelfth Street.

The robbers forced the rear doors of 1051 West Twelfth Street, rifled the cash register of five dollars and then turned their attention to getting at the safe in the "United" cigar store next door. To do this they were forced to tear out part of the wall. The safe was finally reached and blown open, and $170 was taken.

Nashville Cigar Store Opens

The formal opening of the Ben Crockett cigar store in Nashville, Tenn., took place on Monday, and proved a gala occasion. The store is located on Church Street between Fourth and Fifth Avenues, and while scores of men visited the stand, women were prominent buyers at the soda fountain which is operated in conjunction with the cigar and tobacco business.

The place is one of the most handsome in the city, it being finished in mahogany, with a tiled floor. Monday the merchants in the neighborhood sent potted plants and flowers to decorate the store and all during the day it was a bower of flowers. The soda fountain is of the latest model and is very elegant. In the rear of the store are many tables where light lunches will be served during the day. Souvenirs were given out Monday, each lady being furnished a flower and each gentleman a cigar.

Jeitles & Blumenthal Receive Tribute From Their Employees

PHILADELPHIA, PA., December 18, 1913.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD,
Philadelphia, Pa.

Dear Sir:

The employees of Jeitles & Blumenthal have arranged to present the firm with a beautiful floral horse shoe at ten o'clock in the morning, on December 24th.

It is the feeling of all of us that we cannot overlook the passing of 1913 without expressing in some manner our heartfelt thanks to our employers for the kindly manner in which we have been treated during the year. We appreciate the unbroken record of working the whole year without the loss of one single day, excepting legal holidays.

We know that the members of our firm would not tolerate our spending money on their account, and so we have decided to express our feelings by the presentation of a floral token.

Respectfully yours,
THE COMMITTEE.

MR. FOX, Superintendent:

We wish that you would express for us to our employees our sincere thanks and deep appreciation for their thoughtful token of holiday cheer.

We assure you we consider the flowers beautiful and hope that the cordial relationship that exists will continue for many years, and that we may be able to give employment to our people, without interruptions, during the coming year.

Wishing them all a very Merry Christmas, we are with regards,

JEITLES & BLUMENTHAL, LTD.

Express Stop Demanded for Columbus Circle

By a unanimous vote the Broadway Association, at a recent meeting in the Hotel McAlpin, passed a resolution calling upon the Public Service Commission to change the present subway station on the Interborough Line at Columbus Circle to an express station.

Jacob Wertheim, former president of the American Tobacco Company, said: "Naturally I am in favor of an express station on the Interborough Line at Columbus Circle. The growth here has been wonderful in the past year. In a short time there will be more traffic there than can be handled by local trains. The station should be changed into an express stop at the earliest possible date."

Another resolution, also adopted by a unanimous vote, instructed the transit committee of the association to request the commission to erect express stations on all subway lines at Fifty-ninth, Thirty-fourth and Forty-second Streets.

Chicago

Good Box Trade Due to Window Displays—Not Much Hope for "26" Game—La Vello Cigar Company Sold to Capacity—"La Venga" Proves Big Holiday Seller

CHICAGO, ILL., December 26, 1913.

THE spirit of "peace on earth, good will to men," hovers over Chicago like wings of an angel. On the lake front stands the biggest Christmas tree which the men who sail the great lakes could find in the north woods. On Christmas eve this tree glowed with a thousand incandescent lights, and there were speeches and distribution of candy, so that no child in Chicago, however poor, was without a Christmas tree.

Are cigars being sold? They are! The loss of the "26" game is not making near the dent in the trade which some authorities thought at the time the ordinance went into force, for the crowds seem determined to smoke, and the trade in box goods has been much better than even the writer, who is in close touch with conditions, had imagined. This good trade in box goods is due in no small part to the cleverness and skill of the dealers in displaying goods. They are putting them in cases and in windows in such a manner that the public is compelled to stop, look and listen and this is what sells goods.

"Never in my life," declared one dealer, "have I seen wives and daughters buy so many cigars by the box for Christmas presents to husbands and fathers as has been the case this year. They are coming to learn, I guess, that a well conducted cigar store does not offer half as many chances for insult from rowdies as do the street cars and elevated trains, and for that reason they come into the stores these days without fear and with the assurance that they will be treated with every respect and that there will be trouble of a vigorous nature if any loafer makes a crooked move."

Certainly these are lean days for the Anti-Cigarette League and Miss Lucy Page-Gaston, who is the main works of that great reform movement in Chicago, may well do some thinking over this new phase of the pernicious trade, as expressed by the dealer.

In regard to the passing of the "26" dice game, which is the greatest single news feature bearing on the local trade during the past year, the writer wishes to mention a "bear story" which has been going the rounds to the effect that a large number of dealers were duped on a slush fund, which was collected by imposters for the purpose of putting the lid on the district attorney and thus winning immunity for the "26" game from the police. The "bear story" is to the effect that every cigar and saloon man in the city was approached and asked to contribute from $50 to $300 to the fund, and that many of them did as requested, until the fund was swollen to several thousand dollars. The breweries were asked to "kick in," it is said, but refused, on the ground that they were not interested in the survival of the game.

Dealers who ought to know, have said that there was no slush fund for the purpose named, and it is the general opinion of the trade that the story was started by certain politicians who have irons of their own in the fire.

Morris Brown, 324 North Clark Street, was fined $10 and costs in the municipal court for running a "26" dice game in his cigar store.

Municipal Judge Fake has granted a new trial to Walter Snell, cafe owner and cigar dealer at Cottage Grove Avenue and Sixty-third Street, who was the man recently found guilty of gambling in the famous test case of the "26" game, which was reported in full in THE TOBACCO WORLD. The new trial was granted on the ground that the remarks of the assistant state's attorney, who conducted the case, were improper and had probably influenced the jury. "Whatever the outcome of the new trial," said Mayor Carter Harrison, "I shall continue to suppress the game." Owing to the peculiar jurisdiction of the Mayor in such matters, there is little hope following this staement that the game will again be permitted, even if Snell wins out, which is not probable.

Joseph Landfield, Southern representative of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, has resigned his position with that concern. While he has made no definite plans, he has decided not to leave the trade. He has been in business for himself in this city, and has many friends here.

H. A. Mackey, a supervisor for B. Lorillard & Co., in the cigarette department, was in Chicago for a few hours on his way from a trip to the Coast.

G. Anargyros, of B. Lorillard & Co., made a flying visit to Chicago on his way back from a Western trip, and spent several days in calling on his old friends.

George B. Daw, of the American Tobacco Company's plug department, was in the city on business last week.

H. J. James, sales manager for Lovell & Buffington, will spend the holidays in Chicago.

Leo Schoeneman, leading salesman for Celestino Vega & Co., is in the city resting up, after a tireless year among the Eastern jobbers, talking the merits of "La Venga" cigar. He is a man who has made his way to the top in the employ of this prominent concern, having risen through all the stages from shipping clerk to head salesman.

The La Vello Cigar Manufacturing Company reports that they are sold up to the capacity starting with the new year, and that they have completed one of the most successful years in the history of their business. This has been due to the real merit of "La Vello" and "Lady Abbey" cigars, which are their leaders, as well as to the fair and square business methods which this prominent Chicago house has used in dealing with all retailers. When real merit is assisted by wide advertising to the consumer, the trade is bound to come on any brand, and it has been due to the aggressive methods of this house in assisting the dealer to move the goods that "La Vello" and "Lady Abbey" cigars have won the place in the hearts of smokers which they now hold.

J. Falk, of G. Falk & Bros., has been in the city for the past few days, but will leave soon on a trip to northern points.

Ed Berriman, of Berriman Brothers, who has been under the weather for the past two weeks, is now back on the job.

General conditions among the working classes in Chicago are not by any means as good as they were at this time last year. Many hundreds of men are out of work, and it is thought by some dealers that this means a corresponding lack of business, as men are not inclined to spend much money for luxuries when they are not working. In South Chicago, where are located great steel mills, more than 500 men are without work until after the first of the year, while in Kenosha, a suburb to the North, where many factories are situated, more than 1000 men have been informed that they can rest until further notice. In this town the unemployed are holding parades and seeking various measures of relief. In Chicago proper so many unemployed men are walking the streets that the county board has ruled that the ninth floor of the county building may be thrown open to them as sleeping quarters. The fact that the weather has remained cold has prevented much of the suffering which would otherwise have occurred. Little change has taken place in the strike situation among the cigar factories. The situation is not by any means serious, and it is the hope of all concerned that the manufacturers and the cigarmakers who remain on the outs may soon come to some agreement through amicable arbitration.

The Ruhstrat Cowley Company will move May 1st to larger quarters at 56 East Lake Street. The rapid growth of the business of this large and popular jobbing house has made necessary the move, as the old quarters in Wabash Avenue have been too small for some time past.

E. G. Ahern, manager of the tobacco and cigarette department of the J. & B. Moos Company, announces that the past year has seen a marked increase in the sale of "Giant" 5-cent foil package, which he attributes to the wide advertising of the American Tobacco Company on this brand. He adds that the "Tuxedo" humidor, which sells for 90 cents, may be included in this statement. The plan of presenting the purchaser of a 16-ounce package with a 50-cent deck of Congress playing cards has made a great impression on the smokers, and has received a large amount of valuable mouth to mouth advertising.

Arnold Tietig, of Tietig Brothers, cigar manufacturers of Cincinnati, was in the city last week making the rounds of customers and friends.

Al Korn, of F. H. Furgatch & Co., New York, made a brief visit in the city last week. He is resting after a hard and successful year's work.

Otto Schaefer, manager of the cigar department in the La Salle Hotel, betrayed his bachelor friends by marrying Miss Ida Huber several days ago.

Four flush drummers are mourning the policy of the Hotel Sherman in substituting male help at all the cigar counters in preference to the girls who have cheered many a care-laden soul during the past.

Max Wengler, of Wengler & Mandell, cigar manufacturers, has recovered from a serious illness and is again able to attend to business.

E. Wedeles, of Wedeles Brothers, the prominent leaf house in Lake Street, will leave for Havana in a few days to do some buying for his firm.

Season's Greetings From B. F. Alexander

B. F. Alexander, United States representative for the Fernandez y Garcia and Tomas Gutierrez factories in Havana, Cuba, sent his holiday greetings in the form of three appropriate cards with the stamp of one of his famous brands, encircled by a holly emblem, on each one. The brands were "Flor de Tomas Gutierrez," "La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia" and "Las Perlas."

A "Merriam" Sentiment

THERE is a good bit more than dollars and cents commercialism in the make-up of John W. Merriam, head of the company which bears his name, and his hosts of friends have always admired him for his strong strain of kindliness and sentiment which permeates his entire actions, both in business and in private life.

Recently, the company have been enclosng a little folder in their letters which is strongly indicative of this point and is worthy of reproduction herewith.

> As we grow older and the shadows begin to lengthen, and the leaves which seem so thick in youth above our heads grow thin and show the sky beyond, as those in the ranks in front drop away and we come in sight, as we all must, of the eternal rifle pits beyond, a man begins to feel that among the really precious things of Life, more lasting and more substantial than many of the objects of ambition here, is the love of those he loves, and the friendship of those whose friendship he prizes. JOHN W. MERRIAM & Co.

It is needless to say that a firm that thinks along this line makes good cigars.

Mr. Gestal is a Republican and his name is said to have been submitted to Mayor-elect Mitchel, and that it has been favorably received.

The company did a wonderful holiday business, and their special packages were in especially big demand.

$10 A YEAR FOR TRADE PAPERS

By Frank Farrington

WOULD you invest $10 where you felt sure it would return you within a year a hundred or a thousand dollars? Wouldn't you invest $10 where you were surei t would return you even $20 inside of a year?

You have the opportunity, but unless you are the exceptional retailer, you are not making the most of it.

What is it that enables a man to do more business? Isn't it knowing how to advertise? Isn't it knowing how to get people into the store? Isn't it, more than all, having the kind of goods that will interest the consumer the first time and bring him back the second time?

What is it that enables the dealer to make more money on his sales? Isn't it knowing where to buy and when and what to buy? Isn't is knowing how to manage the store economically?

Dealers who have children of their own realize the fact that there is a natural tendency on the part of the youngsters to think they know more than their parents. Dealers who have no children may perhaps remember a day in their own lives when they thought their fathers did not know what they were talking about. But all of us who have arrived at years of discretion are perfectly willing to admit that while we thought we knew it all and needed no help in figuring out the problems of life, we would have found the right answer oftener if we had accepted a little assistance when it was offered. The man who thinks he knows it all has a neighbor who can give him pointers on many subjects. The smartest man who ever lived knows less than you and I about some things.

And you and I, we are making a mistake when we think we know all we need to know about managing our stores. Because we know enough to get a good business and to make a living is no sign we could not get more business and make more money if our knowledge were to be extended. We do not know it all. We can never hope to know it all. There will always be in the other fellows' heads some good ideas that will never get into our own unless they come in through our eyes or our ears.

There is only one excuse for a man trying to run his store without asking or accepting help from outside sources. If he is blind so he cannot read the ideas of others, and if he is deaf so he cannot hear them, he may perhaps be excused; otherwise not.

Of course there are a few merchants who do not want to do any more business, who are perfectly satisfied with the business they already have. I have nothing to say to those men. I never meet any of them personally and none of them are likely to see this. I could not reach them even if I had a message for them.

There was a retailer who seemed to be a monomaniac on the subject of trade papers. He talked about trade papers to all of his friends and acquaintances. He wrote about them and he delivered addresses about them at trade conventions. He became known as "Trade Paper Peters" wherever he went.

This reputation did not disturb him in the least. He kept right on in the same way all the more assiduously. He took six business and trade journals. These covered the various lines of goods he carried and business methods and systems as well. It cost him $10 a year for the six.

"How can you afford to take so many trade papers?" a friend asked, as he saw the six piles back of the desk where at least a year's file of each of the half-dozen was kept all the time.

"How could I afford not to?" Peters replied. "Do you see those display racks out there on top of the show cases? Do you see those silent salesmen show cases and those stands furnished with the goods that are shown on them? Those things are all boosting my sales. They are increasing the business without any more push or advertising on my part. They are getting me trade that I would not otherwise have. All those things, or at least a large percentage of them, I have learned about in the trade papers."

"Couldn't you have found out about them through the traveling men who come here?" inquired the friend.

"Many of those concerns send no men into this territory. I would have known nothing about their goods if I had not seen them described in the trade papers. Some of them are supposed to be sold only through jobbers and no jobbers in this section carry them. When I pick up a self-selling line of goods in that way, my competitors who do not study the trade papers know nothing about them and I steal a lap on them. When I get a line the other fellows don't have, I get a line I can make pay me a good profit. When the other fellows get a line I don't have, they steal away my customers. My trade papers keep me on the right side of both those propositions.

"That window display you were complimenting Tim on as you came in was arranged by him, all right, but he got the idea out of a trade paper and it has already sold enough goods to pay for that paper as long as I shall be in business, and some besides.

"How would I know what is doing in the trade if I took no trade papers? How would I know when a new article appears on the market that is going to have a big sale as soon as the public sees it? My jobbers are all good people, but they can't carry everything or even tell me about everything, and the manufacturers don't all send salesmen here, not by a long shot, and those who do come don't waste much time telling me about the lines of the other fellows. The more information I have, the more business I can do and the better I can do it. I want to know what's new while it is new, not a year after it had been put on the market. If a manufacturer is offering advertising and selling helps I want to know about them in time to help me move the goods I already have on hand.

"You sometimes say you think I have an up-to-date store. Well, I try to have and I go about the trying in two ways. I make it a point to look into every store in my line wherever I am passing one, in this or any other town, just in order to see what they have that is an improvement on what I have. That's one way. The other way is to study my trade papers and business journals you think are such an extravagance. I find that the first place the facts about anything new in my line are made public, is in the trade papers, often in the advertising pages."

"Trade Paper Peters" has the right idea. If there were more like him there would be less complaint about mail order and other irregular forms of competition.

How much are you spending every year for trade and business magazines? How many of them do you take? Perhaps you get two that you pay for and groan every time the bills come in for the subscriptions. You often think you will cut off one of them because it has not paid you, but you very likely end by letting the matter run along until you have to settle for another year because you have accepted the journal.

Well, the reason why your trade paper has not paid you, if indeed it has not, is that you have not read it. You cannot get anything out of a trade paper without going after it any more than you can get money out of the bank without a check.

And if it costs you such a struggle to give up the price of a trade paper every year, why don't you pay for several years in advance and save yourself that annual struggle with its possibility of costing you the paper for a year?

Back of every trade paper is a corps of workers doing their level best to put something into the paper that will help your business. There are advertising solicitors urging their clients to offer you through their space the best possible inducements to get your business. There are writers who are telling their own and others' experiences in the struggle for trade. There is an editor throwing out the matter he thinks might start you on the wrong trail, and eliminating advertising that recommends goods that will not bear close scrutiny.

Ideas are what you want for the development of your business. Ideas are what you must have. No business will grow unless there are ideas behind it; new ideas. The man of one idea does not get very far and the man of no new ideas is his brother.

Have you never felt that you had not an idea in your head, that you could not evolve one to save your neck? Whether you have felt that way or not, there is no doubt there have been times when you were in that condition. And even if you were a perfect mine of new ideas, you will not find in that mine all the best ideas. Others will evolve better ones that you can only get through the clearing house of the trade press.

I know what a good many dealers will say who read this. They will say, "Oh, yes; I know all that. He isn't telling me anything new. I take the '————' and I wouldn't think of running my store without it. It always has some good things in it."

That idea is all right as far as it goes, but it is not even the beginning of the enthusiasm the dealer ought to feel about the trade papers. Remember "Trade Paper Peters"! One trade paper gives you some help just as one show case helps to display the goods, but who would think of getting along with one little showcase? Yet there are many who are willing to stop with one trade paper. Don't try the homeopathic treatment on your trade paper expense. Take at least as many as "Trade Paper Peters" took. Take a good publication covering each line of your stock.

No one journal has a monopoly of all the good ideas. Take enough to be sure of getting more ideas than you can possibly use. You are a hundred times more likely to get too few than to get too many trade papers.

One good business idea, showing you how to save money in operating your store, will be worth to you in a year from ten to a hundred times what you pay for the paper in which you find it.

How are you to know when you are taking enough trade papers? Well, you are not taking enough until you are spending ten dollars a year for them. In all probability you may not be taking enough even when you reach the ten dollar mark.

You should take all the trade papers you can find time to read and unless you find time to read at least ten dollars' worth each year you are neglecting your business. Of course you may not have time to read them at the store without cutting out some of the pleasant little visits you like to have with your acquaintances, but if visiting is more important to you than succeeding in business, I have nothing more to say to you on the subject.

Then there are the clerks, the salesmen, the selling force of the store. They must be induced to read the trade papers. Of course they ought to want to read them for their own advancement, because nothing they can do will pay them any better, but if they show no voluntary interest in such reading, an interest ought to be created. Get the salesman to express a preference for some paper and then get him that one.

By asking an employee to go through a certain journal each issue and check up the things he thinks you ought to see, you will develop a personal interest on his part not only in the paper itself, but also in the needs of the store.

If I had a salesman who cared enough to want to read a certain trade paper connected with a line of goods I was selling, I would get him that paper if it cost me ten dollars a year for the subscription. My ten would come back to me just as surely as if it were to return stuck between the pages of the first number received.

How much extra business must you do in order to get back the $10 you should spend each year for trade papers? Perhaps thirty or forty dollars. Do you mean to say you ever saw a trade paper that would not supply you with enough ideas in the course of a year to increase your annual receipts $40? I have seen the poorest as well as the best trade journals in your line and I never saw one that would not produce $40 in gross receipts for any man who can read.

It is worth $10 a year to have the privilege of writing to a trade paper editor for information about your business, for the name of some house you cannot locate, for advice about some legal point connected with the trade, or for information of a technical character. It is worth $10 a year just to have some unbiased party to whom you can send samples of your advertising and find out how you could make it better, or why it does not pull as you think it should.

The trade paper is a bureau of experts and all those experts are at your service for the price of a postage stamp if you are a subscriber.

The trade papers, one or a dozen of them, will not prove worth a cent to the dealer who does not use them. What would you think of a man who would come in and make a purchase and pay the bill and then tell you to throw the goods on the junk pile because it was too much trouble for him to take them home and use them?

What you would think of such a customer is what I think of you if you do not read your trade papers.

When a circular comes along advertising a trade paper, or when you receive a notice that it is time to renew your subscription, perhaps you take just the same mental attitude you assume when somebody comes in and asks you to sign a subscription paper. You take the position right away that you are being asked to give somebody something as an accommodation to them. That is because you have not been making use of your trade papers. You have not been getting value received out of them thus far and you do not expect to get it in the future.

Whose fault is it that when a trade paper is sent you filled with ideas worth hundreds of dollars to you, you don't get a dollar's worth of ideas out of it? Can you lay it to the publisher?

Ten dollars' worth of business journals a year is the irreducible minimum for any retailer. Every dollar you save of that ten costs you from ten to a hundred to save it. It might cost you a thousand. The idea you miss getting this year may be an idea that would be the making of your business for years to come. You never know when the Big Idea for you is coming by. To save a dollar on trade papers this year, or to save an hour's time this month by neglecting the reading of one paper, may be the means of your losing just the idea or the opportunity you need most.

The $10 spent in a year for trade papers is an investment that is certain to pay you large returns if you give it a chance. If you do not give it a chance, you are not entitled to any returns. Buying trade papers to feed to the waste basket is no different from putting the money they cost right into that receptacle in the first place.

"OH YOU CHICAGO, OH YOU NEW YORK," TO SAY NOTHING OF PHILADELPHIA!

Read This, if You do Not Live in Chicago, and Then Get Real Sore at the Rapid Transit Company in Your City

ON the crowded platform of an elevated railroad station in Chicago during the rush hour one evening a passionate little Preacher wiggled, smirked, smiled and blushed between two admiring women, the wives of hardworking business men bound straight for perdition. In one hand he clutched an umbrella, as if he were going gunning for turnips, while with the other he made Genevieve-like motions to the tune of his chin music, which was on the order best described by a familiar stockyard expression.

Two green lights, heralded by an increasing roar, twinkle suddenly in the murk up the track.

"Jackson Park Express!"

This from the leather-lunged Public Servant who keeps Boobs and Drunks from getting on the wrong train, and gets no thanks for his pains.

The crowd surges forward, carrying the passionate little Preacher and his fair companions through the gate and into the door of the car at one swoop. But hold! The delicate nostrils of the passionate little Preacher detect a hated odor, and the minute his Brogans touch the floor he balks. Blushing furiously, he tries to twist his Beezer over his shoulder in the direction of the two women, whom the inrushing human tide has landed high and dry against the gate on the far side of the platform.

"But—(shove, balk, shove)—but, ladies, we can't go in the smoker with all these Hogs!" (The "o" in hogs pronounced as in "model.")

More people, dashing through the turnstile with driving power generated by despair, hit the struggling mass for a large gain, and the little Preacher, passion and all, is catapulted into the middle of the car, where he comes to a stop with his hat over his burning ears, sardined for half an hour to come between two barrel-chested Hogs with heavy watch chains, who pull on black cigars and read the pink sporting extra with interest.

That's down-town Chicago at 5.30 P. M. every day in the week except Sunday. No place for the father of a minister's son who can't stand the pace!

Let's call the Hogs in the smoker Good Fellows, and take a little more liberal view of them than the passionate little Preacher, whom we will now Hook from the stage of this pen and ink vaudeville.

The car is packed. The more fortunate ones have seats; the others stand in the aisle, clinging to straps.

"The money," quoth the company, "is in the straps!"

We see all kinds of smokers, smoking everything, with cigars in the greatest prominence. Cigarettes and pipes contribute to the near-opaque fog which hangs under the roof of the car. Business men, both Bosses and clerks, professional men and uncouth laborers, sit or stand elbow to elbow. The Brains of a big mail order concern borrows a match from a lean and hungry Window Washer, and mutual politeness is manifested on both sides. Most of the Good Fellows read newspapers. Those who cling to straps manipulate a cigar and newspaper with the same hand in a manner brought to perfection by long experience. The train rumbles on through the canyons of sky-scrapers dotted with rows of red little windows, out of the loop and away to the south, many miles, to the homes where wives and mothers have supper on the stove. The Good Fellows in the smoker are the happiest on the train. Nothing bothers them, and nothing makes them sick.

The elevated railroad companies of Chicago have a standing rule that every train must carry a smoker. The car is marked "SMOKER" in white letters a foot high on the blue background of a metal sign nailed to the middle of the coach, where all the world may see. On the end of the coach, attached to the gate, is a huge letter "S," which is white printed on black tin. This is to guide people going from coach to coach, looking or not looking for the smoker.

The smoker rides either at the head or at the end of the train, and there is much speculation among Good Fellows waiting on the station platforms as to the location of the coach on the train they wish to take. The wisest cannot tell, and to take a position on the wrong end of the platform often means the loss of a seat in the smoker. Some crane their necks as the train approaches, and then, under the impression that they have solved the question, rush to what they consider the proper position. They are often fooled, for there is nothing on the head end to designate the location of the smoker. For that reason many are guided by a "hunch" in this matter, and they are right at least as many times as they are wrong. Sometimes, though not often, the make-up man of the train fools the tobacco-lovers by putting the smoker in the middle.

The Good Fellows are treated much better by the elevated railroad companies than by the street railways of Chicago. The surface cars carry no smokers. If a man wants to smoke he must go up in front and stand with the motorman in his little compartment. He cannot sit down, for there is no place to sit, and in the evenings there is not enough light to permit him to read a newspaper, as the motorman must have darkness behind him in order to see the track ahead. The compartment is crowded most of the time, and one could cut slices out of the air with ease. From time to time certain organizations opposed to the use of tobacco have attempted to compel the street car officials to forbid smoking on the front end, on the ground that the respiration of the motormen was endangered. Nothing has come of this movement, however, and the motormen continue to average a degree of health about ten times higher than that of the would-be reformers.

While the rules of the surface cars forbid smoking, except as indicated, there are certain sections of Chicago where the inhabitants make rules of their own after midnight. For that reason the "owl" cars are all smokers, and as most of the passengers are more or less intoxicated, the conductors find it better to wink at the violation rather than to start a certain pitched battle by making a protest. Few complaints are heard from women or men.

However, the general policy of the street railways is to do away with smoking on the cars. New cars of different design were installed not long ago on the south side, and no provision has been made for smokers.

Pull for the day when the Good Fellows will rise up and demand the recognition for the weed from the street railway companies which they have already received from the elevated railroads of Chicago.

Pennsylvania Manufacturer Locates in Cleveland

H. O. Sechler, formerly of Richland Centre, Pa., and A. H. Cantor, of Cleveland, have formed the Cantor-Sechler Cigar Company, with headquarters at 2364 East Fifty-fifth Street, Cleveland, O.

The new enterprise, which has been in operation about four weeks, caters to the individual smoker, making a specialty of manufacturing cigars to suit any taste, and covering a wide range of prices.

The firm have established a clientele of two hundred patrons, and are optimistic over the outlook for the coming year.

Light Stocks Carried by Trade—Excellent Prospects for Jobbing Trade—New Modern Buildings Going Up to Replace Temporary Structures—"Jose Vila" "Made in Bond" Cigars for Sale

SAN FRANCISCO, December 22, 1913.

JUDGING from the frantic efforts made during the last few days by retailers in the country to get some hurry-up orders filled, it looks as though some of the outside dealers had rather overdone the caution business in their anxiety not to buy too heavily for the holiday business. Generally speaking, buying for the season was rather light and the trade as a whole must be carrying rather light stocks, in fact about the lightest on record. The city trade also bought with great caution, but as the jobbers have been anticipating a rushing business in the eleventh hour they have been able to take care of these in pretty fair shape. Some of the country retailers may, however, suffer from lack of goods.

In this city the volume of the December business has been perfectly satisfactory. The box trade for the holidays is considerably above the average; and sales over the counter have been just about normal for this time of the year. The weather has been clear and cold most of the time, and this has helped out more or less.

The jobbing trade will begin the new year with excellent prospects as far as Coast conditions are concerned. Retailers are universally short of stock, the rains have been good and well distributed throughout the agricultural counties, and the only thing that can check business is a turn for the worse in eastern financial conditions. This does not seem to be in prospect, and the wholesale and distributing trade here is very hopeful as to spring business.

Sol. Ehrman, a pioneer merchant of Mission San Jose, near this city, and the father of Albert and Alexis Ehrman, of Ehrman Bros. & Co., wholesale cigar dealers of this city, died here a few days ago at an advanced age.

William Bercovich, formerly a San Francisco jobber, but now in the wholesale business at Sacramento, Cal., have been in San Francisco this week visiting with his brother, of Bercovich & Co. He reports business in the Sacramento Valley as looking up and in good shape for the early spring.

The march of improvements on Market Street continues to put more retail cigar stores out of business. Several of the Gunst stores have been closed for several months awaiting the completion of new modern buildings in place of the old temporary "shacks" put up after the great fire of 1906; and now one of the Market Street stores of the United Cigar Stores Co. has been notified to vacate at the end of three months in order to make way for a notable extension to the Crocker Building, one of the oldest of San Francisco's buildings of the "sky-scraper" class. The store affected is the one directly opposite the Palace Hotel.

W. I. Pixley, whose stock of "Pera" cigarettes was reduced to a very small margin by the burning of Glaser Brothers' jobbing house a couple of weeks ago, has been doing some rushing work in getting in goods in order to keep up the work on the "Pera" line. He got in some express shipments in response to telegrams a few days ago and will have a freight shipment at hand in a few days more. He reports a splendid distribution of these cigarettes since taking up the line.

M. A. Gunst, head of M. A. Gunst & Co., came in from the East a week since, after some experiences on the road in the way of being snowbound that made him glad to get safely back in California. Gus Simon, of the Portland branch of M. A. Gunst & Co., reached San Francisco about the same time as Mr. Gunst. Morgan Gunst, who recently returned from a month's stay at Los Angeles, is now preparing for a trip to Honolulu.

C. W. McCormick, Coast representative of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, is in San Francisco for the holidays. He looks forward to a good spring business. Soon after the first of the year Mr. McCormick will leave for the East for his annual trip to the factory.

Arthur Meyer, Coast man for Bustillo Bros. & Diaz, came up from the South a few days since and will spend the holidays in San Francisco.

H. Bier, San Francisco distributor of the "Jose Vila" line of government bonded clear Havana cigars, is in receipt of the first shipment from Berriman Brothers' factory. He is the first man in the trade to have these certified goods, and will begin placing them with the trade at once.

At this season of the year a number of changes are usually to be noted; but so far the number made public is not notably large or important advices from the South show several changes of minor importance in Los Angeles. S. M. & L. E. Hopkins have sold out to R. Macinaw; Morris Burk has bought out the business of F. C. Stevens; L. H. Vogel has taken over the business of A. R. Johnson, and A. Mussanti has bought out S. Reina.

Standard Binders Going Big

Every effort is being made to push to rapid completion the new improved mill of the Tobacco Production Company, where the most modern and specially designed machinery will be installed for the production of the Standard Pure Tobacco Binder. The appointments of the new mill have been scientifically planned to meet the exacting requirements of the manufacturing process that is responsible for the evolution of the binder from Havana tobacco stems, cuttings and scraps. The officials of the Tobacco Production Company have been at work for some time past collaborating with machinery experts in order to hasten to completion the necessary equipment.

First orders from cigar manufacturers and re-orders from those who have already tried out the binder, are coming in so fast that the company is planning to operate on a three shift system. This will make it necessary for the mills to be worked night and day continuously throughout the year. The Standard Pure Tobacco Binder, having overcome all obstacles and prejudices, is now firmly entrenched as a real necessity wherever good material is required for the manufacture of cigars of all grades and prices. While at first the Standard Binder was used principally on low-priced cigars, the quality has been steadily raised to the point where it can be applied to all grades of cigars. The latest specimen of Binder is a genuine guaranteed clear Havana that is being specially used for the better grade cigars.

The officials of the Tobacco Production Company appreciate the co-operation extended to them by those manufacturers who were first to recognize the possibilities of the Binder as a substitute for and an improvement over regular grown leaf. To these manufacturers quick deliveries are being made on all orders received and to all other factories sending in their orders now will be extended every courtesy in the filling of Binder requirements, the latter being shipped in the order in which they are received.

William J. Sneeringer

WILLIAM J. SNEERINGER, a prominent tobacco manufacturer and grower of Baltimore, succumbed at the Mercy Hospital on December 12, as a result of hardening of the arteries. Mr. Sneeringer had been bedridden for almost a year.

Being seventy-six years old, Mr. Sneeringer was one of the oldest men engaged in the tobacco trade in the city. He was considered successful. His firm was originally Sneeringer, Taylor & Neer, but was later changed to Sneeringer & Company.

In the pursuit of business he traveled considerably, making many trips to Europe for the purpose of establishing agencies. He lived at 1317 North Charles Street, and his only hobby was in maintaining a stable of fine driving and riding horses for his own use.

Mr. Sneeringer was the last of his generation in the family except the Reverend Mother Joanna, abbess of the Carmelite Convent at Wheeling, W. Va. He is survived by a son, William J. Sneeringer; a daughter, Mrs. Edward Badart, and two grandsons, W. J. Sneeringer, 3d, and Edward Sneeringer Badart.

Dudley P. Moors

Dudley P. Moors, for many years in the cigar and tobacco business in Charlestown, Mass., died on December 19, at his home, the Waverley House, Charlestown, Mass.

The deceased was born in Groton, sixty years ago, and received his early education at Lawrence Academy.

Mr. Moors is survived by a wife and one daughter.

Simon Smith

Simon Smith, a veteran cigar manufacturer of Ottawa, Canada, died on December 23, at his home at 511 Filmore Street, that city. Cancer of the stomach caused his death.

The deceased was born in Germany in 1846, and came to America with his parents in 1852. He is survived by a wife, three sons and one daughter.

George J. Smith

George J. Smith, a former president of the American Cigar Company, who accumulated a fortune in the cigar manufacturing business, died on December 24th, at Atlantic City, N. J. He was an ex-Congressman and was formerly a treasurer of the Republican State Committee, and in 1903 represented the Twenty-fourth District of New York in Congress. His home was in Kingston, N. Y. The deceased was fifty-five years of age.

James B. Johnson

James B. Johnson, for many years connected with the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, died at his home in Winston-Salem, N. C., on December 16. His death resulted from appendicitis. His condition was so serious that even before the operation was performed, little hope was held out for his recovery.

The deceased was fifty-three years old. He is survived by four children, one daughter and three sons, and a widow. Besides these, five brothers and two sisters are living.

Colonel J. G. Davis

With the death of Colonel James Graham Davis a few days ago, passed another one of the pioneer cigar and tobacco men of Chicago. Colonel Davis came to the city from Louisville, Ky., in 1871, a short time after the great fire had made its visitation to the future metropolis of the West. He had been engaged in the tobacco business in Louisville, where he had met with success, but all previous obstacles were as nothing compared to the task which confronted him in building up the cigar business of Franklin MacVeagh & Company. He worked with the enthusiasm which to the last was one of his most striking characteristics, and with his rough hands shaped the principles which to the present day rule in the large cigar business of Franklin MacVeagh & Company, who are now leading distributors for a number of popular brands. Later he went into the cigar and tobacco brokerage business on his own account, and for many years was a distributor for Bondy & Lederer. He built up a business of $2,000,000.

Finding that old age was beginning to tell on him, Colonel Davis retired about five years ago, leaving the concern in the hands of his eldest son, Graham. J. G. Davis & Company are at the present time distributors for "Tom Keene" cigar in Western territory, and have a large outlet through the Steele-Wedeles Company, wholesale grocers of this city. Colonel Davis served with distinction in the Civil War, on the side of the lost cause.

He won distinction in the local commercial world in the early eighties by springing some of the most novel advertising dodges which the town had seen at that time. He once sent a circular letter to nearly every married woman in Chicago, urging her in eloquent language to try a new brand of plug tobacco which he was placing on the market. He demonstrated in this that he knew woman nature well, for the wives, as he had guessed, carried the letters to their husbands with some indignation, and forced them to read the circular, where if it had been mailed to them direct they would have read but a small per cent. of them. The husbands, having their attention called in this unusual manner, gave the new goods a trial at the first opportunity and the success of the brand was assured from the start.

Colonel Davis was married twice, the mother of his two sons having died many years ago. He has a little daughter, Virginia Lee Davis, by his second wife. The cause of his death was aneurism of the heart, which, unsuspected by him, had been in existence for a long time.

Matthew Hutchinson

Matthew Hutchinson, a cigar manufacturer, died on December 18, at his home, 3601 Avenue I, Flatbush, Brooklyn, of general debility. The deceased was seventy-two years old and is survived by a widow, one son and one daughter.

William Taylor

William Taylor, a cigar manufacturer of Brooklyn, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lillian Fox, at 358 Central Avenue, on December 16. He was forty-nine years of age.

John Wenner

John Wenner, a retail cigar dealer of Brooklyn, died at his home, 134 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn, on December 17. He was seventy-seven years old.

Charles W. Edwards

Charles W. Edwards, a cigar manufacturer of Alpena, Mich., died on December 20, at his home in that place, of typhoid pneumonia.

The deceased was fifty-nine years old, was a Mason, a Moose, an Odd Fellow, and was a founder of the Chase Benjamin Gun Club.

A Neat San Francisco Window

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

Extensive specialty work on the part of jobbers and manufacturers in San Francisco has led to a rather peculiar condition, that is the custom among independent retailers of renting their window display space to any specialty man who makes the best bid; and the result is that most of the display work worthy of the name is commonly done at the expense and under the direction of the manufacturers or their agents. A notable exception to this custom is found at present in the store of John C. Conner, "Purveyor to Discriminating Smokers," at California and Davis Streets, who is featuring his own brands in excellent style.

Not only the windows, but the entire store, have been beautifully decorated for the holiday season. Mr. Conner is no slouch as a window dresser himself, but for this occasion he secured the services of Ed Crane, a cigar window expert who has a high reputation locally. The store, open in summer, has been enclosed for the winter, with a door to keep out the December breezes, giving a cozy effect inside. From the ceiling and around the walls, at the top of doors, windows and shelving, are suspended garlands of redwood foliage and red berries, and the same effect is carried out in the windows, in each of which is an effective arrangement of various brands of cigars in fine sizes, and in small packages suitable for the holiday trade. These are set off with packages of cigarettes, tobacco, candy and pipes, these being the only lines the brands of which are not controlled by Mr. Conner's establishment. In each window, also, is a large window card neatly lettered with a catchy inscription, one being, "For the ladies: Select his favorite brand. We will assist you in making your choice."

The principal line featured is under the "Purveyor" brand, clear Havanas in a large variety of fine sizes and shapes; and there is also the Porto Rico line, "Benditos," made by the Compana Commercial de Caguas, all put up especially for Mr. Conner and bought direct from the factories.

Just how much business has been directly due to the display would be hard to say, but Mr. Conner has certainly has a tremendous run for the holidays, and has been constantly on the jump since the first of December. During the last week before Christmas about 50,000 cigars were sent out from this one small store. Mr. Conner admits that it took some nerve to put in an independent display of this kind, but is more than satisfied with the results.

Stickney Cigar Company Makes New Lease

The Stickney Cigar Company, now owned and managed by Niles & Moser Company, and Rothenberg & Sloss, of Kansas City, have recently leased the storeroom at 511 North Seventh Street, St. Louis, Mo., for a long term, at an annual rental of $3300.

Extensive alterations will be made to the front of the store and the Stickney Company will install elaborate fixtures, making this one of its principal cigar stands. The lease was made for the account of Missouri Valley Realty Company.

New Quarters for J. & B. Moos

The J. & B. Moos Co., wholesale cigar and tobacco dealers, of Chicago, Ill., have leased from the estate of E. J. Lehmann, the entire first floor and basement of the building at 211-219 West Randolph Street, for a period of ten years. The premises contain about 28,000 square feet and were last occupied by the city of Chicago as a temporary City Hall.

The lease was negotiated by Albert H. Wetten & Co.

The rental terms are withheld, but it is understood the store has been offered at an annual rentof $15,000. J. & B. Moos have been located at Randolph Street and Michigan Avenue for the last twelve years, but did not renew their lease owing to the pending ordinances for the widening of Michigan Avenue, which would condemn part of the building.

It is an interesting coincidence that this firm has been located on Randolph Street for the past fifty-seven years. In 1856 the founder of the firm, Julius Moos, opened a cigar store in the Metropolitan Hotel at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Randolph Street, so that the new location immediately adjoins the one occupied by them fifty-seven years ago.

Omaha House Expanding

Tracy Brothers, one of the largest exclusive cigar jobbing house in Omaha, founded in 1892 by the late Charles A. Tracy, still continues to grow and branch out.

This firm had its beginning in a small store at 1523 Douglas Street, but the business grew so rapidly that in 1902 the firm incorporated, and later took over the three-story building at 1415 Douglas Street. In 1911 this company opened a stand at 542 Broadway, Council Bluffs. Recently it has converted the Moritz Meyer store into another one of their branches.

Since the death of Charles A. Tracy, the management of the company has been in the hands of Vice-president T. H. Tracy. Their goods are being pushed both wholesale and retail at a rapid rate, another example of the oak that comes from the acorn.

Sharples Goes to Shipley-Massingham Company

PITTSBURGH, PA.

W. F. Sharples, who has had charge of and was interested in the Stallings Company, McKeesport, for the past year, and who was extremely successful in the cigar game, has severed his connections with them and after the first of the year will be associated with Shipley-Massingham Drug Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa. Shipley-Massingham Company are distributors of "Cuesta-Rey," "Jose Garcia," "Rey Oma" and "New Bachelor." Mr. Sharples will take over with him the famous "Chas. Denby" and "La Saramita" cigars, making this department one of the most complete in the city of Pittsburgh. With these lines Mr. Sharples and Mr. Sprague, formerly of Rhode & Company, Cincinnati, the Shipley-Massingham Company should finish 1914 with a big cigar business.

Imported Goods in Favor for Holidays—Hoffman Tobacco Company Purchasers at Receivers' Sale—New Factory for Banner Cigar Company—Offer of Last Cigar in Any Box Free, Stimulates Trade

DETROIT, MICH., December 24, 1913.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR! This is the day before Christmas and, believe me, we cigar dealers are just as busy as we can be getting out orders. This applies to everybody who features fancy packages and boxed goods for the holidays. On the aggregate it is not likely that business will run considerably ahead of last year. It seems that many firms in the habit of giving boxes of cigars are giving a cheaper grade of cigars this year in order to reduce the expense. For instance, one large house that usually spends $150 for cigars and has always bought high-grade imported goods came in and said: "I don't want to spend a single penny more than I did last year, but I have more people to take care of this year, so I want you to give them something nearly as good that doesn't cost quite as much." And this is the spirit of most business houses for 1914. They are not doing anything radical, but they are not inclined to be as free in their expenditures for cigars, etc., as they were last year. In other words, they are conservative and are spending their money as if every dollar counted.

Imported goods continue to be in favor for Christmas gifts, and there isn't a window in which you won't find all the leading imported brands. It is hard to say which are most in demand, but from reports of the dealers the writer would infer that such brands as "Websters," "Lozanos," "Charles the Great," Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Upmann, "Romeo and Juliet" have been going big, while the private brands of each store are also being pushed with much success.

The cigar stock of the Gustav A. Moebs & Co. plant on Hastings Street was purchased a few weeks ago by Edward Barnett, who had them auctioned off a few days previous to Christmas at the vacant store corner of Monroe and Liberty Streets. The place was always crowded, particularly with the working class of people, and in this way the entire purchase was disposed of, needless to say at a nice profit. The writer took occasion to spend several minutes while the sale was in progress, and actually it is surprising what big prices people will pay for things at an auction sale. If the same goods were sold through the legal channels in a store, they would not bring half what they did by auction. Eddie Barnett is an alderman and also proprietor of the Dresden Cafe. He must be given credit for his keen judgment of human nature.

On December 16th took place the auction by the receivers of the Gustav A. Moebs & Co. plant, such as the tobacco stock, fixtures, etc. These were sold for $32,250 to M. R. Hoffman, of the Hoffman Tobacco Co., of Marietta, Pa., who will arrange at once to sell the property either as a whole or in piece meal.

The following article appeared in a leading afternoon newspaper in Kalamazoo, Mich., a few days ago: "Sam T. Goldberg, of Detroit, formerly of Kalamazoo, and one of the proprietors of the 'La Azora' cigar factory in Detroit, seems to have run across a bonanza in the form of an electric automobile starting device in which he has a third interest. Goldberg invested $500 in helping a young Detroit inventor a few years ago and was given a third interest in the device, which was at that time unperfected. He gave the matter no more thought until a few days ago, when he was informed by the inventor that one of the largest automobile companies in the country had offered $250,000 for the patents covering the device. Goldberg and the inventor expect to realize even more than that sum out of the starter and from all appearances the investment of $500 will net the former Kalamazoo man a neat fortune." Sam T. when he heard of this just smiled and would not commit himself. As "silence gives consent" we conclude that the story is authentic.

The Hemmeter Cigar Co. donated twenty-five dollars to the Detroit Times "Forgotten" fund, which is used to remember poor children at Christmas time. John P. Hemmeter was in Dayton a few weeks ago looking over the Ohio crop. His son accompanied him.

A live drug store in Battle Creek that gives a lot of attention to its cigar department is the Baker Drug Co. For the holidays the following brands were featured on box trade: "William Penn," "Websters," "Don Antonio" and "Henry the Fourth."

Harry Elsey, formerly manager of the cigar stand at the Downey House in Lansing, and of late manager of the Alt Heidelberg cigar department, has engaged in business for himself in the Bamlet Building, where he is making what he calls "trade stimulators," such as raffle and punch cards, especially adapted to stimulate sales at cigar and candy stores.

Burglars entered the George W. Beck drug store in Durand, Mich., a few weeks ago and secured about $12 from the cash register and a large quantity of cigars and tobacco.

The Klip Cigar Company has been incorporated to carry on a cigar manufacturing business in Detroit. The capital stock is $5000 and the principal stockholders are George S. Clark and A. G. Smith.

Another new factory is to be erected in the cigar manufacturing district which will be located on Warren Avenue, East, and Mitchell Avenue, according to an announcement just made by the Banner Cigar Company, now situated on Randolph Street. The building will be five stories high, including the basement. It will be brick throughout and will have all modern conveniences for factory purposes.

R. L. Cavanaugh, of Cadillac, Mich., has added a cigar stock to his restaurant.

John DeSmit, 907 North Ionia Street, Grand Rapids, Mich., is conducting a cigar factory under the name of the Creston Cigar Company.

J. H. Beck has engaged in the cigar business in Otsego, Mich.

Charles E. Herington has started a cigar store in Lyons, Mich.

B. D. Stockdale has opened up a billiard and cigar store in Wayland, Mich.

Henry A. Gerbers and Cornelius Vandenbout have commenced operations as cigar manufacturers under the style of the Gerbers Cigar Company, at 610 West Fulton Street, Grand Rapids, Mich. Gerbers was formerly in the same business.

E. E. Wheaton, of Traverse City, has accepted a position with the Flint Cigar Company, of Flint, Mich., and will sell the "Old Ols" and other cigars made by that company. He will travel in the northwestern part of Michigan's lower peninsula.

Jacob Rehor, of Hastings, Mich., has installed in his West End Cigar Store a handsome wall case, which is his own design. It is of quarter-sawed oak, matched with lumber and was laid out by Mr. Rehor at one of the planing mills. The doors are equipped with refrigerator locks and are air tight. Mr. Rehor before engaging in the cigar business was foreman for twenty years of one of the table works in Hastings and demonstrated that he still retains remarkable ability along this line of work.

As an example of the manner in which a business can be developed from practically nothing, the cigar business of C. J. Holton, of Detroit, stands out prominently. Twenty-six years ago C. J. Holton set up his first stand. He had practically nothing in the way of capital, but he placed a small case of cigars in Tom Seans' old restaurant at 85 Woodward Avenue. After ten years at 85 Woodward Avenue, Mr. Molton moved into the store at 145 Woodward Avenue. At that time it was generally admitted to be the finest equipped cigar store in the country. The interior furnishings alone cost upwards of $17,000. About two years ago Mr. Holton decided to move off Woodward Avenue and get where rents were not so high, and finally concluded to build his own building, which he did at Adams and John R Streets, which is within the half-mile circle and only a stone's throw from the main thoroughfare. "For a short time the volume of my business decreased, but the fact that I now own my building and have no rent to pay, makes it possible for me to attract trade by a good reduction in the numerous lines of smokers' novelties without profits suffering," said Mr. Holton, who says he is making more real money than ever before, in both the retail and wholesale departments.

A Detroit cigar dealer is stimulating trade by ingeniously catering to the well-known human trait of desiring something for nothing. He offers the last cigar in any box free of charge to the customer who discovers it. The purchaser is at liberty to work out any sort of a combination in order to get that last cigar. For instance, if there are six cigars to any given box when the customer enters, he may buy five of them and demand the sixth one free. Or if he spies any box with a lone cigar in it he can step up and smoke without paying a cent. The dealer sometimes leaves boxes with single cigars in them in order to keep the hunting good. The scheme has brought this dealer a good share of the smoke trade in his section, because he has used an original way of stimulating interest with practically little expense.

Rivaling the best appointed cafes in New York and Chicago, for completeness of equipment, attractive features in general and artistic decorations, the Frontenac, Detroit's newest cafe, in the basement of the Berghoff Hotel on Monroe Avenue, is now open for business. It is strikingly different from any other similar institution in Detroit and presents a vivid and brilliant panorama of everything that is modern. W. D. C. Moebs, a man of both imagination and skill, and an engineer by profession, worked out his ideas along broad and progressive lines and then called in an architect. Together they produced a place that is meeting with great favor; in fact, there has never been a night since the opening, ten days ago, that it has not been necessary to put up ropes by eleven o'clock at night in order to keep the people back whom it was impossible to accommodate. It is proving a popular eating place for the tobacco men. On entering, to your right, there is a small cigar stand which is operated by the Harry W. Watson Company, and is under the general management of Charles E. Bird, who looks after all of the Watson retail stores and stands. Mr. Bird says that the business so far has exceeded all expectations. "The Frontenac is getting the best people and the best spenders in Detroit, and the cigar department is doing double the business we really looked for," he said.

As an outcome of the cigarmakers' strike, Howard Navarre and Otto Limpf have purchased the cigar factory of A. J. Seifert, 428 Front Street, Toledo, O., and will continue the business under the name of Navarre & Limpf. Mr. Seifert will remove his tobacco business to another location, where he will continue in business.

Albert Von der Heide, owner of the Cadillac Cigar Box Company, of Detroit, died December 18th. He was fifty-three years of age. He is survived by a widow and one married daughter.

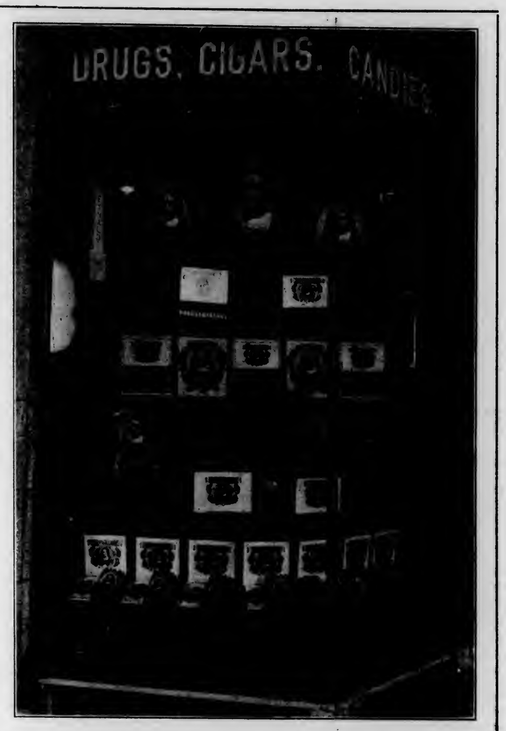
Boosting "Reynaldos"

THIS illustrated display of "Reynaldos" gives some idea of the strenuous campaign now going on in the interest of "Reynaldo" cigars, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb. The manufacturers have had splendid window cards printed and this design gives an idea of the excellent showing that can be made with their use.

The display shown here was made in a window of the Todd Becker Company store at Sioux City, Ia., and is located on what is known as the "Busiest Corner in the Northwest."

The display was arranged by B. F. Forsberg.



Pittsburgh

Many Sales of "Savaronas" at Park Building Stand—Big "Omar" Campaign Hits "Smoky City"—P. Lorillard Company Has Successful Season With "Stag" Humidors

PITTSBURGH, PA., December 24, 1913.

THE holiday business in Pittsburgh has been very good. Some dealers are complaining, but the majority state that this was the biggest holiday trade they ever had.

Mr. Harper, of the Products Co., has left the Pittsburgh territory and after January 1st will cover some eastern territory for this company. While in Pittsburgh Mr. Harper was very successful with "Melachrino," "Milo" and "Nestor" cigarettes, and we wish him success in his new territory.

A. Fine, who has the cigar stand in the Peoples Bank Building, reports big holiday business. Mr. Fine carries a full line of imported and domestic cigars. Among them are "Romeo and Julietas," "Carolinas," "Bock and Clays," "Cortez," "Solace," "Cuesta Rey," "Tadema," "Chas. the Great," "El Versos" and "El Preferencia." In nickel cigars "San Felice," "Roig," "Duquesne Club" and "Owl."

"Doc" Easton, of the Falk Tobacco Co., was in Pittsburgh for a few days in the interest of "Tarreyton" tobacco and cigarettes. The Falk Tobacco Company have quite a distribution in Pittsburgh. Reymer Bros. are distributors for this cigarette.

There are several changes in the American Tobacco Co.'s plug department. Mr. Honkins, sales manager for Western Pennsylvania, has resigned and has been succeeded by Mr. Greenawald, who formerly worked the retail stores.

Miss Folwer, manager of the cigar department of E. E. Heck's Drug Store, has gone through an operation to have a tumor removed. She is doing very nicely and expects to be out of the hospital in six or eight weeks.

Jos. L. Sterck, of Brookville, Pa., has one of the finest stands in that section. He carries a full line of the well known brands distributed by the Bock-Stauffer Co., of Pittsburgh. Among them are "Duquesne Bouquet," "Webster," "Iroquois," "Osmundo," "Van Dyck" and "Jenkinson Best." Mr. Sterck also handles the "El Verso" cigars distributed by the W. J. Gilmore Drug Co.

E. Donovan, for ten years with the W. J. Gilmore Drug Co.'s cigar department, is now in the insurance business with the New York Life.

F. L. Linn, of the Liggett & Myers "Fatima" department, has had a very successful year; in fact the biggest year ever on "Fatima" cigarettes.

W. G. Goetz, of the J. T. Snyder stores, is out hustling every day for box business and has had quite a success this year.

Frank I. Clemans, of the Park Building cigar stand, carries a very nice line of imported and domestic cigars. Among them are "Gonzales" and "Sanchez," "La Victoria," "Tuval" and "White Heather." In Porto Rico cigars he carries "Savaronas" in all sizes. He reports big business for the holidays.

P. Lorillard Co. have just finished a successful campaign on "Stag" humidors. Mr. Hamilton and crew have left for Philadelphia, where they disband until after the Xmas holidays. Look out for them next year.

L. K. Black, of Bock-Stauffer Co., Pittsburgh, reports 1913 his banner year of fourteen years selling cigars. He ended the year by closing an order for 250,000 stogies for 1914 delivery.

The "Omar" campaign that has been going on in Pittsburgh for the last week under the direction of Messrs. Hiles and Nobert, of New York, has met with large success. "Omar" has become a leading factor in the twenty for fifteen cents cigarette world in the town. The salesmen of this campaign all agree that Pittsburgh is already an "Omar" town. Messrs. J. D. Armstrong and H. S. Brubaker, E. R. Brosry and P. T. Green have been in the down-town section of the city making "Omars" a factor, and am sorry that they cannot be in the Smoky City longer. Messrs. J. D. Armstrong and P. T. Green leave for Cleveland, Ohio, to continue their pleasant work of making friends with "Omar." Messrs. Brosry and Brubaker leave for Columbus on a similar mission. S. Simon, division salesman of Pittsburgh, deserves a great deal of credit for the way he has handled this campaign, assisted by Messrs. Wilden and Morwitz, of Ohio. The entire "Omar" crew leave for their vacation for Xmas on the twentieth of December and resume work on January 2d. We hope that another "Omar" campaign will come to Pittsburgh again.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

WHILE we have a beautiful clear sky here in Havana, with a temperature of 76 to 80 degrees during the day and about 70 at night, the same continued state of the weather in the country is, however, playing havoc with the chances of raising a good temprano crop in the Vuelta Abajo. If no rain should fall this month, then we have to be prepared to see a small and very heavy quality crop in the year 1914, which would be a great misfortune for our cigar manufacturers, and also for the clear Havana cigar factories in Tampa, and other cities of the United States. Thanks to the irrigation system employed in the Partido section, the outlook is more hopeful for this style of tobacco. Excepting Manicaragua, where there are chances of raising eventually a large and good crop, the other tobacco raising districts of the Santa Clara province complain bitterly about the prevailing drought that prevents the growth of the young plants set out, and stops all further transplantings of additional seedlings, which latter can be had almost for the asking, or from thirty to fifty cents per thousand. However, we trust that Dame Nature may finally send us a good shower yet, in the nick of time, and which would change the present aspect completely.

Our leaf market during the first three weeks in December has been rather dull, notwithstanding that we have had quite a number of buyers visiting us, but excepting the large purchase of one manufacturer, the other transactions have been mostly limited to smaller operations. Possibly the buyers thought that they would be able to get some bargains, but in this they have been disappointed, as our packers are by no means anxious to part with their holdings at a loss. On the contrary they are very firm in their pretensions, and unless conditions should change radically for the better they are apt to raise their figures materially during the coming month. Our stocks are still sufficiently large to last for some time to come, but as we have learned from a good, reliable source that the 1913 crop has found universal favor with the American manufacturers, and that their purchases had been restricted only by the scarcity of money, we now feel confident, by the passing of the monetary law in the United States, to see a lively demand for all good kinds of our leaf during the month of January, and entirely independent of what the next crop might eventually turn out.

Recent Leaf Sales.

Sales from December 1st to December 20th amounted to 9,604 bales, or which divided represented: Vuelta Abajo, 3,151; Partido, 323, and Remedios, 6,220 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 7,138; Canadians, 295; exporters to Europe, 633; shippers to South America, 887; to Australia, 106, and our local manufacturers, 635 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the last three weeks were: To all ports of the United States, 8,022; to England, 710; to Bremen and Hamburg, 302; to South America, 1,070; to Canada, 295; to Melbourne, 106; to Mexico, 50; thus making a total of 10,555 bales.

Cigars.

While the month of December is always a quieter month, and most factories are reducing the forces of their cigarmakers to meet the changed conditions, it seems however that this year is a trifle better than last year so far. The good quality of the 1913 crop has become appreciated by the smokers not alone, but it seems that the importers and jobbers feel more disposed to lay in some stocks ahead to meet the coming demand, at least this is the opinion of judges in the trade. After the beneficial effects of the new monetary law shall have become more generally distributed, and trade assumed its normal aspect in the United States, we shall surely see a revival in the demand for our cigars in the North. In the meantime business with England, Canada, Germany, France, Australia and South America is sufficient to keep our factories fully occupied in accordance with the season.

Romeo y Julieta has very fair orders on hand, and still they seem to be arriving from the above named countries. Don Pepin Rodriguez sailed from Saint Nazaire, France, on the twenty-first inst. per S. S. "Espagne" for our port and ought to arrive here on the first or second of January, 1914.

H. Upmann & Co. have no complaints to utter, as they are getting their full share of the business that is going in all directions.

Partagas reports that business is as good with them as previously reported.

Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., stated that business is better with them than for some time previously.

Por Larrañaga has had so many calls for its latest creation "Nacionales" from abroad and from our island that they are unable to fill all the orders. Notwithstanding that the holiday orders are past now for some time already, they are so busy—Don Eustaquio Alonso says they are working with full speed and a half—that they are going to open a branch factory at Hoyo Colorado upon January 1st, as their present building is not half big enough to fill the orders on hand.

The trinity of the brands controlled by the Sol factory, viz.: "Sol," "Luis Marx" and "La Devesa de Murias" are as much in favor as ever in all countries that consume Habana cigars, and Behrens & Co. are as busy as during the holiday season.

Castañeda and Fonseca, instead of decreasing the forces of their cigarmakers, on the contrary increased them, in order to fill the urgent calls for prompt shipments.

Flor del Fumar continues working with the same forces quite steadily, as there is no slackening yet in the receipt of orders.

Other busy factories are: Hoyo de Monterey, Punch, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia Eden, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, La Flor de José Otero, Belinda, El Rey del Mundo and C. E. Beck & Co.

Buying, Selling and Other Notes of Interest.

The sterling firm of E. Rosenwald & Bro. will celebrate upon January 1, 1914, the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the firm, and although none of the originators are among the living, the successors have carried on the business upon the same lines of strict honesty and equitable dealings with their customers. In remembrance of the past and present time, Mr. A. Bijur, one of the partners, has had the idea to present their customers with a box of twenty-five cigars each, which are made from the choicest product of Cuba's unsurpassed Vuelta Abajo leaf of this year's crop. Mr. A. Bijur is recognized as an undisputed authority on our leaf, and he therefore gave the order to the Punch and Belinda factories for five thousand cigars, one-half of each brand, packed in 40th, and the box is a work of art from the varied-colored inimitable Cuban woods, and bearing inlaid the inscription of "E. R. & B. 1864-1914." THE TOBACCO WORLD wishes the firm of E. Rosenwald & Bro. another fifty years of continued success.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales were the biggest sellers in our market during the past three weeks, having turned over to their customers 3,030 bales of all kinds of leaf.

John Kolb, of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., was a welcome visitor in our city during the past two weeks, and while we had the pleasure of shaking hands with him, as well as with his son Philip, we unfortunately could not see him before his return home, in order to learn the exact quantity of the bales purchased by him. However, upon asking Don Antero Prieto of the firm of Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez, whether he would give us the desired information, he stated that as much as he would like to oblige THE TOBACCO WORLD, he did not think he was authorized to do so without Mr. Kolb's permission, but he might say that the latter secured all that he needed from his firm, and that the amount was about equal to his last year's purchase. As we reported last year 2,000 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Remedios, we therefore think we are not far out of the way in giving the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co. credit for the same number of bales this time.

Other sellers of importance were: Aixala & Co., 1,756; Gonzalez & Benitez, 1,124; José Menendez, 592; Gonzalez Hermanos & Co., 480; Sierra y Martinez, 352; Herrera, Calmet & Co., 307; M. A. Suarez & Co., 215; José C. Puente & Co., 175; F. Rocha & Co., 150, and H. H. Strater, 117 bales.

Other buyers of most importance were: Lewis Cantor, 900; Rothschild Sons & Co., 725; C. E. Beck & Co., 662; Mendelsohn, Borneman & Co., 595; Wedeles Bros., 587; Friend Leaf Tobacco Co., 525; Weil & Co., 479; Hart & Murphy, 450; Calero & Co., 429; Maximilian Stern, 356; Perlman Bros., 345; Allones, Ltd., 300; J. F. Berndes & Co., 172; Garcia & Co., 147 and José Suarez & Co., 101 bales.

H. Upmann & Co. purchased in the country 500 bales of Vuelta Abajo from San Juan y Martinez, the vega "Las Mangas," for their factory. Evidently H. Upmann & Co. are taking Father Time by the forelock in trying to secure as much as possible yet of the 1913 crop.

El Tabaco has published a report about the coming Manicaragua crop, which according to trustworthy information is greatly overcolored, as an estimate of the growing plants in the fields, in the yield of number of bales, varies from 2,500 to 4,500 plants to make one bale of tobacco, according to the number of cuts the plant might give under favorable weather conditions. In fact, even when the tobacco is cut and hanging on the poles, bad weather may cut down the quantity considerably.

Don Miguel Gutierrez, Jr., celebrated the christening of his heir upon Sunday, December 21st, at the residence of his father, 53 Estrella Street, and the boy is called now "Miguel, Angel Gutierrez y Torroella." All Spanish speaking people always carry besides the name of their father also the one of their mother. That the third Miguel Guiterrez may follow in the footsteps of his father and grandfather is our wish.

Don Teodoro Garbade, the president of the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba, is doing some hard work in trying to get the government to protect the industry by using the Cuban Diplomats to make reciprocity treaties—The Modus Vivendi with Spain is progressing—and to let the Cuban Consuls also look out and persecute all falsifications of our government stamp. The word Habana is Cuban property, and no American manufacturer ought to have the right to use the same on his boxes. Very likely a test case will be fought in the courts ere long, and the American law ought to follow the decision of the English courts.

Charles Mattheas & Company Renovating

Charles Mattheas & Company are making some changes in their building at Pine and Front Streets, San Francisco. Heretofore the store entrance has been on Front Street, along which are located a considerable number of San Francisco's leading wholesale cigar stores. Hereafter the main entrance to the store will be on Pine Street, and the corner section will be sublet, as it is considered that this is now too valuable to be held for wholesale purposes when not actually needed. Mr. Mattheas reports a good year with all his leading lines moving well. This company acts as the distributor in the San Francisco territory of the "American" cigar of E. Regensburg & Sons.

Tobacco Barn Burns

The tobacco barn of Dock Simpson, in the Buckeye section of Garard County, near Lancaster, Ky., was recently destroyed by fire. More than 2000 pounds of tobacco fed the flames together with a large amount of corn, hay and other provender. Farming implements were also destroyed.

LEAF TOBACCO MARKET

Ninety Per Cent. of Ohio Crop Sold—1912 Pennsylvania Going Well—Wisconsin Dealers Have Heavy Season—Connecticut Crop Said to be Off in Weight and Quality

OHIO.

TROY, O.

Conditions in the Ohio field are little changed from last month, although prices have a tendency still to soar. Quite a little Zimmer, Spanish, has been bought at as high as fourteen cents to the growers. It is estimated by some of the best informed that at least ninety per cent. of this crop has already been sold to packers.

Gebhart Seed and Little Dutch is being purchased very cautiously owing to the high prices, yet quite a little of it is changing hands.

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

The trade has taken to the 1912 crop and large sales of it have been reported during the last two weeks. At the rate it is going, the original packers will have very little of it left in a short time.

The local warehouses are said to be holding at least 25,000 cases of 1909, for which there is not a very big demand, although some of it is moving quietly. There has been so much said about this crop that buyers are afraid of it. Notwithstanding this, a recent purchaser of this leaf stated that he found some excellent tobacco in the packings.

One thing, however, that is not satisfactory is the price at which 1912 is moving. The prices at present are ranging from fourteen to sixteen cents a pound, and there is very little profit at this rate.

The weather has been ideal for the curing of the 1913 crop, although at present a moist spell is needed more than anything else for stripping.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS.

The earlier tobacco is now in fairly good shape and is coming in slowly, but the late and medium late crops are still in the sheds drying out. This is due to the fact that the dealers want the crops to dry out more before they are packed.

The weather has been fine and has been of great assistance to the tobacco growers in their work of stripping. More than half the crops are still hanging in the sheds and for this reason the buying movement is apt to extend for some months yet, as not more than thirty per cent. of the 1913 leaf has been sold.

Some tobacco is being received and it is said to be in good condition. As a matter of fact this December is one of the heaviest seasons that the dealers have experienced in some time.

The demand for binders shows no let up and the packers are gradually selling out their stock of old leaf.

The warehouses are preparing for steady work after the holidays and they are now busy organizing their force of hands.

KENTUCKY

PADUCAH, KY.

Business is brisk in Paducah and most of the merchants are catching some of the tobacco money. The first day that the market was open deliveries approximated 500,000 pounds, for which an average price of eight cents was paid. Activity on the local market continued throughout the week, and not since there has been a tobacco market here have there been such tremendous deliveries.

All roads leading to the city have been dotted with wagons loaded with tobacco. Hauling is being done day and night. The deliveries will continue all winter, but will gradually decrease. About fifty per cent. of the crop in the Paducah radius has been sold, according to a prominent buyer, but as the prices being paid are satisfactory to many of the large growers the remainder of the crop will no doubt be sold in the near future. The largest buyer in Paducah is the Weyman-Bruton Co.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, CONN.

Fully five hundred men and women are being employed in the warehouses, all of which are working on full time with the exception of that of George Alderman.

The tobacco crops are being delivered to the warehouses every day, and it is no unusual sight to see half a dozen teams, loaded with tobacco bundles going through the town, before daylight bound for the warehouse in East Hartford or Hartford, where the tobacco will be sorted and put through the sweat process and placed into cases. Many of the tobacco crops grown in this town are sold to out-of-town buyers, who operate warehouses here and these warehouses are receiving crops every day of from fifty to sixty acres.

Many of the crops that were bought in the fields this year by buyers out of town are now being cut two or three cents a pound off the price, as it is being found that this year's crop is not up to the standard in weight and quality in many cases. The primed tobacco this year is said not to be up to the standard in quality, and it brought a smaller price this year that last year, yet this variety of tobacco was all bought up by the buyers first this season.

VIRGINIA.

PETERSBURG, VA.

During the approach of the holiday season, the sales of tobacco at the various warehouses have surpassed expectations. Much of the tobacco sold at prices higher than was expected.

Leaf has averaged from 11 to 14 cents, while wrapper goods have brought from 22 cents to 27½ cents. The offerings have been very heavy, and the market has been very active.

Reward Offered for Oscar C. Peterson

Harry Koch, local agent for the company which bonded Oscar C. Peterson, a former salesman of the Mosher Cigar Company, of Omaha, Neb., has offered a reward of fifty dollars for his arrest. The man is wanted on charges of forgery and embezzlement, preferred by the Mosher Cigar Company.

"We are beginning to realize that the man we want is decidedly clever," says Mr. Koch, "and possibly our search may not be immediately successful. Since his disappearance two weeks ago we have worked on many clews that looked good, but quite a number of them have proved to have been blinds to lead us off his track."

OFFICIAL CUBAN GUARANTEE STAMP

Compulsory Under Law of 1912—Appears On All Boxes of Imported Cigars

AS a protection against unscrupulous practices and at the urgent demand of the cigar manufacturers of Cuba, the Cuban Government, in July, 1912, passed a law making it compulsory for manufacturers of cigars, cigarettes and picadura, or cut tobacco, to affix a special stamp on all boxes or packages of the above-mentioned articles, manufactured by them in Cuba. Owing to the fact that some persons have passed off substitutes as genuine imported Havana cigars, there has been some prejudice created against the genuine product of the Island of Cuba.

There is no doubt but that the general effect of this new law will be beneficial, and as much appreciated in the United States as in Cuba. The Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba is to be congratulated on the success of the movement initiated by its persistent efforts, and which finally resulted in the passing of this law.

The stamp pasted on each box of cigars is an absolute guarantee to the smoker that the contents have been manufactured by expert Havana cigarmakers from genuine Cuban-grown leaf tobacco. The Cuban Government has taken all necessary precautions to prevent infringements of these stamps, and they are supplied only to regularly licensed manufacturers by the government direct. The manufacturers are compelled to report to the government the amount of leaf tobacco used and the countries to which the cigars, cigarettes or picadura has been exported.

To educate the tobacco trade of the United States to the marks of the genuine imported Havana cigar, the readers will find on page — of this issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD a facsimile of the two stamps used; the larger stamp is for cigars and cut tobacco, while the smaller stamp is used for cigarettes. The stamps as shown here are exact size, and differ from the original only in the fact that the genuine stamps are green in color instead of black.

The Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba is empowered by the government to proceed and prosecute all infringements or falsifications of these stamps, and will have the support of the Cuban Consuls in the United States, or other legal representatives of the Cuban Government, to bring lawsuits in any court for the protection of the manufacturers in Cuba.

Article 3. These stamps must be affixed by exporting manufacturers in the following fashion: When used upon cigar boxes, on the lid of such boxes, sliding on the left side down to the bottom, or in a similar way on the front side, and when used upon packs of cigarettes, or packages of picadura, on a visible part of the cover. In both cases the arrangement of the stamps must be made in such a manner as to render it absolutely necessary to tear them before removing the contents.

Article 4. The use of these stamps or labels shall be compulsory upon every manufacturer of cigars, cigarettes or picadura, who may find himself established in the Republic of Cuba and engaged in the exportation of the goods mentioned.

Article 5. Manufacturers shall obtain these stamps or labels by means of a statement presented to the Internal Revenue officials wherein they must express, in figures and letters, the number of stamps required for their monthly shipments abroad.

Article 6. Exporting manufacturers of cigars, cigarettes and picadura who may obtain stamps for shipment abroad will be bound to present to the revenue officials a monthly balance sheet of the stamps acquired by them, of the cigars, cigarettes and picadura packages exported from their factories and of the stamps left over in their possession from the previous month.

Article 7. The Fiscal Zone shall keep a register of the stamps handed over to the manufacturers during the month, and shall make an inquiry, through the export clearance papers sent to the Custom House, and through any other means in its power, into the truthfulness of the balance sheet presented to it according to article seven.

Article 9. The value of the stamps will be as follows: Two dollars per thousand stamps for cigar boxes and packages of picadura, and one dollar per thousand for cigarette packages.

Article 10. Fifty per cent. of the revenue accruing from the sale of these stamps, and of the fines imposed, shall be applied by the Executive to defraying the expenses of the printing of said stamps or labels and of prosecuting forgers of same; and the rest of such revenue shall be handed over by the government up to fifty per cent. to the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba, provided that this association is willing to undertake the prosecution of fraud in the manner suggested by the government.

Article 11. The fifty per cent. corresponding to the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba shall be handed over to it by the government in monthly installments of a twelfth part of the total amount.

Article 12. In no case shall the Fiscal Zone delay more than twenty-four hours the application for stamps made by manufacturers, so that the latter may not suffer in their interests and shipments abroad.

Article 13. The government shall send facsimiles of these stamps to its representatives in every country, in order that they may exhibit them in their respective offices and in a public place. It shall, moreover, endeavor to prosecute forgers of these stamps before the authorities of the countries where the offense may be committed.

Article 14. The government shall order its consular representative abroad to make known in foreign parts the proceedings established by this law, in order to distinguish Cuban from foreign cigars, cigarettes and picadura and in order to distinguish the genuineness of the former.

DETROIT

C. S. Sarluy, of F. & E. Cranz, left December 23rd for New York City, to spend the holidays.

Abe Hirsch, of Joseph Hirsch & Son, was a recent visitor to Detroit.

Several cigar manufacturers were among the crowd at the Board of Commerce last week, when $610,000 was raised inside of two hours, being the balance necessary to complete the required amount to erect the new Detroit Athletic Club on Madison Avenue. It was noticeable that in the specifications for the cigar department the very highest grade of fixtures will be installed, and will likely be of opal onyx.

The H. O. Bell cigar store, at Presque Isle, Mich., was badly damaged some weeks ago by huge waves dashing against the building and crushing in the side.

Trombley & Groesbeck, of Mount Clemens, Mich., dealers in cigars and operating a pool room, have merged their business into a stock company under the style of Trombley & Groesbeck Company, and will sell at wholesale and retail cigars, tobacco and smoking goods and articles, with an authorized capital stock of $15,000, all of which has been subscribed and paid in in property.

H. C. Hanrahan, who travels for the Carpenter-Cook Company out of the Ishpeming, Mich., branch, was in Negaunee recently and conducted a campaign on the "La Palina" sanitary cigar. The mouth end of the cigar contains a loose flat, no paste being used. It is the first cigar of its kind ever offered for sale in the Upper Peninsula. Mr. Hanrahan gave each dealer a good talk along the lines of sanitation and believes it will have a good effect in stimulating a brisk sale for this particular cigar.

The contract for the new Statler Hotel in Detroit has been let and calls for same to be completed not later than December 1, 1914. It will cost $2,000,000 and contain 800 rooms, each with a bath.

The Regensburg line of cigars was given very prominent display at all of the stores of the Central Cigar Company during Christmas week. One very creditable display was at the Peter Smith Grocery, Griswold and State Streets, where some "real artist" work was evident.

A total of two thousand five hundred 25-cent cigars were discovered by the Detroit police department as having been stolen in Cleveland. The thief, who was apprehended, had been calling on the local cigar dealers, saying he represented a Cleveland tobacco firm and that he was authorized to sell them at cut prices. He was arrested before he had made many sales.

Key West

Prosperous Outlook for 1914—Jose Escalante a Visitor—M. Perez & Company Preparing to Bond—"Key West Cigars the Best," Says Captain Johnson

KEY WEST, FLA., December 27, 1913.

ALL the cigar factories closed down on the 24th inst., in order to allow their employees to participate in the Christmas and New Year's holidays and to allow their office force to make an inventory of their stocks.

Judging from the outlook, the first three months of 1914 are going to be lively at all of the shops. They all have a heavy demand and are steadily receiving orders by mail and wire and will open up under the most favorable of auspices.

Mrs. Lottie Filer was the victim of an accidental fire, which sad event occurred on December 8th. While lighting a match, it ignited a mosquito bar which rapidly set fire to the bedding and her night clothes, and before aid could reach her she was so badly burned that she died a few hours later. The deceased was a sister of Frank T. and Will McNulty, proprietors of the "Terra del Largo" factory, of Fort Myers, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Max Gans passed through town recently en route from Cuba to New York. Mr. Gans is of the well-known leaf firm of Max Gans & Sons, and has many friends among the local trade.

George Robinson, of the Key West Cigar Factory and secretary of the Key West Cigar Manufacturers' Association, is back from a three weeks' business trip to New York in the interest of his house. He reports quite a successful trip and states that his house will have an active winter run.

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Gwynn, who were recently married in Tampa, arrived in town last week and will make Key West their future home. Mr. Gwynn is a son of Chas. Gwynn, of Gwynn, Strauss & Co., cigar manufacturers of this city.

The Ruy Lopez Ca. worked up to the 24th inst. and, after a two days' recess resumed operations this A. M. with a good force enrolled. A visitor at the office recently was Ed Wodiska, of Corral, Wodiska & Co., of Tampa, who was en route to Havana, where he will spend Christmas. Before returning home he will visit the leaf markets of Havana and make purchases of leaf for the use of his house.

John Kolb, of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, accompanied by his son, Phillip, passed through the city recently, being en route to the Havana leaf markets.

Business at the E. H. Gato Cigar Company is O. K. All the Gatos will be in town early in January for the purpose of attending the annual business meeting, at which time the officers will be elected for the ensuing year.

Jose Escalante, of Jose Escalante & Co., of Tampa, spent a few days in the city visiting last week. He has since left for Cuba, where he will make purchases of leaf for his firm and spend the Christmas holiday.

After a recess of two days in order to allow their employees to participate in the celebration of Christmas, the M. Perez Company resumed operations this A. M. with a full force. They have a heavy filed demand for immediate and future delivery for their famous "Pinzon" brand, and they have a rosy outlook for a brisk winter business. The final papers in regard to the bonding of their factory premises under the new regulations, have gone forward and immediately upon their return from Washington, Manager Rafael Menendez will start to get things in shape for the making of their cigars under the new system. It is very probable that by the 15th of January, 1914, this shop will be working under the new order of things. This will be the first of our factories to make their cigars in bond, and it is needless to state that the experiment will be closely watched by other manufacturers.

While the M. Perez Company is one of our youngest clear Havana cigar houses, whether the experiment proves successful or not, they deserve credit for their courage in being the first to operate under the new system. If the venture is successful, all of our large clear Havana houses will bond, with the exception of the Havana-American Company, who have declared that they will not bond any of their shops as it is absolutely unnecessary, as their factories are always open for the inspection of the trade at any time.

It is the opinion of many that the bond stamp will have very little, if any, effect on the consumer in the making of purchases of his smokes. Maybe one smoker in a thousand might ask the retailer for a cigar made in bond, but the other nine hundred and ninety-nine who have for years been using the goods of such well-known and reliable firms as the Gatos, Mi Favorita Cigar Company, Ruy Lopez Ca.; and others, know that their goods do not need the bond stamp to guarantee their quality. The stamp will have very little effect on the American smoking public, and the only factories that the bond stamp will benefit, so far as I can see, will be those who intend to make goods for export trade.

In these days when competition is so keen, it looks very foolish to add $3000 or $4000 more per annum to the expense of the manufacture of cigars. Surely, in the end the consumer will have to bear this. Another thing is that there are very few cigarmakers who can make a decent living working only eight hours a day, and it is safe to predict that when workmen are in demand the factory that works under the bond regulations will have difficulty in securing sufficient help.

Captain Mathias Johnson, of Earlport, Me., who arrived here recently in his 18-foot sailboat, and who is making the trip from that port to San Francisco via the Panama Canal, says that there is nothing to take the place of tobacco while on a voyage of this kind, and he laid in a good supply of tobacco and Key West cigars, which he says are the "Best smokes on land or sea."

Wishing THE TOBACCO WORLD and its patrons a happy and prosperous New Year.

"INGLACITA."

Imperial May Operate in Tennessee

Although the officers of the Imperial Tobacco Company in Kentucky have as yet made no official announcement of their future plans, awaiting further instructions from the home office, there seems to be a general belief that this company will move into Tennessee and continue its operations there.

E. S. Mellon, the concern's local representative, said the court's action had come as such a surprise that officials of the company had not had time to formulate plans for the future, but that he was confident any overtures on the part of the local business men's organization would be given consideration if the company was forced to abandon its buying in Kentucky.

Judge Malcolm Yeaman, attorney for the Imperial, says:

"The effect of a judgment against the Imperial Tobacco Company of Kentucky is to forfeit its charter and prohibit it from doing business in Kentucky, but as yet there is no judgment against the Imperial Tobacco Company of Kentucky nor against the English company. That is to say, there is a judgment, but the motion for a new trial suspends that judgment, and the trial of the motion for a new trial has been continued and will not be acted on until the March Term of the Union County Circuit Court. If no new trial is granted the defendants can appeal the case to the Court of Appeals, and the appeal bond would suspend the judgment until the case is disposed of."

American Tobacco Company in Russia

A dispatch from St. Petersburg, Russia, states that the American Tobacco Company, in conjunction with the Imperial Tobacco Company, has secured a foothold in Russia, having organized a Russian amalgamation with a capital of $25,000,000.

St. Louis "United" Store Robbed

A safe in the store of the United Cigar Stores Company branch, Broadway and Market Street, St. Louis, Mo., was forced open on December 16 and robbed of $480. The thieves entered through a cellar door. Checks to the amount of $350 were in the safe, but were not taken. The robbery was discovered at seven o'clock by Leo Abramsky, a clerk, who opened the store. Detectives spent one day trailing a man who proved to be innocent.

Strike Causes Change in Factory Owners

As an outcome of the cigarmakers' strike in Toledo, O., the factory of A. J. Seifert, on the East Side, located at 428 Front Street, has been purchased by Howard Navarre and Otto Limpf, and will be continued under the firm name of Navarre & Limpf.

As was reported in THE TOBACCO WORLD recently, Mr. Seifert will remove his business and will continue his manufacturing at another place.

The present new owners will operate a union shop.

1914 dawns bright for SAVARONAS. Our record for 1913 was an increase in shipments of 383 cases, in spite of a general decrease in imports from Porto Rico.

Why any decrease?

Why the increase in SAVARONAS?

Because we did not use anything but good Porto Rican tobacco, together with greater vigilance and care in the selection of the tobacco and in manufacturing.

HALF A MILLION CIGARS STOLEN DURING 1913 IN NEW YORK CITY

Alleged Members of Gang Arrested—One Has Police Record—Believed That Information Regarding Swindlers Will Be Divulged

THE arrest in New York recently by Detective Sergeant August Mayer, of George Miller, Oak Avenue, Maspeth, L. I., who states that he is deputy sheriff of Queens County, and George H. Thompson, 456 Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, N. Y., will, it is thought, throw some light on the operations of an alleged gang of swindlers, who, during the past year have robbed wholesale cigar dealers of goods valued at $500,000.

That cigar dealers have suffered losses aggregating the above amount, was attested to by George W. Faber, located at No. 1 Beaver Street; George S. Nicholas & Company, 41 Beaver Street; and George Lederer, of Francis H. Leggett & Company, West Broadway and Franklin Street, in the presence of assistant district attorneys.

According to facts at hand, early in the forenoon of January 8th, a well-dressed man called at the office of George W. Faber with an order for 1000 cigars (valued at $200) from Francis H. Leggett & Company, the same bearing Mr. Leggett's signature. Having previously noticed that a man on the outside seemed to be making motions to the one presenting the order, Mr. Faber was led to doubt the validity of the order, and got into communication with Mr. Lederer by telephone, who informed him that the order was a forgery.

Detective Mayer was then notified and the man on the exterior arrested, the first one, in the meantime, having been detained. When confronted, the two men said that they did not know each other, but Thompson was taken to police headquarters where he was identified by thumb prints, the police stating that he is No. 25,256 in the Rogue's Gallery, having on November 7, 1910, been sentenced to four years and six months for grand larceny.

Miller, who was taken to the office of George S. Nicholas & Company, was identified by a clerk as a man who a short time ago, obtained 1000 cigars on an order. It was later ascertained that Miller had formerly been an employee of Francis H. Leggett & Company. When searched, an expensive gold badge issued to a deputy sheriff of Queens County, bearing the number 1100, was found in Miller's pocket.

Both men were committed to the Tombs in default of $2000 bail each, pending charges of forgery and grand larceny.

International Tobacco Company Holds Annual Election

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the International Tobacco Company, held on January 13th, the following were unanimously elected directors for the ensuing year: B. H. Wasserman, M. Oppenheimer, E. A. Ansbacher, D. A. Weill and M. H. Wasserman.

At a subsequent meeting of the board of directors B. H. Wasserman was re-elected president; M. Oppenheimer, vice-president, and M. H. Wasserman, secretary and treasurer.

PROMINENT CIGAR MANUFACTURER RETIRES ON ACCOUNT OF HEALTH

John T. Dee, Fourteen Years With Theobald & Oppenheimer, Resigns—Thirty-eight Years in Cigar Business—Started in Chicago in 1876

THE resignation of John T. Dee, for many years connected with Theobald & Oppenheimer, has come as a distinct surprise to the cigar industry, as Mr. Dee is still a young and active man, and the news of his retirement was entirely unlooked for. It is said that his decision to retire was hastened by the advice of his physician. Mr. Dee's health has been failing for some time and it was deemed best that he should take a rest and withdraw from the activities of business.

Although not yet officially confirmed, it is understood that C. W. Hesselbacher, who has been with the firm for twenty-five years, will succeed Mr. Dee.

The announcement of Mr. Dee's retirement was made at the annual banquet of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company, held at the Hotel Majestic, on New Year's Day. The entire executive force was present, and Mr. Dee was presented with a beautiful loving cup by Mr. Hesselbacher, on behalf of Mr. Dee's associates in business.

John T. Dee was born in Chicago in 1860, and at the age of sixteen started work with the well-known cigar firm, then trading as Best, Russell & Company. Strict attention to work soon brought its reward and he later became connected with their wholesale department.

In 1885, Yocum Brothers, of Reading, Pa., had the good fortune to secure John T. Dee as their Western representative. After serving them faithfully for fourteen years, he became Western representative of Theobald & Oppenheimer. In 1908 he was called to the home office in Philadelphia to become manager of the office and sales departments. Soon afterward he was promoted to the office of secretary and treasurer of the company, and John N. Kolb became president and manager of the firm.

In 1912 the business of Theobald & Oppenheimer was consolidated with the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, although the firm was operated as a distinct company, and Mr. Kolb and Mr. Dee continued their management of the business.

Mr. Dee's retirement is regretted by all who knew him and Mr. Kolb and his associates express deep sorrow that Mr. Dee's health should compel his retirement.

Austin, Nichols & Co. Expanding

According to reports the house of Austin, Nichols & Co. are planning to establish a chain of distributing depots from New York to New Orleans, and from New York to Chicago, and with the many new jobbing points it is expected that they will treble their business.

In keeping with this new policy of expansion, it is said that they are taking on a number of AAA-1 roadmen, with the intention of making their cigar department second to none in the United States.

It is understood that all the resources of their selling force are to be put behind their brands and that the "Duplica" cigar, made by the Key West cigar factory, will receive especial attention.

Increasing Sales and Salaries

Written for The Tobacco World by AL. U. THORNBURG

FOUR friends of many years' standing, met at luncheon in the cafe of a prominent Detroit hotel the other day. Nothing remarkable about this in itself, but the unusual feature is the fact that their lines of business are entirely different, each having made a success of his endeavors. One of them operates the hotel in question, another is president of a big banking company, the third is owner of a women's ready-to-wear establishment, and the fourth has a shoe store.

With no business interests in common they felt that they could talk freely, and the conversation drifted to increased wages and what it might mean in the future.

"One of your business rivals told me that you have been going to extremes in paying your help more than anybody else, and he is rather apprehensive of the effect on the business in general and your's personally, in fact he confided to me that he thought you were out after a medal for philanthropy," remarked the baker to the hotel man.

"I rather expected something like that," replied the man addressed, as he calmly lighted a cigar and tilted his chair back to tell them a few things. "I do not feel that I have to defend my action; my bankers can do that, but I am going to tell you something that I was a long time in discovering. There is no limit to the amount that you can pay for good help. It is the best investment in any line of business.

"You have noticed at times that clerks in retail stores do not seem to be up to much. They act as though they thought only of closing time or of the next pay day. I had seen it for years and had been trying to figure out how to make my help feel that they had an interest in the business. Finally, I decided to see just what influence money would have and put into effect a general increase in salaries, based as nearly as I could on the merit system.

"I am not going to go into the whole establishment, but am just going to take the cigar stand as an example. From its opening this department has been doing a good business and making money. I did not think that it came near its limit, so I started to look around. I went through the stock room and then I spent some time in the store, ostensibly talking with friends, but watching the boys at work.

"One day I called the young man who is manager to my office and we went over the business together. Then we repaired to the stock room and I questioned him on certain brands which did not seem to be moving as fast as some of the others. He had no idea what I was driving at, but in the end I told him that I had decided to increase his pay a certain amount and to give him a percentage of the increase in profits if there were any. Also, I told him that as the boys under him showed up to advantage as salesmen I wanted to reward them.

"Well, he started in as though he owned the place. The cigars that had been dead came to life and were disposed of more rapidly. They were just as good and cost just as much as some of the other brands, and when they were gone he did not buy any more, but started in to buy only the brands for which there is a steady demand.

"The clerks became more attentive and did their level best to please their customers. They had their wits about them and when a well-known patron came in the clerk invariably handed out the box and shade he liked, without waiting for him to ask. This service was pleasing and the sales grew apace.

"On his own initiative the manager got out some very neat and plain announcement cards which he mailed to the wives of regular patrons and to several hundred other women, calling attention to the excellence of the cigars which we keep; also to the fact that the prices were as equitable as those which prevailed anywhere goods of this class are sold. You would be surprised at the Christmas box trade which it brought in, and all of it was new money.

"The cases and the shelves are neat and the goods are very nicely displayed. Men who stopped in occasionally, but generally bought the most of their smoking materials elsewhere, have become regular patrons and are telling their friends there is only one place where you can get quality and service for the price at which we sell.

"The profit has increased materially and the manager is making just about twice what he was before I made the change. The clerks are paid several dollars weekly more than those in other stores, and the whole organization is on the job.

"It opened my eyes to possibilities and I extended the system throughout the house with most satisfactory results. But the cigar and tobacco business alone is enough for a sample. You can't pay a good man too much; I am convinced of that. He will work and make money for you if he is happy in his surroundings. Cheap help is a big expense to any concern, I don't care what line of business. When I make a change in the cigar department, through one of the boys going away or into some other line, I tell the manager to cast about among the other stands and get the very best man he can, no matter what he costs. He always has a few of them on his book as all of them want to come here.

"If there is any undue philanthropy about this I want to know it. It is good business, that is all, and some of the others are beginning to realize it or they would not be talking about conditions over here. When a man's principal recommendation is that he will work cheaper than others he can as well save himself the bother of applying. If he is a trade winner I am willing to pay him more than anybody else in town. That is my system and it is working out to my satisfaction."

Demonstration of International Banding Machine

On January 2, William Steiner, Sons & Company, gave a demonstration of the International cigar packing and binding machine, before an audience of cigar manufacturers and others connected with the tobacco industry.

The machine was set in operation and without coming in contact with the hands or lips of the operator, fifty cigars a minute were banded and packed.

William Steiner, who is a visitor in Philadelphia, said, regarding the new invention: "It has been operated for a period of ten consecutive hours and during that time packed and banded cigars at the rate of 3000 an hour. It is not necessary to point out that the machine makes a direct appeal to cigar manufacturers as a matter of economy and of sanitation. We have interested a number of manufacturers already, who have shown sufficient confidence in the invention to place orders for it. As the facilities for manufacturing the machines are, at present, limited, we are not able to give immediate delivery.

Guedalia & Company Manufacturing in Bond

Guedalia & Company, located at 403 East Sixty-second Street, New York, reputed to be one of the oldest Spanish cigarmaking houses in the United States, has begun to manufacture in bond, and becomes the first factory in New York to take advantage of the new "Made in Bond" Act. The company first began the manufacture of cigars in New York in 1876.

Zibart Brothers Purchase Store Number Eight

Zibart Brothers, of Nashville, Tenn., have recently purchased the cigar stand in the Jackson Building and will in the future operate it as a part of their chain. The store will be number eight.

Speaking of last year's business, Mr. Zibart said that, while it was nothing to brag about, on the whole the firm was satisfied, inasmuch as an increased volume was shown. The ambition of this firm, he added, was and is to serve the public well, and a continuous increasing business indicates that they are satisfying a large part of Nashville and surrounding territory. He has great anticipations for 1914, as indicated by taking on a new shop, and he hopes to make other improvements in his service.

Tobacco Industry in Russia

"A recent issue of the Russkoye Slovo contains an article relative to the activities of American and British tobacco companies in Russia, in which it is stated that a representative had been sent by them to the Caucasus to investigate the suitability of the Kuban tobacco for the Anglo-American market. This representative, it is stated, came to the conclusion that Kuban tobacco is an excellent article, but that the producers do not know how to dry it, the fermentation not being of the kind to produce a first-class article. The investigation, it is stated, has resulted in the decision to create an English company for the sale of Kuban tobacco in England, after organizing the preparation and drying of the tobacco in Russia according to American methods. Further it was shown that Russia itself presents an excellent market for the sale of tobacco, and the British and American companies have decided to establish factories in Russia and are negotiating for the purchase of some of the more important Russian concerns.

"The Russkoye Slovo is of the opinion that the establishment of the new syndicate will not injure the interests of the Russian population and will give a great impulse to the development of the tobacco industry in the Kuban Province."

E. Rosenwald & Brother Celebrate Anniversary

IT is doubtful whether the four Rosenwald Brothers, Edward, Isaac, Henry and Sigmund, when they started their leaf tobacco house in January, 1864, ever dreamed of the completion of "fifty golden years." Yet the courage to do, and loyalty to one another, which characterized the beginning, has continued down the years, until today, the great leaf tobacco house of E. Rosenwald & Brother, in the celebration of its Fiftieth Anniversary, stands as a fitting monument to the zeal of the founders, whose interests have passed into such able control as that exercised by the members of the present firm, which consists of Benno Neuberger, Benno Rosenwald, Abraham Bijur, Nathan I. Bijur and Samuel H. Bijur.

An interesting coincidence, when the history of the present firm is considered, was the establishment in the same month, of the leaf tobacco business of Isaac Bijur, the amalgamation of the two firms having taken place in 1908.

It was a matter of regret, however, that Mr. Bijur, after having negotiated for the consolidation with Sigmund Rosenwald, failed to witness the consummation of his plan, death having claimed him before it was possible to put the same into operation. Sigmund Rosenwald, also, did not live long to enjoy the pleasant relations of the new company, he having died about a year afterward.

Of the present members of the firm, Benno Neuberger, the senior member, has been with the house for thirty-three years, he having entered the service in a clerical capacity, attaining his present position through his wonderful business ability and quick discernment, with a practical application to the things necessary for the proper handling of the company's affairs.

Benno Rosenwald, next in order with twenty-six years' experience in the leaf tobacco business, is a son of Edward Rosenwald, and is a worthy son of his father, having served in many departments of the company, familiarizing himself with the vast details of the business.

Abraham Bijur, long known in the trade as a merchant of sterling worth, is thoroughly familiar with the business, he having been active in the trade for twenty years. He was the first president of the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association, and re-elected twice, he accomplished in that capacity many things of paramount importance, which tended to the betterment of the association.

The two remaining members of the firm, Nathan I. Bijur, who has been in the trade eighteen years, and Samuel H. Bijur, who has numbered seventeen years, are both live wires, and round out an organization that stands today for supreme efficiency.

Numbering employees exceeding 2200, it is not to be marveled at, that E. Rosenwald & Brother have the world as a market for their goods. With representatives in Amsterdam and Cuba and with no less than thirty-five warehouses scattered throughout the United States, with two more in the course of construction, and a magnificently organized sales staff, composed of such men as Charles B. Lewis, covering New England and the East; Howard Stevenson that of Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia; Alfred W. Penner, who is in charge of Middle Western and Canadian territory; with Richard H. Bythiner covering Greater New York, the firm may confidently look toward the future with the greatest optimism.

William Best, president of Best & Russell, well-known distributors in South Wabash Avenue, has returned from a visit to Mt. Clemens, Mich. He will remain in Chicago until after the first of the year, when he will go South with his family.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

IN times gone by I have indicated my kindly feeling toward the French customs authorities for fining me heavily for bringing Turkish cigarettes into sunny France while en route to America, but nevertheless they have clever officials over there, just the same, and they are very keen on the tobacco scent.

A few days ago, a French inspector at the frontier town of Feignes while examining a freight car loaded with sacks of potatoes thought he detected a whiff of good tobacco—an unusual odor in many parts of the country—and delving in some of the sacks discovered that the alleged potatoes were in reality packages of tobacco done up in wrappers to represent potato skins.

The inspector and two others concealed themselves in the car, and when the train reached the little town of Noyon, the car door was opened by two men, one of whom was quickly arrested.

It developed later that the prisoner was a well-known smuggler who had previously served time for the same work.

The sacks disclosed 6000 packages of fine tobacco, bought in Mons, Belgium, and valued at over $4000.

It was a neat bit of custom detective work, but I must express my regret that so much good tobacco is lost to French consumption.

Kind regards to the French Regie!

Bob Lane, he of the "Partagas" smile, sailed for Havana last Saturday, and I feel sure he will have a comfortable trip, with many charms.

He told me that January first, 1913, he spent in Havana and that during the past year he traveled more miles than he had ever done in his life.

New Year's Day (two weeks ago), Mr. Lane was in attendance at the funeral of a near relative, and upon his return home in the evening, was dazed to learn that an old cabinet mirror, a family heirloom, had fallen and smashed during the day.

Did it portend many deaths during the year, even as his absence from home the year previous on the first day entailed much travel?

He put the question squarely up to his friends, and the result was interesting.

The next day, his secretary, hearing the dreadful story, presented him with a new mirror, which was guaranteed to dispel the broken-mirror hoodoo.

From a devout Catholic friend, he received a small pocket statue of St. Joseph; from a good Hebrew friend, a Jewish charm; from West Virginia, another friend sent him a genuine wishing stone, and I was constrained to promise him a Mohammedan amulet to keep away the evil eye.

Cigarmakers turn into mules when they die and haul brimstone for the devil. This, at least, is the firm opinion of a number of the old-timers, including "Glass-eyed Jack" Broadwell, who was through the Johnstown Flood, the Chicago Fire, and the yellow fever in Memphis, besides being a veteran of Coxey's Army. What business have less seasoned cigarmakers to dispute the decision of such men, who have been in places hot as pitch, with lads dropping round about like poisoned flies in a dock restaurant? They should accept the decision without a murmur, and get ready to fall into the traces when the time comes.

Of course, turning into a mule is bad enough, for the ordinary binder butcher prides himself on being a man, but hauling brimstone for the devil is what meets with the most protest. The younger cigarmakers have asked the old-timers to explain more in detail about the brimstone transportation business, since, being worthy young men, they wish to show up, or down, rather, at the diggings with some preliminary idea of how the work should be done. The old-timers, however, have assured them that there will be plenty of time for them to learn the odds and ends during the rest of eternity, and have reminded them that little red imps with pitchforks will show them by the carnal route which is "gee" and which is "haw." Further than this the old-timers have reached no decision.

Eugene Bell was one of the old-timers who had about reached a decision that a mule in the service of the devil, transmigrated from the cigarmaker stage, might find favor with his master after some millions of years in the brimstone transportation business, and be allowed as a reward to rest on Sunday during the slack season. Eugene died, however, before he had a chance to hand down an opinion. His death was predicted by himself, following a most unusual portent which came while he was working in a "buckeye" in Indiana. Eugene had a bunk in the factory, which was located upstairs over a pool room. When the boss closed the place in the evening Eugene was master of all he surveyed, and for a time was much pleased with his sleeping place. He told the boss how pleased he was every morning when the former came down to work. One morning, however, Eugene said nothing. He was nervous all day. The next day was worse. On the evening of the third day he drew the boss to one side, and taking him over to a corner, pointed behind a case of stems with trembling finger. In the gloom the boss was able to see the outlines of a chicken, which, with head under wing, was roosting in peace on a stack of moulds.

"When a chicken walks up a flight of stairs to roost with you three nights in succession," said Eugene, "you might as well pick out your lot in the cemetery. My life ain't worth as much as a dirty deuce."

The boss laughed, and being a practical man, took the fowl home and had his wife serve it for dinner. Eugene blew out of town, insisting that he was a goner, and that the boss would never see him again.

Sure enough, within two months the boss received word that Eugene was dead.

"Something to Do in 1914"

With a hand as unerring as the Checker Player in the Eden Musee, Time swept 1913 from the board and moved 1914 into the Crown row, continuing to hold his own in the mighty game with The Ages.

With the New Year have been born high resolves and great promises, some destined to wonderful fulfillment and others to early disaster. The Old Year has prospered most of us and the birth of the New Year has given impetus to our hopes and ambitions, elevating them to a higher plane and encouraging greater effort toward their attainment.

In every field, generally speaking, there have been new plans laid for 1914, on a firmer and larger basis than ever before. Most of them tend toward expansion. In the mercantile world all our energies are bent on increasing the amount and scope of our business, the increasing of the amount generally depending on an increase in scope.

Increasing the scope in general business is usually accomplished by large appropriations, the use of which is to get a message to the people likely to be interested in a particular thing.

Before the trade of the public can be handled, however, it is necessary to interest the jobbing and retail houses, and the initial advertising expenditure is generally made with a view to attracting them to the line and securing their co-operation in its distribution and sale.

The big firms, with few exceptions, carefully peruse the trade papers of that line and choose those having merit, to do some of the missionary work for them. The big firms seldom overlook a bet, for they realize that no one paper has an exclusive monopoly on the good will of any class of merchants. And the fact that many big firms use not one, but several, trade papers is proof that this method is beneficial to a progressive business.

We often hear the remark, "I would like to advertise, but it costs money." Even that arch-crook of fiction, J. Rufus Wallingford, has to spend money to make it; and how much more necessary must it be for honest people to do it!

There is always new business to be secured through trade paper advertising. History is irrefutable proof of this statement. The number of progressive business firms using space in trade papers is such an overwhelming majority, and their prosperity so evident, that further argument would be futile.

A non-advertiser who was doing a good business once said regarding a more prosperous rival, "No wonder Blank does such an enormous cigar business; look at the money he spends in Trade Paper advertising!"

And the reply was flashed back:

"Mr. Dash, why don't you advertise and prosper like Mr. Blank?"

The answer is:

"He did, and he has!"

"Biggest Year in History"

Without exception the cigar manufacturers interviewed during the past fortnight report the biggest year in their history, featured by a steadily increasing demand for the ten-cent and higher-priced Philadelphia-made brands.

The latter part of this statement seems to indicate that Philadelphia ten-cent cigars are becoming as well and favorably known as the famous nickel smokes. Indicative of this movement in the Philadelphia market is the observation that a number of high-grade cigar manufacturers have started business in a small way, in the city this year, and that most of them have had a good year's business.

Optimism regarding business conditions is prevalent generally, and the way in which 1914 orders are coming to most of the factories, seems to show that this feeling is not monopolized by the manufacturers.

President Levy Saves Girls From Panic

The presence of mind of Samuel Levy, one of the owners of the Enterprise Cigar Company, at Trenton, N. J., probably saved the lives of many girls when fire broke out in the factory on January 6. The fire was caused by overheated pipes and was rapidly spreading along the woodwork when discovered.

Upward of one hundred girls showed signs of panic when Mr. Levy marched them out of the building with but little confusion. The fire did several thousand dollars' worth of damage to the factory.

TAMPA TIPS

Big Year for Cuesta-Rey Cigar Factory—Orders for Verification of Inventories Swamps Revenue Men—Berriman Brothers Bonded Cigars Going Big

TAMPA, January 12.

CONGRATULATIONS are the order of the day at the Cuesta-Rey Cigar factory. According to compilation, this company manufactured during the year 1913, 24,000,000 clear Havana cigars, a record, which, it is stated, has never been equaled by another factory. Of the grand total of 284,991,000 cigars manufactured in Tampa, during 1913, Cuesta, Rey & Company contributed as its share, one-twelfth, thereby depositing in the governmental coffers, revenue to the amount of $207,422.22, which vast sum covered both customs duty and internal revenue stamps.

Much elation is felt in this city over the new steamship "City of Philadelphia," commanded by Captain Theodore Klemm, which arrived here a short time ago from Havana, inasmuch as it is expected that the new line will make it possible to bring large cargoes of leaf tobacco direct to the city.

Jose Escalante is another of the prominents who has returned from Havana. Mr. Escalante states that he has secured some very fine tobacco.

A general order having gone forth from the government requiring verification by internal revenue officers of the inventories of all cigar factories, the collectors to whom the work has been given, are finding themselves pretty well swamped, inasmuch as there are 240 factories in the Tampa district, whose inventories must be checked. Harry Kennedy, deputy collector of internal revenue, is in charge of the office here.

V. Guerra, Diaz & Company will hold the regular annual meeting of the stockholders at 2 P. M., Monday, January 19, in the office of the company, for the purpose of electing officers and directors, and taking action on any other new business.

According to Manuel Sanchez, Berriman Brothers are having a great demand for their bonded goods, it being impossible at the present time to turn them out fast enough.

Rock Marsicano has returned from a very successful trip in the south of Florida. Mr. Marsicano is manager of the O. K. Cigar Company.

R. G. Trezevant, for six years manager of the retail department for Eli Witt, is now connected with L. L. Spafford, the well-known insurance agent.

After an absence of more than two years, Shorty Clark, the tallest traveling salesman in the United States, and a member of the sales staff of the large cigar manufacturing firm of J. M. Martinez Company, is back again in Tampa, much to the delight of his many friends. Mr. Clark also has the reputation of being the tallest Elk.

George L. Harris, Jr., Florida manager for the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, has returned to Tampa. George is one of the most popular traveling men in Florida.

P. Verplanck, of the Verplanck Cigar Company, landed in Tampa, January 8, for the purpose of looking over the plant here.

Now that the holidays are over, the large local cigar manufacturers are settling down to business, many of them having returned from trips spent with their families, among the latter being Senor A. L. Cuesta, who spent a few days in Atlanta.

Col. J. D. Calhoun, deputy collector of customs here, is in receipt of 70,000 stamps for "made-in-bond" cigars. The stamps are in sheets of ten and in bundles of 100, and may be affixed to a box of ten or a box of 250. In fact, they may be attached to any box of customs made cigars, no matter how large the number.

Considerable interest is being taken in the new "Honest Scrap" display in the window of the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand. Hundreds are stopping every day to look at the "Tango Dancers" on a miniature stage. The figures actually dance, but we give it up how it is done. It is a handy attraction and is sure some hit.

All the city salesmen of the big wholesale firms are again calling on the trade and report business very good.

C. A. Gibbs Company have a very nice display of F. Lozano Sons Company cigars, and the brand is going good for this house.

Market for American Plug Tobacco in Chile

According to the recent report of Consul Charles L. Latham, Punta Arenas, Southern Chile, which appeared in the Daily Consular and Trade Reports there is a good market for American plug tobacco in that section. Mr. Latham states that the heavy trade in cigars, cigarettes, leaf and cut tobacco, however, goes almost exclusively to other countries.

The "live" American manufacturer ought to get his share of business there in other tobacco lines.

Reports from Tacoma indicate that the cigar is having a remarkable success in that section.

NEW ENGLAND TOBACCO GROWERS' ASSOCIATION HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING IN HARTFORD

Senator Joseph W. Alsop Re-elected President—Five Hundred Members in Attendance—Address of Welcome Made by Governor Baldwin—To Organize Mutual Insurance Company to Carry Workmen's Compensation Insurance

AN address of welcome by Governor Simeon E. Baldwin, and a similar address by Mayor Louis R. Cheney were opening features of the annual meeting of the New England Tobacco Growers' Association, held in Unity Hall, Hartford, Conn., on January 9. The hall was crowded to the doors.

President Alsop presented a report of the year's work of the association. He spoke of the trip last winter to Washington, when the association's committee appeared before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress and advocated the retention of the duty of $1.85 per pound on tobacco. "The tariff was retained," said Mr. Alsop. "Our chief trouble was to convince the committee that tobacco was a luxury."

The summer meeting was omitted, he said, on account of the unfavorable season. The membership is larger than ever and the balance in the treasury larger.

The need of a mutual company to be formed on the lines similar to the Massachusetts type, which would be the means of saving growers of this state from thirty to forty per cent. on compensation insurance, was urged by Senator Joseph W. Alsop, president of the association, who spoke at length on this and other matters relative to the tobacco business. The senator declared that his two years' tenure in office was, he considered, sufficient, and hoped that the organization would elect a new president for the coming year. Sentiment among members however, seemed to be in favor of retaining the present president.

The following officers were re-elected at the afternoon session: President, Joseph W. Alsop, Avon; vice-president, Cyrus M. Hubbard, Sunderland, Mass.; secretary, W. K. Ackerly, East Hartford; treasurer, Harry W. Case, East Granby. Senator Alsop endeavored to dodge a re-election, but the meeting was insistent that he take a third term.

George C. Weldon Resigns

George C. Weldon has resigned as resident manager of the Finzer plant of the American Tobacco Company in Louisville, to enter the printing business. Report for First District of Michigan

The First District of Michigan manufactured during the month of December, 1913, a total of 19,849,306 cigars and paid a tax on 2,271,447 pounds of tobacco. In 1912, there were made in the same district 23,424,810 cigars for the same month, which means that in 1913, during December, less cigars were made than in 1912. This is explained by several manufacturers who state that in 1912 holiday orders were shipped as late as December owing to the shortage of labor, while in 1913, jobbers insisted on goods being shipped much earlier as they did not want to take any chance on being caught short. For this reason, Detroit manufacturers started in October to put on additional cigarmakers and make shipments, and during that month a total of 30,000,000 cigars were turned out, breaking all past records. About the middle of November, business started to slack up somewhat and remained about the same for the balance of the year. The month of January has started out splendidly, and the month is sure to show an increase over the same month last year. The exact figures for December, as taken from the books of the internal revenue office are:

Tobacco	181,715.79

"44" Cigar Company Holds Annual Banquet

It was indeed meet that the year 1913, which had been so lavish in its bestowal of prosperity on the "Forty-Four" Cigar Company, should be ushered out around the festive board; and that fitting tribute was rendered to the dying year, is vouched for by the officers and salesmen of the company who attended the salesmen's meeting and banquet, held on the evening of December 30, at the Hotel Vendig, G. M. Lex, assistant secretary and business manager, presiding as toastmaster.

The banquet, which consisted of five courses, was but a forerunner of the good things that followed. Unlike most such affairs, when only the more prominent are afforded the privilege of voicing new suggestions and ideas, each one present was given an opportunity to address the meeting, and that this was appreciated was manifested by the attention accorded each of the speakers.

One of the principal addresses of the evening was that made by B. Lipschutz, president of the company, in which a brief history, covering the entire period of the company's existence, was given. M. A. Funk, secretary and sales manager, gave an interesting talk pertaining to the advertising and selling departments. Through all the addresses that followed, a note of optimism seemed to prevail regarding the outlook of the company for 1914, which doubtless accounted for the cheerfulness with which the salesmen started out for their respective territories.

Those present included B. Lipschutz, president and treasurer; M. A. Funk, secretary and sales manager; G. M. Lex, assistant secretary and business manager; Max Lipschutz, general superintendent; A. Liberman, factory superintendent; W. H. Nicholson, Middle South representative, and his missionary representative, W. M. Charles; Tillman Funk, Southern representative; M. Zander, Southwestern representative, and his son, G. W. Zander, specialty representative for M. Zander; F. D. Crawford, New York and Middle West representative; James F. Cormany, Western representative; F. B. Stanton, North Jersey representative; George T. Loker, Chicago representative; Raymond Wharton, of the tobacco department; R. C. Myrtetus, assistant office manager; and the following city salesmen: J. M. Allgaier, Isaac Sager, F. A. Maier and George Fullen.

Cuesta, Rey & Company Hold Annual Feast

IT was a merry gathering that thronged the Atlanta restaurant in West Tampa, Fla., on the evening of January 5, to attend the annual banquet of Cuesta, Rey & Company. Always a joyous affair, the banquet of 1913 was no exception to the rule. The guests, who included members of the firm, heads of departments, traveling salesmen and a few friends of the company, found the feast spread before them to be just as delightful as those of other years, measuring up, as it did to the high standard set by its predecessors.

As was the custom, the banquet was followed by addresses by the more prominent of the guests, among which may be mentioned that of Mayor D. B. McCay, who expressed himself as being thoroughly pleased with the fact that Tampa had the honor of possessing such a factory as that operated by Cuesta, Rey & Company. He also complimented the company on the growth and conduct of its business.

One of the most interesting addresses of the evening was that of Mr. Cuesta, who spoke of the wonderful growth of his company, stating that much of the credit was due to his factory organization, a point on which he laid much stress. He also directed attention to the fact that his two sons and the son of Mr. Rey were on the board, growing up with, and preparing to take charge of, the business in the future.

A tribute was paid to the traveling men of the company by Dr. L. A. Bize, which was responded to briefly by J. S. Kahn, a member of the salesforce.

During the course of the evening, it was stated that the reports of the various departments of the company, as submitted to the stockholders at the regular annual meeting, which preceded the banquet, had given much satisfaction, and that the year just closed had been one of the most prosperous in the history of Cuesta, Rey & Company.

Enthusiasm at Deisel-Wemmer Banquet

At the annual banquet of the Deisel-Wemmer Cigar Company, manufacturers of the famous "San Felice" cigar, held at the Lima Club, in Lima, O., on January 3, enthusiasm was rampant. A general review of the history of the Deisel-Wemmer Company was given by President Henry Deisel. Henry G. Wemmer, general manager of the firm, was toastmaster and spoke on "Building Organization." Charles C. Hossellman, superintendent, was cheered many times during his speech on "Loyalty."

The banquet table was laid in the ball room and was decorated with carnations and greenery. An elaborate dinner was served. An orchestra played during the dinner and after the speeches, Ellis Counts, who had appeared in the cabaret at the Lima Club, New Year's eve, sang several songs for the guests.

Other speakers were Charles L. Weaver, Dayton, who said that the "San Felice" cigar was his meal ticket 365 days in the year, William J. Wemmer, vice-president, who talked on "Employees," R. J. Platte, secretary, M. C. King, Sam Weinfeld, and Ed Yost, Lima; John Eckerle, Cincinnati, who talked on "Tobacco"; George Berger, Cincinnati; David Ritner, Chicago; Arthur Gagley, Wapakoneta; Bernard Wolf, Findlay; Charles O'Connell, Toledo; Frank Bargar, Fostoria; C. L. Blosser, Van Wert; Gus Kerman, Delphos, and Charles Neville, Sidney.

The receipts from tobacco stamps at Winston-Salem, N. C., for the month of December show a gain over the same month in 1912 of 305,401 pounds of tobacco and $33,872.94.

Philadelphia Notes

Frank Rawlins visited Philadelphia dealers early in the week in the interest of Lopez, Hermanos & Company, New York and Tampa.

C. E. Turner closed some attractive business on "Charles the Great" cigars, made by the well-known firm of Salvador Rodriguez, while in Philadelphia recently.

G. Harry Moulsdale, representing the Sanchez & Haya Company, factory No. 1, Tampa, Fla., was in Philadelphia this week, making plans for business during the coming year.

P. Pavon Alvarez, representing Jose D. Riera & Company, 96 Water Street, New York City, importers of Porto Rico cigars, visited Philadelphia this week, booking some attractive orders.

Sig. Mayer reports the heaviest year in his history with a steady growth in the call for ten-cent goods. He has been especially pleased with the splendid demand for the "Rey-Oma" ten-cent cigar.

Thomas F. Bell, who now owns the cigar stand at the corner of Ninth and Walnut Streets, has put "Lord Colbeck," in the Breva and Perfecto shapes, on his counter. He is well pleased with the goods and finds that they appeal to the high class of trade which the stand enjoys.

R. D. Shelp, representing Lincoln & Ulmer, 75 Warren Street, New York City, manufacturers of the well-known "La Modina," "Rodina" and "Coronilla" cigars, visited the trade in the Quaker City during the current week.

Mr. Shelp leaves New York on Saturday, January 17, for a Western trip, touching the principal cities as far as Omaha, Neb.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Limited, 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, are starting the new year full handed and operating on a full time schedule.

Isador Mayer is exploiting the merits of the "Flor de Jeitles," "Royal Peer," and "Masterpiece" cigars on his regular territory, and these increasingly popular brands are receiving the attention of Max Herz throughout the State of Texas; Joseph Price throughout the State of Georgia, and Frank Abrahams throughout the State of Wisconsin.

Scotten-Dillon Company Pays Extra Dividend

Stockholders of the Scotten-Dillon Company, tobacco manufacturers of Detroit, Mich., have been paid an extra dividend of eighteen per cent. for the current quarter, in addition to their regular quarterly dividend of two per cent. Extra dividends amounting to twenty-four per cent. have already been paid in the three previous quarters, so together with the regular dividend, the total paid for the year amounts to fifty per cent.

The company's distribution of profits to its stockholders for the year is the same as in 1912, when its regular and extra dividends also made a total of fifty per cent.

Its capital stock of $1,000,000 comprises shares of the par value of ten dollars, the bid price for which on the Detroit stock exchange is now about $121.50.

Besides an extra dividend of twenty-six per cent., the company in January, 1911, presented its stockholders with a stock dividend of one hundred per cent. of the par value of $500,000.

Gato Salesman for De Lisser-Schneider Company

JULIAN T. NUNES, for the past few years a representative in Southern territory for the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, has resigned from his position with that firm and is now a member of the selling force of the De Lisser-Schneider Company.

Mr. Nunes has been in Philadelphia planning with members of the firm for an extensive Southern campaign on "Lord Colbeck," the firm's leader in the ten-cent and two-for-a-quarter cigars. Mr. Nunes is now on his way to New Orleans, from which point he will jump to the Lone Star State and then work his way East to the Atlantic coast. Mr. Nunes has been in Southern territory for sixteen years, and is well known among the trade.

Stanley De Lisser, president of the firm, left on the 14th for an extended Western trip. After touching Pittsburgh, he will go West to St. Louis and then move slowly eastward.

Manila Cigars at Ackers'

J. Durbin Acker, manager of the cigar department of the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store of the Finley Acker Company, is meeting with success in securing repeat orders for "La Rosa Filipina" Manila cigars, which he recently introduced, and which retail for three dollars per hundred.

The "Magallanes" is another brand of Manila cigars which are finding a ready sale through the channels of the Acker stores. These goods retail for four dollars the hundred, and are sold in the popular Breva size.

Annual Banquet of "Havana Ribbon" Salesmen

The annual banquet of "Havana Ribbon" salesmen, tendered them by Bayuk Brothers, took place on December 30, at the Continental Hotel. Thirty salesmen were present together with members of the firm and some few friends.

The wonderful growth of the business of the past year was reviewed, and the splendid prospects of 1914 were remarked.

An addition to the sales force is announced for the State of Texas. A. B. Creech left on January 10, to represent "Havana Ribbons" in the Lone Star State.

Splendid Gift for "Havana Ribbon" Manager

AS a token of their appreciation of the character and work of their sales manager, the salesmen of the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, made by Bayuk Brothers, on the occasion of their annual banquet, presented J. J. Shea with a handsome gold watch, with a beautiful fob and gold penknife attached.

The watch is a beautiful example of the watchmaker's art and is embossed with delicate circles of blue on the back. Engraved in the golden surface of the center of the watch are the words "Havana Ribbon." On the handle of the gold penknife is engraved "J. J. Shea."

Mr. Shea was so overwhelmed with this beautiful token of the regard and esteem in which he is held by the men under him, that he took to his bed that night and was unable to be about again until January 8, when he was at the office for a few hours. We are pleased to note that Mr. Shea is now convalescing rapidly and expects to be able to attend to his duties as usual.

Plans for 1914 business at the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, 1110 Sansom Street, Philadelphia, have been carefully laid, and Warner Searle has started on a trip that will carry him as far West as the Pacific Coast, making but few stops, until the return journey is begun.

W. E. Gumpert is now in the South, and will reach Florida and Texas before turning Northward.

The Portuondo factory is running on full time and full handed, and the firm is optimistic over the outlook for the current year.

M. J. McDonnell, a member of the firm of Yahn & McDonnell, proprietors of a chain of stores throughout Philadelphia, with headquarters at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, is taking a two weeks' trip through the South with Tampa, Key West and Havana his objective points.

Addition to Cressman's Sales Force

Allen R. Cressman's Sons announce the addition of two new salesmen to their force. G. R. Clements will cover South Carolina and part of North Carolina, while Frederick D. Saunders will take care of South Jersey territory and a few cities in Pennsylvania.

The firm reports the biggest year in their history and have big business for the "Counsellor" already in hand for 1914.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

THERE have been some light partial showers in the Vuelta Abajo during the last fortnight, but as they have not been generally distributed the situation cannot be said to have improved materially. In reality the coming crop is still a riddle, which only the future can solve. The Semi Vuelta region may have been perhaps more favored by nature. Partido has had no rains to speak of, but irrigation may have been the salvation. The Santa Clara province has even been worse off, as far as rains are concerned, and besides the drought is reported to have created another plague of worms, which are eating the small leaves of the tobacco plants, thus killing them to some extent.

Some of the early planted tobacco which withstood the rains have had their first cutting, but if there should be no rains it is doubtful whether they will yield a second cut. During the course of this month the plucking of leaves, or cutting, ought to become general. Unless we should have a good rainfall all over the country soon the probability is that the crop will be a short one, small in size, and of a heavy quality.

Our leaf market during the past fortnight has been better than we dared to expect, owing to the turn of the year when business as a rule is always quiet, but thanks to a number of buyers there has been more life. The outlook for the near future appears promising, as we ought to see a continued influx of American buyers in the course of the months of January and February. Prices for all good vegas are bound to rule high, as the stocks of such goods are by no means plentiful. Medium styles may receive more attention, and only the poor and defective kinds will have to be sold low in order to attract buyers.

We beg to refer to our statistics of the stocks on hand in our market on the thirty-first of December, 1913, as well as to the approximate estimate of the tobacco crop in the Island of Cuba during the past year, and the comparison with the last nine years. We do not claim that these figures are exact to the bale, as we have no such reliable government statistics as exist in the United States, but in the absence of them, and having to rely upon private information, we think we are as near to the truth as possible under the circumstances.

Thanks to the courtesy of "El Tabaco" we have some advance information of its statistics as regards exports of leaf tobacco, cigars, cigarettes and cut tobacco, or Picadura, and which will be published in its edition of the tenth of this month, and which we herewith submit for the benefit of the readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD. It throws some interesting side lights on the movements of our second largest staple article of the Island of Cuba.

Through the courtesy of the trade journal "El Tabaco," of Havana, we have secured the following figures from its edition of January 10, 1914:*

F. Rodriguez Will Return Home

Mr. Rodriguez arrived in New York early in December, intending to spend Christmas in New York and get back to Havana by December 31, but a sprained ankle has kept him North for several weeks longer than he planned. He states that the demand for "Elites" all over the world showed an excellent increase during 1913.

The "Elite" account in the United States and Canada is handled by Max Schatz, 82 Maiden Lane, New York.

John W. Merriam left New York on Monday last for a three weeks' trip, which will take him as far West as Chicago. He stated that the past year had been most satisfactory from a business standpoint, and that the continued run of orders since the holidays on "De Kalbs," "Henry Irving," "De Luxe," "Bull Dogs," and all their brands in fact had convinced them that 1914 held good prospects for the trade at large.

H. S. Collins Resigns from "United"

H. S. Collins has resigned as vice-president and director of the United Cigar Stores Company of America. Elliott Averett, who has been secretary for a number of years, succeeds Mr. Collins as vice-president. R. B. Wattley, auditor, succeeds Mr. Averett as secretary and also goes on the board of directors to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Collins' resignation.

Mr. Collins has been an officer of the United Cigar Stores Company practically since its starrt. He is resigning from the United Cigar board in order to take up his active duties with the Riker & Hegeman Drug Company.

American Tobacco Company Offers to Drop Metropolitan.

The American Tobacco Company has voluntarily offered to cancel its contract with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company. This offer was made to those who are investigating tobacco conditions in New York City, particularly in so far as they apply to the Metropolitan concern.

An official of the American Tobacco Company has the following to say on the situation: "Whether or not the Metropolitan Tobacco Company acts as the exclusive jobber for the American Tobacco Company in New York City means nothing to us, and if the Department of Justice believes the general situation can be improved by our selling all jobbers in the district instead of having all business handled by the Metropolitan Company, we are willing to accede to the request. We have so notified the proper authorities, although we have not taken the matter up directly with Attorney-General McReynolds.

"If we did away with our Metropolitan contract, the American Tobacco Company would not suffer any loss. In fact, as the trade knows, we have been selling jobbers at a flat rate throughout the country since last May."

President Whelan in Sunny Italy

"Far away from the cold and snow," President Charles A. Whelan, of the United Cigar Stores Company, is enjoying the delights of a winter in Italy. Mr. Whelan sailed abroad with his family some weeks ago, and it is said that his stay will cover the remainder of our period of disagreeable weather.

During this present cold "snap" the majority of us would like to migrate to a nice warm climate.

An Exhibit Showing the Work of Cork Tipping, Hand-Rolling and Packing "Philip Morris" Cigarettes

Failure of Bernard Simpson

THE many friends of Bernard Simpson, the retail tobacconist, who has been in business at No. 99 Nassau Street for many years, regretted to learn on the 3rd instant, that he had been forced into bankruptcy.

His business has been going backward for some time, and the stand in the Hotel Victoria, which formerly showed a fine profit, has cost money to run for some months. Mr. Simpson also conducted the cigar stand in the Singer Building, but prohibitive rents shut out much profit.

Clarence S. Houghton has been named as receiver by the court with permission to continue the business for twenty days. The receiver estimates liabilities about $12,000, with assets of about $3500.

Bermuda Retail Shops

Visitors to Bermuda from the United States are agreeably surprised at the excellent cigar and tobacco shops which they find in Hamilton, the chief city.

The island being under British dominion does not levy the heavy taxes on tobacco which are so common elsewhere, and as a result fine cigars and cigarettes are easily obtained.

John A. P. Pitt & Company are probably the most important handlers in the island. Their main store is a handsome one, located on Front Street, and they carry a full line of the best Havana cigars—"Romeo y Julieta," "Upmanns," "Sol," and "Fernandez y Garcia," as well as special brands of their own make and Jamaica cigars. They feature the British Turkish cigarettes of Morich's, but handle American goods as well. This firm also have a branch shop in the Windsor Hotel.

The Smoke Shop is another very popular tobacco establishment and their stock is a splendidly assorted one also. They handle several Havana brands, and have built up a specially fine trade on their private brand of "Golofina" cigars, which are shown in a number of sizes.

Bankruptcy Petition Filed Against B. Alterman

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Benny Alterman, of 1643 Broadway, New York. Judge Mayer has appointed N. Howard Pinto receiver, under a bond of 700, with authority to carry on the business for ten days. Liabilities are $7000; with assets listed at $1500.

"56" President Convalescing

The many friends of Charles Drucklieb, president of the Cado Company, manufacturers of the famous "56" cigarettes, will be pleased to learn that he is slowly recovering from his recent illness and that he hopes to resume his duties about February 1.

H. Duys & Company Looking Forward

THE year just past has proven to be the most notable in the entire career of the long history of H. Duys & Company, the big Sumatra import house, of 170 Water Street, New York.

During 1913, the firm sold in the United States an aggregate lot of 6909 bales of Sumatra tobacco, which they believe constitutes a world's record for an annual distribution by one house. This tobacco was all bought directly at the inscriptions by Messrs. John and Henry Duys during their stays in Holland, and their customers uniformly pronounced the tobacco as fine as they had ever worked.

For the present new year, H. Duys & Company have set a high mark to reach, and when the record is complete they want the 8000-bale total passed. It may not be attained, but the ambition is there.

The firm have just engaged the services of S. W. Levine as an addition to their road force, and they now have three Levines, all busy in the distributing of Duys' Sumatra over their various territories.

Max Schatz Opens New Store

The success of his stand in the Severin Hotel, Indianapolis, has been so pronounced, and indicates the city as such an excellent market for high-grade cigars, that Max Schatz has opened a fine retail store in the business section of the city.

Mr. Schatz formally opened the new store on Saturday, January 10, and will remain in Indianapolis for two weeks till things are running smoothly.

"Elite" and "Sol" brands are featured in the imported goods, both of which lines Mr. Schatz controls in the United States and Canada.

President Lichtenstein Busy

President Julius Lichtenstein, of the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, has spent very little time at the beautiful new quarters of the company, 133 Water Street, since they took possession.

After several weeks in Quincy, inspecting the new crop, which is now ready for market, he hurried North, and during the past week has been up to the company's extensive plantations in Connecticut.

When it comes to American shade grown tobacco, the buyers can get a superb assortment grown either North or South at the American Sumatra Tobacco Company's headquarters.

"56" Cigarettes in Schulte Stores

Attesting to the continued demand for quality cigarettes it is announced that the Schulte chain of stores will stock "56" cigarettes, the rapidly-growing brand of the Cado Company, Incorporated. The high quality of "56" is making an impression on the smokers of high-grade cigarettes and it is not surprising to find that brand is growing in favor throughout the United States.

Cayey-Caguas Company's Good Report

PRESIDENT F. R. HOISINGTON, of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, expresses himself as profoundly gratified at the entire lack of order slump, which is generally expected after the holidays.

The first ten days of January showed a steady call for "Savaronas" in each day's mail, and the cigars which are coming up from Porto Rico have an amazing quality of richness and fragrance, in fact the new goods seem to set a brand new standard of quality and "Savarona" success has been absolutely built on this standard.

Secretary Carter, of the Porto Rican Insular Commission, who has been in New York during the past week, was a distinguished caller at the Cayey-Caguas Company's headquarters on last Friday, and he stated that every one in Porto Rico was proud of "Savaronas" as exemplifying what the island could produce in the line of fine cigars and tobacco.

"Saratoga" Has a Prominent List

Several well-known cigar men were among those listed on the "Saratoga's" manifest, which sailed for Havana last Saturday.

Included were Robert E. Lane, United States and Canadian representative of the "Partagas" factory, who was accompanied by G. A. Padron, his wife and son, of London. Mr. Padron is the European representative of the "Partagas" factory. Arthur Clubb, the Toronto cigar man, and Samuel Wasserman were also aboard.

Mr. Lane stated that he expected to be gone about three weeks.

Heywood, Strasser & Voigt in New Home

Heywood, Strasser & Voigt announce their removal to their beautiful new building at Twenty-sixth Street and Ninth Avenue, New York City. They were formerly located at 155 Leonard Street.

Sidney Rothschild, the popular tobacco commission merchant, of Havana, has been in New York for a week past, and will sail for Havana on Saturday, the 17th. Mr. Rothschild made a brief business trip through the West.

Successors to M. F. Schneider

Scheltema & Quanjer, importers of Sumatra and Java tobacco, at 4 Burling Slip, New York, have sent a neat announcement to the trade, calling attention to the fact that they are the successors to the firm of M. F. Schneider, of the same address.

J. B. Duke Rents Crewe House

Crewe House, in Curzon Street, London, England, one of the few detached residences in Mayfair, London's most fashionable district, has been rented to James B. Duke for six months, with an option to purchase.

Havana Letter

Excepting a few of the large manufacturers the year has not been a satisfactory one for our cigar industry, as owing to the high prices paid for the raw material and the lower selling prices through the keen competition no money has been made in 1913. Unless we could increase our exports considerably the outlook for the year 1014 is by no means a promising one, as the question of making reciprocity treaties requires a far longer time than any difficult commercial or financial transaction, owing to the proverbial slowness of diplomats. The unsolved problem of the coming crop is also a momentary evil, although we shall know the final result, for the better or worse, a good deal sooner.

Don Pepin Rodriguez, of the Romeo y Julieta factory, arrived here on the 3rd inst. by the French liner "Espagne" in the best of health, and when we saw him he expressed himself as highly pleased with last year's result. Romeo y Julieta has gained fully ten per cent. in its output over the previous calendar year, and this was distributed over all countries. When we asked Don Pepin to what he attributed the wonderful success of his factory (ten years ago, when Rodriguez, Argüelles & Co. purchased the factory it had only an output of 4,000 cigars per day, while in the month of October last it produced 100,000 cigars daily) he stated that he ascribed the success chiefly to two causes, viz.: First, that the cigars were always uniform in quality; and, second, that they were true to the original customers that patronized them from the start, and would not listen to the advantageous offers made to them by other parties in the same territory, and that they intended to continue this policy in the future.

H. Upmann, Partagas, Henry Clay and Bock & Co., Ltd., Por Larrañaga, Sol, Castañeda and Fonseca, Flor del Fumar, Punch, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, La Flor de José Otero, Belinda, El Rey del Mundo, Ramon Allones, Eden, Hoyo de Monterey and C. E. Beck & Co. are all working well, according to the season of the year, but had nothing of any particular interest to communicate this time.

Leaf Tobacco Notices.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales closed the year well with sales amounting to 4,250 bales of all kinds of leaf.

S. Ruppin, the largest importer of Havana tobacco at New York, arrived here on the 21st ulto., accompanied by Mrs. Ruppin, and left for New York again on the 1st inst. We learned that he had purchased 2,134 bales of leaf, which with his previous purchases makes the total around 10,000 bales for the year 1913.

S. M. Wallach, of G. Falk & Brother, was a buyer of 1,105 bales of leaf.

Other sellers were: José Menendez, José C. Puente & Co., Muñiz Hermanos, I. Kaffenburgh & Sons, M. A. Suarez & Co., Gutierrez & Diehl and H. H. Strater.

Other buyers were: Maximilian Stern, S. I. Davis & Co., Wedeles Brothers, Cuesta, Rey & Co., Perlman Brothers, Romeo y Julieta, Allones, Ltd., Adolfo Moeller, Calixto Lopez & Co. and San Martin & Leon.

Adolfo Moeller	3,026 bales
Ernest Ellinger & Co.	686 "

Rodriguez, Menendez & Co.	424 "
H. Upmann & Co.	355 "

Young & Jaskowiak Dissolve Partnership

Young & Jaskowiak, of 645 Adams Street, La Salle, Ill., have dissolved partnership and Adam Jaskowaik has purchased Adam Young's interest in the business. The business has been carried on by this firm since the death of Joeph Klein, the former proprietor. The firm has enjoyed a liberal patronage and no doubt it will continue under the management of Mr. Jaskowiak.

75,000,000 Cigars Output of H. Fendrich Plant

During the year just passed the cigar factory of H. Fendrich, maker of the famous "Chas. Denby," turned out 75,000,000 cigars. During this period 1500 cigarmakers were employed.

Within the next two years it is said that the company intends to increase their output to 100,000,000 cigars. The new plant of the company admits of an increase of forty per cent. in capacity.

Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, CAL., January 8, 191 .

ONE of the most successful years in the history of Los Angeles cigar business, just came to a close; 1913 was a banner year for the wholesaler as well as retailer; 1914 bids well for a great amount of business judging by the way it is starting off.

The retailers are looking up to this year as being a prosperous year, for the reason that the exposition in San Diego and San Francisco will bring an enormous increase of population and consequently an increase in business, to Los Angeles. Los Angeles is being looked forward to all over the country as the Mecca of California.

Horace Gladstone (Bondy & Lederer) Pacific Coast representative, is one of the happiest men around town, as "Tom Keene," "Lawrence Barrett" and "Little Barrett" are all having a grand run at present. J. J. Gans Brothers, jobbers for the Bondy & Lederer Company lines, tendered their sales and office forces a banquet New Year's evening at the Bristol Cafe. Mr. Gladstone was toastmaster for the occasion. He outlines a campaign for the coming year. Each salesman received handsome gifts from the J. J. Gans Company for their brilliant efforts during the past year. "Lawrence Barrett," "Tom Keene" and "Naida" cigarettes were smoked profusely at the banquet.

J. B. Bonhaus, of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, left for Santa Barbara territory. Joe made a new resolution at the beginning of the year, to keep up to his former good work and to increase his sales above last year's sales. Up to date he bids fair to carry out this resolution to the dot.

R. W. Wittschen, representing Seidenberg & Company, spent a few days with us in looking over the ground in regard to placing the "El Roi-Tan" cigar with a good reliable jobber here. No doubt but what he will succeed in this as the cigar is a fine piece of goods.

After a most successful year's business, the Klingenstein Company are commencing to push their lines harder than ever. One would think a concern, after finishing one of its most successful business years, would slow down, but such is not the case with Klingenstein Company. They are working the "Cinco," "Webster" "American," "Y-B" and "Y-B Leaflet," all of which are excellently distributed throughout the state.

A. Mussatti y Gaudi Company, at 609 San Fernando Street, are having a good sale on the "Reynaldo" cigar, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb Company, of Philadelphia, Pa.

Robert Gans is off again for the oil fields with an extra order book, as Bob writes orders in his sleep. While on this trip, Bob will endeavor, and no doubt succeed in preaching "Lawrence Barrett," "Tom Keene," "La Natividad" and "Little Barrett" to the trade.

Dealers handling the "El Dallo" cigar report a decidedly increased demand for this seller. "El Dallo" cigars are distributed by M. A. Newmark & Company, of Los Angeles, California.

J. J. Gans & Brothers, of Los Angeles, Cal., have placed an order with the Franklin Gertz Cigar Company, of San Francisco, Cal., for 500,000 "La Natividad" cigars, to be shipped as fast as the factory can get them made up. This sure speaks for the selling qualities of the "La Natividad" cigars, but the inner qualities of the cigar itself is spoken of in high terms by all smokers of "La Natividad."

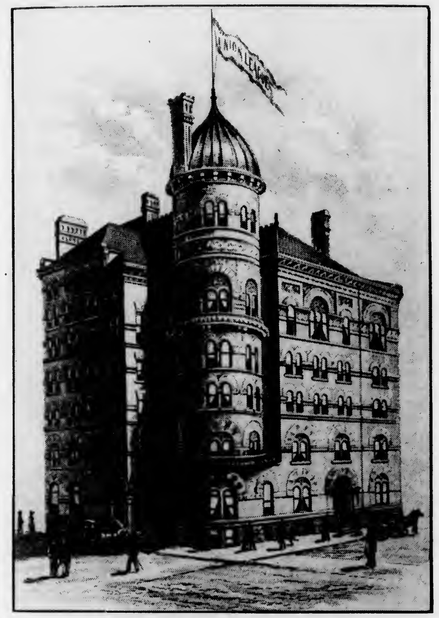
Morris Burke, representing Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb Company, of Philadelphia, Pa., reports the "Reynaldo" cigar as having procured an everlasting grip on the smoker of high grade cigars and he feels secure in making the statement that inside of a month or so, this cigar will be at the head of them "all." Mr. Burke is sole distributor of this excellent piece of goods and it should go well in his hands. Morris also took over another cigar store just as the old year passed away. This store is located at Spring Street between Second and Third Streets. This store was formerly owned by Tom Stevens. Mr. Burke is getting it remodeled entirely and has gathered nothing but high class trade at this place since it changed hands. Business with him is of the best and he only hopes it will continue as in the past.

The "Picadura Import" cigar, manufactured by L. Newberger & Brothers, is making its way into the heart of smokers of good five-cent cigers. This cigar is handled here by Klauber, Wangenheim & Company and Morris Burke, representing L. Newberger & Brothers, states that this cigar is already leading the way to larger sales than any other nickel cigar on the market hereabouts.

ALKALI.

Owing to the sale of the building in which they have been located, the Willmers Brothers Cigar Company, of Dubuque, Ia., will be located at Fourth and Iowa Streets, that city, after February 1.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 8



THE UNION LEAGUE CLUB, CHICAGO
Showing the entrance at Jackson and Federal Streets

(This is the eighth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.
No. 5—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
No. 6—The Chicago Athletic Association.
No. 7—The Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.

FIVE years ago, when William H. Taft came to Chicago to tell the common people that he ought to be elected President of the United States, he did not take the trouble to shout his message from the balconies of hotels and other public places. He had a much simpler plan. He spoke at the Union League Club. The common people heard the echo and William H. Taft went away from the city in high spirits. He knew that the Union League Club was convinced, and under his silk-lined waistcoat he had the assurance that nobody would spill the gravy in the approaching national convention, at least as far as Chicago was concerned.

What is the Union League Club? Turning to the charter of that organization the reader is informed that the club was organized in 1881 by certain leading business and professional men of Chicago for the purpose of "promoting clean politics in the interest of the nation at large." Thirty years, combined with the weakness of human nature, has resulted in a narrowing of this original aim, and the organization has taken on an avowed Republican hue. But it's a grand old club, at that. And a millionaire club to boot! Chicago has none more exclusive.

The club house is located at Jackson and Federal Streets, immediately south of the Federal Building. It is a massive brick structure, with the smoke and grime of the street clinging to the walls and gives but little idea to the spectator of the elaborate scale of the interior. The first tier of windows is more than ten feet above the level of the street. No street cars run on Jackson Boulevard, and the continuous procession of motor cars causes a subdued hum which is rather soothing than annoying. Down the street to the west looms out of the murk the massive silhouette of the Board of Trade, while the office buildings in the neighborhood are filled with grain firms. Away to the south lies the publishing district. It would be hard to find a location more in the heart of things and at the same time as free from metropolitan nuisances.

A black nabob in a blue uniform stands at attention at the door, to see that none but proper persons enter the club. To such he is the soul of politeness, and swings the portals wide at each approach. On entering about the first thing which greets the eye, after the initial general impression of money and aristocracy, is the cigar stand.

The Union League Club has four cigar stands located in various sections of the building, where they will be most convenient for members taken with a sudden desire to smoke. The main counter, where the most goods are sold, is on the first floor near the entrance, and is in the form of a shepherd's crook, with the tip of the handle against the south wall and the barb curving around and connecting with the west wall about thirty feet to the north. Three cases, placed rather high, make up the total display; one for fancy imported box goods, one for medium priced cigars, and one for cigarettes. Without a doubt the case which forms the barb of the shepherd's crook, and displays the fancy imported cigars, "Romeos," "Partagas," "Elites," "Upmann's," "Hoyos," "Punch," "Bocks," for sale by the box, is the acme of all that is most luxurious and aristocratic in smokedom, at least as far as Chicago is concerned. The prices attached to some of these goods are appalling to the man who thinks he is treating himself well when he buys two for a quarter cigars! The boxes, as well as the cigars all show the most exquisite workmanship, some of the former having such fancy edges that they look more like bon-bon boxes than containers for cigars. The case is not crowded, and each box has a neat little card announcing the price on the per hundred basis.

The long central portion of the crook is devoted to the sale of individual cigars, as opposed to sale by the box. Here also is displayed a high class of goods, the feature of which is "The League," as the private brand of the club is called. "The League" is offered in both panatella and perfecto sizes, as well as a number of intermediate shapes. The brand is popular with the members, as the name of the club upon the box is a guarantee to them that the quality will be right. The remainder of the cigars in the central case are high class in every respect, judging by the appearance and the price, but the brands are not familiar to the man who is accustomed to buying his cigars on the street. Every care is taken by those in charge to insure the condition of these cigars when they reach the hands of the smoker. The upper portion of the handle of the crook is devoted to the display of cigarettes. The feature of the cigarette display is also "The League" brand, which is offered in both the plain and cork-tip varieties, from the regulation size up to the gold-tipped banquet size. The boxes are placed in the case in a tasteful manner, with care that the space be not overcrowded. "Philip Morris," "Pall

INTERNAL REVENUE COMMISSIONER DEVISES NEW BOOKKEEPING FORMS

Cigar and Cigarette Manufacturers to Make Monthly Returns in Revised Books—Extra Bookkeeping on Account of New Smoker Law

WASHINGTON, D. C., January 14.

THE New Year was begun by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Osborn announcing to cigar and cigarette manufacturers a new form for bookkeeping, which is to be required of them in the future. During the interim of devising regulations for the collection of the income tax and the appointments of new internal revenue collectors, the Commissioner has found time to alter the form upon which is required a cigar manufacturer's monthly return, and to revise the bookkeeping so as to indicate the number of free smokers used in each plant.

Regarding the monthly return form, the commission issued the following notice to the collectors:

"Revised Form 72 of cigar manufacturers' monthly return, a supply of which is being sent each collector, should be used, if received in time for distribution to manufacturers, for making report for December, 1913, and exclusively by all manufacturers of cigars or cigarettes, commencing with return rendered by them for the month of January, 1914, and thereafter.

"The new form of monthly return is printed in two colors, white and light blue; the white sheets, part one are to be used by manufacturers of large cigars exclusively; blue sheets parts one and two, when little cigars or cigarettes are reported on hand or manufactured, and also when in addition, large cigars are manufactured or reported on hand.

"When two or more classes of cigars or cigarettes are manufactured, report of materials used, which is provided for in revised Form 73 of book to be kept by manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, should be made on the last page of the monthly return.

"If the number of lines provided in revised Form 72 for reporting material purchased or removed under permit, is not sufficient, entries should be half-spaced or interlined, and then if the space is completely filled, additional sheets of Form 72 should be used."

Regarding the extra bookkeeping on account of the free smokers law, the following notice was issued to the collectors:

"Form 73 of book to be kept by manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes has been revised, providing new columns in which to report tax free cigars used for personal consumption and for experimental purposes, employees, etc., as prescribed in Regulations, T. D. 1875, under authority of the Act of February 10, 1913. Copies of revised Form 73 have been furnished upon request to publishers of these books and copies have also been sent to each Collector of Internal Revenue.

"Cigar manufacturers need not be required to purchase new Books 73 until their present books have been filled if they are keeping, in addition to the other requirements of the law, proper record therein in accordance with T. D. 1875 and no trouble is experienced by collectors or their deputies from manufacturers making abstracts therefrom on latest revised Form 72 of cigar manufacturers' monthly return. Otherwise, the use of revised Book 73 shall be required immediately."

Mall," "56," "Melachrinos," are also conspicuous. In fact, it might be said that the main features of the entire display are dignity and simplicity. If a member wishes to buy, the goods are so arranged that he need not long remain in the dark as to what he wants.

The three other stands throughout the club house are conducted on the same general plan as the one described. Next in importance to the main stand in the lobby is the one at the entrance to the dining room. From this stand the orders of members seated in the various dining rooms are filled. In addition to the main grill room there are twelve other dining rooms, which are busy with parties of one kind or another every hour of the day or night. The total amount of the goods bought from this stand is almost as great as that of the main stand. The third stand is on the third floor, near one of the lounging rooms, and is maintained for the convenience of servants, who would otherwise be compelled to take the elevator downstairs to fill orders. The fourth stand is on the fifth floor, and supplies the wants of members in the bar and billiard rooms. Thus it will be seen that the wants of the smoker are well looked after in this club, since he need not travel far in any direction to get the best which money can buy in this line. Uniformed servants, white, are ever ready to obey the slightest wish and will bring cigars or cigarettes in short order if the smoker desires to secure them by this route. They are served on silver trays, in the usual small glasses, with matches and a world of politeness.

The northeast corner of the main floor of the club is fitted out as a lounging room, and is one of the most luxurious to be found in the city. The furniture is mahogany with black upholstering, while rare old paintings cover the walls. The feet sink into the thick carpet without sound. Three fireplaces, built on the old-fashioned plan, make the place more cosy. Groups of men sit around smoking and conversing in low tones. Most of them have gray hair, for the cost of belonging to this exclusive club precludes the idea of any being able to belong except those who have well won the battle of life.

The remainder of the main floor is devoted to general purposes. There is a writing room and a check room, as well as the elevators, of which there are several.

The upper rooms are devoted to the various purposes of club life, including pool, billiards, grill, society and dance and dormitory. Many of the famous business and professional men of the country are members, and in Chicago there are few big business and professional men who do not belong. These men by the dozen may be found here at all hours of the day and night, in a state of relaxation from business. What is going on in those little rooms, containing the little parties of six or ten iron gray men? Is the price of prunes for next year being decided upon, or is it the real election of the next governor of the state? Or is it merely a little party, away from the vulgar crowd and scandal-hunting newspaper men? Or is it both? It may be any of these things in the Union League Club, where the men of might congregate.

And after each session the blue smoke of fragrant cigars hangs over the scene like a battle-cloud. The servants clear away the debris, which includes many black snipes, with the ends savagely chewed. They have assisted in the solution of the problem and in the restoration of harmony. Without them, indeed, it is doubtful if anything could ever be decided, even at the Union League Club.

San Francisco

Business Above Average—Charles Mattheas & Company Incorporates—New Year Brings Many Changes.

SAN FRANCISCO, January 5, 1914.

THE first week of the first month of the new year has proven a good one for the San Francisco trade. The old year closed with a heavy rainfall all over California; and these were followed with some of the Pacific Coast's finest warm sunny winter weather. San Francisco dealers report that the smokers have been out in force, and that the business since the new year opened has been a good bit above the average for the last months of the old year. Manufacturers' representatives and the traveling men of the local real estate houses are either on the road again or getting their samples ready for an early start. The good agricultural prospects and the easing up in money matters have cheered up the situation materially from the wholesalers' point of view, and the general belief is that 1914 will show up well ahead of last year in total volume of business.

The announcements of the new year are mostly favorable. One or two dealers have gone out of business and a few others may follow; but in general the number of new stores opening and of improvements and enlargements to old ones far outnumber the changes in the other direction. A new store has been opened in the Waldorf Cafe, and the announcement is made that the same people are shortly to open their third store in a new building now in process of construction in the same general neighborhood. J. A. Levien, a well known cigar man, has also started the new year by opening two new stands, one in the Lick Building on Montgomery Street and the other at 834 Market Street. The latter, which is one of the most centrally located stands in the city, was bought of Bouquet & Cohn, chain store men of this city.

Cigar men from the San Joaquin Valley report that the rains and the generally prosperous condition there are having their effect on the cigar trade. In Stockton, the chief center in the northern end of the valley, the Stockton Wine and Liquor Co. has opened a cigar department with the new year. A general line of popular brands is carried. Maurice Katz and J. A. Donovan, two cigar dealers from Fresno who have been visiting in San Francisco, report that the San Joaquin Valley has been put in excellent shape by the early winter rains, and that the outlook for the new year in that locality could hardly be better.

Improvements are the order of the day at the Merchants' Exchange cigar stand. Irving Pollak, the proprietor, has had a good season and is making some desirable changes to meet the needs of the increasing trade.

Walter Nelson, formerly in charge of the New Mexico Cigar Co.'s cigar store at Albuquerque, N. M., has removed to Silver City in the same state, where he has bought out the interest of J. Brent in a cigar store and has taken control of the business.

E. C. Hull, a manufacturers' representative with offices in the M. A. Gunst & Co. building at the corner of California and Front Streets, San Francisco, has returned from his six months' trip over his northern territory in the interest of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., the Sola Cigar Co., Salvador Rodriguez and other lines. He reports a good business everywhere and a splendid trade in some sections. He covered the country as far east as Montana. Mr. Hull has an extensive ranch in Idaho, and spent some little time there on his way out.

Tillmann & Bendel, wholesale grocers, cigar and tobacco dealers of this city, treated their entire force to the usual Christmas banquet at the Red Room of the Palace Hotel in this city on the evening of December 24th. President Tillmann, beside acting as toastmaster, made a well-timed talk to the gathering. Stereopticon views of the 1915 Exposition were given.

Henry Loverich, outside salesman for S. Bachman & Co., covering the San Joaquin Valley run, finished up his last trip of the season shortly before Christmas, and has been taking things easy in this city since that date. He had a good season's business. E. O. Regensburg, who represents the Bachman interests in the district about San Francisco Bay to the north and east, also finished up the year's business in good shape. He has been in town for the last few days.

C. W. McCormick, Coast representative of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, left for a visit to the factory just before Christmas. Before he went he completed a deal for the California distribution of the "Webster" line of cigars, which will hereafter be wholesaled in this section by H. L. Judell & Co., a well known jobbing house of this city.

The suit of Henry W. Peabody & Co., importers of Manila cigars, against the Edward Wolf Co., wholesalers of this city, which arose out of the refusal of the latter company to receive a large importation of Manila cigars, has been compromised; and it is understood that both parties are glad to have the matter settled and out of the way.

E. B. Gaze, traveling representative of the "Integridad" line of cigars, is here this week visiting the local trade and sizing up the situation. He came down from Portland, Ore., and other points in the North, where he found the dealers very hopeful as to the future. From San Francisco he leaves for Montana, where it is reported that something like a boom is under way in business affairs.

Chas. Mattheas & Co., jobbers of cigars and distributors of the American line of E. Regensburg & Co., have incorporated their business. The old name is continued and business will be conducted as heretofore. The capital stock of the new corporation is $100,000; and a portion of this has, it is said, been distributed to some of the old time employes of the house.

J. N. Wilson, one of the cigar men of Sacramento, Cal., came down a few days ago and spent a few days with the local trade.

Santa Claus was very good to two of the coming men at the M. A. Gunst & Co. headquarters at California and Front Streets. Dave Byrnes has been made resident salesman for the company, a new position just created for the better care of visiting buyers. I. H. Carlson, who has been associated with Mr. Byrnes in the wholesale end of the business, has now been made wholesale manager. M. A. Gunst & Co. closed the year with a splendid business at all the stores. The box trade in the last month of the year was about the largest on record. The company has opened up a new store or two and is planning still further extensions. The new store at Sutter and Market has made a good showing to date.

THE trade enjoyed one of the best seasons in recent years, having disposed of practically all of their holiday stock and a great many of them were seeking more merchandise at the last minute, not having contemplated as big a business as they received.

The new year has opened up wonderfully well after the cry of "hard times" and all of them look forward to a big year.

Manufacturers have started their men on the road and are already receiving many nice orders, showing that conditions all through the country are exceedingly bright.

Nate Seidman has opened up at 506 Superior Avenue, N. W. This store was formerly occupied by the Joseph T. Snyder Cigar Store Company and was given up, due to the fact that their lease expired on same.

A new store is being opened by the Unger Brothers, between Louis Klein Cigar Company and Gluckman's Cigar Store, on lower Superior Street. They will have a complete line of cigars, tobacco and smokers' articles, along with the pool and billiard hall and barber shop. This makes three cigar stores door to door in this section.

J. C. Leverence, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, has left for the West with his new line of "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" in all sizes. Bert Smith, of the above-mentioned firm, is also on the job and has already sent in a big bunch of business for an opening. The city men, W. C. Blaschky and L. P. Shields, are both hard at it in the city.

Joe Loveman, of Joe Loveman Cigar Company, reports business as exceedingly good and has enjoyed a big holiday business. Things are opening up for him already this year.

Stace & Vincent Cigar Company, operating stores at Fifty-seventh and Euclid Streets, and also at One Hundred and Fifth and Euclid Streets, did an enormous business for the first year in the retail field. These boys have put out a new cigar namely, the "Percy Haswell," which is going like a "world-beater." They also carry "Sonodas," of Eibold, of Cincinnati; and "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives," of the Shields-Wertheim Company, this city.

Fred G. Golmer Cigar Company, operating stores in the Rathskeller and two in the Arcade, did an enormous holiday business and this year shows a big increase over the year previous. They handle a big line of Clear Havana stuff and also an exceedingly fine line of domestic cigars. In Clear Havana stuff they handle "El Modelos," "Samelos," "Julia Marlowes" and "Websters." In domestic cigars, they handle "Saramitas," and "Pastoras."

Morris Glucksman, operating stands in the "Leader-News" Building, and one in the Star Theatre Building, claims that his trade shows a wonderful increase over last year, and he has no complaints to make over any of his holiday business, for he cleaned out practically everything he had.

Mr. Jandorf, of Kaiser & Bosberg, was in town the past week and pulled out a nice lot of business in this section.

Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Company, has just returned from New York City, where he spent the holidays with his folks. He is back on the job now after having had a very pleasant vacation. This concern did an enormous business the past year and their outlook for the present year is very bright. Their brands are "Rigolettos," "Decisions" and "El Symphony," and are universal sellers.

George Scrambling, of the George Scrambling Cigar Company, reports business as exceedingly good. They are putting forth their best efforts behind the "New Owl," which is a hand-made cigar. "Bank Notes," "Abby," "Duquesne," "Boquet," and also "Osmundos." The indications are for a big business this season.

Chicago

REPORTS that the cigar and tobacco business has been anything but good during the past two weeks are grounded upon unwarranted pessimism. In fact, the inventories which are being taken in all lines at the present time are disclosing the fact that the business transacted during the past year was excellent. Collections have been uniformly good and the money for goods has been in the treasure chest not many days after the sale was made. It is not always large amounts of business which spell prosperity. In fact, any number of concerns go to the wall which have been doing an extensive business for a long period. It is when a great amount of business is done without the immediate return of the value represented that a concern in many cases goes to the wall, and goes hard. Of course, when a large amount of business can be transacted and the money for the same brought back into the house within a reasonable period, then it is that conditions can be called excellent in the real sense.

Speaking of inventory, the writer has in mind the large cigar and leaf jobbing houses. It is upon them alone that the eye need be turned when information is desired concerning the condition of the trade. They are at once the bankers and the barometers of the trade. If collections have been good with them you can be pretty certain that the small cigar dealer and the "buckeye" out in the country are doing the business, too. The inventories which the writer has watched thus far have demonstrated in a clear manner that the past year has been a banner one both from the standpoint of collections and amount of business transacted. Everything is well—hustling—booming! The band of progress is making such a noise on the lake front that a growler could not be heard even if he chose to express his opinion. The coming year must be viewed through rose-tinted spectacles, so far as the cigar and tobacco business in this city and vicinity is concerned.

Coming down to the news of the past two weeks, it might be remarked that Cupid has been dodging around among local cigar and tobacco men during that period with all the glee of a gum-shoe politician. He has claimed two victims. George S. Brown, son of Jonas S. Brown, the well-known tobacco broker, has married Miss Amy Jacobson. The wedding was held in the Hotel Metropole, and was a brilliant affair. Mr. Brown is in the insurance business, but is prominent among the cigar and tobacco boys here, owing to the interest which he has always taken in his father's business. Thomas N. Mullen, who formerly traveled for a number of local leaf houses, married Miss Cynthia Strunk, of Elgin, Ill. Mr. Mullen is now in the hide and leather business. He is a member of the famous Kentucky family of that name and has a number of close relatives in the tobacco business in Louisville and vicinity.

John T. Dee, secretary of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Co., of Philadelphia, has given his many friends among the trade in Chicago a surprise by resigning while still in his prime as an executive of one of the largest cigar houses in the country. Mr. Dee "got his start" here in Chicago, having been born here on the North Side and having worked for a number of Chicago concerns before going to the East. It is the understanding of Mr. Dee's Chicago friends that he tendered his resignation because, having made his "pile," he wished to spend the remainder of his life in seeing something of the world and in much needed rest.

The La Vello Cigar Co., which makes the famous "Lady Abbey" cigar, has been taking inventory during the past few days. They have received a number of letters from eastern concerns which wish to act as distributors for their goods. They have already made remarkable progress in pushing the sale of their cigars into the East and are planning on a still more vigorous campaign in that territory during the coming year.

James E. Quan, who was for many years with W. J. Quan & Co., wholesale grocers of this city, has been appointed chairman of the new State Utilities Commission by Governor Dunne. Mr. Quan was the first member of the commission to be appointed by the Governor. The firm of W. J. Quan & Co. is one of the oldest in the city of Chicago and in the old days was one of the largest distributors of cigars in this territory. Mr. Quan's new position carries a salary of $10,000 a year and considerable prestige. One of the first acts of the new commission was to investigate a street car accident in this city which injured a score of passengers.

Lee Baker, a former tobacco buyer for Steele-Wedeles Co., wholesale grocers of this city, was in town the other day calling on old friends and business acquaintances. He is now a division salesman for the American Tobacco Co., stationed in Milwaukee.

The Oppenheimer Cigar Co. is pushing "Savage Havana" cigars, made by the Cortez Cigar Co. This is a fine piece of goods and is one of the leaders of the company, which enjoys a large distribution in this territory.

The Germania Catering Co. has opened a buffet and restaurant at Fifth Avenue and Washington Street, and has installed a full line of all the popular brands of cigars.

"The Nikko" is the name of a new white light cafe on Wabash Avenue, which is conducted entirely by Japanese. The interior of this place is a bower of beauty and must have cost many thousands of dollars. Paintings of Japanese scenes cover the walls and the screens and the entire room is so full of potted plants that it seems like a garden. Above is a balcony where guests may not go unless they are accompanied by ladies. At one end of the room is a stage on which appears the best cabaret entertainers that money can hire. The writer asked for "any good two-for-a-quarter cigar" and was brought a "Ben Bey," new Cuban size, made by Grommes & Elston, whose factory is located on the West Side of this city. This shows that the place is on the square, anyway.

Chicago manufactured during the year 1913 cigars, tobacco and snuff valued at $25,300,000, which represents an increase of more than $2,000,000 over the year 1912. This backs up the claim made by the writer in the beginning of this letter that the past year had been a banner year in the history of the trade in this city. The wholesale trade was $00,375,000, about $3,000,000 more than in the year 1912. These figures are authentic, having been collected by newspaper bureaus which has a reputation beyond reproach.

Aaron Straus, president of Celestino Vega & Co., to South Wabash Avenue, manufacturers and distributors of "La Vega" cigars, will leave the latter part of the month for a trip to the factory at Tampa, Fla. He is much interested in the enlargement of the factory at that point, as the increase of orders which marked the close of the old year showed that it was high time for the expansion of manufacturing facilities.

The Wellington Hotel, famous as the last retreat of bachelors, is to be torn down in 1915, and the ground which it covers at Wabash Avenue and Jackson Boulevard taken over by Lyon & Healy, the large music house, which will erect a modern building on the site.

Deaths of prominent men in the trade during the month include that of Michael Ullrich, of the firm of Grommes & Ullrich, who died at his home in Santa Barbara, Cal. He was 75 years old. From a German peasant boy to the rich member of a large firm is a far cry, but that is the tale which Mr. Ullrich leaves behind. He came to this country in the early fifties and settled in Chicago. He founded the firm of Grommes & Ullrich. About fifteen years ago, because of poor health, he retired from business and went to live in the West. He still retained his interest in the firm, however. He was a man of cultivated taste, which his great wealth permitted him to indulge as he willed. He had collected a magnificent library covering many fields and a number of valuable art works.

C. Jevne & Co., the large retail grocers in the loop district, are making a drive on H. Upmann cigars imported direct from Cuba.

T. W. Clayton, head of the buying department of the local organization of the United Cigar Stores Co., has resigned his position to engage in the cigar brokerage business. Mr. Clayton has a genial disposition and a sound business experience which should contribute to make his new venture a success.

Alexander D. Hannah is another prominent man connected with the cigar trade of the early days who has passed away during the past month. He was a member of the original liquor and cigar firm of Hannah & Hogg, which still exists, although both Mr. Hannah and Mr. Hogg sold out their interest many years ago to engage in running the Brevoort Hotel in West Madison Street, near Clark. Mr. Hannah came from Scotland and first went to a far western town, where he became a dry goods clerk. He thought that this was too tame, however, and came to Chicago where he became a liquor and cigar salesman.

The lid remains down on the "26" dice game in this city and from reports which are coming in from other cities in the state it seems that it is only a matter of time until the game will be routed in them also. The city of Aurora, which lies a few miles out in the corn-fields, and apes Chicago as far as its size will permit, has decided that the game is non grata in that place, and is making a fight to prevent the local cigar, saloon and candy dealers from operating the same. Nothing more desperate than "Indian" dice is permitted in the cigar stores of Chicago at the present time.

Word is going around that two or more cigar factories in this city will be bonded in the near future. It is not even known which factories these are, and it is not probable that a definite decision has been reached.

William D. Rosenberger, head of the Chicago Box Co. had the misfortune to suffer a great loss last week in the death of his mother. The sympathy of the trade is extended to him in his bereavement.

Tom Branyan, of Jose Escalante & Co., leaves on a western trip in a few days. He has finished the work of rounding up the odds and ends of one of the biggest years he has had since he went with the firm.

New Home for Edwards & Kildow

The Edwards & Kildow stogie factory, at Alexandria, Ind., has been closed during the holidays, during which preparations have been made for the business to occupy a more commodious home. Business has grown so rapidly that the firm found itself cramped in the present location and they will soon occupy a larger plant on the other side of the street.

Ninth District Notes

Dallastown—The large cigar factory building on West Maple Street, for many years operated by E. S. Sechrist, has been sold to D. A. Gallagher & Son, who will in the future conduct the factory. It is understood that the new owners will devote their attention almost exclusively to the manufacture of stogies.

East Prospect—With a large number of 1914 orders on hand, the cigar factory of J. W. Gohn reopened immediately after the holidays. The business outlook for the firm is bright and they anticipate a record year.

Wrightsville—Shindler Brothers, of York, have arranged to open a cigar factory in the property at Front and Maple Streets. A large part of the equipment has already been installed and the plant will soon be in operation.

Dallastown—The recent heavy snow caved in the roof of the large tobacco warehouse and packing department owned by Edward Noll. The building was well filled with tobacco and cigars and the damage will amount to several hundred dollars.

Bair's Station—H. F. Kohler, Register of Wills of York County, will shortly remove his cigar factory at York, to this place, where he has recently had a three-story brick factory constructed. The building is equipped with an elevator and all the latest appliances for modern cigarmaking. In full operation the plant will employ 100 hands. It will be managed by Mr. Kohler and his son, Norman Kohler.

Wrightsville—W. H. Raab & Son, of Dallastown, will open a cigar factory in the Detwiler Building, corner of Second and Hellam Streets. William U. Carr, of this place, will have charge of the new factory.

East Prospect—The large factory of the East Prospect Cigar Company is nearing completion and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy in a few weeks. It will be modern throughout, steam heated, and will be equipped with an elevator. The factory which the company is now using will be occupied by H. L. Doll, who will give employment to a large number of hands.

Dallastown—More than 200 employees of the Merchants' Cigar Box Company were recently dined at their annual banquet given in the factory recently. Henry Sprenkle, factory manager, had the affair in charge. The year 1913 is reported to have been a most successful one for the company.

East Prospect—A. F. Burg has recently received a large consignment of tobacco purchased in Lancaster County. He reports his business as coming fine, and intends to increase the number of hands in the coming year.

The John C. Herman cigar factory, at Manchester, Pa., is steadily gaining new hands. The firm has thirty hands employed and manufactures 5000 cigars daily, or an output of three cases a week.

Increasing business has necessitated Moses Hendel, of Red Lion, Pa., enlarging his cigar factory to enable him to employ more hands and thus fill his accumulating cigar orders.

Italian Regie Boosts Tobacco Prices

As a New Year's gift to the smoking citizens of Italy, the government Regie announced new and advanced prices on all grades of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes. The increased figures should yield about $1,000,000 more revenue during the present year, and also result in making some terrible cigars a bit more terrific in quality.

Mexico Raises Tax on Imported Cigarettes

A presidential decree of Mexico, dated November 19, with effect from December 1, provides for an increase of the revenue taxes on tobacco manufactures, etc. The stamp tax on imported cigarettes has been increased from 3.50 pesos to 4.70 pesos (a peso is equal to $0.498) per 100 packages weighing not more than 25 grams (0.88 ounce) each. On cigarettes and cheroots of Mexican manufacture the rate is increased from 1.50 pesos to 2. pesos per 100 packages of equal weight.

Havana Cigar Company Incorporates

The Havana Cigar Company has incorporated in Halifax, Nova Scotia, with an authorized capital of $5000. They have incorporated to deal in and manufacture cigars, tobacco, etc., with power to amalgamate with another company, and to acquire real estate, buildings, etc.

Interested parties are mentioned as Moise D. Belleveau, Robert A. Stuart and John McLaughlin, of Church Point, Digby.

Fred Metzger, of Quincy, Ill., who for many years has conducted a cigar store in that place, has decided to sell his business. It is said that Walter Levi and Carl Steinwedell are the successors. It is rumored that Mr. Metzger will erect a cigar factory on his property at 528 Spring Street.

Detroit

Cigar Trade Will Feel Effect of Ford Company's Distribution of $10,000,000—Business Holds Up Well After Holidays—Scotten-Dillon President Injured—Wayne Cigar Company Has Good Year

THE biggest "news story" occurring in Detroit for sometime broke on Monday, when one of the largest automobile factories in the city announced that starting with January 12th they would increase the number of employes to 25,000 men and that the minimum wage would be five dollars per day. Someone will say, what has that to do with the retail cigar business? The answer is, everything. Can you imagine what it is going to mean to have 25,000 men earning no less than thirty dollars per week? Not only will these men live better, but they will want the luxuries of life and they will smoke oftener and better cigars because they will be able to afford it. In addition to this scale of wages, the company announces that each employe will share in the profits, which are estimated at $10,000,000 for 1914.

Retail dealers expected that business would fall off to almost nothing after the holidays, but fortunately it has been holding up quite satisfactorily. Compared with a year ago, sales are considerably better, and the outlook at this time is exceedingly good. As a matter of fact, you never saw a more optimistic lot of dealers as exist right here in the city of Detroit. Ask any of them about business and they'll all tell you "it's great." Discounting fifty per cent. would still leave business "good," which is more than can be said of most large cities.

The new factory of the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Co. will be located on East Warren Avenue, near Mitchell, work on which will start during the current month.

Edward Way, of Marshall, Mich., president of the Scotten-Dillon Tobacco Co., of Detroit, may lose the use of his arm as the result of a recent accident. Mr. Way slipped on the ice and in falling fractured his arm. The bone was improperly set, and when surgeons prepared to break and reset they found the bone shattered where it enters the shoulder joint. It was declared necessary to remove the upper part of the bone, making the joint useless. Surgeons now in attendance upon Mr. Way hope to be able to save his arm.

The Detroit Hotel Men's Association held their annual meeting this week, which resulted in the following election of officers for the ensuing year: President, George Fulwell, Normandie Hotel; vice-president, Robert B. Stirling, St. Clair Hotel; secretary, Rena G. Hoag, Charlevoix Hotel; treasurer, Harry L. Zeese, Cadillac Hotel; executive board, George H. Woolley, Ponchartrain; A. J. Hayes, Wayne; W. B. Morgan, Morgan; James Burns, of the Burns, and Charles Clements, of the Metropole Hotel.

Ray Stewart, formerly employed as captain on the Great Lakes, has accepted a position with the wholesale firm of Waltzer & LaPointe, of Mt. Clemens, Mich. Archie LaPointe, of this firm, left immediately after the first of January for Florida and other southern points. The entire trip will be made by day, stops being made at the various stations to spend the nights. Mr. LaPointe expects to be back about the first of February.

Several arrests have been made in connection with the robbery of the cigar stand of Reuben Gough in the Vehicle Workers' Club building in Flint, Mich., which took place Christmas night. More than $300 was taken from a drawer in the cigar stand directly beneath the cash register.

A campaign is again being conducted against the operation of "books" in cigar stores and other places owing to the large number of complaints made recently by young boys who have been losing all their week's wages in an attempt to "beat" them. The police department have been given strict instructions to arrest the proprietor of any cigar store permitting such gambling.

In Ann Arbor a campaign is being waged against raffle cards in cigar stores, and as a result all of the dealers have abandoned them.

On account of fire destroying the old Michigan Central depot at the foot of Third Street it was necessary to utilize the new depot on Sixteenth street earlier than was expected. This new structure, which is now being used for all incoming and outgoing trains on the Michigan Central lines, is without a doubt one of the best in this country; in fact, it stands with such depots as the New York Central and Pennsylvania in New York City and the magnificent depot in Washington, D. C. The cigar privileges in the depot are in the hands of the Union News Company of Chicago. The cigar stand is located directly across the drug store.

Charles Spietz and Albert Worch, proprietors of the Wayne Cigar Co., closed their first year under this style on December 28th. That it was a successful and prosperous year is proven by the fact that every available inch of their four story factory is used for some purpose, and that plans are in progress for making further extensions in the spring. Messrs. Spietz and Worch returned January 7th from New York City, where they spent Christmas and New Year's. Mr. Worch just completed a six weeks' business trip, taking him as far West as the Pacific Coast and as far East as New York City.

Still another cigar factory is to be added to the large number already established here, to be called "The City of the Straits Cigar Manufacturing Co." The capital stock to begin with is $50,000.

Carl Schultz, eighty years old, who retired fifteen years ago, previous to which time he operated a small cigar manufacturing business in the rear of his home at 149 Elmwood Avenue, passed away on December 31st.

The new manager of the Wolverine Automobile Club is "Pop" Harrison, former manager of the Tuller Hotel, and who also managed the Rushmere Club and the Detroit Boat Club.

The Soper Segar Store has been having a very nice display of "Lozano" cigars for the past week. This brand has been proving a big favorite in Detroit, not only at the Soper store, but also at the cigar department of the Hotel Ponchartrain and O'Brien & Co. An order for 5,000 "Lozano" cigars was placed by the Ponchartrain right after the first of the year.

Needless to add that the "Webster," "Partagas," "Romeo and Juliet" and Henry Clay and Bock & Co. cigars are all more than holding their own. This last named brand, by the way, was a tremendous seller in Detroit for the holidays, sales being one hundred per cent. ahead of the previous year.

At the annual banquet of the Detroit Real Estate Board at the Hotel Ponchartrain on January 7th, Charles LaFond, well known retailer, rendered several vocal numbers and made such a hit that encore after encore was demanded until Charlie found that he had used up his entire repertoire.

Detroit friends of Mort Hammer and Hi Hammer, salesmen for Corral, Wodiska & Co., are in receipt of souvenir postal cards from Tampa, Fla., which would indicate that these two live-wires are making a trip through the factory to get better posted on how the "Lucius" and "Julia Marlowe" cigars are made. The next time the Hammers get to town, no doubt we will be hearing all about the number of cigarmakers employed by the above firm and every method of manufacture used in the making of these brands.

Frank Roemer, city salesman for the Lee & Cady cigar department, has been confined to his bed since the first of the year with an attack of the grippe. He expects, however, to get back on the job by the end of this week.

Robinson's cigar store on West Grand River has been making a very elegant display in his window of "New Bachelor" cigars, using the new advertising cards which are unusually attractive. The "New Bachelor" is very popular at the Robinson stores as well as the Hotel Metropole, to say nothing of the many hundreds of other places throughout the city.

Frank H. Conant, president of the Michigan Cigar Box Co., of Detroit, died on January 1st from pneumonia, with which he had been ill for ten days. Mr. Conant was president of the Wholesalers' and Manufacturers' Association when that body affiliated with the Board of Commerce. He was a member of all the leading clubs and civic organizations and was one of the most prominent men in the city. A widow survives him. He was also chairman of the committee which had in charge the Cadillaqua celebration several years ago.

John H. Brown, who was one of the pioneers in the cigar industry of Detroit, at one time president of the Brown Brothers' Cigar Co., which was later taken over by the American Cigar Co., died on January 5th, aged sixty-five years. For the past fifteen years Mr. Brown had been retired from all active business. He was born in Bellefontain, O., and moved to Detroit when a comparatively young man and almost immediately engaged in the cigar business. His wife died about fifteen years ago. Four sons survive him.

Internal Revenue Officer McLeod of the First District of Michigan is still conducting an active campaign for the Gubernatorial nomination. He recently returned from a trip through the western part of the state, where he found many warm supporters.

The new Hotel Mehrtens in Grand Rapids is now ready for business, the active management being in the hands of Messrs. C. H. Mehrtens and C. M. Luce, proprietors. Mr. Mehrtens was formerly connected with the Crathmore in that city. The structure contains one hundred rooms, and is absolutely fireproof.

The opening in December of the A. R. Moeller drug store in Saginaw, which was purchased by W. H. Friers, was a most auspicious one. A five-piece orchestra furnished music all day and evening for the occasion. As souvenirs and remembrances of the day, Mr. Friers gave each lady carnations, the children postcards and toys, while the men got cigars and match boxes. For this he used fourteen boxes of ten-cent cigars. He also gave each gentleman a ticket with each purchase that entitled him to a chance on a four dollar box of cigars. The store was crowded from early morning until late at night and South Saginaw never saw such a busy place. On several occasions during the day policemen were necessary to keep back the crowds, and that's going some for Saginaw.

The Central Cigar Co. has been conducting a quarter-off sale on pipes since the New Year, and is cleaning up nicely on its stock. The special offer has been stimulating the sale of smoking tobacco especially in glass jars. The sale ended January 10th. General Manager Lieberman, in speaking of the matter, said to the WORLD correspondent: "In putting on a special sale, I find that it is always best to announce the dates when the sale expires. If you advertise a sale without mentioning any time, people will see your ad. or see your window and say, "well, I'll be going back again and I'll purchase something." But if he knows that the reduced prices are only good up to a certain time, he will be more apt to make his purchases early. At least, we find that to be so with our sales, and we have tried both ways."

A very disastrous fire visited the big hardware store adjoining the Electric Cigar Store in Flint. One of the newspapers in commenting upon the matter said: "The firemen are generous in their praise of James Hodgins, proprietor of the Electric Cigar Store, who kept his place of business open all night so that the men working on the fire might have a warm place to regain their strength when they were relieved for short periods during the fight."

A. C. Dietsche, retailer, at Woodward and Larned Streets, had probably the largest display in the state of smokers' articles for the holidays. Mr. Dietsche has always made a specialty of carrying a large assortment of fancy smoking racks and smoking novelties of all sorts. This year he "went the limit," his stock running into many thousands of dollars. "Prince Albert" tobacco at eighty cents a pound he found to be an extremely good seller in the tobaccos.

The cigar store of N. H. McFarland, 127 Portage Street, Kalamazoo, was entered on December 23rd and robbed of fifteen dollars in cash. None of the stock of cigars and tobaccos was stolen, however.

The Cosmopolitan billiard parlor on East Main Street, Battle Creek, was entered on December 29th and a quantity of cigars and cigarettes stolen.

By mutual agreement all the cigar and drug stores in Battle Creek were closed on Christmas afternoon between one and four o'clock, so that the clerks might have opportunity to enjoy their Christmas dinners.

J. T. Loomis succeeds George E. Murphy in the billiard and cigar business on Madison Square, Grand Rapids.

Al Neff, clerk at the cigar department owned by Burt Johnston at the G. & R. McMillan store, was quietly married on January 4th in Jamestown, Ind., to a prominent young lady in that city. After a two weeks' wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Neff will return to Detroit.

The match stands being placed in the leading cigar stores and cafes advertising "Fatima" cigarettes are making a big hit and are very much in demand.

William M. Fuller, aged sixty-three, well known resident of Jackson, who for seven years conducted a cigar store in the Dwight Block, died on January 3rd. He disposed of his store and retired a year ago.

Captain Thomas H. Phillips, also of Jackson, died January 2nd from a complication of diseases, which compelled his retirement from business life shortly before Thanksgiving. He was born in Jackson and learned the cigarmaking business at an early age. When he became proficient, he engaged in business for himself, and for years has made a number of brands that have been very popular in the central section of the state.

Matt Behrman is again representing the Harry W. Watson Co., having taking the Upper Peninsula of Michigan as territory, and making his permanent residence at Sault Ste. Marie.

W. F. Calvert & Co., of Pontiac, will occupy splendid new quarters about the first of February. The new emporium will be on Main Street and will be one of the finest cigar stores in the city.

Ted Snowhood has resigned from the staff of John T. Woodhouse & Co., and is devoting his entire time to the sale of "El-Roi-Tan" cigars in Michigan. Mr. Snowhood is said to be partly responsible for the splendid trade which has been worked up in the past few years on this particular brand.

Sometime this month will see a new cigar on the market, selling at five cents, made by the Judge Durand Cigar Co., of Detroit. Each cigar will be wrapped in tinfoil and will be packed in six's.

Joseph T. Snyder was a recent visitor to Detroit. It is understood that Mr. Snyder is well satisfied with the showing being made by his two stores here.

High in Yield, But Low in Price

Although in the average yield of tobacco per acre, Pennsylvania leads the country, it shows up comparatively poor in selling price. The yield of tobacco is about 1200 pounds per acre, as compared with a national average of 784.3. The general average price throughout the country on December 1, was 12.8 cents per pound. In Pennsylvania it was only 7.5 cents per pound.

Tobacco Crop Ranks Sixth in Value for 1913

The tobacco crop of the year of 1913 was the most valuable ever raised in the United States, its total estimated value being $122,281,000. It ranked sixth in value of the crops raised during the year, being exceeded by the corn, cotton, hay, wheat, oats and potato crops in the order named. The tobacco crop of 1913 exceeded in value by over 30 per cent. the average of the preceding five years. The quantity of the production, however, was slightly under that average, and has been exceeded by three former crops. The average farm price of this crop, 12.8 cents per pound, considering all varieties and styles, is the highest since 1864. These figures are taken from the census and estimates of the department of agriculture, which have just been compiled and will be made public shortly.

FOREIGN COUNTRIES COMPLAIN OF FAULTY PACKING OF MARYLAND TOBACCO

France, Germany and Holland Threaten to Stop Purchasing—Local Representatives Say Samples Deceive—No Grounds for Complaint, Says State Warehouse Official—An Attempt by Buyers to Get Old Contract System Back

BALTIMORE, MD.

LOCAL buyers of tobacco for France, Germany and Holland have recently been quoted as saying that for the last year the inspection at the State tobacco warehouses has been inefficient, and that unless the farmers pack their tobacco more carefully, and the inspectors sample it more fairly, these countries may discontinue purchasing Maryland tobacco.

Jesse J. Dalrymple, receiving clerk at the tobacco warehouses, refutes these charges and says that they are made simply to bring about a return to the old contract system, whereby the buyers bought direct for their employers, and made more money than he does by selling by samples.

"We buy and sell the tobacco from samples that are taken from the hogsheads," said one of the buyers, "and we depend entirely on the samples selected for us by the samplers at the warehouses.

"As a result of the careless packing and faulty inspection and sampling at the State warehouses, a large number of claims have been made by France, Germany and Holland.

"These claims will have to be paid out of the State tobacco fund, because the State backs up the tobacco sold from the State warehouses.

"The good prices are due to the increased home consumption of tobacco and to the fact that the French Government is buying more of it than ever before.

"I have been connected with the State tobacco warehouses for over forty years, and I have never seen tobacco packed better nor sampled better than during the last year," said Jesse J. Dalrymple, receiving clerk at the warehouses.

"The object of these buyers or agents," continued Mr. Dalrymple, "is to lower the grade of the samples so that they can buy them cheaper. In that case the farmers will receive less money for their tobacco.

"George Dale, sampler at these houses, is one of the most competent and conscientious officials appointed by Governor Goldsborough. He is thoroughly familiar with his work because he served as one of the inspectors during the administration of Governor Lowndes.

"The buyers or agents for the foreign countries want to get back to the contract system of buying, as was practiced some years ago. In those days they bought direct for their employers. Now they only send the samples and the merchants in those countries themselves buy from the samples.

"Buyers under the old contract system made more money than do the present agents, and that is why the latter want the return of the old system.

"To accomplish this end they are saying that the packing and sampling of tobacco in this State is bad.

"The commission merchants know more about Maryland tobacco than these buyers ever will know, and they all say that the packing of tobacco by the farmers is better than ever before.

"The farmers are getting more for tobacco today than at any other time. If the tobacco was not well packed and sampled, these good prices would not prevail."

Key West

No Cigars in Stock for 1914—M. Perez Company Preparing to Manufacture in Bond—Big Business Coming for Key West Cigar Factory

THE campaign of 1913 is over and while the inventory of the trade for that period does not show a very great gain over 1912, there have been many new accounts added to the books of our manufacturers.

The battle of 1914 has begun in earnest and by the time this appears in print all the Key West factories will be in active operation, carrying the same forces as at the time of shut-down.

The outlook for the cigar industry at the beginning of this year is much brighter than the opening last year. All the shops have a fine filed demand and everyone appears to be optimistic. Another good sign is that the factories shipped all their goods in stock and this year will have no surplus holdings to draw upon. The accompanying shipping list is the last of the cigars made in Key West in 1913.

The new mail schedule which went into effect on the 6th inst., gives us two mail trains per day and two steamers per week from Tampa; and also a daily steamer from Havana. The tourist season promises to be larger this year than ever.

Manager Rafael Menendez, of the M. Perez Company, is busy preparing to begin work under the bonded factory provisions of the new tariff law. This will be our first factory to operate under the "made in bond" act, and the experiment will be closely watched by other manufacturers.

The greatest difficulty in making cigars in bond will be, in the opinion of many, the cigarmakers' standpoint, as the hours of the inspector will be on the Government scale, and the time allowed the operative each day will be rather too limited to enable him to earn living wages.

The Cortez Cigar Company recently made their first shipment of cigars for the use of the Flagler Hotels, at Nassau, N. P. These hotels enjoy a large patronage during the season, many of our millionaire magnates, together with their families, spend the winter there. It is needless to say that the "Hernan Cortez" will make many friends for the house.

The E. H. Gato Cigar Company's factory has begun the winter campaign under the most favorable auspices. M. Falkenstein, of S. Bachman & Company, San Francisco, Cal., is expected this week for a business conference with the management. As soon as all the Gatos reach town the annual business meeting will be held when officers for the ensuing year will be elected. Advices received from C. W. Van Campen, recently appointed Southern representative of the concern, state that he left New York on the 5th, to begin a vigorous campaign in the South in the interests of the Gato 1871 yellow label. Mr. Campen was for many years cigar manager of the R. C. Williams Company, of New York, and has an excellent record as "some cigar salesman" and great things are expected from him now he is handling the famous Gato goods.

Emilio P. Cordero, of the "Mi Hogar" fame, passed through town recently, being en route from New York to Cuba. While in Havana he will make purchases of tobacco for the use of his New York factory.

After a short recess for stock-taking purposes, the Havana-American Company is again in active operation with the same force seated as at time of suspension. Miss Margaret Wyatt, daughter of R. B. Wyatt, manager of the factory, is spending a few days in Havana, sightseeing.

A. D. Silvera, foreman of the picking rooms of the Martinez-Havana Company, left on the 3rd inst., for Havana, in response to a cablegram announcing the death of his mother. The Martinez-Havana Company's factory began the winter run this morning.

W. H. Saunders, a cigar manufacturer, of Barton, Fla., was in the city recently visiting relatives and friends. Before returning home he made some purchases of tobacco for the use of his shop.

The Ruy Lopez Ca's factory opened up this morning with a full force in each department and expect to make a record-breaking run during the season. Dr. Yateman Wardlow, Professor of the University of Ohio, accompanied by his mother, arrived in the city on the 2nd and will spend several weeks with John Wardlow, president of the company. A. B. Jockel, vice-president of the company, also arrived in the city recently and will be the guest of his partner for several days. Jose Perez, head selector of the Ruy Lopez Ca, who has been spending the holidays at Tampa, is again at his post.

Manager Jaime Pendas, of Moreda & Company, who left on a leaf purchasing trip to Cuba, on the third, is back again on the job. The company enjoyed a good run on "La Diligencia" during 1913, and has prospects for still better results this year.

In an interview last week, George Robinson, secretary of the Key West Cigar Factory, stated that after January 20, the factory would work the entire year with a greatly increased number of hands. This he said was due to the fact that Austin, Nichols & Company would push the "Duplica" brand this year.

"They are branching out," said Mr. Robinson, "and their many new stands will increase our business tremendously. To supply the demands of the new depots of Austin Nichols & Company, our factory will be required to greatly increase the number of cigarmakers. We anticipate that our output will be more than doubled in 1914."

On January 20, Miss Fanny E. Fleitas, the charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fleitas, and Mr. J. D. Reed, will be joined in the bonds of matrimony. The groom is a business man of Homestead, Fla. The congratulations and best wishes of the local trade are extended to them.

Leaf appraiser J. W. Allen, of the bonded warehouse, will leave this week to attend the annual convention of leaf appraisers, called by Col. Griggs, Collector of Customs for the State of Florida. During the session grades will be established for the ensuing year.

Among the many prominent cigar and leaf men in the city recently were: A. L. Sylvester, of Sylvester & Stern; Manuel (El Crito) Suarez, P. Verplanck, of Verplanck & Company; P. Rey, of Cuesta, Rey & Company; Jose Diaz, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz; A. Wolf and wife, of Cuesta, Rey & Company.

Asa Lemlein, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, will be at the factory office next week. Chief Clerk James R. Curry, Jr., is back from a short business trip to Cuba, where he went in response to orders calling him to that place for a private business conference with President Eduardo H. Gato, Sr.

Fred Artotozago, clerk of the "Solace" factory of George Nichols & Company, is back from a short visit to Newbern, N. C.

C. L. Poston, advertising manager of the cigarette department of the American Tobacco Company, is in the city, making contracts with the local press for the ensuing year.

Ulric Albury, of the Customs Service, received his appointment last week as Special Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue. His duties will be to attend to the importation of cigars and cigarettes.

A Popular Smoke Shop

W. R. Craster, of Glenn's Ferry, has a smoke shop in that town that attracts considerable trade. There are tables for those who wish to spend a quiet hour at games, papers and magazines for those who wish to read, and last of all, but not least, an excellent stock of cigars, cigarettes and pipes for those who wish to smoke. The store is a popular place in the evenings and "Craster's" has become a rendezvous for Glenn's Ferry smokers.

Tobacco Industry Plea for Reserve Bank

The committee of the Louisville Clearing House Association has been besieged with telephone calls, telegrams and letters urging a demand for a reserve bank in Louisville. These letters in substance assure the Board of Organizers that Louisville is best located to handle the business of the Central Southern States by reason of its geographical location, as well as by reason of its great financial strength.

One letter points out that the greatest percentage of tobacco raised in the United States is raised and financed south of the Ohio River, and that Louisville finances the greatest percentage of this portion of the crop. In addition to this the revenue collections in the Louisville and Kentucky districts are the third largest in the entire country.

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The leaf market during the past week has been featured by a demand for old goods and at the top of the list is 1912. There is not much doing with 1913 leaf as yet, but at the same time there has been inquiry for it and quite a number of buyers have been looking it over.

Among the sales have been some 1909 which has changed hands quietly. Also 1911 has been purchased, but there is comparatively little old leaf on hand and most of the trade are turning to the 1913 crop.

While there is much good leaf in the new crop, taken as a whole it varies widely in quality. It has been bringing from 8 cents to 11 cents, but it is the prediction of local dealers that there is much that will sell below the former figure.

VIRGINIA

RICHMOND, VA.

The warm rains that came Friday night and Saturday insure a good stripping "season" and the warehouses look for very large deliveries of the sun-cured weed this week. The sales will commence Tuesday morning, and it is expected that they will keep up without much, if any, interruption until Friday night.

The farmers who have been in the city, as well as the warehousemen and the leaf dealers, adhere to their original estimate, made a week ago, that only about 25 per cent. of the leaf tobacco crop of 1913 remains in the hands of the farmers, and that will probably be all sold by the first day of March.

WISCONSIN

Tobacco received here thus far is in good condition and weighs 20 per cent. more than for the past three years. One noticeable feature of the trade is the heavy call for binder goods and buyers are insisting on immediate delivery.

It is estimated that 25 per cent. of the crop is still unsold, but at the rate wrapper goods are being rushed through the sweat it looks as if the 1913 crop will be made up in cigars before the next season's seeds are planted.

Sorting of tobacco is in full swing and the American Tobacco Company has opened its warehouses here with 250 women sorters. Albert Schroede, representing Cullman Brothers, has opened their warehouse and has begun work with 100 employees.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Warehouse handling is getting well started, and the work is practically in full swing. Eisenlohr Brothers have opened their big warehouse with 100 hands and are receiving considerable tobacco.

Northern crops are coming into the warehouse in fairly good condition. Some of them are weighing between 1325 and 1350 pounds per acre, and their owners will receive high prices for them. It is said that some have brought 20 cents.

More than half the southern crop is still curing in the sheds, waiting for favorable stripping weather.

Most of the big concerns who have given orders to buy, are now supplied and the buying is slowing up.

TROY, O.

Buying of all varieties of Ohio tobacco in this field is being conducted slowly and cautiously now. Zimmer, owing to the extreme shortage, is of course the highest priced, but one no longer hears of the 14-cent price—12 to 12½ cents seems to be the current figure at which it is passing ownership.

Quite a little Dutch is being purchased at around 10 cents to the growers, but packers as a rule are taking on only small quantities because it is not good Stogie Dutch, being too heavy bodied and too short in size.

TENNESSEE

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

The tobacco this year shows a better quality than for several years past, and some fancy prices are expected later on. Last year a good deal of tobacco was received by boat and now buyers can be seen at the wharf whenever a boat arrives, and often a crop is bought before unloaded. This has been ideal weather for re-handling tobacco, and thousands of hogsheads are being prepared for the breaks, and sales from now on will show a weekly increase.

The receipts in the loose floor department have been heavy and sales were satisfactory, good tobacco finding no trouble of purchasers and a few crops brought as high as $12.50 per hundred. Next week a rush is expected in deliveries, and will keep the dealers busy unloading and receiving.

Imperial Will Not Buy in Three Counties

According to a statement made by General Manager Edwin Hodge, of the Imperial Tobacco Company, of Kentucky, no tobacco will be purchased pending a motion for a new trial. Mr. Hodge is quoted as follows:

"I have received instructions from the headquarters of the Imperial Tobacco Company of Kentucky that no tobacco will be purchased in the counties of Henderson, Union and Webster, pending the motion for a new trial in the Union Circuit Court."

Imperial buyers in other sections of Western Kentucky, at Hopkinsville, Madisonville, Owensboro, and other places opened factories last week for the purchase of the weed. It is not known why these factories were ordered opened and the company refused to purchase in the three above-named counties, unless the company came to the conclusion that a small crop was grown in the Fifth Judicial district and most of it had been sold before notice was given to begin operations at other points.

It is stated that, should the higher courts uphold the verdict rendered at Morganfield, finding the Imperial guilty, as charged in the indictment, indictments may be returned in those counties where the company operated pending the motion for a new trial. When the verdict was returned the state charter was revoked automatically, but the filing of a motion for a new trial had the effect of staying the revocation of the charter pending the final decision.

Leaf Jottings

A statement of the condition of the Maryland tobacco market compiled by Von Kapff & Arens, tobacco shippers and commission merchants, shows that the French Government was again the largest buyer last year. It took in all 4167 hogsheads, a little over half of which was firecured.

The recent sale of the pooled tobacco of the Bowling Green One-sucker district to Matt F. Dortch, of Louisville, representing the John Mathews & Sons Company, of New York, was recently ratified at a general meeting held at Bowling Green.

The Planters' Protective Association recently met at Clarksville, Tenn., and reports showed that not much of the pledged tobacco had been sold. It was also noted that very little independent tobacco had been marketed. Another meeting is slated for this month.

"Black Patch" May Lose Its Title

The most prominent and prosperous farmers favor converting Western Kentucky into a fruit and vegetable growing country and that probably will be the result.

The problem has devolved itself into a question of whether the farmers are willing that Western Kentucky should lose the name of being the greatest tobacco-raising belt in the world or forget it and grow richer.

The soil of Western Kentucky is especially adapted to the raising of dark tobacco. Efforts to make successful crops in other States have been futile and Western Kentucky and Tennessee stand alone as the greatest tobacco-raising belt in the country.

The annual crop of tobacco in Western Kentucky reaches a total of approximately 35,000,000 pounds each year. At times as much as 50,000,000 pounds have been raised in one year.

Cigar Company Changes Name

A change in name has been made by Crane & Sons Cigar Company, of Columbus, O., to the Armstrong Cigar Company. C. W. Armstrong, who is now head of the local company, was associated with Harry Swisher in the cigar business when the latter purchased the firm of Crane & Sons. Following the purchase he was placed in charge here.

The change of name is to become effective with the inauguration of an aggressive policy for the extension of business.

Short talks to Dealers

It is just as essential to use good cigarettes in order to build up a substantial cigarette business as to use good building material for a home. With you have a good, dependable foundation. Good, because the mild, mellow Turkish flavor of Fatimas is the flavor most desired by cigarette smokers. Dependable, because our process of manufacture insures the same uniform quality in each cigarette in every package.

FATIMA
CIGARETTES

And to increase the already enormous sale of Fatimas and to make it easy for you to build up a big, substantial trade with them, we are advertising them very heavily during 1914. More Fatima cigarettes are sold than any other brand in this country.

In fact, the 1914 Fatima advertising campaign will be one of the very biggest ever known for cigarettes.

And back of every ad—every cigarette and every dealer—stands the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

CAFE DE PARIS AGAIN CLOSES AT DEMAND OF CREDITORS

Restaurant Goes Under for Second Time—Welcome Extended Only to Those in Evening Dress Presaged Failure—Liabilities Said to Be Upwards of $250,000—Cigar Jobbers Said to Have Been Wary of the Account

NEW YORK, January 29, 1914.

FOR the second time in three years, the Cafe de Paris, a restaurant at Forty-second Street and Broadway, catering only to those in evening dress, closed on January 28, as a result of a petition filed by creditors of the concern.

Reasons for the failure are said to be due to the fact that only guests clad in evening clothes were welcome, and to the one o'clock closing hour.

The restaurant first opened as the Cafe de L'Opera, which boasted of entertaining only guests in evening clothes, but due to the poor service and few guests the curtain was rung down on this venture in the fall of 1910.

The next to try the location was Louis Martin, who has recently been in difficulties with his new restaurant, and the place was opened under his own name. In February of 1913 he withdrew from the venture.

Following the departure of Louis Martin, the Times Square Hotel Company, believing in its ability to destroy the jinx that presided over the location, opened the restaurant as the Cafe de Paris, with Samuel D. Leidersdorf as president, and J. Mervyn Eriksen as vice-president and treasurer.

The petition was filed by George S. Ludlow, attorney for the following creditors: Henry Phipps Estate, rent, nominally given as $500, but said to be more than $25,000; H. L. Herbert & Company, $433; and the Ward Baking Company, $187.

Judge Mayer appointed B. W. B. Brown and Walter Hirsch receivers and ordered them to call a meeting of the creditors on January 31.

It is said that the cigar jobbers have been wary of the account and that only a small sum is due them. The liabilities are recited at upwards of $250,000, with assets, as a running concern, of the same amount.

KNICKERBOCKER.

May Have "United" Burglar

The police have had Edward Mann, of 104 East 127st Street, committed to the Tombs on the suspicion of having robbed a United cigar store at 116th Street and Third Avenue. He was arrested while trying to dispose of "United" certificates.

When they searched the prisoner they found that he was wearing a pair of women's corsets, tightly laced, and a pair of women's silk stockings. A search of an apartment which Mann had occupied brought forth an outfit of women's clothing, a white silk waist, a black silk skirt, a coat edged with fur, women's high-heeled shoes with rubber heels, and also all the necessary toilet articles for a makeup. The closet in which these were discovered divulged also an electric flashlight and a revolver; also 48 packages of certificates, containing 48,000 coupons in all.

GIVE FAVORABLE INTERPRETATION OF "MADE IN BOND" ACT

Government Officials Visit Key West and Give More Information on Subject—Inspectors on Duty Twelve Hours Instead of Eight—Do Not Need to Bond Entire Factory—"Mi Favorita" President Makes Known Intention to Bond

KEY WEST, FLA., January 27, 1913.

WITH the continued agitation among the manufacturers here, regarding the "Made in Bond" Act, the visit to this city of F. M. Halstead, Chief of the Customs Division of the United States Treasury Department, and Max Oberdorfer, Special Deputy Collector for the District of Florida, has been of especial interest to all the cigar manufacturers and has resulted in a more favorable attitude toward the proposition.

The purpose of their visit was to more fully explain some of the features of the new law and to hold an official conference with William L. Delaney, Collector of Customs for the port of Key West, regarding some of the objectionable features of the act.

Among the points brought out was that a whole factory does not necessarily have to be bonded, and that by partitioning off as small or as large a place as is required for the work, a manufacturer may proceed to manufacture cigars in bond, without interference with the other departments of his plant. It was stated that from time to time the bonded space could be increased as desired, until the whole factory was included in the manufacture of the guaranteed cigars.

It was also brought out that there is a mistaken idea abroad regarding the operation of the bonded factory as to the hours that the inspector will be on duty. It was stated that his hours are from 6 A. M. to 6 P. M., thus giving the manufacturers twelve hours a day for the manufacture of "Made in Bond" cigars. The former impression was that they could work only eight hours a day.

The visit of these men has brightened the situation here considerably, and several manufacturers who were formerly opposed to the movement, now look upon it favorably. It is a safe prediction that several large clear Havana houses will take advantage of the opportunity to bond all or portions of their factory in a very short time.

President A. W. Arnold was one of the first since the arrival of the Treasury officials to declare himself in favor of the bonding plan. He says that as soon as the "Mi Favorita" factory can dispose of the material on hand, they will bond.

The officials went from here to Tampa.

INGLACITA.

President Hill in the "Blue Grass Country"

President Percival S. Hill, of the American Tobacco Company, has been a recent visitor in Kentucky, where he has been inspecting the various plants of his company in that section.

In the party was T. B. Yuhill and C. A. Penn, both of New York. J. C. Englehart, of Louisville, also arrived when the party was at Lexington. He is general superintendent of the Kentucky district for the American Tobacco Company.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

Jacobs Heads Carlos, Fernandez & Co.

WITH the exception of C. B. Jacobs, who has been elected president of Carlos, Fernandez & Co., New York, the company will continue along the old lines William Sunshine, secretary; A. Glock, in charge of the New York office; F. H. Ruthenberg, eastern territory, and B. W. Lowenthal, representing the western end, all remain as formerly.

By following the plans of the late Charles Jacobs, whose genius for organization materially aided Carlos, Fernandez & Co. in achieving their present splendid reputation, the company should make even greater strides. They report that they are now filling quite a number of orders, which is rather unusual for this period of the year.

Crowds Attend Liggett's 11-Cent Sale

American women are often ridiculed for their attendance at bargain sales, but we doubt if they have the "bargain streak" any more fully developed than the sterner sex, if one were to judge by the crowd of males who besieged the tobacco department of the Liggett drug concern, on the occasion of an "11-Cent" sale, held there recently. This New York store advertised that with every box of cigars, package of cigarettes or pipe sold, they would, upon the payment of one cent additional to the regular price, offer a duplicate of the goods purchased. It is needless to say that the majority of smokers took advantage of the chance to get something, practically, for nothing.

Meyer A. Kalfon, cigar dealer, at 532 Broadway, has made an assignment to Archibald Palmer, who has stated that the liabilities are $4000.

Blue Peter Cigarette Company Leases Store

"Ramado" Cigarettes a Hit at Drug Exposition

At the recent exposition in Madison Square Garden, held by the American Druggists' Syndicate, "Ramado" cigarettes were distributed free. Thousands of these cigarettes were given away, and they made many friends for the National Tobacco Products Company, who manufacture these goods.

Charles L. Rader, general manager of the concern, was in attendance at the exposition and assisted in giving "Ramado" a personal introduction to the hundreds of druggists who came to the Garden.

Bandits Rob Omaha Cigar Dealer

While Robert Hipsley, a retail tobacconist of 309 North Twenty-sixth Street, South Omaha, Neb., was awaiting trade on the evening of the 14th, two bandits entered his store and gave him the "once over," thereby procuring some $70. Hipsley says that in addition to taking his money, the pair treated him brutally.

Heard on Broadway

R. M. Gans, of the well-known firm of Gans Brothers, New York manufacturers of the famous "El Radio" and "William the Fourth" cigars, is at present on a trip through the West, having recently stopped at Pittsburgh, where he succeeded in obtaining a nice batch of orders.

Emilio P. Cordero, of "Mi Hogar" fame, is at present in Cuba, accompanied by Mrs. Cordero, on a leaf purchasing trip.

William Steiner, of the well-known lithographic firm of that name, is now in the West, exploiting a new packing and branding machine, in addition to his regular business. The machine attracted much attention in Cleveland, one of Mr. Steiner's "stop-offs."

J. V. Flanigan, United States and Canadian representative of "Por Larranagas," on Saturday, January 31, left for Havana, where he plans to spend a couple of weeks.

John W. Merriam is very well satisfied with his recent trip to the West. He states that he not only found the dealers in a very happy frame of mind, but that this was supplemented by good business, as well.

The Marion Cigar Company, whose stand is located in the Hanover Bank Building, is being well patronized by the smokers in Wall Street. Though in charge of the present owners but a short time, it has already achieved a reputation that is worth while. The imported stock carried includes "Romeo y Julieta," "Eden," "Upmann," "Corona," "Partagas" and "Bock," while "Mi Favorita," "La Mega" and "F. Lozano" are prominent in the Tampa and Key West clear Havana lines.

R. Gangemi & Company have just placed on the market a new brand of clear Havana cigar under the title "La Diplomat," which will retail in various sizes ranging from ten cents to fifty cents. The brand has been placed locally and it is stated will shortly occupy a prominent position throughout the country.

The Benefit of Fire Drills

In hundreds of plants where fire drills are held regularly, the employees often times weary of the necessary discipline that accompanies them, and the time lost in holding the actual drill. The fact that a fire has never occurred gives a false sense of security to the employees and sometimes to the employers.

However, the occurrence of a fire is something that cannot be predicted; sometimes none ever happen, sometimes they do, and generally in places where little time has been given to the training of the help for escape from the factory at such a time.

No manufacturer, in this day, can afford to overlook the importance of a fire drill, especially in places where foreign help is employed, and regardless of the excellence of the condition of the fire fighting equipment and of the many fire escapes and fire towers, one should not forget that "an ounce of prevention," etc.

An example of what can be accomplished by holding regular fire drills, is shown by the recent conflagration at the Hoboken plant of the Lorillard Tobacco Company. Here 1500 employees, 1200 of whom were girls, were marched out of the building without a sign of a panic. This fact is all the more important because most of the female help was of the Italian and Polish nationalities. The fact that fire drills were not infrequent, removed the fear of a real fire, and no doubt many of the employees marched out of the building believing that it was only a drill alarm.

Had not these 1700 employees, of whom only a few can speak English, been thoroughly drilled, it is difficult to imagine just what sort of a catastrophe might have marked the annals of Hoboken's fire history.

The loss of life at the recent Binghamton fire, and the Asch horror in New York City, were caused in some measure, at least, by ineffective, if not entire lack of proper fire instructions and drills among the employees.

The fact that there was no loss of life in the Lorillard factory, reduced the account of the fire to about two inches of news space, but had there been a panic, which might have resulted from a fire doing $100 damage, as easily as from one doing $12,000 worth of destruction, it is safe to say that the story with all the horrible details, would have been told in full page "spreads" in the big dailies of every large city in the country.

Too much praise cannot be given to the drill master, nor to the owners who insist that such drills be held every week. There is a lesson here for every large employer of help in the country.

Recent Incorporations

The O. K. Tobacco Company, Hart County, Cincinnati, O., recently decreased their capital from $20,000 to $12,000.

A recent incorporation was that of the Harrodsburg Board of Trade, the incorporators being named as follows: T. Royalty, T. S. Eastland, A. G. Kyle and H. M. Ballard.

White Stag Cigar Company, recently incorporated, being located at Decatur, Ind. The capital stock is reported at $5,000, with Henry and Olive M. Thomas and Lewis C. Helm named as directors.

The Louis Heltman Company, Dayton, O., for the manufacture of cigars, with capital of $50,000, was recently incorporated by Louis Heltman.

Texas Cigar Factory Burned

SUGARLAND, TEX., January 30.

The Imperial Cigar Company's large mill and warehouse here was destroyed by fire shortly after midnight today. The loss is given at $300,000, with insurance of $225,000. The origin of the fire has not been determined.

Mitchell & Ottinger Dissolve

Announcement is made to the trade that the leaf tobacco firm of Mitchell & Ottinger, located 32-34 East Chestnut Street, Lancaster, Pa., has been dissolved by mutual agreement, as the result of the retirement of T. W. Mitchell. This, however, will not affect the continuity of the business, inasmuch as the same will be carried on by S. M. Ottinger, the remaining member of the firm. The new company will be known as the Ottinger Tobacco Company.

Atlantic City Store Changes Owners

Louis Subin, who for the past three years has been the proprietor of a pool parlor and cigar shop on South Tennessee Avenue, Atlantic City, N. J., as partner to Maurice Jacobson, has purchased the interest of his associate and is now running the establishment himself. Mr. Jacobson expects to locate in San Francisco.

Baum-Jaffe Company Succeeded by Baum Brothers

ISIDORE BAUM and Nathan Baum, trading as Baum Brothers, will succeed the corporation of Baum-Jaffe Company on February 1; otherwise, there will be no change in the personnel of their business. The distribution of their well-known brands, namely: "A. J. Cassatt," "El Jaffe," "Little A. J. Cassatt," "Bee-Jay" and "Coiner," will be conducted under the same methods as heretofore; Nathan Baum will have the supervision of the selling forces. Their local factories are being enlarged at present and on completion will continue to manufacture with improved methods and up-to-date facilities the same high-class products for which they have always enjoyed a reputation.

Philadelphia Notes

W. B. Bullock, manager of the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store of Mitchell, Fletcher & Company, is handling the well-known "El Palencia" and "El Merito" cigars, made by Boltz, Clymer & Company, Fifteenth Street and Lehigh Avenue, Philadelphia.

Sam Frank, of S. M. Frank & Company, pipe manufacturers of New York, booked some attractive orders while in Philadelphia last week.

M. J. Dalton & Company have taken a cigar stand in a most prominent office building in Philadelphia, and intend to open many other places in good locations in this and other cities. All places owned or operated by the Dalton Company are high class, featuring only high-grade imported and Tampa-made cigars.

Robert Appleton, general manager of the Cado Company, Inc., recently paid a visit to Philadelphia, and as a result "56" cigarettes can be now purchased at a greater number of clubs and high-grade restaurants.

Raymond Rey, formerly connected with the firm of Rey, Straus & Co., booked some attractive orders while in Philadelphia recently. Mr. Rey is now head of the new Raymond Rey business.

J. Durbin Acker, manager of the cigar department of the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store of the Finley Acker Company, made a flying trip to New York on January 30.

M. J. McDonnell Back From Trip

M. J. McDonnell, of Yahn & McDonnell, with headquarters at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, returned Friday, January 30th, from a three weeks' visit to Key West, Tampa and Havana.

While in Tampa, Mr. McDonnell visited practically all of the clear Havana factories, and when in Cuba was escorted over the plantations of the San Martin & Leon Company, under the guidance of George Leon and found the crop both beautiful and plentiful.

There is considerable agitation over the new made-in-bond law as in many cases this entails considerable expense as the entire package will be changed, and the tobacco now in the factories must be used up to the last ounce before manufacture can start; this procedure will in several respects be similar to starting work in a new factory.

On the return trip Mr. McDonnell was accompanied by Charles J. Castello, of the San Martin & Leon Company, and Hiram Hammer, of Corral, Wodiska & Co., as far north as Richmond.

The selling force of the San Martin & Leon Company has been strengthened by the acquisition of E. G. Dunlap, who will cover the Eastern and New England States, using the experience of twenty-five years on the road to increase the distribution of these cigars.

"Jose Vila Made in Bond" Here

F. D. Taylor, representing Berriman Brothers, is the first salesman to offer the trade in Philadelphia cigars manufactured under the United States Government inspection.

The "Jose Vila" cigars are the first cigars to be offered with the new "made in bond" stamp affixed to the box, as Berriman Brothers hold title to Factory Number One under the new law.

Robert E. Lane, Jr., Selling "Partagas"

Robert E. Lane, Jr., son of Robert E. Lane of the "Partagas" smile,' was a recent visitor in Philadelphia. Mr. Lane says that 1913 was the biggest year ever in the history of "Partagas."

Percy T. Hoffheins has taken over the good will and fixtures of the Belvidere Cigar Store, at Belvidere and Mason Avenues, York, Pa., formerly controlled by E. B. Miller, who has accepted a salesmanship with D. P. Boyer on West Market Street.

SPLENDID CIGAR STANDS A FEATURE OF THE NEW HOTEL ADELPHIA

Opening of New Hostelry Delights Thousands—Appointments Represent the Last Word in Hotel Equipment and Furnishings—Four Stands to Furnish High-Grade Cigars to Smokers—"Adelphia," Made in Bond by Berriman Brothers, in Sixteen Sizes, the Hotel Leader.

THOUSANDS of visitors thronged the Hotel Adelphia on its opening day, on Wednesday, when the public was admitted to enjoy the luxurious appointments and to view the splendid equipment of the last word in modern hotels. By night every room was taken, verifying the belief of the hotel owners that a hotel at such a location as Chestnut and Thirteenth Streets would prove popular and profitable.

The appointments of the several cigar stands in the hotel, attracted much favorable comment; one finds a convenient stand in the lobby near the dining room; another is located in the grill; the buffet boasts of another, and a fourth is tucked away in the roof garden. Outside the grill room door is a humidor holding half a million cigars.

David Provan, managing director, and John Scott, manager, will be assisted in the cigar department by Frank C. Flanigan, who is qualified by years of experience to cater to the wants of the smokers of high-grade cigars.

The brand which will be introduced as a leader, is the "Adelphia," a "made in bond" cigar, manufactured by Berriman Brothers, who own Bonded Factory No. 1, located at Tampa. This clear Havana cigar is made in sixteen sizes, and is the first to be placed before the local public as produced under the new government act. "Jose Vila," manufactured in bond by Berriman Brothers, is being extensively sold in this city, but the "Adelphia" is, in a sense, a local product.

A tribute to the new hotel, which varied somewhat from the usual run, is that presented by Berriman Brothers and consists of a handsome solid mahogany packing, in the shape of the capital letter A, the initial of the hotel, which contains five sizes of the famous "Jose Vila" cigar. The idea represented by this souvenir of the opening, is said to have been born in the versatile brain of Al Metzger, who travels for Berriman Brothers.

In addition to the "Adelphia" brand, and the twenty-three sizes of "Jose Vila," the stand also carries the imported clear Havana lines of "Bock y Ca," "M. Garcia Alonzo," "Henry Clay," "Hoyo de Monterrey," "La Carolina," "La Corona," "La Meridiana," "La Vencedora," "J. S. Murias," "Partagas," "Punch," "Romeo y Julieta," "H. Upmann" and "Por Larranagas."

Among the Key West and Tampa cigars are: "Cortez," "Charles the Great," "La Rosa de Mayo," "La Jardinera," "Lozano," "Los Reyes de Espana," "La Mega," "El Infinito," "As You Like It," "Alcova," "Websters," "La Perla Espanola," "Marcello," "Principe de Gales," "Sanchez y Haya," "Leda" and "Peermont."

In the cigarette line, Benson & Hedges line, "Adelphia," made in plain and cork tips, will receive first call. Other lines handled by the stands are "Fifty-Six," "Philip Morris," "Melachrino," "Pall Mall," "Fatima," "Herbert Tareyton," "Rameses II" and a host of other well-known cigarettes.

Felipe Bustillo and Manuel Lopez to Retire—Seven Per Cent. Dividend Declared—Campaigns Planned for 1914—Saturnino Alvarez Becomes Buyer and Manager of Factories

THE annual meeting of the Preferred-Havana Tobacco Company, 247-261 Fourth Avenue, New York, was held in the company's offices January 27, at which the following were elected directors for 1914: J. M. Diaz, president of the company; W. Ed. Foster, treasurer of the American Sugar Refining Company; Gilbert H. Johnson, of the steel manufacturing firm of Isaac Johnson & Sons; P. C. Lounsbury, president of the Merchants' Exchange National Bank; Kimball C. Atwood, president of the Preferred Accident Insurance Company; Garrett G. Ackerson, of the General Chemical Company; Manuel Lopez, Felipe Bustillo, Harry W. Davis, Philip Verplanck and William R. Rose, of Rose & Paskus.

Following the appointment of the directors, the officers of the company were chosen by the directors, the choice being Jose M. Diaz, president; Kimball C. Atwood, first vice-president; Felipe Bustillo, second vice-president, and Ramon Dalmases, secretary-treasurer.

In connection with the election of the executive officers, it was stated that Felipe Bustillo, though second vice-president and a member of the board, would be no longer actively allied with the company, he having handed in his resignation as manager of the buying department, which position is to be filled by Don Saturnino Alvarez, of Havana. Mr. Alvarez, who will also have charge of the manufacturing department, a position made vacant by the resignation of Manuel Lopez, in addition to having been one of the most competent Cuban manufacturers, is also known to have an enviable reputation as a judge of tobacco. He has had quite an extended experience in the tobacco business, and his connection with the Preferred Havana Company is bound not only to further strengthen that organization, but will also help it materially in the achievement of success. Though no longer active in the management of the company, Messrs. Lopez and Bustillo still remain on the board of directors and will retain their financial interests in the organization.

One of the most interesting incidents of the meeting was the declaration of a seven per cent. dividend on preferred stock, the same being payable February 1.

Another announcement was that the company has quite a complete stock of 1913 Vuelta Abajo tobacco and will, under the direction of Mr. Alvarez, make an effort to further increase its business. The company's factories which include Calixto, Lopez & Company, Havana; P. Verplanck & Company, Bustillo Brothers & Diaz and Lopez Hnos, of Tampa, have been thoroughly systematized during the past year and are now manufacturing their respective lines, on each of which a strong selling campaign will be made during 1914.

It was also reported that the daily receipts of the cigarette factory located in Havana, amount to $1500, while the Eden cigar factory is also doing a splendid business.

New Representative for "El Roi Tan"

John Glenn has been appointed the new factory representative for "El Roi Tans" and will make his headquarters with Ehrman Brothers & Company, the large San Francisco distributors. Mr. Glenn succeeds to the post formerly occupied by Eddie Allenberg, who has identified himself with H. L. Judell & Company.

The Home of "La Saramitas" in Nashville

Evansville Cigar Company Wants Larger Quarters

At a meeting of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce held on the 17th, the matter of securing a new plant for the Terre Haute branch of the Evansville Cigar Company was discussed but no definite action was taken. At present the factory is located in the building formerly occupied by the Temple Laundry Company, at 701-703 Lafayette Avenue, and about 150 women and girls are employed.

A. Lefkowitz, manager of the local factory, said that the company has had no trouble in securing operators and that with suitable facilities it could employ 1000 people. He wants the site located between the business district and the suburbs, and, while the company does not wish to purchase the property, it is willing to take out a lease for a long period. The building must have plenty of light and good ventilation and be modern in every detail, Lefkowitz said.

New Collector Takes Office

Fred C. Kirkendall, editor of the Wilkes-Barre "Times-Leader," a former mayor of Wilkes-Barre and treasurer of Luzerne County, took the office of collector of the Ninth Internal Revenue District on January 19. H. L. Hershey, of Harrisburg, who turned the office over to Mr. Kirkendall, has been collector for the past sixteen years, having been appointed under President McKinley. During his years of service, Mr. Hershey collected an annual average of $5,000,000.

Mr. Kirkendall's first appointment was James McGinnis, of Scranton, as deputy collector for Lackawanna County.

Asks for Receiver

In the case of Francis A. Mulfinger, of Omaha, Neb., trustee in bankruptcy of the Midwest Cigar Company, bankrupt, of that place, against the E. J. Hamburger Company, Cincinnati cigar manufacturers, which was instituted about two weeks ago, the plaintiff came into the United States District Court at Cincinnati with a motion for an order of court requiring the Hamburger Company to turn over to the trustee all goods and money received by it from the Midwest Cigar Company. The plaintiff also asks that in case the court finds that he is not entitled to the order asked for, that a receiver be appointed to take charge of the assets of the Hamburger Company, which is now in the possession of a receiver appointed by the Hamilton County Court of Insolvency in receivership proceedings instituted against the company some months ago. Charles H. Hoffmaster is the receiver in the state court proceedings which grew out of the alleged connection of the Hamburger Company with the affairs of the Midwest Cigar Company.

Contract to Supply Navy Awarded Larus Brothers

Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va., have been awarded the contract for supplying the Navy with tobacco during the year 1914, the samples submitted by them to the Board of Navy Tobacco Experts, at Brooklyn, N. Y., having been found satisfactory and approved. The price asked by Larus & Brother was not the lowest, there having been other bids a fraction of a cent lower on the pound. Fifty thousand pounds of "Navy" plug tobacco is to be furnished for the use of the sailors at thirty-six cents per pound, the same to be delivered at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Kansas City Third Largest Cigar Jobbing Center

An estimate of the wholesale cigar trade in Kansas City was recently made by F. C. Niles, of Niles & Moser, and Alexander Rothenberg, of Rothenberg & Schloss, and exclusive of the branch houses of the Kansas City jobbers, the business is estimated at $10,000,000 a year.

There are five large jobbing houses in the city, and with the exception of Best & Russell, who have their headquarters in Chicago, Kansas City is the home office for all of them.

Niles & Moser, Rothenberg & Schloss, Parker-Gordon and Sol H. Cohn each maintain from one to six branch houses.

Niles & Moser have their principal branches at St. Louis, Denver, Salt Lake and Dallas. The territory handled by the home office comprises Missouri, part of Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma, Arkansas and parts of South Dakota and Wyoming.

Klauber-Wangenheim Star Gets Prize

J. B. Bonhaus, star salesman for Klauber-Wangenheim Company, of Los Angeles, Cal., has received fifty dollars in the form of a check from his firm for the showing he has made on "Havana Ribbon" sales. Joe grabbed first place on placements and Frank Harlow got second prize of thirty dollars. Joe sold as much as all the other contestants' sales together. At the present time he is in Santa Barbara working "Luxello" and "Picadura" with good results.

Niles & Moser Get New Man for Nebraska

The Niles & Moser Cigar Company, one of the largest cigar distributing firms in the country, located in Kansas City, has recently secured Bill Bowen, of Atchison, Kansas, for their staff, to cover Nebraska.

Bill Bowen is well known in Atchison, having conducted a drug store in that place. This establishment will either be sold or closed out. Bowen, who is thirty-seven years old, and a "lifelong Democrat," who has been active in city and county politics, says that he has given up the idea of ever landing a Government job.

Bowen is characterized by those who know him as being clever, affable and good-looking, with natural attributes that he can turn to good account as a salesman.

Bonus Money for J. & B. Moos Salesmen

J. & B. Moos Company, Chicago distributors of cigars, did some distributing the other day which departed a little from the usual custom, but which nevertheless met with the approval of their employees in a decided manner. The piece of distribution in question was the mailing of checks for various amounts to their salesmen, as bonuses based on individual increases in sales during the past year. Most of the checks were for good, round amounts, it is said, and it would be hard to find a more enthusiastic bunch of salesmen than those which represent J. & B. Moos Company.

Handsome Loving Cup Marks Fiftieth Anniversary

The presentation of a handsome loving cup and many beautiful floral pieces, marked the fiftieth anniversary of the well-known jobbing house of S. Sternberg & Sons, located at 118 Union Avenue, Memphis, Tenn.

S. Sternberg, now eighty-six years old and retired from active business, laid the foundations of the firm on January 11, 1864, when he opened a small store on Front Street, between Poplar and Exchange Avenues, with a capital of $250. Today the firm is rated as one of the largest wholesale houses in the Southwest. It employs twenty road men and the business is continually growing.

In 1871 it became the firm of S. Sternberg & Company, and subsequently in 1884, on its twentieth anniversary, when two of his sons were admitted into the firm, it took the name of S. Sternberg & Sons. Jacob and David Sternberg were taken in then, and in 1889 William Sternberg, another son, was made a member of the firm.

Phenomenal Sales for Stone-Ordean-Wells Company

The Seidenberg products, "Roi-Tan" and "Class," gave such a boost to the sales of the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, located in Duluth, Minn., that their increase over 1912 was something like six million cigars.

"Lucius," their new clear Havana line, has also been doing wonders and has exceeded anything of its kind in the history of the company.

Harry Earnshaw, manager of the cigar department for the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, and also editor of that clever little house organ, "Ginger," modestly refuses to take any credit for the progress of the department, to himself. He generously hands the bouquets to the salesmen and branch managers, and to their loyal co-operation. However, those who know Harry Earnshaw are inclined to believe that much of the result obtained can be credited to his indefatigable efforts.

"Savaronas" a Hit in Baltimore

Lilly, Dungan & Company, the well-known Baltimore distributing house, is doing some splendid work on "Savaronas," judging from the orders that are coming to the office of the Cayey-Caguas Company in New York. The attention of the consumer is being directed to this classy Porto Rican smoke, in Baltimore, through a splendid window display at the Lilly, Dungan & Company store at Baltimore and Liberty Streets. It is one of the most attractive and impelling displays seen in Baltimore in some time and is having a good effect on "Savarona" sales.

Another Stand for Best & Russell Company

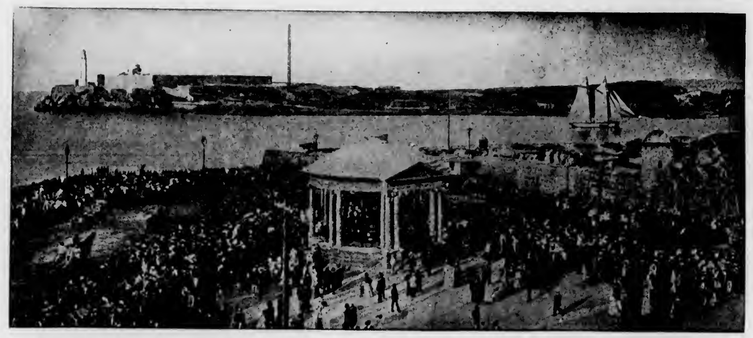
This hotel is said to be one of the most modern of hostelries in the South, and the connection of Best & Russell Company with the cigar department is sufficient to guarantee the quality and equipment of the cigar stand.



The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, January 23, 1914.

A COMPLETE change has taken place in the outlook of the coming tobacco crop, as up to the twelfth instant, according to our Agricultural Bureau, we could not count over 60 per cent. of an average crop of the whole island, owing to the long continued drought, and which in some places had lasted as long as sixty-seven days. Upon that date and the following day, the thirteenth of January, we had good general rains all over the tobacco growing districts. The result has been, that now the Agricultural Bureau only admits a falling off in the quantity of from 20 to 25 per cent., as compared with last year. However, even this estimate is subject to a further change, as favorable weather henceforth might increase the quantity more yet, or, on the other hand, unfavorable conditions might curtail the same. So in reality we are still ignorant of what is going to happen later on, therefore the wisest policy to pursue is not to be too optimistic, nor on the other hand too pessimistic, and to choose the middle ground. Our leaf dealers, that are still holding large stocks of the 1913 growth, are naturally biased to make us believe that the crop will be a small one, while the vegueros, as a rule, always claim that their growing fields will give a splendid crop in order to attract buyers.

Our leaf market during the past three weeks of this month has been rather a disappointment to our leaf dealers, as they had figured upon a large amount of buyers, and which according to their ideas should have been anxious to buy liberally. This, however, has not been the case, as excepting a few, most of the Americans have only purchased moderately to cover their most pressing needs. Tightness of money, and the change of the clear Havana cigar factories, from free into bonded ones, have been advanced as the reasons why the manufacturers have so far failed to purchase larger quantities of our leaf. As money has become easier all over the world, and the red tape of the United States Treasury ought to have been unwound by this time, permitting the cigar manufacturers that wish to open bonded factories, to do so, we are looking for more activity in the near future.

Sales during the first three weeks of January amounted to 13,439 bales, and which divided represent: Vuelta Abajo and Semi-Vuelta, 3754; Partido, 452; Remedios, 7233, and Oriente, 2000 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 6032; exporters to Europe, 3566; shippers to South America, 1096, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 2745 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from January 5th to January 17th, inclusive, amounted to a total of 8433 bales; distributed to all ports of the United States, 6847; to Bremen, 661; to London, England, 49, and to Buenos Aires and Montevideo, 876 bales.

Cigars.

The new year 1914 has opened better so far in comparison with the previous one than we dared to expect, but this is principally owing to the larger exports to Great Britain. Business to the United States is always slack during the month of January, as the holiday cigars have to be consumed before we can see more life again, although for current sizes there is nevertheless a fair demand already. Germany, Canada and some of the minor countries are ordering more freely; only the Argentine Republic and Chile are still suffering from the hard times in their territories. Speaking generally, the outlook has improved through the more favorable crop prospects. If we should be able to make a new reciprocity treaty with the United States this year, that would give us at least a 50 per cent. reduction on the present tariff, instead of the paltry 20 per cent., then we might indeed have reason to be more satisfied.

The president of our Union of Manufacturers, Mr. Theodore Garbade, waited upon President Menocal with a commission last week, to hand the latter a voluminous memorial, explaining all the pros and cons of the effects of the new Underwood tariff bill, upon our sugar industry, after March 1, 1914, and whereby Cuba loses three million dollars in her preferential duties over other countries, and the only possible equivalent is, to give us the above 50 per cent. reduction on the exports of our cigars to the United States. President Menocal has promised to give this matter his immediate attention, and to set our diplomatic machinery working to obtain the desired result.

Romeo y Julieta divided among its cigarmakers and strippers the sum of $2400, here in Havana, and half the amount in its branch factory at Artemisa. The object was to reward those employees that had worked constantly and faithfully for the previous four months to January 1. There were entitled to part of this money 504 cigarmakers and 120 strippers here in Havana, and in order to give a larger amount to a few individuals, four lots were drawn among the cigarmakers of $500 each, and four lots of $100 each, among the strippers. The drawing took effect in the factory building upon January 1, and in the presence of four delegates of the cigarmakers and one lady delegate of the strippers, which latter drew the prizes. A notary public was in attendance to testify to this official act, according to our laws. This was an original idea of Don Pepin Rodriguez, and it ought to find more followers among other industrials, in order to harmonize the differences between capital and labor, and thus avoid future strikes as much as possible.

Maximilian Stern has accepted the position as general manager of the Henry Clay & Bock & Company, Ltd. The company will do its own buying through its organization, which is "The Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company," and of which Mr. Stern is the head. Some of the staff of buyers, formerly with the firm of Maximilian Stern, will buy for The Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company. The firm of Maximilian Stern will retain their own buyers, and the headquarters of the said firm will remain, as formerly, at Clavel Street No. 1, Havana, where Mr. Stern will continue to give his full direction to his firm.

Our principal factories that are working quite strong, naturally taking into consideration the time of the year we are in, are: Romeo y Julieta, H. Upmann, Partagas, Henry Clay & Bock & Company, Ltd., Hoyo de Monterey, Por Larrañaga, Punch, Castañeda and Fonseca, Sol, Flor del Fumar, Belinda, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, La Flor de José Otero, and Eden.

Coleman J. Joel, according to reliable information, has purchased close on to 2000 bales of choice leaf, for his firm of C. J. Joel & Company, of Boston.

José C. Puente & Company were sellers of 500 bales of Partido and Remedios leaf.

Harry W. Bremer, according to our reports, was a buyer of nearly one thousand bales of extra fine vegas.

F. Rocha & Company were sellers of 300 bales of Vuelta Abajo and Partido from their holdings.

Stroud & Jackman in Hands of Receiver

Stroud & Jackman, a cigar firm of Chicago, which was organized a short time ago with a capital stock of $10,000, has gone into the hands of a receiver, with liabilities of $9000 and assets of $5200. The company conducted two cigar stores which seemed to be doing an excellent business. One was at 124 South Clark Street and the other at 48 South Fifth Avenue. L. H. Johnson, receiver, has ordered that the former be closed permanently. He is operating the latter himself. The cause of the trouble is attributed to dissatisfaction among the various stockholders. It is said that a settlement proposition will be made to the creditors and that the business will be reorganized and continued.

Senor Garcia Strangely Missing—Also Receipts for 40,000 Cigars—Plaintiff Alleges That Defendant Did Not Have Resources of His Own

SENOR JOSE GARCIA, of the Garcia Cigar Company, located in Van Wert, O., being out of town "on business," it seems quite likely that the affairs of the company will be wound up without him being present. This is due to the fact that Fernando Alvarez, of Chicago, who has been financing the firm, has recently taken an interest in the active management of the business and had Carl J. Werner, of Van Wert, appointed receiver by the court, as the result of his petition.

Mr. Alvarez has stated in the course of conversation that Jose Garcia's name is really Jose Grachia; that he was born in Morocco and educated in Gibraltar, where he learned to speak French, Spanish, Italian and English. These acquisitions, together with other accomplishments, induced Mr. Alvarez to furnish the Garcia Cigar Company with $5666.83 in tobacco and in cash, as alleged in his complaint, and of which sum only $1500 has been repaid. It is also alleged in the complaint that Senor Garcia disposed of some 40,000 cigars for which Mr. Alvarez can find no accounting.

The complaint also alleges that the Senor had no resources of his own, yet he has recently purchased an automobile. Mr. Alvarez thinks it fair to presume that this was paid for out of the sales receipts, and, therefore, asks that the automobile be seized.

The plaintiff further asks that Senor Garcia be enjoined from entering or interfering with the operation of the Garcia Cigar Company, and that a receiver be appointed to continue its operation and dispose of the goods already manufactured and now in stock, and such other relief as the court may deem right and proper in the premises.

Following the filing of the suit, it is said that Senor Garcia urged his wife to pay a visit to her home for a while, and that as soon as the good wife had gone, Mr. Garcia also made his departure. One may imagine the keen disappointment of Mr. Alvarez when he went to make a call, and found all out, even the fire.

Mr. Garcia before leaving, however, did not forget the little courtesies of life, and left a four-page letter for Mr. Alvarez with a neighbor. It is said that in this letter Mr. Garcia expressed, in most eloquent English, the deep sorrow that he felt in being called away on business at such a time, and that the necessity for this trip prevented him seeing Mr. Alvarez.

There are reports that Mr. Garcia overlooked some bills before he went away. Incidentally, it is said that he had a check cashed for $200, issued by the Wayne Tobacco Company, and made payable to the Garcia Cigar Company, just before he left. As payment on the check has been stopped, it seems likely that some Good Samaritan in Van Wert will be short just that amount.

Want High License for Use of Tobacco Coupons

The Massachusetts Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association are attempting to fight the use of coupons and other gifts with cigars, cigarettes, etc., with a new law. They propose that a bill shall be enacted, "That it shall be unlawful to use coupons or other similar devices with the sale of goods, unless a license is obtained from the county treasurer, the fee for which shall be $6000 a year."

Chicago

Business Good in the City—University Students Want Pipes in Freshman Year Instead of Senior—Liggett & Myers Burned Out—Regional Reserve Bank Will Help Business—Prohibition Will Jolt Cigar Trade

EVENTS which have, or will have, a more or less direct effect upon the local cigar and tobacco business have come thick and heavy during the past two weeks, and it will not be possible in a letter of this length to give them all the news treatment which they deserve according to importance. The period has been featured with new plans for the boosting of the commercial and transportation facilities of the city. On the other hand, there have been a couple failures, the first in some time among the concerns located here. Business continues brisk, although of course it has slowed down a little since the passing of the holiday season.

Jobbers of leaf tobacco, as well as local distributors, are showing great interest in the coming local option elections which will be held in many towns and villages over the state during the month of April. With a heavy portion of the state already "dry," and with women voting, they fear that enough points will be placed on the "dry" list to make prohibition practically state-wide. Of course, this will mean that fewer cigars will be sold, since the saloons have been for years one of the leading distributing outlets for cigars manufactured here. The leaf houses will be hit because the cigar business of the man who runs the "buck-eye" in the small town will be curtailed. While it may be argued that smokers will buy their cigars elsewhere, experience has demonstrated that, while they may do so, they will not buy in such quantities as when they are standing up to the bar, calling for cigars after they have reached the capacity point on liquid refreshments, or buying a quarter's worth at a time and breaking half of them by leaning up against persons and things with the smokes placed loose in a vest pocket. When a man buys cigars at a drug store he is more inclined to use sober judgment and economical sense, buying in smaller quantities and paying more attention to the brand.

The Charles Donovan Cigar Co. is one of the Chicago concerns which has made great plans for the coming year. They have started nineteen salesmen, who will cover eleven states. The leading brands of this company are "Ponce de Leon," "R-B," "King Alfred" and "El Sirod."

Best & Russell Co. announces that last year's business showed a large increase over the business of any previous year, especially on hand-made "Owls" and nickel cigars in cans.

Alice G. Crane has installed a cigar and confectionery stand in the Advertising Building, which is one of the finest of Chicago's new sky-scrapers and the headquarters of the Advertising Club. The case contains a large assortment of fancy imported cigars, as well as a number of leading home brands. Miss Crane was formerly fifteen years with Gunther Brothers, the prominent confectioners, and has a general business experience which well fits her to embark on the field of commerce for herself.

Hans Zimmerman, who lives at 426 South Clark Street, will look sharp the next time a stranger offers him a cigar. He was walking in Lincoln Park the other night when a well dressed man approached and, after a few minutes of conversation, handed him a cigar. The weed looked good, and Zimmerman lighted up. The next thing he knew he was at the Alexian Brothers Hospital coming out of a drugged sleep. He told the police that he had been robbed of seventy dollars.

Frank Newman and Carl Gach, of the leaf tobacco firm of Newman & Gach, are away on a trip to the eastern market. They will visit New York and Connecticut.

Walter E. Sloman, who formerly represented the American Tobacco Co. in this territory, has accepted a position with the Chas. Donovan Cigar Co. as sales manager. Mr. Sloman is an experienced salesman who has made good at everything he has tackled, and it is expected that he will make things hum for the Chas. Donovan Cigar Co. during the coming year.

Francisco Bolano, of Tampa, Fla., has returned after spending a few days in Chicago on business connected with the local sales office.

Zero Marz, an eccentric sign manufacturer who was well known to the cigar and tobacco trade here, died recently at his country home in Minnesota. He was president of Chicago's largest sign house, and in that capacity often figured with the cigar and tobacco men relative to making signs for advertising campaigns. He had the misfortune to become estranged from his family through his curious and obstinate theories in regard to mystical and pyschic matters. He claimed that his mind was responsive to "psychic vibrations" and that he could tell what his employes were doing in his office when he was hundreds of miles away. None of his sons in any degree participated in Mr. Marz's theories, and for that reason tried to get the business out of his hands it is alleged. This caused a spirited family row, which ended in two of the sons leaving the firm and starting a sign business of their own across the street. Only a few days after Mr. Marz's death his widow died.

Trouble is in the air on the Midway, which is the popular fashion of designating the University of Chicago. In former years, it has been the custom for members of the senior class to buy pipes two or three months before graduation, on which were engraved class numerals. This year, the undergraduate body has become restless and now declares that it wants things changed so that a student may get his pipe when he is a freshman and thus have it all through his college course. The seniors resent the intrusion on what they regard as their sacred right and several monogramed pipes detected in the mouths of underclassmen have been "confiscated." Meanwhile the world holds back breathless awaiting a decision by the student council.

New incorporations include that of the George A. Reichew Co. for $5,000, to deal in tobacco and other merchandise. The incorporators are William Capesius, Harry L. Strohm and Genevieve Irvine.

With the coming of a regional reserve bank to Chicago, this city will become in a real sense the commercial capital of the nation. The effect upon the cigar and tobacco trade will reach to the core of the business, and the rapid strides which the city has been making for the past few years as a leading distributing center of cigars will be lengthened with the stimulating influence of the regional reserve bank. It is hard for the mind which does not penetrate beneath the surface of things to see in just what manner the coming of this bank will affect the cigar and tobacco business. It will, in fact, have no direct effect. Nevertheless, the additional prestige which will come to the city will boost all lines of business, including the cigar and tobacco business and new businesses of all sorts will be favorably impressed in selecting Chicago as a distributing center.

Fire recently rendered the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. homeless. The building which they occupied on Washington Street was damaged so badly by the element that they were compelled to move to the Fort Building. They expect, however, to be soon installed in permanent quarters again.

W. J. Wilson, who was formerly a district manager for the Globe Tobacco Co., has now become a department manager for the Lovell & Buffington Tobacco Co., of Covington, Ky. He will look after Chicago, Northern Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Recently an attempt was made by some local club women to get an ordinance through the city council knocking out the time-honored custom of attaching a smoker to the "L" trains. The effort failed. One strong argument was that the men have been kind enough to give the woman suffrage here, so why "stir up the animals"?

J. MacMahon, manager of the cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Co., announces that 1913 showed a remarkable increase in the sale of "El Rio-Tan," "Juliana" and "Reubens" cigars. Most progress was made in local territory. Business for the new year on all these brands has started with a rush and the indications are that the coming year is going to be even better than the past. Mr. MacMahon has the assistance of one of the best corps of salesmen in the country, of which G. W. Anderson is one of the leading lights. The cigar department expects to move along with the rest of the big wholesale grocery into the new home across the river some time between the first and fifteenth of March. The cigar department has succeeded in getting about the best quarters in the new place. They will be at the Clark Street entrance on the ground floor. The building itself has been constructed along model lines to house a wholesale grocery. The exterior work, including the wiring, has all been done. The building is of reinforced concrete and fire-proof throughout.

E. B. McKenzie, of the "El Roi-Tan" selling force, has returned from a vacation at French Lick Springs, Ind., much refreshed.

Jacob Dembo, a cigarmaker who lives at 1117 North Ashland Avenue, has been ordered by a judge in the Municipal Court to take Samuel Hadesman, another cigarmaker, and his mother to a theater and treat them to a dinner. Dembo had a quarrel with Hadesman, in which he struck him in the face and tore his coat. When the man's mother interfered he used abusive language to her, it is alleged.

Harry J. Cavanaugh, proprietor of the Woodlawn Cafe, who was arrested for allowing the "26" dice game to be operated in his place, was convicted on five counts before Municipal Judge Fake last week. This was the last effort in the nature of a test case to revive the game, and makes more or less permanent the ban which has been placed upon the "bones" by the city administration.

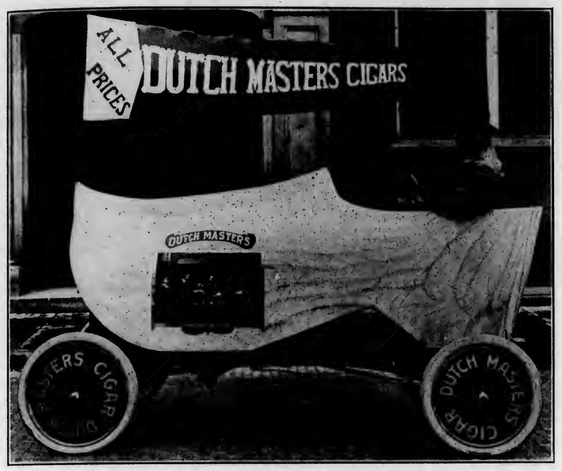
Fire Damaged Weil's Cigar Store

The cigar store of Arthur Weil, located at 916 East Main Street, Richmond, Va., caught fire on January 13, and for a time it looked as though serious damage would result. Prompt arrival of a chemical engine of the fire department, however, saved the shop from a heavy loss.



Spreading the Fame of "Dutch Masters"

The illustration herewith shows one of the automobile advertising cars used to spread the fame of "Dutch Masters" cigars, made by G. J. Johnson Company, of Grand Rapids, Mich.

"Dutch Masters" are making a hit in the Middle West, and unique advertising methods are doing much to attract the consumer's attention to this good smoke.

THE FRENCH BRIAR-PIPE INDUSTRY

Produces 15,000,000 Annually—St. Claude Center of Manufacturers—Twelve Steps in Reforming Process

Consul-General Frank Mason, at Paris, sends the following report to the "Daily Consular and Trade Reports":

The brier-pipe industry of France is, for all practical purposes of investigation, centered in the small town of St. Claude, in the Department of the Jura, where not only pipes but cigarette and cigar holders and other kindred necessities of the smoking world are manufactured. So important is the industry at this particular place that all wholesale Paris dealers in smokers' necessities advertise as selling "articles de St. Claude."

The principal sources of supply from which French manufacturers obtain the brier roots are, in order of importance, Sicily, Calabria, Corsica, and, of late years, Algeria. A small quantity is also obtained from the French Departments of the Var, Pyrenees Orientales, and the Alpes Maritimes.

These roots, fashioned into rough blocks containing sufficient wood to make one or more pipes, are sold at 77 cents to $7.72 per gross of 12 dozen. The price varies according to the actual demand and the quality of the roots. these blocks are known as ébauchons, or rough shapes.

In the process of transforming the rough root into the finished article there are about 12 steps, but these may be divided into 4 principal operations, as follows: Ebauchage, or shaping down; rapage, or scraping; polissage, or polishing; montage, or mounting (with metallic band and mouthpiece). Men are employed for these processes, with the exception of polishing; the wages vary from 77 cents to $2.89 per day, the highest salary being earned by very skillful mounters and sculptors. The polishing, carried out by women, is paid for at the rate of 77 cents to $1.15 per day.

The annual production in France is estimated at $1,930,000 to $2,316,000, representing about 15,000,000 pipes. Of these not more than $193,000 worth, or about 2,000,000 pipes, are "unfinished," and are for export. It is said that a large proportion of the so-called "English" pipes are entirely manufactured at St. Claude and are exported ready for sale. This statement also applies to most of the French "manufacturers," who place their orders for pipes, ready branded in their name, with St. Claude factories. Considerable secrecy is observed because of the many attempts that have been made to get inside information and to induce French workmen to go abroad with the promise of extremely high wages.

The average wholesale price of a pipe sold retail at 48 cents is $2.31 per dozen, and this may be taken as a basis for estimating the wholesale price of both the more expensive and the cheaper varieties.

In the French customs statistics brier and other wooden pipes are classed together as "wooden pipes." The exports of wooden pipes in 1911 were as follows: Mounted with ivory, etc., 966 pounds; not mounted, 1,961,080 pounds. The imports of mounted wooden pipes totaled 717 pounds, and the imports of unmounted wooden pipes reached 37,840 pounds.

Kenny Tobacco Company Growing

Having purchased the equipment, stock and brands of the Hyndman Cigar Company, Hyndman, Pa., the Kenny Tobacco Company, of Frostburg, Md., started the manufacture of cigars and stogies in the latter place, January, 1, 1912, with but one operator in the person of G. E. Fisher. In the two years which have elapsed, the business has increased to such an extent that fifteen girls are needed for the requirements of the company, with Mr. Fisher in the capacity of foreman.

It is the intention of the company to increase its output, in addition to conducting an extensive advertising campaign on their goods with their "Night Rider" stogie as a leader. The company also plan to increase their territory.

The president of the Kenny Tobacco Company, James Kenny, is a very wideawake and progressive young man, who has been ably assisted in achieving success through the efforts of his brother, Aloysius, who also has the best interest of the company at heart.

Tampa

New Smoking Tobacco Industry for Tampa—Conference of Tobacco Examiners Over—Sanchez & Haya Get Order for 250,000 "Made in Bond" Cigars—Addition to Celestino Vega Factory About Completed—Board of Trade Wants Cigarette Beetle Stamped Out

TAMPA, FLA., January 28, 1914.

WHEN Horace Greeley uttered his famous command "Go West, young man, go West!" he was without doubt convinced that opportunity dwelt in that section, but in these days of mad pursuit after the elusive dollar, my advice is: "Come South, young man, come South!" and make your headquarters in Tampa. Here you will find live wires and up-to-date methods. Here you will find progress.

For instance: Tampa has acquired another manufacturer of smoking tobacco in the Tampa Tobacco Company, which is located at No. 914 Eleventh Avenue. The new company has taken license No. 9, first issued in 1876, to Seidenberg & Company, of Key West, and will bend every effort to place on the market a pipe tobacco that will achieve a reputation as distinguished as that now borne by Tampa and Havana cigars. The new product which will be composed of Burley and Havana mixed, will be marketed under the title "Night Riders," and should prove a big success.

The conference of the tobacco examiners is over and the majority of them have left for their respective cities. As a result of the meeting, which was decidedly satisfactory to the participants, a report will be formulated making recommendations to be followed by the tobacco examiners for classification of the importation of tobacco, the port of entry having no bearing on the matter, whatsoever. Among those who attended the conference were Edward Kohn, chief tobacco examiner of the port of New York; J. W. Allen, collector of customs, Key West; and F. M. Halstead, chief of the Division of Customs at Washington, D. C., who has left here for New Orleans.

A. L. Cuesta, Sr., and Manuel Sanchez, were among the names suggested for the Board of Governors at the meeting of the Board of Trade, held within the last fortnight.

Among the visitors to Tampa lately, were Charles Bock, of the Bock-Stauffer Company, of Pittsburgh; M. J. MacDonnell, of Yahn & MacDonnell, Philadelphia; and John M. Carlisle, traveling representative for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

A. Wolf, who represents Cuesta, Rey & Company, in the South and Southwest, left Tampa January 25, for his territory.

G. R. Webb, in charge of the cigar department of Coffing, Reddington & Company, San Francisco, spent some time here as the guest of his brother, W. I. Webb, of the J. M. Martinez Company.

O. J. Lansing, representing Sanchez & Haya, on the Pacific Coast, created quite a pleasant stir when he handed Manager Staehlberg an order for 250,000 of the new "made-in-bond" cigars, to be shipped just as soon as they can be manufactured. The shipment is to be made to Tillman & Bendel, San Francisco. Reports from the Sanchez factory are to the effect that shipments of bonded cigars are being sent forward this week.

Fred Dalton, Eli Witt's well-known salesman, and Charles G. Bush, who so ably represents the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, were both well pleased with their recent two weeks' sojourn in Cuba.

A cigar dealer from the North recently forwarded a letter to Acting Secretary L. P. Dickie, of the Board of Trade, desiring to be put in touch with "a firm that manufactured good-looking Tampa cigars, to sell at ten dollars per thousand." We might as well say that our pride received quite a fall upon receipt of this request. However, Mr. Dickie at once answered the letter in a very courteous manner, stating that such cigars were not manufactured in Tampa, but that wholesale prices ranged from $35 to $200. We are now wondering whether we will receive his order.

Val Antuono has let out the contract for the immense addition to his cigar factory. The new annex which is to cost in the vicinity of $25,000, will make the factory occupy practically an entire block. Work is to commence immediately on the new building, which will be 39 feet long on Cuba Street and 100 feet long on Lozano Street. A feature will be a large tank to occupy a position 50 feet in the air.

The new three-story addition to the Celestino Vega cigar factory, corner of Cornelia and Armenia Avenues, is practically completed, and will give quite an additional amount of floor space to the company. The new addition is 50 by 45 feet and conforms to the lines laid out for the main building. Among the improvements being made to the factory is an ornamental wall surrounding the building, and the remodeling of the front of the structure, which is to include a portico, besides other features.

The popular "Optimo" cigar, manufactured by Jose Garcia & Company, and extensively advertised by that firm, is having quite a heavy demand, according to local report.

Kuttnauer Brothers in Difficulties

Kuttnauer Brothers, a Chicago leaf tobacco house, which also owns and operates the La Vello Cigar Company, manufacturers of "La Vello" and "Lady Abbey" cigars, have announced that they are in financial difficulties and are now seeking to arrange matters with their creditors in order that they may pay dollar for dollar and also continue the business which they have established. The liabilities of the concern are said to be in the neighborhood of $35,000, all of which is unsecured, it is said. In addition the Bank of the Republic and one or two other concerns are secured creditors to large amounts. Other creditors are G. Falk & Brother, Louis P. Sutter & Brothers, Chas. Waxelbaum & Company, E. Spingarn & Company, William Taussig & Company, A. Cohn & Company, the American Sumatra Tobacco Company and Ernest Ellinger & Company. The creditors have held a meeting, at which nothing definite was arranged. Future meetings will be held, and it is believed that some plan will be formulated which will untangle matters. "La Vello" and "Lady Abbey" cigars have a wide distribution and have increased much in popularity with discriminating smokers during the past year.

Symonett Cigar Company Holds Annual Meeting

The Symonett Cigar Company, of Jacksonville, Fla., recently held its annual stockholders' meeting and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: C. C. Symonett, president and manager; G. B. Lord, vice-president; T. E. Denaley, secretary-treasurer; J. W. Blume, S. J. White, A. E. Wrigglesworth and T. E. Payne were elected directors.

Two new brands of cigars will be manufactured, namely, "Magnet" and "Three Monkeys."

UNION AMERICAN CIGAR COMPANY.

The board of directors has declared a quarterly dividend of ONE AND THREE-QUARTERS PER CENT (1¾%) on the full shares of preferred stock; also a dividend of ONE PER CENT (1%) on the full shares of common stock both payable February 15, 1914, to stockholders of record January 20, 1914. Transfer books will be closed January 20 to February 15, inclusive.

N. D. LEAN, Treasurer.

Salvador Rodriguez, one of the largest clear Havana cigar manufacturers in Tampa, has as his guest, his son Fernando Rodriguez, who arrived in this city last Sunday from his home in New York. Mr. Rodriguez plans to spend some time here.

I append herewith a copy of the resolution drawn up by Acting Secretary Dickie, of the Board of Trade, desiring Congress to continue the appropriation for the stamping out of the cigarette beetle. In this connection Cuesta Rey & Company have been particularly active for some time with experiments having to do with the elimination of the pest. The resolution which is to be forwarded to Florida's representatives in Congress, is as follows:

"Whereas: The United States Government has appropriated money in the past for the bureau of etymology in the Department of Agriculture for the purpose of making investigation concerning the boll-weevil, cigarette beetle and other pests and insects; and,

"Whereas: This department has accomplished great work at their experimental station in Clarksville, Tenn., on Burley tobacco, and in Key West, through their representative looking into conditions of the Havana cigar industry both with the purpose of ridding the United States of the cigarette beetle; and,

"Whereas: There seems to be a doubt as to whether or not an appropriation will be made this year by our government for the purpose of carrying on these experiments; and,

"Whereas: If there should be a lapse of time in these experiments, the past accomplishments would be of little use and in the future the work again would have to be started in its infancy; and,

"Whereas: We think it is of untold value, to have these experiments continued and if possible find a way, of exterminating the cigarette beetle.

"Therefore: Be it resolved by this Board of Trade, to urge our representatives in Congress to use their best efforts in having our government appropriate the sum of not less than $10,000 to the bureau of etymology in the Department of Agriculture for the purpose of carrying on experiments with the cigarette beetle; and, be it further resolved that a copy of this resolution be sent to each of our representatives in Congress, respectfully requesting them to use their best efforts in carrying out the wishes set forth herein."

PERFECTO.

San Francisco

Good Business is Report From the Coast—"Flor De Moss" After Record in 1914—Judell & Company Has "Webster" in Forty Sizes—"Made in Bond" Stamp Attracts Smokers

SAN FRANCISCO, January 20, 1914.

IN spite of the wet weather the cigar business has opened up in pretty good shape. The optimism of the opening weeks of th year is decidedly refreshing after some of the hard luck stories that were current in the trade a few months ago. Some of the big fellows in the business are so cheered up by the improved prospects of 1914 that they have altogether forgotten the depressing tales they told in the fall of the year that is dead. One can now learn that one or another big house has just closed the "most prosperous year in its history," though shortly before that year closed the impression seemed to be that 1913 was at best a rather melancholy affair.

Traveling men working out of San Francisco are making a good start, though most of them are having a very sloppy time as to weather. The rains have been pretty steady ever since the first of the year, and traveling has been more or less uncomfortable and uncertain; but in spite of the mud and wet nothing in the way of cold feet has been reported.

Several of the jobbing houses have added to their outside selling forces, and the curtailing at the wholesale establishments seems to be at an end for the time being. The advertising campaigns for the opening of the year have not yet materialized to any great extent; and the holding on of the rains will probably delay operations in this line for some time. Advices from the interior are all favorable, and the other distributing centers of the Coast are quite generally doing a good business.

Herman Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, of Lancaster, Pa., is now on his way westward and should reach San Francisco before the end of January. Mr. Moss made a good record last year, and is returning with preparations for a good boost year.

Charles McCormick, Pacific Coast representative of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, is supposed to be somewhere on his way to his territory. He should reach San Francisco about the first of the month. As before, he will devote himself to the spreading of the gospel of "Webster."

H. H. Manley, Coast representative of the American Cigar Company, is now covering the northern part of his territory, and is expected to be absent from San Francisco for some weeks. R. J. Blaine, who looks after the city trade here during Mr. Manley's absence, reports a good start for the year, especially on the Belmont line.

H. L. Judell & Company have signaled the approach of better times and started the new year with an enlargement of their business. Last year they had a fine run on their "Elisardo" and "Watt" lines, and placed these all up and down the Coast more largely than ever before. Now they have supplemented the old lines by adding the "Webster," high grade clear Havana line of Y. Pendas & Alvarez. This will be carried in forty different sizes. A large stock will be carried in San Francisco, and an active canvass for business will be made at once. H. L. Judell & Company have a live bunch of salesmen, and all of them are now out sending in orders. Emil Judell, junior member of the firm, left soon after the opening of the year for Nevada, where he found business picking up nicely. Charles Kohlberg is now in his San Joaquin Valley territory, where prospects have been greatly improved by the rains. Eddie Allenberg, who has been working Oakland and the neighboring cities, is giving a good account of himself. M. Pizer, another outside salesman, has just left for a few days' work in and about Mendocino County.

S. Bachman & Company are this week entertaining Sol Hart, president, and Henry Hausman, vice-president, of the Hart Cigar Company, a large distributing house of Portland. From San Francisco Messrs. Hart and Hausman will visit Los Angeles and other Southern California points for a short time and will then go North via this city. Besides acting as vice-president of the Hart Cigar Company, Mr. Hausman is the Oregon and Washington representative of S. Bachman & Company.

Arthur Meyer, Western representative of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, who has been visiting with Michalitschke Brothers & Company, has now started on his long spring trip. This week will be spent in Salt Lake City.

Morgan Gunst, of M. A. Gunst & Company, returned this week from Honolulu, T. H., where he has been spending a week or two. He comes back well pleased with the outlook for the company's Honolulu house.

According to reports the double stamp Havana cigars will be a feature of the high grade business of the Coast this year, though as yet Hyp Bier with his "Jose Vila" line of Berriman Brothers is the only man with the actual goods to deliver to the trade. The dealers are showing a good deal of interest, and reports are that the smokers are also taking notice. Mr. Bier has had no trouble to do business, and some of the other distributors would be glad to get out some of their leading lines with the double stamp thereon. Major Burrows, agent for the "Jose Lovera" clear Havana cigars, has received word that the Lovera Company will make cigars under the new bonding plan at Tampa, and will make unbonded cigars at the New York factory. Major Burrows is not yet informed as to the exact date when he may expect the new goods. Other distributors of clear Havana cigars in this territory are expecting definite information at any time.

Dan McKeller, of Seattle, Wash., distributor for the Puget Sound country, of the Jose Lovera clear Havana cigars, has been in San Francisco this week, calling on some of the local dealers. He has also been spending some time in Southern California, visiting relatives. He told Major Burrows that the Lovera business in the North was coming ahead nicely.

The Edward Wolf Company reports having finished one of the most successful years of its career. This year will be a Manila year for this house, and a good start has been made toward record breaking by adding several new names to its list of traveling salesmen. "La Insular" cigars and cigarettes and "La Prueba" cigars will be the leading lines.

The Hoffman-Moore Company has added a new salesman in the person of Will Geary, who will cover the San Francisco trade in the large district south of Market Street. The remainder of the city trade will be looked after by Joe Triest, who has been with the house for some time.

AMERICAN TOBACCO INTERESTS NOT CONCERNED ABOUT STORIES OF GERMANY'S INVESTIGATORS

American Tobacco Company Not Interested in Jasmatzi Cigarette Manufacturing Company—Is Controlled by British-American Tobacco Company

AMERICAN tobacco interests are little concerned regarding the reports that the German government will take steps which will mean ultimately government control of the cigarette industry in that country. These stories have been started at frequent intervals ever since the dissolution decree was entered in the American Tobacco case.

The George A. Jasmatzi, Ltd., the German cigarette manufacturing concern which is reported to be under the watchful eye of the German authorities, is controlled by the British-American Tobacco Company, of which James B. Duke, formerly president of the American Tobacco Company, is chairman of the board of directors. Newspaper accounts continue to speak of "Fighting U. S. Tobacco Trust in Germany," but the American Tobacco Company has absolutely no connection with the Jasmatzi concern, except through the fact that certain large stockholders of the British-American Tobacco Company are also large holders of the stock of the American Tobacco Company, and its former subsidiaries. Holders of American Tobacco common stock received stock in the British-American Company by the terms of the Tobacco decree.

The George F. Jasmatzi Company, Ltd., has an outstanding capital of $3,500,000, of which $2,000,000 is common stock and $1,500,000 5 per cent. preferred. The British-American Tobacco Company is the owner of a large majority of the common shares which have been paying dividends for a number of years at the annual rate of 25 per cent. E. F. Gutschow was one of the founders of the Jasmatzi Company and is still a large holder of stock.

Foreign newspaper accounts speak of Mr. Gutschow as the "confidential agent and representative of the trust in Germany." Mr. Gutschow was in New York recently and gave to Dow, Jones & Company the status of the British-American Tobacco Company in the German tobacco industry.

Joseph Steinmetz, who keeps a cigar store on Monterey Street, Gilroy, Cal., is renovating the same. He expects to have the work done shortly and then will invite the public to view his up-to-date shop, which gives promise of being attractive and modern in every respect.

Those who rave over the relation between tobacco and longevity should have this case brought to their attention.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 9

The Fellowcraft Club, Detroit

(This is the ninth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.
No. 5—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
No. 6—The Chicago Athletic Association.
No. 7—The Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.
No. 8—The Union League Club, Chicago.

THERE is probably no better known "social" organization in the entire country than the Fellowcraft Club in the city of Detroit. There are larger clubs, but none more successful as a purely social place for the tired business men. As the name implies, it is a club for men, who, once inside the culb's domain, cannot fail to forget business and let their minds run to enjoyment and rest, as every diversified pleasure known to clubdom is therein afforded. A bit of the history of the Fellowcraft Club might be interesting to some of our readers.

It was founded some twenty-eight years ago as a traveling men's organization by Commodore Merril B. Mills, then and now at the head of the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company. At that time, he was traveling representative for one of the large Detroit stove companies, and it was while in Buffalo that he conceived the idea. Mr. Mills had been invited, during his stay in Buffalo, to a session of a traveling men's club in existence for some time, and he was so impressed with the idea of "get together" and becoming better acquainted, that he immediately, upon returning to Detroit, got a dozen of his friends to a meeting at the Banner cigar factory and then and there formed a similar organization. Quarters were secured at Woodward and Larned Streets, where the famous Tom Swan restaurant was located. Everything ran smoothly for a while, and then interest seemed to slow up on account of so many of the members being out of the city. At about that time, some of the newspaper men were thinking of organizing a sort of press club, so an offer was made to the members of this traveling men's club and the deal made, whereby the newspaper men became the sole owner of the lease and furnishings. The name was changed to the "Fellowcraft Club," which has continued ever since. Among those who helped organize the new club were such prominent writers as George P. Goodale, the dean of the dramatic critics, who is still active on the "Detroit Free Press"; Theodore E. Quinby, proprietor of that publication; William Livingstone, now president of the Dime Savings Bank; Patrick C. Baker, a heavy stockholder in the "Detroit News"; John A. Russell, publisher of the "Michigan Manufacturer"; August Marxhausen, Jr., publisher of the "Abend Post"; Frank E. Carter, publisher of the "Michigan Investor," and John C. Lodge, alderman; all of whom are living and active excepting Mr. Quinby. The exact date that the constitution and by-laws were drawn up was in January, 1894.

Any business man in good standing was gradually admitted to its membership, and inside of a few months it had become the leading social club of the city, and comprised all of the best-known men in Detroit. Since then the club has grown until it now has a membership of approximately 700, 180 non-residents and 105 life memberships.

The quarters at Larned and Woodward soon became too small to accommodate the growing membership, and larger quarters were secured at the northeast corner of Farmer and East Grand River Avenue, where the club remained for many years; in fact, until two years ago, when it moved to its present structure on Washington Boulevard, where it occupies the three upper floors of a building erected especially for them, the ground floor being rented for stores and the two upper floors for offices. In this way, they tied up no money in land and buildings, and now simply pay an annual rental.

The new club rooms were fitted up at an expense of over $25,000, $14,000 of which they had in the treasury; when it was decided to move from the old quarters. Dues at that time were only $25 per year, although now they are double.

On the first floor of the club are located the general reception room, reading room, ladies' parlor and offices, while in the rear are sleeping and lounging rooms. The second floor contains the billiard room, with ten of the best tables that money can buy; grill room, private card rooms, bar and cigar department. On the third floor are the ladies' dining room, breakfast room, main dining room, private dining rooms and kitchen. On the roof are three bowling alleys. Special priced luncheons are served for two hours at noon and night, while on Saturday night there is a special table d'hote dinner at $1 that never fails to crowd all dining rooms. A four-piece orchestra renders popular selections on Saturdays from six until eight.

Among the leading cigars handled by the cigar department are: "Lucius," "Aploma," "Cuesta-Rey," "Rigby's Monogram," "First Consul," "Royal Banner," "Swift," "Pastora," "La Azora," "La Preferencia," "William Penn," "Cortez," "Webster," "Optimates," "General Arthur," "Solace," "Rosa de Paris," "Stratford," "Hoyo de Monterey," "Romeo & Juliet," "La Carolina Perfectos," "Partagas," "Bock Panatellas," "Fabrica de Tobacos," "La Verdad," "La Matilda," "White Heather," "Vege Del Rey," "Boldt's Specials," "Pinzon," and the leading cigarette brands, such as "Melachrino," "Fifty-Six," "Philip Morris" and "Fatima." The club does a splendid cigar business as there are a great many "stag" entertainments given throughout the year, and the fact that the club is better patronized than most social clubs also stimulates sales at the cigar stand.

The present manager of the club is R. B. King, formerly steward at the Hotel Cadillac, previous to which time he was manager of the Columbia Club in Indianapolis, before that being for eight and one-half years manager of Young's Hotel in Atlantic City. "I have never come in contact with a finer lot of men than right here at this club," said Mr. King to a representative of THE TOBACCO WORLD. "I have never seen men who take such an interest in their club, who are so enthusiastic and who devote so much of their time to its social advantages. Those are the things which cannot fail to spell 'big success' for any organization."

It is doubtful if any improvement could have been made on the way the club is laid out and the way it is furnished. It is cozy throughout, there is light on all four sides, it is conveniently located, and there is an air of friendliness and comfort about every nook and corner of the whole three floors, even to the special elevator, which carries members exclusively, to and fro.

PITTSBURGH, PA., January 21.

THE University of Pittsburgh are having a big campaign. They are going to raise $3,000,000. All cigar stores are displaying the colors of the University, blue and gold, and an advertisement regarding the campaign. Business has opened up and is much better than the early part of the month.

The Jenkinson store, Water and Smithfield Streets, are reporting a satisfactory demand for Liggett & Myers tobacco premiums. They have received a new supply and the articles are now on display in their windows, creating a sensation. The majority of consumers and dealers are very much interested in Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company's coupons.

Brands manufactured by W. Duke's Sons' branch, such as "Fatima" and "Piedmont" cigarettes, are increasing in demand. There is a steady demand for "Richmond Straight Cut" cigarettes in Pittsburgh. All indications show a nice business on this brand for the future.

"Recruit Little Cigars," manufactured by H. Ellis & Company, Philadelphia, Pa., have a wide distribution in this territory, and at present are the leading seller in this line.

Ben. S. Dripps, representing I. Lewis Cigar Manufacturing Company, Newark, N. J., has been on the job since the first of the year, and reports business very good on "John Ruskins" and "Manillanettes."

Harry R. Locke, representing Haworth & Dewhurst among the hotel and bar trade, says the trade on "John Ruskin" and "Plantista" cigars is very good.

J. B. McClements, manager of Reymer Brothers' cigar department, who has for years been a member of council in the town in which he resides, was recently elected president of that body, with Col. Dan Ashworth, Burgess. Both are young hustlers, so "Stop, Look and Listen." The town is Crafton, Pa.

On or about February 15, A. J. Fleischauer, present manager of the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands, will open a new cigar store at the old location of J. S. Kerns, at Smithfield and Liberty Avenues. Mr. Fleischauer has decided to call his new location the "Afco Cigar Co." The old stand is being remodeled throughout and when completed will make a beautiful appearance. It is the intention of Mr. Fleischauer to carry a full line of smokers' requirements, along with magazines, candies, etc. His many friends wish him all the success possible. Mr. Fleischauer will be succeeded at the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands by his present clerk, John Bering, as manager, who also has the best wishes of all the boys.

At the bi-weekly meeting of the McKeesport Business Men's Lunch Club, "Cuesta-Reys" were on the table.

Mr. Shapero, representing M. A. Gunst Company, paid us a visit last week and reported a nice business on his pet brand, "Van Dyck."

It's easy to get a smile from Charles Boyle, manager of the Heny Hotel cigar stand. That's why he is a success along with the excellent line he carries.

Charles Bock, president of the Bock-Stauffer Company, is on a business trip in the interest of the above firm. Before returning Mr. Bock will visit Key West, Tampa and Havana, and the other tobacco centers.

Shipley-Massingham Company opened the West Virginia territory this week and enjoyed a big business on "Denbys," "Saramitas" and "Jose Garcia."

W. F. Sharples, of Shipley-Massingham Company, was aboard B. & O. Train No. 1, from Cumberland to Clarksburg, W. Va., when William E. Rodda, of Frostburg, Md., a mine workers' organizer, was held up by two thugs and robbed of the records of the union. Mr. Sharples, in attempting to get out of the coach, got in the way of the larger of the two thugs, getting in a little scuffle with him, but not being injured, he continued merrily on his way with "Saramitas."

A rumor in the down-town section has it that Acker, Merrill & Condit will take over the Pittsburgh Athletic Association cigar stand February 1. This gives Acker, Merrill & Condit three of the best cigar stands in the city. They have the Fort Pitt Hotel cigar stand, the Duquesne Club cigar stand, and will now take the Pittsburgh Athletic Association cigar stand. It is rumored that they will send several men here from New York to take charge of the P. A. A. stand.

They are also featuring "Florencia" stogies, which sell two for five cents, and are a very nice stogie. They have a very big run on this brand. Reymer Brothers also furnished cigars and cigarettes for the Commonwealth Trust Company's banquet. The cigars furnished were the "Cortez" Perfecto and "Farragut" Panatellas. The cigars were put up two to the package.

The entertainment committee of the club aims to have some special attraction at least once a week, either in the form of a lecture, banquet, smoker, or vaudeville, while on holidays and occasions like Halloween there are always "extra doings."

As one member expressed it, "the Fellowcraft is more of an institution for the purpose of creating social intercourse among its members and to extend the hand of goodfellowship, to help each other enjoy the good things of life, to make us smile, and above all, to make each and every one of us better men before God."

WOULD FORM POOL FOR 1913 CROP OF LANCASTER COUNTY TOBACCO

Stranger Promises Better Prices—Object is Apparently to Form Pool—Several Hundred Growers Said to be Active in Movement—General Opinion That No Pool Can be Formed

THE presence of a stranger in Lancaster, registered at the Wheatland Hotel as R. L. Kimbrough, is believed to form the basis of a movement for the pooling of the 1913 crop of Lancaster County tobacco. The stranger, who is believed to be from Lexington, Ky., advertised, locally, that he wanted to see all the growers in the county for the purpose of helping them to secure better prices for their crops in the future. He proposed to buy all the good 1913 tobacco that was offered him. According to the report, several hundred of the six thousand growers of the county went to the Wheatland to see Mr. Kimbrough, and it is said that he entered into an agreement with them.

The packers at once actively interested themselves in the movements of Mr. Kimbrough, and it is stated that they have discovered that his real object has been to get the growers to pool their interests in the 1913 crop. The stranger further intimated, it is reported, that it would be a good thing to establish a bank for the purpose of loaning money to growers, and also to establish warehouses at various points.

The outcome of the matter is that the packers are getting worried and the growers excited at the agitation. There are many willing to listen as prices for the past few years and the idea of a combination will have to have more the average price paid for Pennsylvania leaf was the lowest in the country.

It is pointed out, however, that the matter of forming a pool in Lancaster County, where there are six thousand growers, is a proposition of some size, and the matter is looked upon in some quarters as a joke. Conditions in Pennsylvania are entirely different from conditions in Kentucky. Each man has been going it alone all these years and the idea of a combination will have to be more than a few weeks to soak in, in order to secure results.

Again, it is not amiss to mention that all the large manufacturers, anticipating the poor 1913 crop, have bought sufficient tobacco to be able to skip the 1913 leaf if they so desire.

As a well-known leaf man, in considering the chances of establishing a pool, said: "The growers with good 1913 tobacco need not worry about selling it, it will be bought up without any trouble. There is more 1909 leaf left than there is 1911, 1912 and 1913 combined."

It is understood that the United Cigar Manufacturers, reckoned as the largest purchaser of Pennsylvania leaf, are well stocked up with 1911 and with 1912 tobacco, so that they do not need to look at 1913 leaf. This is said to be equally true of other big manufacturers.

In event of the tobacco being pooled, the only ones to be caught by a boost in prices would be the small manufacturer, but according to expert opinion regarding the formation of such a pool, "it can't be did."

Mr. Kimbrough has promised Lancaster further visits, and meanwhile the growers and packers are looking about to see where they stand.

New Store for Reading

The Reading Cigar Company is the name of a new firm which opened for business with office and salesroom at 255 North Fifth Street, Reading, Pa. The firm will make a specialty of the "Coiner," a nickel cigar made by the Baum-Jaffe Company, of Philadelphia.

Detroit

President's Message Gives Confidence to Business—Hotel Dansants Increase Sale of Cigarettes—Phenomenal Increase of Business on Monroe Avenue—— Detroit Men Cannot Serve Government Unless They Give Up Cigar Business

DETROIT, MICH., January 25.

THIS issue's big news event, so far as Detroit is concerned, is contained in the report current, and said to be authentic, that the Harry W. Watson Company, of Detroit and Flint, had purchased the Snyder cigar stand, next to E. M. Harris & Company, on Woodward Avenue, and would take possession within sixty days. It is understood that the Snyder store has not been a success since its inception, and Mr. Snyder is determined to let go of this as well as other stands throughout the country, operated by him, which do not prove a success. Not long ago he abandoned one of his stores in Toledo. The Churchill stand, on Woodward Avenue, also operated by Mr. Snyder, is doing fairly well. A former clerk said that it was averaging somewhere around fifty dollars per day. The rent is $3000 per year.

The Detroit Automobile Show, the Lake Carriers' Association, and the Michigan Bean Jobbers held their conventions in Detroit the past ten days and revived the retail cigar business. The weather, outside of a few zero days on January 11, 12 and 13, has been very mild and conducive to good business for the retailers.

Right here it might be said that the message sent last week to Congress by President Wilson has caused a greater confidence of business men who operate big industries, and has already had its effect in Detroit. Several large concerns report that since this address, they received big orders which had been pending for some months up to that time. With this aspect the New Year is certainly starting out very auspiciously (not suspiciously). Merchants and manufacturers in every line are now expressing the most optimistic views regarding 1914 conditions. If this confidence continues, retailers will be sure to place big orders for next Christmas, and in all probability earlier than last year.

The J. L. Marcero Company, the Feilbach Company, and the J. B. Moos Company, all of Toledo, O., have petitioned the Federal Court to adjudge Peter Rizos, cigar dealer and confectioner, at 1127 Cherry Street, a bankrupt.

One of the most brilliant functions ever to mark a social season in Escanaba, Mich., was the banquet given at the New Delta Hotel, on January 15, to signalize the opening of that hostelry—the realization of a dream of years. Plates were laid for 250.

There is considerable talk of a new million dollar hotel for Saginaw, Mich., to be erected by the Allyn Engineering Company, of Cincinnati, O.

Rena G. Hoag, manager of the Hotel Charlevoix, Detroit, has tendered his resignation, and will leave the first of May. No definite announcement has been made as yet to his future plans. He may enter the hotel business for himself.

The Dansants started recently at the Hotels Pontchartrain, Cadillac and Tuller are causing an increased demand for cigarettes at these various hostelries. The Pontchartrain dansants are given three times a week from four until six, while the Cadillac and Tuller give their affairs in the evening. The best of society people attend, and all the new dances are indulegd in.

The "Dutch Master" cigar, made by the G. J. Johnson Company, in Grand Rapids, will be the principal cigar to be used in connection with the Funfest to be given at the Hotel Tuller February 7, in the roof garden, by the Detroit Greeters Club, composed of clerks in the various hotels. It is expected that there will be an attendance of at least 750. Already over 400 tickets, at one dollar per, have been sold. There will be vaudeville, beverages, cigars and cigarettes.

A billiard and cigar store has been opened in Vermontville, Mich., by George E. Ramsey.

Sherman Bond, manager of the Boddy House, Toledo, has purchased the Madison Hotel, on Madison Avenue, and will use it to take care of the overflow at the Boddy. It will be remodeled and made up to date throughout. There is considerable talk of a new 600-room hotel being erected in Toledo by a company headed by John Willys, of the Willys-Overland Company, automobile manufacturers.

Roy Bowlsby is now traveling for the Harry W. Watson Company, of Detroit, covering territory in the western part of the State. He was formerly connected with the Federal Cigar Company.

The stork recently brought a bouncing baby boy to the home of U. Grant Hamlin, division manager of Michigan for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. He will be named U. Grant Hamlin, Jr.

Eugene Watson, of the Harry W. Watson Company, is back from a trip to New York and other important cities in the East.

Jack Johnson and wife, of Burns & Johnson, retailers at 20 Monroe Avenue, are back from a two weeks' trip to Chicago, New York and Eastern cities.

The cigar stores operated by the Berghoff, Burns & Johnson United Cigar Company, and the Central Cigar Company, all on Monroe Avenue, have been enjoying an increased business in the past four months that is nothing short of phenomenal. In the first place, Monroe Avenue from Cadillac Square to Library Street, a distance of two blocks, is probably as traversed a territory as any in the United States. From early morning till late at night the avenue is crowded with people going to the vaudeville and moving pictures, there being no less than eight in the two blocks. At about eight o'clock in the evening it is almost impossible to get on the sidewalk owing to the crowds, and most of the time people are walking in the street. The cigar stores are all doing a nice, big business and increasing every day.

Fred Northquist has succeeded Clarence Dutcher in the cigar business in Greenville, Mich.

The Central Billiard Company has taken a lease on the basement of the Barbour Building, Campus Martius and Monroe Avenue, Detroit. It is now located on the second floor of the same structure. It will continue to operate a cigar stand in a small way.

According to the records in Revenue Collector McLeod's office, two Detroit men, appointed at Washington as deputy inspectors under the new income tax law, with a salary of $1200 each, cannot qualify. They are J. H. Molitor and Frank Schoenherr, both of whom filed bonds as cigar manufacturers. Section 3168 of the Internal Revenue Act says: "Any internal revenue officer who is or shall become interested, directly or indirectly, in the manufacture of tobacco, snuff or cigars, shall be dismissed from office and every officer who becomes interested in any such manufacture, or production, rectification, shall be fined not less than $500, nor more than $5000." Either they must dispose of their cigar interests or give up the positions.

Ninety days in jail, with the alternative of a fine, was the sentence imposed upon James G. Woodward in Battle Creek recently. The charge of grand larceny previously made against him was dismissed with the consent of the prosecuting attorney, and he voluntarily entered a plea of guilty to the charge of simple larceny. Up until a few months ago, Woodward was clerk at the Post Tavern cigar store. Discrepancies were found in his account, and the original complaint made, covering only a period of two months, specified $100 as having been taken although it is understood that the entire amount totaled much more than that.

The cigar industry received somewhat of a jolt a few weeks ago, when in accordance with the city ordinance, every sidewalk stand in town was removed. Many of them handled cigars and cigarettes, and while individually none of them did very much, the aggregate amount of business was quite large. At least fifty of these places were put out of existence.

Grand Rapids has a splendid new hotel, the Mehrtens. C. M. Luce will manage same. It is one of the most modern in the city.

Al Dietsche is on the reception committee of the Detroit Lodge of Elks Committee, which will give a big vaudeville entertainment in February for the benefit of charity.

Charles Fields has moved his cigar store from 502 Ashman Street to larger quarters at 214 Ashman Street, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich. Mr. Fields is probably the best known retailer of cigars in the Soo and surrounding country. He does a fine business the year around, although his harvest is during the summer months, when thousands of people visit the Soo locks. Besides, being in the cigar business, Mr. Fields is City Comptroller and has charge of all the city's financial affairs.

Close to $300 was recently stolen from Reuben Gaugh, proprietor of the Vehicle cigar stand, on Kearsley Street, Flint, Mich. The money was taken from the cash drawer.

L. A. Prout & Son, Levering, Mich., have disposed of their billiard hall and cigar stock to Frank Smith, who will continue the business.

Daniel C. Morea has purchased the store building in Leslie, which he occupies with his restaurant and cigar stock.

William Ried and Grant Sales have formed a co-partnership and opened a cigar store at 413 South Union Street, Traverse City.

Berriman Brothers are pushing their Tampa-made cigars in this territory through Arthur A. Berger, who has opened offices at 503 Whitney Building, in Detroit. He will cover Detroit and Michigan for them.

Police Commissioner Gillespie, in Detroit, has issued an order forbidding the shaking of dice in cigar stores and has given instructions to his men to confiscate all goods given in this way. He will also not permit the use of punch cards of any sort.

Walter James, of the John W. Merriam Company, visited here the past week. Also Leo Weiss. Theo. Werner and Victor Thorsch, of T. J. Dunn & Company, makers of the "New Bachelor" cigars, were working the town, and produced good results. Charles Morris, of Charles S. Morris & Company, was another recent visitor here.

Among the leaf tobacco men here lately have been Billy Levison, Harry Nathan, Mose Eisenberg, Karl Kaffenberg, Howard Kinney, Jules Marqusee and C. S. Sarley. All report good business prospects.

Charles L. Waxelbaum, Sumatra importer of New York City, is now represented in Detroit by Alfred Rothschild, formerly of the firm of Rothschild Brothers, tobacco dealers on Jefferson Avenue, and who discontinued business about a year ago.

Key West

Indications of Brisk Business in 1914—Holiday to Celebrate Running of First Train From Mainland—Francisco Guito Back in Town—President of Havana-American Company a Visitor

KEY WEST, FLA., January 27.

THE business of 1914 with our cigar manufacturers has now begun in real earnest. At all of the factories there are healthy indications of a brisk winter run. While shipments as yet have not shown any increase over the figures of the same date last year, it is due to the fact that some of the factories were delayed in resuming. As they are all now in active operation some large shipping may be looked for within the next ten days or so.

Among the prominent members of the trade who have been visiting the city last week was Emilio P. Cordero, of the "Mi Hogar" factory, of New York City. He was accompanied by his wife and has since left for Cuba, where he will make large purchases of choice leaf for his shop. Mr. Cordero is another of the many clear Havana cigar manufacturers of the United States, who cannot see the point where any benefit is to accrue from "the made in bond ruling."

A cablegram was received at the office of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company on the 15th inst., which conveyed the sad news of the sudden death at Havana of Nestor Myras, son-in-law of Eduardo H. Gato, Sr., Key West's pioneer cigar manufacturer. The deceased was about thirty-seven years of age and is survived by his widow and three children. E. H. Gato, Jr., and Thomas H. Gato, who went on the same date for Havana for the purpose of attending the funeral, have since returned and resumed their duties at the factory.

Mr. Falkenstein, of S. Bachman & Company, is expected to reach town tomorrow.

Fred Artotopago, office manager of George W. Nichols & Company's "Solace" factory, is back again from a short vacation spent at Newbern, N. C. This shop received the largest invoice of tobacco of 1914, getting in 166 bales last week.

Thursday, January 22, was the second anniversary of the arrival of the first train to Key West from the mainland. The day was a holiday and was generally observed by our citizens.

Antonio Nales, who recently took out a factory number, is busy getting things in shape to begin operations. He prepares to take a run through Northern Florida and Georgia very soon in the interest of his shop.

Francisco B. Guito, of F. B. Guito & Company, is back from a trip to Jacksonville, Fla., where he attended the conclave of the Grand Lodge of Masons. During his stay in that city he succeeded in securing a few orders for his shop.

Sam Thompson (Thompson Brothers), left last week for Havana to purchase leaf for his factory.

A. L. Sylvester, president, Havana-American Company, passed through town last week en route from Cuba to Tampa. Domingo Milord, for many years a valued attache of the company, recently received his commission from the Cuban Government as Vice-Consul at this port, succeeding J. M. Garcia Cuervo, who has been promoted to Consul at Colon, Panama.

Little is now heard of the bonding factory proposition and it is not likely there will be anything doing along this line till some time to come. The M. Perez Company has not as yet qualified and they do not seem to be very much in a hurry to place their factory premises under government supervision.

Jaime Pendas, manager of Manda & Company, who has been putting in a few days visiting the leaf growing districts of Cuba, is back again at his post at the factory.

A. D. Silveria, foreman of the picking rooms of the Martinez-Havana Company, is back from Havana, where he went to attend the funeral of his mother. At the factory business is reported O. K.

Vice-President A. B. Jockel, of the Ruy Lopez Co., after visiting in the city for several weeks, has returned to New York headquarters. At the factory business is in excellent shape and they added to their force of cigarmakers yesterday morning.

Jose M. Diaz, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, passed through town recently en route from Havana to Tampa factory headquarters.

"Stag," the "everlastingly good" tobacco, manufactured by the P. Lorillard Company, is being boosted by the local evening paper.

Miss Fannie Nottage and Mr. J. T. Reed were united in marriage here on the afternoon of the 20th inst. The bride is a step-daughter of Mr. Francisco Fleitas, of the "Homerica" factory of S. & F. Fleitas.

Tobacco Deal Causes Suit for Damages

Geo. W. and Emil Watjen, doing business as D. H. Watjen & Company, of Bremen, Germany, having offices in New York, have brought suit in the Federal court at Louisville, Ky., against the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company, claiming damages in several sums, totaling $15,343.76.

The plaintiff declares that in the summer of 1912, between July 29 and August 12, it purchased seventy-seven hogsheads of leaf from the defendant company for the sum of $8601.79.

On arrival in New York, petition states, the hogsheads were found to be of a quality inferior to samples previously submitted, on the basis of which the sale was made. The tobacco was shipped back to the defendant, rejected.

It is claimed that the cost of transportation and of inspecting the hogsheads cost the plaintiff $781.63. Before the inferiority was discovered, states the petition, the tobacco was paid for.

In another instance, states petition, 245 hogsheads of dark leaf were purchased from the defendant company, in two separate transactions, for a total price of $27,261.86. It is declared that this tobacco was found inferior to previous samples, and that through this inferiority the tobacco in the 245 hogsheads depreciated in value to the sum of $5960.34.

The petition states that the payment of these various sums, with interest, has been demanded and refused by the defendant. Plaintiff prays a judgment against the defendant for the several sums of $8601.79, $781.63 and $5960.34, with interest from the dates of the sales and costs in the case.

Wellsburg Stogie Company Has Plenty of Orders

Since the Wellsburg Stogie Company incorporated and enlarged their plant they have enjoyed business far beyond their expectations. According to a report they are putting forth every effort to keep up with the orders for "Blue Ribbon Big Havanas," and are still working day and night to do so.

Annual Meeting of Tobacco Growers

The annual meeting of the New York State Tobacco Growers' Association will be held in the Village Hall, Baldwinsville, N. Y., on Saturday, January 31. During the past year its influence has been of advantage to tobacco raisers in regard to tariff legislation and the securing of laws under which the growing of crops might be fostered. The organization has secured advantageous rates for fertilizer shipments, a good protective tariff and a government technologist, George W. Harris, who for the past several years has conducted tobacco crop experiments in and about Baldwinsville and Central New York.

Yeggmen Blow Open Safe and Get $2000

Quiet work on the part of yeggmen permitted them to blow open the safe of Harry Blume's cigar store at 296 Grand Street, Manhattan, and walk away with $2000, without disturbing a policeman who stood at Grand and Allen Streets, less than one hundred feet away.

The robbery occurred on the evening of the 18th, when the receipts from Saturday and Sunday were thought to be securely guarded in a "fire-proof." So neatly was the trick put over that none of the tenants in the upper five stories of the building in which the store is located heard a sound.

The janitor was going his rounds about 2 A. M. on Monday morning when he saw a light in the office and ran out to get the policeman on the corner, but when he returned the robbers had fled. In their haste they left a perfectly good set of tools behind.

Cleveland

CLEVELAND, January 26.

INVENTORY season is over and practically all the factories are working full blast, trying to make 1914 a bigger year than 1913.

The past year saw Cleveland make a great bound toward the top of the ladder in the point of producing high-grade merchandise.

Cleveland products went to every corner of these great United States and the demand for Cleveland merchandise far exceeded the supply.

The greatest drawback Cleveland has for not being at the top rung of the ladder is due to the lack of labor. In nearly every factory the writer has been in he has met with the same cry: "Business is O. K., but it would be a great deal better if we could get the labor to turn out our orders."

The retailers have enjoyed an immense success the past year. Practically all stands that were in business at the start of 1913 are still at it and showing a nice increase.

Nate Seideman added another store to his chain the past year, namely, the one at the corner of West Twenty-fifth Street and Detroit Avenue. This busy retailer in fact has changed all his locations. He was forced to vacate his stand at West Ninth and Superior Streets, to make room for the new high level bridge. He moved this stand directly across the street and changed the policy of runnig it, keeping his pool tables in a separate room, closed off entirely from the cigar store. He bettered himself by moving into the Snyder location at 519 Superior Avenue, N. W., which they were forced to vacate owing to the expiration of the lease.

Pyle & Allen have retained all their retail stands and added several new ones to their chain. Having taken over Louis Stiglitz's stand at East Fourth and Prospect; remodeled the stand at East Ninth and Vincent, vacated by the Louis Klein Cigar Company, and opened a stand at the corner of Chestnut and East Ninth.

The Snyder organization increased their chain of stores, practically doubling it, they having taken over all the stores owned by The R. & W. Jenkinson Company. They gave up one of these stands located at lower Superior Street, due to the expiration of their lease.

The Fred G. Gollman Cigar Company added another stand to their chain the past year, namely, the one at the north and the old Arcade.

Dave Blum also added the cigar stand in the Moreland Hotel. This gives him two stores on the avenue, the other being located at East Ninth and Euclid.

Mr. Glucksman improved his chain of stores, opening up in the Leader-News Building. This was where Mr. Glucksman first started in business, and is in one of the best locations in the city.

Several new cigar stands and chains of stores have opened here the past year, chiefly among which are the Richland Cigar Company, with two stores, and the Consumers, who have one store running and will open another very shortly. This new stand will be located in the Wilkshire Building, and will be run under the management of Mr. Al Cohn.

The many friends of George Bassett, who runs The Empire cigar store, located at 826 Prospect Avenue, will be pleased to hear of his recovery from his recent illness. Mr. Bassett is attracting a lot of attention to his store these days by a display of all kinds of fruit, raised on his land in the Isle of Pines. Mr. Bassett is threatening to dispose of his interests here and spend the rest of his days on his Island property.

Grover Mendelsohn, of The Mendelsohn Company, has left on a trip through the Western territory and expects to be gone several weeks, putting a campaign on "Decisions," "El Symphony," and "Rigolettas."

All the men of the Shields-Wertheim Company, who were here attending the convention, are all back on their territory and are beginning to send in nice business on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

The Euclid Arcade cigar stand, under the management of Everett B. Lausten, is coming to the front nicely and is proving to be one of the leading stands in the downtown section.

M. E. Loeb, of Canton, was in town the past week.

William Steiner was in town the past week, displaying a picture of a packing and banding machine, which was of great interest to the local manufacturers.

Cleveland is witnessing many and varied displays of cigars, but those that are attracting especial comment are on "La Saramitas," which you see everywhere you gaze. And in the "Pastora" display, in which a cigar is seen revolving about a white disc in pursuit of a feather. Also the electric display signs being put out on "The Decision" cigar.

JERRY.

"Cuesta-Reys" in Wheeling, W. Va.

The Wells Cigar Store, at Wheeling, W. Va., have a splendid window display on "Cuesta-Reys." The cigars were supplied to this company by the Shipley-Massingham Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa.

Italian Tobacco Dealers Complain

The retail tobacco dealers of Italy have protested strongly against the recent decree by which the price of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes was suddenly raised. Their protest, however, is not against the increase in the price of tobacco, but against the decrease of their commission, which is the ultimate result of the decree. They claim that their commission has virtually been reduced from an average of 9 per cent. to 7 per cent. There has been a movement among these retailers to compel the Government to better their condition. In answer to their complaint, the Government said that they had no reason whatever to be discontented with the new prices, for, while they lose a few cents on some articles, they undoubtedly gain with the higher prices on the more popular cigars.

New Factory for Miami

H. H. Pinder, who has been manufacturing cigars in Orlando, Fla., has closed his plant at that place and opened a temporary factory on Eleventh Street in Miami.

Mr. Pinder has purchased a home in Riverside and expects to secure a factory to replace his temporary one that will seat from fifty to one hundred hands.

Cigar Factory for Dubuque

The cigar factory recently started in East Dubuque, Ia., by the firm of Ring & Johnson, is now well supplied with orders and will be busy for some time to come. The people of Dubuque have been called upon to smoke the products of their home factory, and every effort is being put forth to establish the factory as a stable industry of the city.

Maiolani Brothers in Voluntary Bankruptcy

Maiolani Brothers, merchants, of 1301 West Main Street, Richmond, Va., have filed a petition in voluntary bankruptcy in the Federal court, placing their liabilities at $1149.67, with assets totaling $600. The principal creditors are Frank W. Carter, R. L. Christian & Company, Christo Manufacturing Company and Cliff Weil Cigar Company.

Art Gift From Horner Tobacco Company

This office is in receipt of a handsome art calendar from the Horner Tobacco Company, Dayton, O. The scene represents an old English living room, furnished for comfort, its already cheerful aspect being heightened by the sunlight streaming through a window. Seated near the table with their great long pipes and glasses of punch near at hand, are two gentlemen, one much older than the other. Both are being entertained by a seemingly friendly card trickster, judging by the cards he holds in his hand and the remaining ones on the table. The picture is entitled "When Good Fellows Get Together," and is a splendid example of the printer's art. We deem ourselves fortunate in being numbered among those receiving the calendars.

John A. Gerow, for many years associated with the firm of Daniel Scotten Tobacco Company, died on January 10. He was sixty-five years of age. He was also at one time manager of the Michigan Tobacco Company, in Detroit.

Leland Skinkle has reorganized his cigar business and reincorporated under the name of the City of the Straits Cigar Manufacturing Company. The capital stock is $50,000. The principal stockholders are Charles A. Connor, Leland O. Skinkle and Allan Bricker, all being equal holders of stock in the concern.

It is reported that Best & Russell Company have signed a lease for the cigar store to be located in the new Orpheum Theatre Building, corner of Lafayette and Shelby Streets, to be completed May 1. For many years there was a cigar store on the same spot, operated by Ambos Company.

AL U. THORNBURG.

Los Angeles

"Cinco" Cigars Had Big Year in Los Angeles—"Portuondo" Smokes Selling Well on the Coast—Many Window Displays on "San Felice"—Klingenstein Company Working on Regensburg Products.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., January 21, 1914.

BUSINESS is keeping up remarkably well in Los Angeles, and dealers as well as jobbers of this city report that they are well satisfied with the early 1914 business.

Sam Foster, running a cigar store in front of the Colorado barber shop, has decided he needed a little rest; so he called on the Los Angeles Board of Trade, and after listening to his troubles, Mr. Peters, secretary of the Board of Trade, seconded his motion that he needed a rest. So Sam turned over the keys and a list of creditors. His liabilities were about $3100; assets, $60 stock. Sam has played no favorites, as the list shows practically all the jobbers' names on it.

Warner Searle, Coast representative of the Juan F. Portuondo Company, has been in this city the past few days, visiting his jobber, Klauber-Wangenheim Company, and left much pleased, as the "Portuondo" is selling very good around here.

The Max Roth Cigar Company, of this city, informs your correspondent that they have just closed one of their most prosperous business years. The reason can easily be seen when one is told that they carry two of the most popular and best selling brands in the "Bachelor" and "El Wadora" staple. The bulk of the work falls on the shoulders of Mr. Max Roth, head of the concern, and too much credit cannot be meted out to him. What's more, he deals on the square at all times and good business is the reward.

Harry Havel, city salesman for Klauber-Wangenheim Company, has broken all records the last three days by selling 14,300 "Optimo" cigars, assorted sizes. All hope he will keep up the good work.

"Sarzedas" cigars are getting quite a distribution through the notable cafes and saloons of this city. J. J. Gans Brothers report a splendid business on the brand.

Anthony Schwamm, Coast representative for P. Lorillard Company, is doing great work with "Stag" tobacco. The "Stag" five-cent tins are gaining friends every day in this section.

The best seller at Ed Cohn's cigar store is "San Felice." Ed says "San Felice," first, last, and all the time.

The M. A. Gunst Cigar Company have arranged in all their windows, in all their retail stores, "Van Dyck" displays. They are exceedingly attractive.

Fred Barman & Brothers are busy these days looking for new locations for retail stores. In the past few days, they have signed up a few good leases. The last one is going to be the cream of them all. It is to be at the corner of Sixth and Spring Streets.

"Don Remo" is again much in evidence throughout the city, as M. A. Newmark & Company have just received a large shipment. Joe Goldsmith and Fred Conwell are very busy filling orders for "Don Remo." This cigar is gaining ground every day. At the present time M. A. Newmark & Company are making a strong window display campaign on the brand. Mr. Allen Davis, maker of this cigar, is expected here next week to look over the work.

George W. Walker Cigar Company, Beck & Company's successors, report "Henry the Fourth" cigars (Bustillo Brothers & Diaz) selling very good. The Queen sizes are outselling all others.

Rob Gans, of J. J. Gans Brothers, known as the "only" live wire in the cigar game hereabouts, has just returned from the Imperial Valley, having completed the most successful trips on record. "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" were his sellers and he brought home the bacon. Rob is off again for Bakersfield.

A number of "San Felice" window displays have been put in around town during the past week and show up as artistic and attractive to the eye.

Ike Wentworth is still on the job, boosting "Lovera" cigars with great success. "Ike," as he is called by all his friends, has put forth a resolution which is some "resolushun." He swears he will increase the business on "Lovera" cigars and on the face of the fact that he is no slouch, he should fulfill his resolution, and then some.

A. Mussatti, at 600 San Fernando Street, is having a fine sale on "Reynaldo" cigars. Morris Burke, distributor of the "Reynaldo" cigar has had made a glass sign, measuring ten by twelve feet, advertising "Reynaldo" cigars. This he installed at Mr. Mussatti's store and is a very attractive piece of work.

The Klingenstein Company is preparing for a big advertising campaign on "La Preferencia" cigars. They are placing numerous window displays of this brand about the city. "Milo" and "Duke of York" cigarettes, manufactured by the Surbrug Company, are moving most satisfactorily.

They are also having some elegant window displays of the "American," manufactured by E. Regensburg & Sons. "Cinco" is causing a greater demand as time goes on.

Fire Destroys 40,000 Pounds of Tobacco

A fire in the warehouse of Wesley Coleman, at Stout, O., destroyed 40,000 pounds of tobacco stored there. The leaf was of excellent quality. The fire occurred on the 16th.

Ford Tobacco Company Wants to Change Name

The Ford Tobacco Company has filed an application in Nashville, Tenn., for an amendment to its charter to change the name of the company to "The Union Tobacco Works."

Ex-City Treasurer Michael J. Boland has purchased an interest in the Bugbee & Brown Company, cigar and tobacco dealers, on Main Street, Biddeford, Me., and will begin his duties as treasurer there immediately.

Indictment Against Leaf Tobacco Dealer Quashed

A. U. Johns, a leaf tobacco dealer of Trenton, O., who was indicted several months ago on charges of violating the internal revenue laws relative to making returns on leaf tobacco handled by him, was dismissed by Judge Hollister, of Cincinnati, who quashed the indictment.

The action of the court followed the announcement of District Attorney McPherson that Mr. Johns had compromised the case with the Internal Revenue Commissioner at Washington.

Leaf Tobacco Market

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

Owing to the cold spell stripping has been held up, but as a matter of fact most of this work was finished before the cold snap got to the crops.

The strike situation in regard to the cigarmakers is not taken seriously, although the packers say they feel it somewhat. However, as most of the manufacturers with the exception of the large ones are short on stock, things are picking up.

The talk of organizing a pool for the 1913 crop in Lancaster County has been the main subject of conversation, although candid opinion expresses a doubt as to its possibility or feasibility. The fact that there are 6000 growers in the county and that only some 200 have fallen in line is not looked upon as auspicious for the pool.

It may be that the talk of a pool has encouraged the packers to ask for higher prices; at any rate they are doing it. This has had some effect on sales, but the knowledge that many of the factories are short on stock encourages the belief that the packers will get what they ask.

Although there seems to be no big buying movement, it is evident that one by one the crops are being quietly bought up, but not much is known as to prices.

The packers are not overburdened with stock at this time, except of course, the 1909 leaf. As has been previously stated, this crop is moving quietly, and there is much less in the market than is generally supposed; 1910 and 1911 is practically all bought up, but there is some 1912 still in the hands of dealers.

The fact that little buying has been done and that crops are low would indicate that a big buying movement is about due. If it comes in a rush, the growers may be able to get a little more than they originally expected for their crops.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

The weather during the past week has given the growers a chance to take down the last of their tobacco and to complete the stripping.

At the warehouses most of them are working to full capacity, and the work is progressing to the satisfaction of all.

Some contracts have been placed for the low grades and it is noted that the prices for the same are somewhat under the figures of a year ago.

There is a noticeable lack of the big receiving days, such as have featured other years. The delivery of early purchases is steadily going on, but they are coming in small lots.

The shipments out of storage for the fortnight will approximate about 700 cases.

TENNESSEE

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

The past week has been one of unusual activity in the Black Patch in the loose leaf market. The damp weather has permitted the work of stripping to continue, and this has increased deliveries.

The larger part of the deliveries have gone to the rehandling houses, although the prizing houses have received a reasonable share. Prices on the loose leaf floors have ranged from three and one-half cents for trash, to eleven cents for the better quality leaf.

There is a dearth of better quality leaf and this is thought to be due to the activity of the buyers in the country. The entire Clarksville district has been gone over thoroughly and while there is a lot of good leaf still unsold, it is said to be inferior to that already bought.

The association has not yet offered its tobacco, but is expected that certain types will be marketed shortly. The association still holds nearly 200 hogsheads of the old crop, most of it, however, is of a nondescript character.

KENTUCKY

LEXINGTON, KY.

Receipts have been light for some days past, but the quality has been good and the prices have been steady and strong. Most of the leaf is a trifle too dry to handle, but it is expected that as soon as a good rain comes the receipts at the warehouses will increase considerably.

During the past week the floor space of the warehouses has been taxed to capacity.

HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

The sales on the loose leaf floors for the past week again went above the half million pounds mark. The sales have been heavy every day and the buyers have been keen. There were no fancy tobaccos offered and hence no fancy prices, but the figures for the different grades have remained strong.

With the exception of the low and trashy grades, the prices held up well through the week. The condition showed improvement as far as wetness was concerned, but the cold spell had frozen this out and caused the leaf to be rough.

THE CAROLINAS

KINGSTON, N. C.

The cause of the small number of pounds being placed on the market at present is not settled in the minds of all who have to do with the tobacco market. Some think that the slowness with which the weed is being brought into the market is due almost altogether to the dry and rather cold weather, which makes tobacco bad to handle unless the proper apparatus is had for casing it.

And then there are many who think the farmers are being kept away by what seems to be a low price, the average price for the past week being around fourteen and fifteen cents per pound. Looking at the average price, the farmer gets the idea that the price of tobacco has fallen and that his crop will bring but little of its real value if placed on the market, and therefore he keeps his tobacco waiting in his barns. This is undoubtedly one of the causes for the small quantity of tobacco being placed on the market. But the idea that the price of tobacco has fallen is largely erroneous. It is practically as high now as it was last fall, when the average price was soaring around twenty cents per pound.

The buyers of every house in the city and of houses out of the city are now on the floors of the several warehouses, and the prices are undoubtedly better now than they will be when the market is left to two or three buyers to take the tobacco offered at their own prices.

Russian Tobacco Crop

Owing to the increasing value of land and cost of labor, as well as the exceedingly low prices brought by tobacco of the lower qualities, the tobacco industry in Russia saw a reduction of area under cultivation in 1913 as compared with 1912, amounting to 28 per cent. in Bessarabia, 26 per cent. in Tchernigov, and 16 per cent. in Poltava. In a number of localities near sugar factories tobacco growing is being given up in favor of the cultivation of the sugar beet.

Prices ranged as follows, according to locality: Kief, from $2.99 to $8.83 per 100 pounds; Orel, from $1.72 to $3.27; Poltava, from $1.43 to $5.98; Riazan, $0.83 to $4.13; Tambov, from $0.86 to $1.43; Tchernigov, $1.43 to $1.77; Tula, $2.13 to $2.85; Voronezh, $1.43 to $1.72. These prices were paid for large and uniform lots, while small lots from poorer farmers brought even less. Finer qualities of tobacco, which are produced in moderate quantities in Bessarabia, the Crimea, and the west coast of the Caucasus, are sold at much higher prices, ranging as high as $42.78 per 100 pounds in some instances.

The production for 1913, as regards quality and quantity, did not fully come up to expectations. When the time came to cure the plants much difficulty was met with owing to frequent rains and dampness. Russia is not expected to have any considerable surplus of tobacco for export from the 1913 crop.

German Tobacco Harvest

Consul-General T. St. John Gaffney, Munich, has sent the following report to the "Daily Consular and Trade Reports":

The German tobacco harvest for the year ended June 30, 1913, amounted to 85,740,492 pounds. The plantation area was 38,983 acres and the average harvest per acre was 2200 pounds, with a value of $136, the highest average value per acre since 1908. The largest amount and the highest value per acre were found in Alsace-Lorraine, where the figures were 2759 pounds and $279, respectively. The total harvest of 1911-12 amounted to 64,332,868 pounds, the area planted was 42,049 acres, and the average yield per acre was 1530 pounds.

The crop of 1912-13 was valued at $5,286,831 (not including the tax) and the average price was $6.17 per 100 pounds, while the crop of the preceding year, which sold at the average price of $6.42 per 100 pounds, was valued at $4,127,472. The chief producing States and the value of their crops in 1912-13 were as follows: Baden, $2,403,621; Prussia, $1,161,912; Bavaria, $785,820; Alsace-Lorraine, $699,316.

Lancaster Tobacco Growers Meet

An interesting meeting was that held in Lancaster, Friday evening, January 16, in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce, when the Lancaster Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade and the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association met in joint session to formulate plans for the improving of the quality of the tobacco grown in that county. William DeHaven, chairman of the committee, presided.

A formula for improving the quality of the tobacco, the same having been previously analyzed, was sent by the committee to Dr. F. M. Frear, of State College. In this connection, it was decided that until the formula had been accepted by the committee, no announcement regarding the same would be made. Should the formula be adopted, it is the intention of the associations to print it for distribution among the growers. A lengthy article treating of the tobacco industry from the planting of the seed until the crop is in the hands of the packer, was read by D. H. Landis, of Window. This, also, will be printed and circulated among the growers.

Among those present were William DeHaven, Morris Rosenthal, Charles E. Long, Joseph Goldberg, Jacob Bowman and A. B. Hess, of the Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade, and J. Aldus Herr, Amos Gilbert, D. H. Landis, Hiram S. Hershey, Amos Hershey, George Hibshman and F. M. Stevenson.

S. S. Hauenstein

Seized with an attack of paralysis of the heart, while helping to unload some lumber at his warehouse at Lincoln, Pa., S. S. Hauenstein, a prominent cigar manufacturer of that place, was carried into his factory, where he died a few minutes later. The deceased was sixty-three years old and is survived by a widow and two sons.

43,800,000 Cigars Consumed in Des Moines Last Year

One rather expects that a city of a fair-sized population, that is the male portion of the said population, would consume in a year quite a number of cigars, but one is apt to gasp when it is stated that 43,800,000 cigars were smoked in Des Moines, Iowa, during the year 1913. Yet this astounding piece of news is further supplemented by the fact that if the total number of cigars were stretched in a straight line, they would reach from San Francisco to New York and thence to Coney Island. From the latter point, the line could be extended comfortably to Albany, and if one were anxious to utilize all the material at hand, Niagara Falls might be able to get a sniff of aroma from the fading line.

This is certainly a record for the Western city, and one that spells Progress with a Capital "P." Her colleagues throughout the country will do well to look to their laurels, inasmuch as 43,800,000 cigars is a power to reckon with.

Lancaster Notes

Work is now progressing on the new two-story frame building to be used as a cigar factory by the Dover Cigar Company, Lancaster, Pa. The structure will be 26 by 50 feet, equipped with an elevator and all the latest appliances for cigar factories. About thirty cigarmakers and packers will be employed.

The recent remodeling of the interior of the Kohler & Smith cigar factory, Lancaster, Pa., necessitated the closing of the building for a short period.

Monday, February 9, is the date set for the corn and tobacco show at Lancaster, Pa.

Tobacco Sales and Octroi Duties in France

Consul-General Frank H. Mason, at Paris, has sent the following report to the "Daily Consular and Trade Reports":

According to recently published statistics, the total sales of tobacco in all its forms by the French Régie during 1912 amounted to 41,516,935 kilograms, or 91,529,166 pounds, which yielded a revenue of 535,257,534 francs, equal to $103,304,704. Of these gross receipts 407,330,820 francs ($78,614,848), or 76 per cent., are stated to have been net profits.

Octroi, or local customs duties, upon food products, fuel, building materials, etc., are collected by most of the important towns of France on goods brought within their limits for consumption. The octroi duties collected during 1912 amounted to 324,074,583 francs, or $62,546,395, an increase of $1,731,849 over the receipts of 1911. Of the whole amount Paris collected 127,624,930 francs, or $24,631,611, nearly 40 per cent. of the entire amount.

The New Tuxedo 40c Tin Humidor

ASSOCIATED CIGAR STORES TO FEATURE HIGH MORAL STANDARD

To Open Twenty-nine New Clubs in 1914—Childs Restaurants to Handle Their Goods—Operation Differs Entirely From That of Any Other Chain—Incorporated for $250,000

WITH John A. Stevens, J. R. Gilfillian and C. R. Ackerson as incorporators, the Associated Cigar Stores of America have been launched in Syracuse, with an authorized capital of $250,000. The plans of this new chain for the extension of the cigar and tobacco business differs entirely from that of any other company of the same nature in the trade. They will own every brand of cigars and tobacco that they sell, and only recently acquired five brands of cigarettes and thirty brands of smoking tobacco. They purchase from union and non-union factories, independent or allied, but will aim to buy their cigars in the same towns in which their clubs are located. In each town they hope to build up an independent factory to supply the goods for that division.

A system of coupons has been established and all independent dealers who handle the goods of the association receive them without charge. The coupons are issued in the five-cent and ten-cent denominations and certificates, representing a twenty-five-cent purchase are given out. These certificates are exchangeable for two cents in trade or one cent in cash.

In Syracuse the membership of this Association totals about 3000, while Utica and Rochester show rosters of about 1500 each. It is expected that within the next month, clubs will be opened in Buffalo, Rochester and Cleveland, and shortly after that the chain will be widely extended both in the West and South.

The goods of the Associated Cigar Stores of America will be sold and distributed through clubs. Dealers who are embraced in the coupon system are known as members. There are club rooms already in several cities. Admittance to these is by a card supplied by a dealer. Should one care to take advantage of the pool and billiard privileges, a charge of three dollars a year is made.

The club will accept as members, any young man more than twenty-one years old and of good repute. He must be employed and be supplied with a card from a member. In these clubs lunches will be served at moderate prices.

A feature of these clubs is the high moral standard which is being maintained. Gambling is absolutely prohibited and no intoxicants of any kind are allowed. The club in Syracuse is being remodeled, and no expense is being spared in making it up to date and comfortable. Some of the most prominent men in Syracuse are interested in the movement.

The Childs restaurants will handle the goods sold by this Association and the buildings of many of these stands are being placed at the disposal of the divisions in different cities.

The Association has just placed a single order for 7,500,000 cigars. Their present distribution is about 200,000 cigars a month.

The Association is profit-sharing and all surplus will be invested for the benefit of the club.

UNITED CIGAR STORES CO. ADOPT UNIFORM WAGE SCALE

NEW YORK, February 10, 1914.

IN order to more fairly equalize the salaries of the employees of the United Cigar Stores Company, a new plan of compensation has been put into effect this week which, it is claimed, will vastly increase the earnings of the smaller clerks, and at the same time temporarily cut down the earnings of a few. Vice-President Elliott Averett says that while it will mean a saving of from $175,000 to $200,000 annually, it will not have the effect of a general reduction. However the clerks claim otherwise.

In the beginning the clerks of the United Cigar Stores Company were paid different salaries in different stores, and were not based on total sales. This was followed by a plan to permit the chief clerk to decide on the salaries of the men in his store under him; he hired whom he pleased and paid them whatever they would work for. The chief clerk received a commission on all sales and his salary was the difference between the amount of his commissions and his payroll. This plan, however, soon brought on an abuse. When one man had trained a clerk and taught him the lines, some other manager would offer him a larger salary to work in his store, and then the former would have his work to do over again.

To cure this evil, the district system was introduced. The district sales manager, with twenty-five or thirty stores, then took over the payroll and made it up; he employed all the men in the stores under his jurisdiction and shifted them as he deemed best for the company's interests.

The latest in "United" wage scales provides for a system graduated from the store doing $1500 a week, with four clerks, to a store doing $300 a week, with two clerks.

No store doing less than $900 a week is entitled to more than two clerks, and from $900 to $1500 only three clerks are allowed.

Ramon Arguelles Has Narrow Escape in Auto Accident

HAVANA, CUBA, February 9, 1914.

What might have been a serious accident, occurred during the last fortnight, when Don Ramon Arguelles, of the Romeo y Julieta factory, accompanied by their buyers, and Don Jose F. Rocha, were returning from an inspection trip through the Vuelta Abajo. The road from Vinales to Pinar del Rio leads down a steep mountain, flanked by abrupt abysses, and as it would happen, the chauffeur of the auto they were in, lost control of the steering wheel, the car going directly towards the abyss. Don Jose F. Rocha, who was the first to note the danger, jumped and escaped with a few slight bruises on his right hand. Miraculous to say, however, when the forward wheels of the auto were already in the air above the abyss, the car stopped and the other inmates were saved from a frightful, sure death. Providence certainly came to the rescue of Don Ramon Arguelles and his companions.

Yahn & McDonnell Successful With "Hoyo de Cuba"

THE four retail stores of Yahn & McDonnell, with headquarters at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets, are meeting with unusual success in introducing the "Hoyo de Cuba" clear Havana cigars, manufactured by San Martin & Leon, Tampa, Fla.

About twenty sizes of these goods are carried in stock, and range in price from the popular three for a quarter to the twenty-five cents straight.

Another brand which is receiving the attention of this wide awake firm is the "Juan de Fuca," manufactured in bond by the Morgan Cigar Company, of Tampa, Fla.

"Alona" Cigars Introduced Here by Acker Company.

The Gene-Vall Cigar Company, Incorporated, 801-803 Third Avenue, New York City, are introducing their "Alona" clear Havana cigars in Philadelphia through the cigar departments of the Finley Acker Company stores.

A special display of these goods will be made in the Twelfth and Market Streets store, under the direction of J. Durbin Acker, head of the cigar department at Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store.

The "Alonas" will be carried at present under five sizes, with prices of three for a quarter, two for a quarter, and ten cents straight.

Eisenlohr Brothers Lease Two More Factories

Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, the manufacturers of the well-known and popular "Cinco" cigar, have leased the buildings formerly occupied by the United Cigar Manufacturers Company, as cigar factories, at Dallastown, Pa., and Windsor, Pa.

Both of these buildings are now being refitted with modern up-to-date fixtures, so that they will be on a par with the other factories of this firm, which are reputed to be as near perfect as possible, in regard to cleanliness, sanitary conditions generally, and the comfort of their employees.

These factories, like all of their other factories, will make strictly hand work.

The Dallastown factory will have accommodations for about two hundred, and the one at Windsor for about one hundred and fifty hands.

Both of these factories will be put into operation as soon as the necessary alterations, etc., shall be completed.

"El Palencia" at Atherholt's

J. G. ATHERHOLT, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, has an unusually attractive window display of "El Palencia" cigars, manufactured by Boltz, Clymer & Company, whose Philadelphia headquarters are located at Fifteenth Street and Lehigh Avenue.

Mr. Atherholt is carrying in stock sixteen sizes of this well-known cigar, with prices ranging from the nickel goods, which sell for five dollars the hundred, to the higher grade quarter size, which can be purchased for twenty-two dollars the hundred.

President of De Lisser-Schneider Firm Ill

Friends of Stanley De Lisser, president of the De Lisser-Schneider Company, manufacturers of the "Lord Colbeck" and other high-grade brands, will regret to learn that he is confined to his home by illness.

Mr. De Lisser has recently returned from a strenuous trip through the West, in the interests of his business, and brought back some splendid orders for "Lord Colbeck" and "De Lis."

The many friends of Mr. De Lisser trust that his indisposition will be of brief duration and that his cheerful countenance will soon greet the trade again.

"Bold" Salesmen Find Business Good

Henry Riesenberg, Western representative of Bobrow Brothers, is receiving a cordial reception since his return from Paris. Many new accounts are coming his way, and he finds a nice duplicating business with all his old "Bold" customers.

L. M. Walters, Eastern representative, returned to the home office on the 12th. He reports an excellent business and says that conditions in the trade are very favorable. He will start South early in the week.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, have erected a large electric display sign on the roof of the building at the northeast corner of Ninth and Market Streets, Philadelphia, for the purpose of advertising their "Fatima" cigarettes.

The frame work is of iron and the arrangement of the sign is such that it can easily be read during the day, before the electric current is turned on.

Hugo M. Duisberg, formerly president of Gumpert Brothers, 227 Church Street, Philadelphia, has severed his connection with that firm.

A. A. Gumpert, formerly treasurer, has been elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Mr. Duisberg.

MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

ANY cigar salesman worthy of the name will find much food for thought in studying the career of Charles J. Castillo, now vice-president and sales manager of the San Martin & Leon Company, of Tampa, Florida. Here is a man who started out two years ago with a practically unknown line and he has succeeded in that brief period, in making the brands of his company a synonym for quality where ever good cigars are smoked.

This remarkable man began laying the foundations for a successful career, twenty years ago, when he was turned loose with an order book without any previous instructions as to the best methods for selling cigars.

After a short period, filled with uncertain success, Mr. Castillo located with a firm in St. Louis, and for ten years covered the territory from that city to the Pacific Coast, going over the route four times a year and trailing as far northward as Alaska.

CHARLES J. CASTILLO

Some two years ago the San Martin & Leon Company was organized and in looking around for a man of the right calibre for the position of vice-president and sales manager, it is not to be wondered at that Charles J. Castillo was the man chosen for the position. After he was duly installed he found that he had a practically unknown line to introduce, and being made of the stuff that makes for success, he set out to spread the fame of the firm's line. It is, therefore, not surprising that the brands "San Martin Y Leon," "Hoyo de Cuba" and "El Briche" are today known from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the Lakes to the Gulf.

When you stop to consider that less than two years ago the production of the San Martin & Leon Company's factory was practically "nil," and that for the current year it will total upwards of 6,000,000 cigars, you will then realize what a wonderful work has been accomplished since Mr. Castillo first packed his sample case some two years back.

And herein lies one of the secrets of success which has crowned the efforts of Mr. Castillo, for there is no man in the cigar business today who is a greater glutton for work.

Work to this man is what the footlights are to the actor, the grandstands to the baseball player, electricity without some object to attain, to an Edison or a Marconi, for some obstacle to overcome, life would lose its zest and living be stale and profitless.

As an example of his great desire for work, Mr. Castillo invariably plans for some special display of samples on Saturday—the day most salesmen will say belongs to them—and the initial order sold to a prominent dealer on Broadway, New York City, was closed between six and seven o'clock on a Saturday evening.

Closely allied to this insatiate desire for work, is his absolute faith in the cigars manufactured by the San Martin & Leon Company. Nor is this faith entirely, for Mr. Castillo is too familiar with the plantations in Cuba where the tobacco is grown, to accept another man's say so, for that which is his by right of first hand knowledge.

Another cog in the machinery which has made for the success of Mr. Castillo is his ability to concentrate not only every faculty which he possesses, but those of the prospective buyer as well, for when Mr. Castillo is mentioning the merits of "San Martin Y Leon," "Hoyo de Cuba" and "El Briche," there is nothing else in the world that demands his attention, or the attention of the buyer.

Coincident with these inherent qualities is the adaptability exercised by Mr. Castillo in sizing up a prospective purchaser and by just the proper approach, secure the attention and interest necessary for the display of goods and the quoting of prices.

That the proper approach may sometimes be indifference was demonstrated in a small town in Alabama. Mr. Castillo called at the store of a druggist who handled quite a line of Tampa-made cigars. When the druggist espied the sample case he ducked behind the prescription partition with the curt announcement that he "didn't need anything today." Placing himself just far enough back of the counter to make sure that he could be heard, Mr. Castillo asked: "Cannot a customer be served with ice cream, or is the counter automatic?"

The druggist hastily produced the desired commodity, but as Mr. Castillo paid strict attention to refreshing himself with the ice cream, curiosity finally triumphed, and

I HAVE noticed that playwrights all over the world have found that tobacco is a fine adjunct for stage business, so called, in their plays and many clever tricks with cigars and cigarettes have been introduced in well-known productions during recent years. Many will recall the clever trick originated by William H. Thompson of rolling a cigarette, with one hand in his pocket, during one of the most intense scenes in a play of a few years ago. This was again introduced in the "Round-Up," by Maclyn Arbuckle, and the feat always brought much applause..

In one of the most popular Broadway productions now running in New York, the leading actor, Lewis Stone, has introduced a neat idea for foiling the villain of the play. During the action of the show a scene takes place where the hero is in the utmost peril, unarmed and at the mercy of the man who believes he has stolen his sweetheart; the man is covering him with a revolver and has given him just a minute to answer unanswerable questions. The actor is resting against a table, his hands travel down and clasp his bag of "Bull Durham" tobacco. Quickly the outraged lover demands what he has in his hand. "Merely my 'Bull Durham' for cigarettes," says Mr. Stone, pouring out the tobacco in his hand as he speaks, and stretching forth his arm toward the man to show it to him. Just for a second his enemy is off his guard. Instantly the hero takes advantage and blows the handful of granulated tobacco full in his face. The villain is blinded and in pain, and before he can recover, the gun is wrenched from his hand, and the hero is master of the situation.

It's a cute little trick and never fails to bring down the house.

I was much amused recently at the plan adopted by a very good friend of mine who is a physician, to prevent his fifteen-year-old son from acquiring the cigarette habit.

It seems that the boy's father has a pipe that is well seasoned and sweet, which affords considerable comfort after the work of the day has been accomplished, and to which the son had taken quite a fancy.

Upon one occasion the son had formed such an attraction for the "hod" that while he managed to consume an entire bowlful of tobacco, the after-effects had been such as to prove that to repeat the attempt would be to court disaster.

Hearing from older men that they had started with cigarettes, the young hopeful had conceived the idea of adopting their method, but was surprised by his father just as he was half way through a "pill."

That it was not the first one was demonstrated by the nonchalance with which the son received the announcement that so long as he had started using the weed, the best thing for him to do was to be a man and start smoking cigars, and leave cigarettes to persons of weaker physique.

Procuring a long black Havana, the doctor bid the son join us in the den and enjoy himself in the company of other smokers. The first half of the cigar was consumed without difficulty and no one had suffered any ill effects and my friend was afraid that his lesson was about to fail, when he conceived the idea of all taking a drink of the purest the Schuylkill affords.

Excusing himself for a moment the doctor returned with three glasses of water, but I caught his eye as he entered the room and settled back to await developments.

After a few minutes had elapsed there was a sudden stillness in the den, and a pale, sickly pallor began to overspread the countenance of the son, and in less than five minutes the boy lay on his bed white and limp.

Having heard the commotion in the bath room his mother rushed upstairs to see what had caused all the trouble, but beat a hasty retreat when the good doctor whispered: "Just a little nux vomica, my dear, to help remove the nicotine absorbed by the smoking of the Havana cigar."

A friend of mine recently returned from the Philippines, who, while there, had been on a hiking trip through one of the provinces where milestones were conspicuous by their absence, told me a story which I think is worth repeating.

He was tramping one day toward a certain town, and feeling that the distance was greater than he at first supposed, he stopped at a small barrio or road house and inquired the number of miles to X——. He was told that it was about so many cigarettes, a number being mentioned, so he trudged along until he consumed the required number, but he could not discover any signs of the village. So he stopped at the next barrio that he came to and was surprised to receive the same answer, with the same number of cigarettes mentioned. He again set out upon his way and consumed the required number of cigarettes to bring him to his destination, but at the end of that time, the town was nowhere in sight. Finally he entered the third road house and inquired how far it was to X——; to his amazement he received the identical answer that had been given at the other places, the number of cigarettes being the same.

As he heard the words he says he heaved a sigh, then smiled and muttered:

"Well, thank God, I am keeping up with it anyway."

"Where's the coupons?" he asked, ignoring grammar with the savoir faire for which he was noted.

Thus it will be noticed, he kept ahead of the times. —Exchange.

"Of the making of books there is no end," said an old sage, and it seems to us that this might apply equally well to the cigarette business, judging from the new brands which are constantly being placed on sale.

Where Will It End?

Many of the uninitiated must imagine that it is the simplest matter in the world to place a new brand of cigarettes upon the market and to immediately build up a business which yields handsome profits, but the manufacturers who are in the business can tell another story and one which is anything but encouraging to the novice who wishes to enter the field.

During the past four years we can only recall one or two brands of cigarettes which have been put out and which have met with any success when pitted against the giant concerns whose brands are already on the market. And these few brands were backed by large capital which was spent from the outset without thought of immediate returns. The capital, too, in all cases was expended by clever and experienced cigarette men who knew how to get hold of distributors and also knew that their goods must be of superior excellence to make any headway whatsoever.

At this present time scarcely a day passes in the leading markets of the country when there is not an attempt to push a new brand of cigarettes before the public. It can be easily surmised that the newcomers have a most difficult road to travel and one which is bound to cost them money.

While it is true that the big manufacturers of established brands have in times past made large profits on their goods it is an open question today as to what their balance sheets will show if the present prodigal methods are continued both in advertising and from a premium standpoint. Full page advertisements in the leading metropolitan newspapers, cash coupons packed in the boxes, expensive rugs for premiums, extra discounts and bonus offers all eat into profits in a most disheartening manner and there seems to be no surcease in the scramble. This applies particularly to the cheaper brands of cigarettes, but the whole industry is affected in the same way and eventually there must come a breaking point. Untold thousands of dollars have been spent in the last year on souvenir rugs to be packed in cigarette packages and after a careful inquiry on our part and quizzing of a dozen dealers, we are forced to the conclusion that not one-tenth of the amount of money expended has come back in increased sales on the cigarettes in which rugs were packed.

It would be most interesting to know the real facts as to what percentage of increased sales has been obtained on "Murads," with which the manufacturers are now packing a German silver oval-shaped cigarette holder on boxes of twenty. There is absolutely nothing invidious in this thought, but if the manufacturers of a brand so well established deem it good business under the present distressing conditions to put up this expensive souvenir, where can the unknown brand have a fighting chance?

We have observed that most of the new brands must have seen some of the stones in the pathway, for the new packages are almost without exception put up to sell for twenty or twenty-five cents for packages of ten, which, in a degree, removed them from the open combat. After all is said the market is broad and quality will tell in the end, so that if we had any word of suggestion to the newcomer it would be: If you intend to manufacture cigarettes make quality the keynote of your business from the beginning and never, under any pressure, lower the standard.

Stork Pays Visit to Home of President Alonso

President E. Alonso, of the Por Larranaga factory, of Havana, has been receiving congratulations during the past fortnight on the arrival in his home of a new baby girl, which was born on the fourth instant.

In a cable acknowledging congratulations from New York, Mr. Alonso says that both the mother and child are doing splendidly.

Canada May Bar Cigarettes

Notice of the introduction in the House of Commons at Ottawa, of a bill seeking to kill the cigarette industry in Canada has been given by Mr. Broder, one of the leading Conservative members, who is supposed to be in line for promotion to the Cabinet in the near future.

The bill prohibits the manufacture and sale in Canada of cigarettes and cigarette papers and wrappers, and prohibits their importation into the country. On account of the prominence of the author of the bill the notice has seriously alarmed the great tobacco interests, Canadian and foreign, and a determined opposition to its passage is being organized.

ALEXANDER T. LEFTWICH DEAD

Founder of Old Tobacco Firm—Member of Many Clubs—Widely-Known Confederate Veteran

ALEXANDER T. LEFTWICH, sole surviving member of the old tobacco firm of Richards, Leftwich & Company, died on February 5, at his home, 12 East Preston Street, Baltimore, Md.

Few men were more widely known or more generally liked than was Mr. Leftwich. He was one of the oldest members of the Maryland Club, one of the oldest members of the Baltimore Country Club, and belonged to the Elkridge Hunt Club, the Merchants' Club, and was for years president of the Baltimore Association of the Alumni of the University of Virginia.

Mr. Leftwich was a Confederate veteran and was among those who stood the privations and suffering of the siege of Vicksburg.

Mr. Leftwich established the tobacco business of Richards, Leftwich & Company. He was the only surviving member of this firm when he died. As a member of this firm he traveled extensively in Japan, China and Europe. He organized the department of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad known as the Locust Point tobacco inspection. He was the Belgian Consul in Baltimore for years and a few months ago was given by the King of Belgium the decoration of Chevalier of the Order of the Crown. Two other men in Baltimore have that honor—Cardinal Gibbons and James A. Whitely.

The deceased was born in Lynchburg, Va., January 18, 1845, of very distinguished English family. He married, in 1878, Rosalie Vivian Lightfoot, of Mobile, Ala. She died in 1910. Two children survive—Vivian C. Leftwich, of this city, the president of the Paint and Powder Club, and Alexander J. Leftwich, Jr., of Halifax, N. S. There are also two sisters, Mrs. T. H. Wingfield, of Lynchburg, and Mrs. Andrew R. Humes, of New Jersey.

Terry & Duncan Take on "Savaronas"

The well-known jobbing house of Terry & Duncan, of this city, has recently acquired the "Savarona" brand of cigars in several sizes. This popular cigar is a handsome piece of Porto Rican goods, made by the Cayey-Caguas Company, which smokes as good as it looks, and is rapidly gaining a host of friends among the smokers.

"New Bachelors" to Be Featured in Houston

It is said that Max Block, the well-known jobber of Houston, Tex., has secured the agency for the "New Bachelor" cigar and will devote his attention to popularizing this line in that section. The general line of T. J. Dunn & Company, manufacturers of the "New Bachelor," will hereafter be carried by Mr. Block.

T. W. Clayton, a recent acquisition to Chicago's list of cigar brokers, with office at 186 North La Salle Street, that city, states that he has secured some first rate connection, and is well satisfied with the start he has made.

Edward A. McIlheron, one of Lewiston, Me.'s, successful cigar dealers, is erectiag a four-story stone and brick building in that city at 132 Lisbon Street. Mr. McIlheron will occupy the entire first floor upon the completion of the building.

The payroll for stores with two clerks is stated to be as follows: For a business of $300 a week, a payroll of $28 is allowed; $400 a week, $29; $500 a week, $30.01; $600 a week, $32.01; $700 a week, $34.01; $800 a week, $36; $900 a week, $38. If, however, the $900 a week store has three clerks, $8 a week additional is allowed for the payroll, or $46. The other three-clerk stores are allowed $3 a week on each $100 above $900 until $1500 is reached.

In the $500 class, a two per cent. extra is allowed on all sales above $500 and less than $600.

This new system takes away the right of the district manager to fix the salaries of the clerks in any one store at a rate that will exceed the allowance for the store, based on the amount of weekly business.

Vice-President Elliott Averett says: "Some of the employees have been, in our estimation, receiving a top-heavy salary and commission, and it is in order to do away with this and benefit the large number of other employees that the new schedule has been instituted."

While it is reported that a number of clerks have resigned, Vice-President Averett denies this. It is said that some of the clerks who have been hit by this new ruling have complained, but it is pointed out that this system will benefit the greatest number and at the same time put the salary allowance of the various stores up to the clerks themselves.

KNICKERBOCKER.

Wins Cigar Rate Fight

A decision was handed down on February 5, by the Interstate Commerce Commission involving the transcontinental rate on cigars in boxes, ordering reparation to be paid the shipper in the case of the Cowen, Heinberg Company against the Atchison and other railroads. It appeared in this case that the roads had charged double first class rates of $7.40 per hundred pounds on cigars in boxes, secured by lead seals, from San Francisco, Cal., to New York. This rate was held to be unreasonable to the extent it exceeded the first class rate of $3.70 per hundred pounds.

Pioneer Cigar Store to Close

With the closing out of the stock of Leedy Brothers' cigar store, which is now in progress and which will be completed before April 1, the oldest retail cigar business in Youngstown, O., will be brought to a close.

This firm which has been doing business for thirty-three years, and which has been located all that time at 31 East Federal Street, is one of the best known in the city, and the retirement of the firm at this time is due solely to the ill health of Charles Leedy, who, with his brother Joseph, has conducted the business for the last fifteen years. The business was founded by Jacob Leedy, father of the present proprietors, in Gettysburg, Pa., and he later came to Youngstown and established the factory which has been conducted by his sons since his death. After the father's death his three sons, William, Joseph and Charles, continued it. About fifteen years ago William died and Joseph and Charles have been the proprietors from that time until the present.

B. F. Alexander Expects New Samples

WORD has reached B. F. Alexander, the American representative for Fernandez y Garcia and Juan Lopez factories of Havana, that the new samples for the coming year are being shipped from Havana today and should be in New York early next week.

During his recent visit to Cuba, Mr. Alexander, who was accompanied by Richard Davis, personally superintended the selection and preparation of the samples of goods which they intend to offer during the coming months, and Mr. Alexander says that the cigars will be a revelation to many.

As soon as the new samples reach New York, both Mr. Alexander and Mr. Davis will take the road, which will probably be the latter part of this month.

C. A. Clark Off for Europe

C. A. Clark, who is the general United States and Canadian representative of A. Frankau & Company, 119 West Twenty-third Street, sailed for Europe on the "Lusitania" on Tuesday, February 10. Mr. Clark will make an extensive trip throughout all the Continent and expects to be gone for about four months.

A pleasant feature of his departure was a farewell luncheon at the Hotel McAlpin on the day of his departure, with Mr. Clark as host. Quite a number of friends in the trade were present and the function was a huge success.

Since coming to the States some fifteen years ago, Mr. Clark has made a splendid record for his company as far as American business is concerned.

"Fifth Avenue" Cigarettes Going Good

Reports from all sections indicate that cigarette smokers are taking an active interest in the "Fifth Avenue" brand, manufactured and marketed by I. B. Krinsky. Business has grown so rapidly that additional arrangements have been made for the handling of the orders.

I. B. Krinsky recently said: "Business is much better at this period of the year than we anticipated, and we will soon be working our factory overtime. The public is taking to 'Fifth Avenues,' and this is proven by the continual increase in the amount of duplicate business."

New Quarters for Scheltema & Quanjer

March first has been the date set by Messrs Scheltema & Quanjer, the new New York Sumatra leaf tobacco firm (successors to M. F. Schneider) for the occupancy of their new quarters, 180 Water Street, corner of Burling Slip, New York. The company's new abode is splendidly situated and is being fitted out in a first class manner to provide for the proper inspection of Sumatra tobacco. Mr. Quanjer, of the firm, who will attend the Amsterdam inscriptions, leaves for that city on February 24.

Colonel Alvaro Garcia, of Garcia & Vega, the New York and Tampa clear Havana cigar manufacturers, left New York on Thursday for his annual visit South. He will proceed first to Tampa and from thence visit Havana.

Park & Tilford Stockholders Meet

THE annual meeting of the stockholders of Park & Tilford, New York City, was held within the past fortnight and revealed that the year 1913, from a business and financial standpoint, measured up to the standard of former years, and gave promise of a prosperous year for 1914. The following were named as the company's directors for 1914, as the result of the stockholders' election: Frank Tilford, Harry Thompson, James W. Buchner, Francis L. Leland, Walter H. Pierson, John F. Leikauf, John E. Ross, Louis P. Hansen, George E. Tilford and Arthur Haddock. The directors having been chosen, they then elected the following officers: Frank Tilford, president; Harry Thompson, first vice-president; James W. Buchner, second vice-president and secretary; Jesse Howell, treasurer; Louis P. Hansen, assistant treasurer, and Hugo V. Hahne, assistant secretary.

Big Sign for Lorillard's Latest Product

"London Life," the latest thing in cigarettes, manufactured by P. Lorillard & Company, is securing the attention of that part of the world that travels about the vicinity of Brooklyn Bridge, at least. This is due to the far-seeing advertising man who secured the position of the New York end of the Brooklyn Bridge for a large sign that flashes the message of "London Life" to those who travel to and fro.

M. Lopez Forms Firm of M. Lopez & Company

Manuel Lopez, formerly in charge of the manufacturing department of the Preferred-Havana Tobacco Company, and noted as one of the best judges of tobacco leaf in the country, has formed the concern of M. Lopez & Company, to deal in Havana leaf. Offices of this company are at 90 Wall Street. Mr. Lopez's connection with the cigar industry and his reputation as an expert leaf man should qualify him for a successful career in this new venture.

Turco American Tobacco Company Incorporates

The Turco American Tobacco Company, which has been doing business for some time at 220 East Nineteenth Street, Manhattan, has recently filed papers of incorporation, and is capitalized at $92,000. The incorporators are named as C. E. Eaton, J. P. Faraon and H. O. Coughlan.

Alterman Schedule

Schedules in bankruptcy were filed recently by Ben Alterman, the well-known cigar dealer, located at 1643 Broadway, New York, showing liabilities of $8555, and assets of $6200. A special commissioner has been appointed to examine into Mr. Alterman's case, inasmuch as it is stated that Mr. Alterman is said to have had certain dealings with several persons before his petition in bankruptcy was filed. Mr. Alterman alleges that the transactions were in connection with money that had been loaned him.

Tampa

Corral, Wodiska y Ca. to Erect Annex—More Factories to Bond—Tampa-Cuba Company to Build New Factory—"Tony" Jannus Delivers "El Palencias" by Flying Boat

TAMPA, February 11.

JEROME REGENSBURG, of E. Regensburg & Sons, is back again in Tampa, having returned February 8th from New York, where he has been for several weeks.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company was represented in Tampa recently by Robert W. Tanksley. R. S. Tatum, State manager for the same company, with headquarters in Jacksonville, also stopped here en route from Key West, where he spent several days.

Corral, Wodiska y Ca., of "La Duse" fame, will erect an annex to their present factory at the corner of Fourteenth Street and Michigan Avenue, at a cost of $7000. The addition, which is to be utilized as a factory for the making of cgars in bond, will be three stories in height and will occupy a space of sixty by forty feet.

"La Mega," the well-known brand of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, have an able representative in Harry Culbreath, who left here recently for an extensive trip through the West. Mr. Culbreath plans to be away about three months.

"Charles the Great," "F. Lozano" and "El Merito" cigars, manufactured by Salvador Rodriguez, F. Lozano, Son & Company, and Boltz, Clymer & Company, respectively, are to receive further impetus in the trade, inasmuch as the companies mentioned have decided to join the "bonded army," their applications for permission having been received at Washington.

Harry Roberts, whose name appears among the list of Tampa cigar manufacturers, recently spent a few days in New York City on business matters.

A new factory to cost $60,000, and the declaration of a ten per cent. dividend were among some of the good things divulged, as the result of the directors' meeting of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, held in the company's offices recently. Among the visitors who arrived for participation in the meeting, some of whom were accompanied by their ladies, were: H. B. Guilford, president, Rochester, N. Y.; Charles H. Huhn, chairman of the executive committee, Minneapolis, Minn.; Louis Berger, New York; J. T. Treasure, Salt Lake City, Utah; and C. T. Stackhouse, of Philadelphia, Pa. General manager Ernest Berger, who welcomed the guests, was most lavish in his hospitality. One of the pleasant features of the occasion was an informal banquet, given by the company at the Tampa Yacht and Country Club, at which all of the stockholders were invited to be present.

Jose Escalante, of Jose Escalante & Company, is very optimistic about 1914, and looks forward to a large increase in the sales of the company's well-known "Corina."

J. M. Martinez Company are much pleased with the reports received on the sales of their recently launched brand, "Norma Martinez," from the Consolidated Grocery Company, of Jacksonville, Fla., who took on this brand the early part of this year.

Having received from St. Petersburg, Fla., two orders for 500 cigars each of "El Palencias," within the past fortnight, Boltz, Clymer & Company, always on the alert, decided that as the orders were rush ones, they must be delivered in the same spirit. Consequently, it created quite a little stir when it became known that J. C. Boltz, of the company, had made arrangements with "Tony" Jannus, who conducts a hydro-aeroplane line between Tampa and St. Petersburg, to take him across the bay to deliver the goods. And still further excitement was caused when it was learned that the accomplishment of this feat had taken but fifty-three minutes.

PERFECTO.

Dibble Company Buys Phillips Factory

The M. A. Dibble Company has purchased the "Bud" Phillips cigar factory and supplies in Jackson, Mich., together with the rights and titles to the brand of cigars made at that factory. The new owners will continue to make the same brand of cigars which the late Mr. Phillips made famous. The former employees of the Phillips factory have been retained by the M. A. Dibble Company and it is planned to extend the business.

The M. A. Dibble Company is one of the leading cigar firms in the State and prospects are that the newly acquired business will go forward rapidly, and grow into one of the largest and most successful cigar manufactories in Southern Michigan.

H. Ruppert Celebrates Anniversary

On February first, H. Ruppert, who is widely known as the courteous and efficient reception clerk of the American Tobacco Company at their headquarters, 111 Fifth Avenue, on the fourth floor, celebrated the twenty-second anniversary of his connection with the company, and received many congratulations from the officers and others.

Mr. Ruppert started with the American Tobacco Company in the earliest stage of the big company's history when they were located down at 45 Broadway, and knows, and is known, to nearly every prominent celebrity in the tobacco trade. During his connection with the company he has only been absent from his post fourteen days, with the exception of two vacation trips to the Fatherland.

D. O. Wright and S. W. Helm, of the American Cigar Company, have been absent in Florida for a month past, taking a little combined vacation and business trip. They are expected to return to New York about March 1.

Two six and seven-story structures at the southwest corner of Broadway and Eighty-second Street, New York City, measuring 90.4 feet on Broadway, and 157 feet on Eighty-second Street, valued at $655,000, were recently purchased by Robert B. Dula, a director of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, from Bing & Bing. A clear title accompanies the property, which was formerly used as apartment houses.

P. Verplanck, of the Preferred Havana Cigar Company, is at present in St. Louis.

Business with the Preferred Company is reported as being quite up to the most sanguine expectations, and some of their factories are running to their fullest capacity and are yet back on their orders.

when the transaction had been completed, the purchase of 4500 cigars had been effected.

Upon another occasion Mr. Castillo was making a jump from Butte, Montana, to Denver, Colorado, when the train became stalled, and everybody asked everybody else what was wrong, with the result that before the train reached the next terminal, Mr. Castillo had sold the proprietor of a hotel in Alaska a splendid order of cigars.

The personality of a salesman enters largely into the success of any business, and Mr. Castillo possesses to a remarkable degree the faculty of establishing a bond of sympathy, co-operation, or incentive, that one feels in need of at that moment.

Whenever the opportunity presents itself, you will find Mr. Castillo exchanging a kindly word with the man behind the counter for, as he says, "it always pays to remember the fellow who is going to be the buyer next year." In confirmation of this there was an instance just a few years ago, in which the salesman from a competing firm lost a standing order for cigars because he had spoken disparagingly of the buyer's assistant and had never taken the trouble to make amends until the assistant became the buyer.

Mr. Castillo possesses every instinct of a gentleman, is highly educated, and while enjoying considerable reputation as a raconteur, is not averse to telling a good one with himself the victim.

It is a recognized fact that this "Tampa Boy" has hewn a niche all his own, and is an authority on cigar distribution in any given section of this great country.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

George A. Voige Retires From Company

GEORGE A. VOIGE, a well-known Cincinnati jobber, has retired from the company known as the George A. Voige Cigar Company, and will endeavor to make connections with another jobbing house. He has sold out his interest to his partner, William J. Broeckner, who will continue the business under the name of "The William J. Broeckner Cigar Company." Mr. Voige's company was organized several years ago following his retirement from the firm of Voige & Winter.

Mr. Voige's decision to retire from activity in his company is said to have been due to the fact that he did much of the outside work of the firm, which has told on his health. He will now endeavor, it is rumored, to connect with another jobbing house, where he can work inside.

Best & Russell to Distribute "Alonas"

CHICAGO, ILL., February 10, 1914.

Best & Russell have completed arrangements with Charles H. Storm, who represents the Gene-Vall Cigar Company in this territory, to handle "Alona" cigars, and to act as distributors in the State of Illinois. The "Alona" is a new brand which has not received a great amount of advertising, but in the year which it has been before the public it has met with considerable commendation from smokers, and looks like a winner. It is a clear Havana cigar. The "Alona" is made in sixty-five sizes and is manufactured under the personal supervision of Eugene Vallens. The sizes include a range from "Regalia Chicas," retailing at ten cents, to "Presidents," or banquet size, packed in sealed glass tubes and retailing at one dollar each. Only the best of Spanish workmen are employed in the Gene-Vall factory and to make certain that the workmanship and quality will be uniform, each workman's cigars are packed separately, instead of by the usual method of sizing and shading. The addition of this cigar will be a credit to the already large and extensive line of Best & Russell. Plans are on foot for a campaign by special salesmen here in the city, following the usual custom of the company in popularizing a new cigar.

G. W. WHITCOMB.

"Rose-O-Cuba" Coming to the Front

"Rose-O-Cuba," the big seller of Fleck Cigar Company, of Reading, Pa., is rapidly coming to the front in Eastern markets.

In Philadelphia this brand is looked after by George Parker, who, in a short time, has done wonders to increase the distribution of this cigar.

The output of the factory has increased tremendously and the company is, with the opening of its new factories, rapidly catching up with its orders.

In Philadelphia the "Rose-O-Cuba" is securing a wide sale, due to the indefatigable energy of Mr. Parker, and is already becoming a favorite with smokers in all parts of the city.

New Home for Stickney-Hoelscher Cigar Company

THE new firm of Stickney-Hoelscher, recently formed by a partnership between Albert Taylor Stickney, formerly vice-president of the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, and a son of the late William A. Stickney, and William A. Hoelscher, of the William A. Hoelscher Cigar Company, has increased its capital from $20,000 to $50,000.

Coupled with this announcement is the news that they have secured new quarters at 311 Broadway, and will occupy the same on March 1. The new home will permit the accommodation of more goods and the firm already have their lines out for several new brands.

New Wholesale House for Montgomery, Alabama

Corporation papers have been filed and the S. D. Winn Cigar Company will shortly engage in the general wholesale and retail cigar, cigarette and chewing gum business in Montgomery, Ala. The company is incorporated for $50,000 and is starting with a paid capital of $36,100. All the members of the company are local men.

The officers are: S. D. Winn, president; J. M. Hobbie, vice-president; R. M. Hobbie, treasurer; and S. T. Shanks, secretary.

New Distributor for "La Verdads"

Simon Batt & Company, manufacturers of "La Verdads" and other well-known brands, have taken on a new distributor in Kansas City. The Kingsbaker Cigar Company, in that city, will hereafter distribute this rapidly growing brand in certain territories in the Middle West section. Business is reported to be fine on these goods and the new distributing house is finding a heavy demand for "La Verdads" in the localities that they cover.

New Home for Cincinnati Jobbing House

A deal for the purchase of the property adjoining the building at the northeast corner of Sixth and Vine Streets, Cincinnati, O., has recently been closed by Henry and Charles Straus, of the tobacco jobbing house of Henry Straus. It is stated that plans will immediately be drawn up for the erection, on this plot, of a modern building, to be devoted exclusively to the jobbing business of the house. The building, it is said, will comprise a basement and three stories.

The main office of Henry Straus is at present located in the Grand Opera House building, but for a long time the space there has been found too cramped for the proper care of their growing business.

It is said that the new building will cost between $30,000 and $35,000.

The Cuban Market

HAVANA, February 9, 1914.

AS far as the tobacco crop is concerned we are still in the dark as to the final outcome, as the versions from the different sources vary considerably. Our temperature has been rather abnormal, because instead of an occasional light shower of rain, we have had nearly a week of downpour in some places, accompanied by a great humidity, and which must have done some damage to the tobacco hanging in the drying sheds, causing pole sweats, as well as washing the leaves too much of the nearly ripe tobacco in the fields. On the other hand, the younger plants and the sucker growths have been benefited by the rains and moisture. Vuelta Abajo districts alone formed an exception, as the rain clouds did not discharge their contents in this region, while the Semi-Vuelta, Partido, Remedios and Oriente sections were principally sufferers from the superabundance. Under these circumstances we shall undoubtedly have a large part of light and flimsy leaf in the 1914 crop, and it remains to be seen later on, how much tobacco may have been ruined by pole sweat. How the wrappers may turn out, after the piling, is also a problem to be solved yet, as it is feared a good part may be spotted eventually. In summing up everything we can only say, that perhaps the crop may be large in quantity if the weather henceforth should continue more favorable, but how much will be suitable is still impossible to predict.

Our leaf market has been very dull during the past two weeks, if we except one transaction of about 3500 bales of Remedios, first and second capaduras, which one large American exporting house had purchased in the country and in our market, for the needs of its customers. Although we have had quite a number of Northern buyers in our town, it seems that they have come more as tourists, being accompanied by their wives, than to lay in further supplies of our leaf. Evidently business in the cigar manufacturing line has not started up again in the United States with a rush, and we shall have to wait quietly, until this should take place in the course of time. Prices for all good vegas remain as firm as ever. The holders are not at all anxious to dispose of them at a loss, and particularly the heavy quality styles could not be secured any cheaper, as the chances in favor of a smaller supply in the coming crop are exercising an influence in the minds of our leaf dealers. Medium goods might be had a trifle cheaper.

Recent Leaf Sales.

Buyers were: Americans, 6129; exporters to South America, 200, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 833 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the past two weeks, ending with the thirty-first of January, amounted to 10,235 bales, distributed to: All ports of the United States, 9922; to London, England, 50; to Panama, 60, and to Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Valparaiso, 203 bales.

Cigars.

We present herewith the exports of cigars from the port of Havana during the month of January, as per our official custom house returns, and which unfortunately again show a bad commencement in the new year, as they indicate a shrinkage of over one and one-half millions, as compared with the same period of the past year:

From January 1 to January 31, 1914	11,507,444 cigars

United States	573,704 cigars
Great Britain and Ireland	483,199 "
Canada	247,750 "
Argentine Republic	190,984 "
Germany	108,806 "
Spain	104,575 "
Chile	87,355 "
Brazil	30,420 "
Uruguay	21,071 "

There are only three countries which had increases in January, 1914:

Peru	118,000 cigars
Dutch West Indies	35,250 "

As can be seen by the above figures, the three principal countries which have decreased their imports of our cigars were: the United States, England and Canada; but we hope that they will make up for the shrinkage later on in the year, as soon as the holiday goods have been all consumed. As the cigars made from the 1914 crop are excellent in taste and aroma and could not be any better, the fault of the lesser demand can only be ascribed to poor economic conditions, which are bound to give way to better times in the future.

Don Pepin Rodriguez stated that Romeo y Julieta was as busy as always.

H. Upmann & Co. also declared that business with them was better.

Partagas is working quite satisfactory to its owners, Cifuentes, Fernandez & Co.

Hoyo de Monterey is working steadily, according to the season.

Flor del Fumar has received some very fine orders of high priced regalia sizes from the United Kingdom, Germany and the United States, which will keep Felipe Rodriguez & Co. quite busy.

Sol has lately received satisfactory calls, which keep the factory working well.

The other factories, such as Por Larrañaga, Punch, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, Belinda, Flor de José Otero, Eden and C. E. Beck & Co., are all working normally, according to the season we are in.

A Fine Display of Quality Cigars

This splendid exhibition of "Loveras," recently appeared in one of the windows of the Owl Cigar Store, at Fifth and Spring Streets, Los Angeles, Cal. The display appealed immediately to smokers of quality goods with the result that a heavy run was made on "Lovera" cigars.

Ike Wentworth, whose genial countenance recently appeared in THE TOBACCO WORLD, is the author of this display, and to be sure that no one else would be blamed for it, he did the dressing and arranging of the cigars himself.

Forgers of Tobacco Orders in Philadelphia

Harry Feldman, aged fifteen, of 330 Reed Street, Philadelphia, Pa., is being held while the police search for the man who gave him a forged note with which he was to secure 2000 cigarettes from Charles A. Krull, tobacco dealers, of 1206 Arch Street.

The firm lost 20,000 cigarettes last week by giving that quantity to a boy who presented an order purporting to be from one of their best customers. When Feldman came in, Benjamin Kaplan, a member of the firm, became suspicious. The note the boy presented purported to come from a customer named Abrahamson. When Kaplan questioned Feldman he said that the note had been given to him by a stranger who offered him fifty cents if he would bring the cigarettes back to him.

Jottings

According to a recent report, the State of Ohio raises annually 90,000,000 pounds of tobacco, valued at $9,000,000. While the process of growing is distributed throughout the State, the greatest portion of tobacco is produced in the Miami Valley and the southwestern part of the State.

A cigar factory to open in the near future and to provide employment for seven or eight men, has been secured for Bennettsville, S. C., through the efforts of the Chamber of Commerce of that city following the outlining of a policy for industrial expansion by that board.

The weekly pay roll in Key West cigar factories amounts to from $50,000 to $60,000.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was recently filed by Charles Ehret, a cigar manufacturer of 522 East Long Street, Columbus, O., before the United States Court, with liabilities aggregating $394.99, and assets of but $10.75.

To Retire From Retail Tobacco Business

Breneiser Brothers, Eighth and Penn Streets, Reading, Pa., announce an important change in their business. Beginning on Wednesday, April 1, they will give up their retail business and will continue their wholesale trade at their present stand. The United Hat Stores, 803 Penn Street, will move into the corner store now occupied by Breneiser Brothers' retail department.

Another Cigar Factory for Key West

Ralph Henson and Arutro Lecuona, two enterprising young cigarmakers and business men, Saturday started a cigar business in Key West, Fla., the firm name to be Henson & Lecuona, and they will manufacture nothing but high-grade Key West cigars, made from the best Cuban material.

The number of the factory is 328, and is situated on Ann Street between Greene and Front.

Tobacco Show at Red Lion

The second annual tobacco show of Red Lion, Pa., will be held in that city, in the basement of the Opera House. One of the features of the show will be the testing by smoking machines of tobacco grown on the State and National government experimental station, located near Red Lion, in order to determine the burning quality of Pennsylvania seed leaf, for which nineteen different kinds of fertilizers have been used.

Harry J. Tehan

Harry J. Tehan, thirty-three, formerly a traveling salesman for the Burley Tobacco Company, died February 4, at the home of his mother, 3207 Garland Avenue, Louisville, Ky.

Mr. Tehan was a native of that city and was a member of Louisville Council No. 4, Junior Order United American Mechanics, the Royal Arcanum and the Woodmen of the World. He is survived by his widow and one child. Funeral arrangements will be made later.

Chicago

Trade Condition Fair in City—Nineteen Salesmen Selling "Cairo" Cigarettes—Campaign Against Smoking on Surface Cars—Hilbronner & Jacobs Representative in Town

CHICAGO, ILL., February 10, 1914.

GOOD business continues to smile upon the cigar and tobacco merchants. For that matter, every line of business has remained good here, with the exception of those industries which depend upon cold weather. These, the writer regrets to say, have not prospered, and some, indeed, have been brought to the verge of despair by the persistent mild weather. In other years the mercury has been below the zero mark many times before the present corresponding period, but this year zero was reached for the first time last Sunday morning. Most of the time the temperature has been above the freezing point. This means that such businesses as the fur, clothing, ice and coal industries have suffered to a considerable extent. The wine importing houses have complained also that the warm weather is against them. Such wine houses as Many, Blanc & Co., on the North Side, who also handle an extensive line of fine imported cigars for the city trade, have complained that business has been hampered by the lack of frigid weather. However, zero weather has arrived at last and it is not probable that this complaint will be heard again. With the single exception of the weather, the local trade has not been the victim of a disturbing influence. Retailers, jobbers and manufacturers are all doing a nice business.

No settlement has been reached in the attempt of the "Progressive Union" to include the cigarmakers of the Wohl & Comstock factory, which now employs about forty non-union men. The feeling has reached such a stage that police protection is necessary for these men. It is not probable that the company will yield to the demands of the organization.

Complete details in the failure of Stroud & Jackman, local retailers, with two stores in the Loop district, show that the liabilities are greater than was at first thought. They reach more than $9000, with assets of about $5000, if the stock can be disposed of in the proper manner. The creditors include G. W. Faber, $1888; Rancon Suarez, $752; Francisco Bolano & Co., $303; Quiros & Vilazon, $487; Perfecto Garcia, $100, and Wengler & Mandell, $96.

The American Tobacco Company has turned loose nineteen salesmen in the city to introduce "Cairo" cigarettes, cork tip variety, selling at ten for five cents. It is said that the company has planned an extensive advertising campaign on this package.

Morrison, Plummer & Co., has taken over the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, formerly handled by Franklin MacVeagh & Co., the wholesale grocers. The cigar has an established following in this territory and the new distributors plan to push the sale during the coming year both in the city and in the country.

E. T. Redpath, a cigar man well known to the Western trade, has purchased the Richeimer buffet and cigar store on East Randolph Street. The price named was $15,000. The Richeimer establishment is famous as the "hangout" of members of the theatrical profession, and many famous actors are said to have made merry there in the old days.

Frank B. Light, manager of the sales department of the House of Crane, of Indianapolis, has resigned to accept a position as a sales-manager with the American Cigar Company. He will have charge of the entire selling force in the states of Iowa, Illinois and Wisconsin. Mr. Light is well experienced for his new work, as prior to his connection with the House of Crane he was a division manager of the Federal Cigar Company. He will make this city his headquarters and will co-operate with the salesmen of the J. B. Moos Company in pushing the sale of the various cigars of the company.

Taussig & Co., leaf tobacco jobbers, have completed a new sample room in the basement of their establishment at 319 West Randolph Street. It has all the attributes of a modern sample room, with a number of special devices for keeping tobacco in first-class condition.

Helen, the seventeen-year-old daughter of Andrew J. Simpson, secretary of Best & Russell, manufacturers and distributors, came near catching a burglar the other day. Her father had taken the family out to dinner, leaving the apartment at 852 Lakeside Place unoccupied. The girl saw the door open and investigated. She ran squarely into a youthful robber. She screamed and tried to grab the intruder, but he broke away and ran down an alley with $300 worth of silver which he had gathered into a sack.

Mrs. H. S. McAuley, of Chicago, shocked the wild and wooly town of Denver last week by smoking cigarettes in public. Together with her sister, Mrs. E. F. Dunlevy, a society leader of the Western city, she "lighted up" in a downtown hotel, in the presence of a large number of the smart set. In reply to the unfavorable criticism which her action excited, Mrs. McAuley said:

"I had no idea I was doing anything unusual. I see it everywhere else over the country and I supposed, of course, that Denver women were doing what Chicago, New York and Philadelphia women were doing."

The police say that Hugo Kuhlmey, a cigar salesman, is a fugitive from justice, following an alleged attempt to murder his wife here. The pair had been separated for some time. Last week the husband appeared and asked for a reconciliation. This was refused. He then drew a razor and slashed the woman's throat. She may recover.

O. S. Marks, a cigar salesman, advertised for the return of his wife's hand bag, containing $319, which was lost in a downtown department store. In the advertisement he announced that no questions would be asked, and that a reward of $50 would be given. The bag was returned and Mr. Marks kept his promise, but the circumstances of the return were such as to excite suspicion, and he informed the police.

C. B. Graham, formerly of New York, has succeeded B. H. Clayton at the United Cigar Stores Company. Mr. Clayton resigned some time ago. Mr. Graham has already entered upon his new duties.

W. J. Wilson, who was formerly a district manager with the American Tobacco Company, has gone with the Lovell & Buffington Tobacco Company, of Covington, Ky. He will act as department manager for Chicago, Northern Illinois and Michigan. Mr. Wilson has had ample experience to guide him in his new work.

Much noise is being made by reformers, who have nothing else to attack any more against smoking on the front platform of street cars. Instead of compelling the company to furnish special cars for smoking purposes, as do the elevated roads, these busybodies, who are for the most part bridge playing club women, have taken up the cry that smoking on the front platform of the street cars is objectionable to women who are obliged to get off the cars through this exit, and also because the health of the motormen might be injured. The preachers and the newspapers, who are always glad to get anything to harp upon, are aiding in the campaign, but it is the writer's opinion that nothing will be done. New cars which are being purchased by the company, however, have no accommodation for smokers, as they are of the "muzzle loader" type. It is probable that in time all the cars with smoking compartments will be gradually retired in this manner.

The company was flouted in a severe manner the other night, in this respect, however, when a young man seated near the middle of the car calmly lighted a cigarette. The conductor sniffed the air and then rushed in and informed the young man that he would have to stop. The young man pointed to the thermometer, which was about two degrees above the freezing point, and said:

"The city ordinance requires that these cars be heated at fifty degrees, too. You obey the city's rule and I'll obey the company's."

The conductor got the laugh from the amused passengers and retired in confusion.

Lighting a cigar in a room filled with escaped gas will cause an explosion, according to A. M. Bell, a local plumber, who was bossing a job in the basement of a new building. He had heard that this might happen, but it took a practical demonstration to convince him. Three other men were also blown up, but none were seriously injured.

More than 157,000 women registered in Chicago recently for the first time and will vote in the spring elections. What the effect of this new influence in politics will be upon the cigar business is a matter which is causing the local trade some concern. The saloon interests are worried, and they make no secret of the fact. In all the towns of Illinois where the women have voted under the new suffrage act the saloons have gone out of business, and the liquor men who look to Illinois as the main field for distribution declare that it is only a question of time when the whole state, including Chicago, will be as dry as a herring. However, that is far in the distant future, as the writer sees the situation. The effect of all this upon the cigar business is obvious to any member of the trade, who knows what valued customers are the saloons. The local leaf houses declare that the man who runs the "buck-eye" in the small town depends for the most of his trade upon the saloons, and for that reason the small factories are being crippled in some sections in a serious fashion. It is the opinion of some members of the trade, however, that the passing of the saloon will not work any permanent harm to the cigar business, but that the trade which formerly bought in the saloons will buy in the drug stores and in the regular cigar stores. This is a question which only a practical test can solve.

Samuel Jacobs, of Hilbronner & Jacobs, was a Chicago visitor last week. He also made St. Louis and a number of points in the Middle West. He reported conditions satisfactory in most of the places which he visited. He said that Henry Hilbronner was away on an extended trip to San Antonio, Texas, and other points in the South.

Traill & Cooling Company, cigar dealers of Austin, a suburb, were fined $75 and costs by Judge Uhlir in the Court of Domestic Relations for selling cigarettes to high school pupils under age. Joseph Muller, another dealer, with a store in West Madison Street, was fined $10 and costs on the same charge, with the addition of tobacco. George Fisher, who also runs a cigar store in West Madison Street, was fined $10 and costs on a charge of selling tobacco to boys under age. Eighteen similar cases were continued.

Robbers rammed a hole three feet square in the wall of the United Cigar Stores Company at 1051 West Twelfth Street last week, and escaped with $170 taken from the safe, which they blew with nitroglycerin. The robbery was not discovered until Edwin Hood, a clerk in the store, appeared for work the next morning. Several boxes of cigars and cigarettes were also found to be missing after an inventory had been taken. The police were interested in the original manner in which the robbers entered the store. The evidence showed that the plaster was chopped with a hatchet and the bricks pushed in with crowbars.

Morris Burke is the proprietor of the store, and his clerk, Mark Pouker, appears in the picture.

Pittsburgh

Business Shows Increase—Robbers Steal "Edgeworth"—Reymer Brothers Have Display on "Partagas"—Many Visitors in Town

PITTSBURGH, PA., February 10, 1914.

BUSINESS the early part of February is showing quite an increase. Most of the stores are having a good February and it looks as though we will have a better year than ever.

J. W. Klein, of Cleveland, O., representing Larus Brothers Co. on "Edgeworth" and "Qboid" tobaccos, has been boosting these two popular brands in and around Pittsburgh for the past three weeks. Mr. Klein has been very successful in getting a lot of very fine window displays while on his visit to this city. Among them was a very fine display in the C. J. Moye Co. store on Sixth Street. In fact, it was so attractive that the window was broken into during the night and stripped of its contents. I suppose they were "Edgeworth" smokers and would accept no substitutes.

C. B. Guttridge, the well known tobacco jobber of Braddock, Pa., has opened a very elaborate premium department in his place of business and is now ready to redeem all coupons and tags issued by the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. One of his large windows are being reserved for permanent display for some of the various premiums. This is a very handy convenience for persons interested in securing premiums for their coupons without the necessity of having to send their coupons away for redemption. In view of the fact that this premium station has been open only a few days, the business done has been very encouraging and demonstrates that it will meet with great success.

The big advertising campaign on "Polar Bear" tobacco is bringing results and everybody reports the brand coming back into its own. The town is being covered with attractive displays and handsome enamel signs.

C. A. Gibbs Co. have a very nice display of "Tuvals." They have just received a nice lot of advertising matter and are going to have a campaign on this brand.

Reymer Brothers have a very nice display of "Partagas" imported cigars. They carry this brand in all its sizes.

There is a rumor about town that Reymer Brothers will take over the Carnegie Building cigar stand. This stand is owned at present by Jos. T. Snyder.

Shipley-Massingham Drug Co. are having quite a success on "Saramitas" and "Cuesta-Rey" cigars.

The Bock-Stauffer Co. still have a campaign on "Jenkinson Best Stogies."

The Jenkinson Co. store on Wood Street has a very nice display on the "Duquesne Bouquet" cigars.

United Cigar Manufacturers' Company Holds Meeting

At the annual meeting of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, held last week in New York, the following directors were re-elected: Jacob Wertheim, Alfred I. Esberg, Preston Herbert and F. W. Shiffer.

A delay in completing the statistics of the Gunst affiliations prevented the presentation of a financial report. It is expected that a statement will be ready for the stockholders about the end of March.

Another meeting will be held shortly to transact further important business in connection with the workings of the company.

Los Angeles

"Americans" "Made in Bond" Reach the City—"Copyright" Cigar Going Good—Merchants and Manufacturers Association Takes Stand for "Home Products"—"Optimo" is Gaining Ground on the Coast

LOS ANGELES, CAL., February 4, 1914.

"POLLY" WILLARD is once more in this city, as he cannot stay away any length of time without getting that funny feeling for Los Angeles. He has a new song to sing on this trip and spells it "Commercial." He has rehearsed his part on his way to Los Angeles pretty well, for before he arrived here, Haas-Baruch & Company, distributors of this splendid new cigar, reported the first shipment out of the way. He will be with us for the next four months or so boosting the "Commercial" cigar. With the assistance of his jobbers, "Haas-Baruch & Company, and the manager of the cigar department of this firm, Mr. Cameron C. Trau, there can be no doubt but what the cigar will be very well placed in this market in a very short time.

The Quality Cigar Stores, nine in number, are displaying this week the "La Preferencia" cigars. These cigars are distributed by the Klingenstein Company, with very good results shown.

The first box of "American" cigars, made in bond by E. Regensberg & Sons, of Tampa, Fla., was received by Mr. Isie Klingenstein, of the Klingenstein Company, and without a doubt as soon as the first shipment is received they will have a never-ceasing wail from the retailers for the reason that they cannot get enough "Americans."

M. A. Newmark & Company, of this city, also received the first shipment of "Jose Vila" cigars, manufactured by Berriman Brothers, and this shipment lasted them only eight hours. They were immediately shipped out to fill back orders. Joe Goldsmith and Fred Conwell, two of the most popular and successful salesmen in this section of the country, are the ones responsible for the state of affairs brought about by their hustling to get orders for the "Jose Vila" cigar, "Made in Bond."

Did it rain? No, it did more than rain; it actually snowed in some sections of the South here. Now when it comes anywhere to snow down this way, it is time to raise a kick, but after a number of months of dry weather, then a month or two of weather which tended to scare our aspirations of a record orange crop, this rain (shall I call it rain?) brought the greatest amount of joy to the people of this beautiful southland. The frost scare vanished; the automobile industry flourished; business in general is at the present time on the "rush," due to the receipts for the oranges coming in all the time. This year's citrus crop is called a "bumper" crop, and "bumper" it is! Why, when one tells you that this year's rainfall is six times greater than that of last year's fall, and the rain season is not half over as yet! Right now, the cigar business is profiting by this rain, and not a bit less than any other line of business. Here's hoping we have more rain!

Geo. J. Yocum, of Yocum Brothers, Reading, Pa., and I. Klingenstein, of the Klingenstein Company, this city, have just returned from San Diego, Cal., where they made a special call on the trade in that territory and found conditions very favorable.

Gus Feder is at the new location at 635 South Hill Street, and Gus has a good following wherever he goes. He has given away on the opening day, Saturday last, five "Don Remo" cigars with every purchase of five "Don Remos." He has disposed of 1875 on his opening day, which is surely not a very bad send-off.

The Klingenstein Company have engaged six of the most prominent specialty men in waging a campaign on "Duke of York," "Golden Sceptre," "Golden Floss" and "Milo" cigarettes, and these six men have done nice work on these brands of smoking tobaccos, all handled by Klingenstein Company.

The College Inn Cigar Store has moved one door north of their old location on Spring Street. It is furnished with an attractive new set of fixtures and furnishings, as the proprietor, Mr. Ed Cohn, believes in the best of everything for his trade. The brands of cigars featured by Mr. Cohn are the "Lovera," "St. Elmo" and "Optimo" cigars. These cigars are his best sellers. His specialty is the "Aragon" cigar, which comes in thirty-two different and attractive sizes.

"Omar" cigarettes are getting one of the most wide distributions in this city at the present time. The purchaser gets a German silver cigarette holder free with each purchase of these cigarettes. "Omar" cigarettes outsell any fifteen-cent cigarette in this market, is the way the retailers speak of this package.

Geo. W. Walker Cigar Company are working a cigar called "Straight Goods," and this cigar is getting a good bit of attention from their salesmen as the cigar is of good quality and bids fair to become a winner for the house of Walker.

Fred Barman & Brothers have leased the corner of Sixth and Spring Streets and will here open another of their elegant smoke parlors. They have also opened a handsome smoke store in the new Clark Hotel and here Barman Brothers will have a splendid chance to put forth their choice brands to smokers of the best.

J. J. Gans Brothers are yelping for help! On account of the washouts of recent date all the shipments from the East have been held up and their orders of "Lawrence Barrett" and "Tom Keene" must wait until the goods arrive. Bob Gans is at the present time in the Imperial Valley territory writing orders for his firm. Bob goes out to get them and never fails.

The "Copyright" cigar, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa., and handled in this territory by Woodward, Jones and Johnson Company, is getting its share of the business and very good placements are being recorded right along by the jobbers handling this cigar. Mr. Jones, of the house controlling this cigar, says he cannot speak too highly of this splendid five-cent cigar. The demand is steadily increasing rather than diminishing.

The Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association today is boosting the home products campaign following election of officers and adoption of home products resolutions late yesterday.

Edward A. Geissler, vice-president and secretary of the George J. Birkel Company, is the new president. He succeeds William G. Hutchinson. Officers elected are: E. A. Bowles and W. E. Bush, vice-presidents; Marco Hellman, treasurer; F. J. Zeehandellar, secretary. Geissler spent eighteen years in business in San Francisco and twelve in Los Angeles. His motto is: "The establishment of greater business confidence in Los Angeles."

The home products resolution pledged the association to adhere to its home products policy and to urge all manufacturers to support the campaign. The Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association now has a membership of ten thousand and they are one and all boosting the home products. They had a parade which was three miles in length, in which all products manufactured in Los Angeles, Cal., were put on display. The "St. Elmo" and the "La Abilidad" cigars, manufactured in this city, were both given elegant displays on floats and drew no end of expressions of admiration from the crowds banking the sidewalks as the pageant moved onward. The "La Abilidad" cigar has been on the market for but a short time, being manufactured by Valrance & Woodworth. They inform me they are using a double shift of cigarmakers to supply the ever increasing demand for this cigar. It is well distributed, being in all the leading cafes, hotels, saloons, club rooms, etc.

"Ike" Wentworth, representing E. M. Schwarz & Company, of Tampa, Fla., is campaigning on the "Lovera" cigar. The "Lovera" cigar has been on this market for some time and is gaining friends right along. "Ike" has placed many grand window displays of "Lovera" throughout the city recently.

Cameron C. Trau, manager of the cigar department of Haas-Baruch & Company, states that the "Commercial" mild Havana cigar, which they just took hold of, is proving a steady winner, not only throughout the city, but repeating right along in the outside territory. This cigar is made in five sizes.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company, of this city, have just placed an order with A. Santaella for one-half million "Optimo" cigars made in bond, to be delivered just as soon as the goods can be made up by the factory. The "Optimo" has been gaining right along.

"United" Closes Up-State Factories

As the result of the indefinite suspension of work by the York City Cigar Company, York, Pa., whose factory is located at Smyser and Penn Streets, over one hundred cigarmakers have been placed on the list of the unemployed. The factory, which is owned by the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, is said to be the largest in the Southeastern section of Pennsylvania. The United Company also controls factories in New Jersey and in many cities throughout the South. It also operated factories in Windsor and Dallastown, but has since suspended these operations and sold the leases to Eisenlohr Brothers. The factories at Seven Valleys and Red Lion are now the only factories controlled by the company in that district. Activities, however, are being extended throughout the coal regions of Pennsylvania where new factories have been erected. The York City Stripping Company, on North George Street, another of the company's possessions, is operating on full time, and in all probability will be continued.

A new five-cent line recently added by J. G. Atherholt, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, is the "Prince Tulane" cigar, a product of Gumpert Brothers, 227 Church Street.

This cigar is Havana filler with shade grown wrapper and is especially blended to meet the demand for cigars of medium strength at a popular price.

San Francisco

Weather Holds Up Business—"Websters" Going Good With New Distributors—"Loveras" With "Made in Bond" Stamp Expected Soon—"Flor de Moss" Representative Back on the Job

SAN FRANCISCO, February 5, 1914.

San Francisco is now having a touch of real bright, crisp, sunny California winter weather. It is the first really nice weather that has visited the city in a good many weeks, and everybody is rejoicing in it. Retailers report that smokers are out in force, and that trade has picked up wonderfully during the last week. There is a general improvement in all lines of business, and the cigar merchants are getting an early taste of the really active times that are promised for the spring and for the remainder of the year.

January has not been a very pleasant or a very profitable month for the wholesalers as far as immediate results are concerned. The weather has been decidedly against spot business, though mighty favorable as far as future prospects are concerned. A good many salesmen postponed their trips more or less on account of the continuance of the storms, and those that got away found it hard to get around or to make a very good showing. During the last few days of the storms, washouts and delayed trains became a feature of the entire state. Now, however, the roads have been mostly repaired, and business is going forward in fine shape. Though the selling season in the country will be considerably behind that of last year, it is expected that it will be a much bigger one when it is all over. The state has hardly ever been in a better buying mood in the interior than now, with a prospect of excellent crops and abundant prosperity and practically all of the retailers with very short stocks.

Edward Wolf, head of the Edward Wolf Company, made a short trip to Sacramento and other central California points last week, and came back with a belief in a big business year for that section. Mr. Wolf has a number of salesmen out now on his Manila cigar and cigarette lines, and will cover California more in detail for these goods than ever before. The Eastern demand for his Manila importations, the "La Insular" and "La Prueba," is growing all the time.

Milton Esberg, vice-president of M. A. Gunst & Company, left for the East a few days ago. He will spend a few days at Washington, where he will represent San Francisco at the National Chamber of Commerce, and will then go to New York to be present at the annual meeting of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

Helvey & Hopkins, proprietors of the Opera Cigar Company, of Fresno, Cal., have moved a half a block nearer the center of the business district and have opened one of the finest cigar stores and pool parlors in the West. The interior fittings of the entire establishment are of mahogany and plate glass, and the proprietors are reported to have spent considerably above $10,000 in the work.

Another new Fresno store which will rival the best is that of Samuel's Smoke House in Fresno's finest new building at the corner of J and Mariposa Streets. This store is now being put in shape and will be ready for opening about the middle of February.

A report from Sacramento says that Leon Posner, of that city, has secured a lease on the cigar stand in the new Travelers' Hotel, now in course of construction.

Mr. Newman, formerly associated with the Stockton, Cal., branch of Samuel's Smoke House, has opened for himself at the corner of Market and San Joaquin Streets, in that city, and is already doing a nice business.

Eddie Allenburg, the well-known California salesman, who recently associated himself with the jobbing house of H. L. Judell & Company, began work on the new lines on February 1. He is now working up the trade in San Francisco, and will follow this by some active work in the cities on the other side of the bay.

H. L. Judell & Company, who took up the distribution of the "Webster" cigar of Y. Pendas & Alvarez at the first of the year, report that this line has taken hold nicely. Considerable shipments have now come in and the company is making deliveries now on eight sizes. Two additional sizes will be in stock within a few days.

Major Burrows, of the San Francisco office of the Jose Lovera Company, reports a fine January business on the Loveras "Little Cigarros." Major Burrows is expecting a visit early in the month from D. E. Kline, vice-president of the Jose Lovera Company. Mr. Kline will get here about the time that the first Loveras duly bonded and double stamped reach the San Francisco market.

"Molly" Hull, one of the Western representatives of the Theobald & Oppenheimer Company and other lines, has arrived at his San Francisco headquarters after a trip through the Rocky Mountain States in the interest of his lines. Mr. Hull, together with Charles Knubel of this city, covers the entire West for their lines.

DETROIT, MICH., February 8, 1914.

SPIETZ & WORCH are now in the process of disposing of their holdings in the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, and will establish a factory of their own. Such is the announcement from Detroit. Three appraisers are now at work, determining the value of the holdings of Spietz & Worch in the factory, and as soon as their decision is handed down, the gentlemen will be paid their price and the factory will revert to the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, and will probably be known under that name henceforth.

The appraisal is in charge of Charles Davidson, of the Banner Cigar Company, who is acting as referee, assisted by Fred Meyer, acting for the firm of Spietz & Worch, and Oscar Rosenberger, representing the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

The news of this move has landed like a bomb in Detroit trade circles. However, the news has been anticipated through the fact that Messrs. Spietz and Worch were recent visitors in New York, and it was rumored at that time that some such move would probably be made soon.

About one year ago, Messrs. Spietz and Worch established the Wayne Cigar Company, and have been marketing the well-known "S. & W. Hand-Made" in a very successful manner. Their business has grown tremendously, and the call for their goods is extremely heavy in Western territory.

This is the latest of several interesting changes that the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company have made public since the first of the year.

Floral Offering on Fifty-fifth Anniversary

A floral offering from his daughter, Nellie, in the shape of a large cigar and standing about seven feet high, was a very pleasant surprise to John C. Davis, an old-time cigar dealer of Cincinnati, O., located at 412 Vine Street. The flowers were in commemoration of Mr. Davis' fifty-fifth anniversary in the tobacco business.

Herman Moss, Western representative of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, has returned to San Francisco after a six weeks' trip to the factory. Mr. Moss brings with him a new high-grade size, the "Longfellow."

Charles Kohlberg, one of the outside men of H. L. Judell & Company, is now in the Sacramento Valley, from which section he is sending in some very nice orders. Emil Judell, of the same house, has completed his Humboldt County trip, and is again in San Francisco for a short stay before going forth for more orders.

J. Hess, a cigar and tobacco dealer of Riverside, Cal., has been visiting the San Francisco wholesale trade this week.

The smoke and fire damaged stock from the recent fire at Glaser Brothers, on Montgomery Street, is now being offered at special sale by Weinstein's, a more or less cut-rate general merchandise establishment, with several stores outside the main business district of the city.

Milton Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Company, just before his departure for the East, spoke before the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce at its annual banquet in this city, at which the guests of honor were United States Secretary of the Treasury, W. G. McAdoo, and Secretary of Agriculture David F. Houston.

The American Tobacco Company has made something of a hit with the handsome enameled tie clasps that are being given away this week with "Egyptienne Straights" cigarettes.

Garrow & Dougherty, of Stockton, Cal., who are booked to lose their old stand on May 1 next, when the old building is to make way for a new one, have more than made good the loss by securing the cigar stand and privileges in the addition to the Clark Hotel in that city.

A new cigar store is shortly to be opened in the Imperial Hotel at Stockton, Cal., in the near future.

A Few Notes of Interest or Happenings.

Hermann Diehl, of the firm of Gutierrez & Diehl, has become the proud father of a healthy, bouncing boy, at the beginning of this month, and who shall be christened as Hermann Diehl, Jr.

B. Wassermann, senior partner of the B. Wassermann Co., of New York, arrived here on the third instant, as a passenger of the big excursion boat, "Laurentic," bound for Panama and intermediate ports. Mr. Wassermann had sufficient time to call upon the numerous friends that he has in this city and exchange salutes. He looked to be in excellent health and spirits.

Julius Fecht, of Ottumwa, Ia., who is a cigar manufacturer and also a leaf dealer in his city, has now also become a tobacco farmer here, having purchased some lands near Herradura, and when we saw him he spoke in glowing terms of his fine crop this year, laying particular stress upon the fact that the tobacco would burn, which he considered as the principal question of Cuban tobacco raising. He is now bound for the Isle of Pines to enjoy some fishing in the adjacent waters, carrying a complete outfit, even to tackle some sharks, if the latter would only bite, and which, he states, is not the case around the Isle of Pines. He expects to be home during the middle of March.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 10

Showing the entrance to the University Club Michigan Boulevard and Monroe Street, Chicago, Illinois

(This is the tenth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.

ONE raw, cold day, late in November, when the leaden heavens were alternating between a desire to rain or snow, a tall, broad-shouldered young man with two suitcases stepped from the Union Station and looked down the murky chasm between the skyscrapers of Adams Street. The gusts of wind swooped down on the russet bosom of the river, and crumpled the surface into transient ripples. The wind beat against the resolute face of the young man, too, but unlike the bosom of the river, the face suffered no change. To him the frowning skyscrapers, dotted many stories up in the air with windows of yellow light even though the time was noon, seemed like the fortresses of the enemy, calling to him to come forth and give battle. The whistle of the traffic policeman, who regulated the stream of street cars, teams, and people at the crossing where he stood, sounded like the whistle for the kick-off, making him tingle to his finger-tips and feel like he ought to make a sudden sprint down the field after the football.

He moved forward and the face became more resolute.

"They all look the same to me," he muttered to himself, surveying the mass of office buildings.

"And this one," he continued, "looks as likely as any of them."

He swung into the headquarters of the hardware trust, although he did not know that fact at the time. If he had, he might have hesitated. But he did not know, and he did not care. To the polite young man who stepped forward to receive him, he said, with an aggressiveness peculiar to half-backs who are sure ground gainers on skin tackle formations:

"I want to see the president of the firm!" (We would set this in upper case but for the fact that it would spoil the looks of the article.)

"But he is very busy this morn——"

"Never mind! Tell him there's a young man here from Indiana, just out of college, who wants to go to work for him. What's more, tell him quick, or I'll walk in and tell him without your assistance!"

The clerk grasped the railing for support, but he went.

When he returned, the young man saw from his face that he had heard something from the president which he did not expect.

"He will see you," said the clerk, in a voice which suggested that he could not believe his own words.

The doors of the private office opened to admit the young man, and then closed behind him. He noticed that his footsteps made no sound on the thick green carpet, and he trembled a little in the wrists. With the tail of his eye he caught a suggestion of rich oil paintings in golden frames on the wall, and he swallowed hard. But the benevolent gray-haired old gentleman who sat across the mahogany desk did not increase his alarm. He did not look like a man who was four times a millionaire, and besides the young man did not know that such was the case.

"Why didn't you ask for the superintendent of employment?" asked the president in a kind voice.

"Because, if I should land a position here, I want you to know I am working for you," replied the young man.

The president smiled.

"You are bold. However, if you have no other engagement and would like to come over to the University Club, where I eat luncheon, as my guest, I think I will talk with you. I am always interested in young men from college, and besides, I came to Chicago much after the manner in which you have arrived. Of course, that was thirty years ago, but principles remain the same. I had $10 even with me when I landed, knotted in a red handkerchief."

"And I have $12.53 in a leather pocketbook. I mean $12.52. I spent a cent for a newspaper."

"Well," smiled the president, "if you are ready we will be on our way. It's quite a little drill from here over to the University Club."

"That's my car," said the president, not without pride, as they emerged from the building. He pointed to a handsome limousine. "I always walk over at noon, however, as I formed the walking habit years ago when I lived on the north side and was saving carfare."

Presently, after crossing several streets where the young man imagined that he had narrow escapes from being run over, they turned into a magnificent street which had skyscrapers only on one side, with a long row of white globe lamps in the middle and a continuous procession of automobiles, which made a drowsy hum like bees swarming out in the orchard.

"This," said the president, "is Michigan Boulevard."

"Wonderful!" exclaimed the young man.

They turned in at the door, which was one of the revolving kind. Other sleek, prosperous-looking men, who greeted the president familiarly and looked with interest at the young man, were entering the building in a stream. Inside, at a table, sat a man in blue uniform, who watched the members as they entered. None escaped his eye. He was there, explained the president, to see that no person entered the club who was not a member or who was not in the company of a member.

They walked up three steps and found themselves in the checking room. Receiving little square brass checks for their hats and overcoats, they entered another room, which seemed to be a sort of lounging parlor, combined with a writing room. The shields of different universities, which the young man recognized at a glance, were emblazoned on the walls in a sort of border.

"Perhaps," said the president, "we might go down and take a swim in the tank before we lunch."

The young man was agreeable, and after they had registered in a little book, according to the rules pertaining to out-of-town guests, they started down the stairs.

"I'll show you around down here first," said the president, who by this time had become more like a college boy than the head of the hardware trust. "These are the lockers. Each member has a key to his locker, and the rules governing them are very strict. Here are the dressing rooms and out here the gymnasium. We have everything in the equipment of a first class gymnasium, including a running track up above. These rooms here are steam boxes, where by regulating the steam, you can get about any kind of a bath you want."

They circled about the place and presently paused before a booth to get towels and swimming suits. They entered the water and here for the first time the young man had a chance to show that he could do something else besides gasp and murmur "Wonderful!" He was at home in the damp element and executed some fancy dives from the springing board. He noticed, however, that a number of other men in the tank, some of them twice his age, were remarkably proficient in swimming and diving.

"We have no old men here," said the president over the partition as they were dressing after their plunge, "for around here all men are young in spirit. The man you saw at the entrance to the club has instructions to bar old age."

The president and his young companion walked up the stairs, through the check room and over to the elevator. They got off on the fifth floor.

"Here is our main dining room," said the president, as they entered a large room, lighted with the inverted system. "We have white male waiters, as you notice, for we have found them more satisfactory than any other kind."

They selected a table over in a corner, and ordered a light luncheon, which was promptly served in excellent fashion, with a great display of silver service. Following the appearance of the finger bowls the young man tried to smuggle a dime under the edge of his plate as a tip, but the president stopped him by saying that tipping was not the custom in the club and that the waiters were well paid and did not expect anything.

"I might say," said the president, "that, financially speaking, our dining room just about breaks even. That is all we want, for few club dining rooms break even and some of them lose money. This is not the only room we have, of course. There are a number of private dining rooms and a couple of ladies' dining rooms on the floor above."

When the dishes were cleared away, the president asked the young man what he would like to have to smoke. The young man paused. Seeing his embarrassment, the president came to his rescue.

"We have any kind you could imagine," he said, "'Upman's,' 'Bocks,' 'Elites,' 'Ben Bey,' 'Lucius,' 'Partagas,' 'Romeo,' 'Hoyo,' 'Punch,' 'La Vello,' 'La Venga,' 'Lady Abbey,' or if you want cigarettes we have 'Condax,' 'Pall Mall,' 'Melachrino,' or any of the other good brands."

The president and the young man made a selection from this list, and having lighted with the same match, settled back and through the blue smoke made the agreement which gave the young man a position.

On the young man's request they took the elevator down to the writing room.

"If you'll pardon me," he said, "I'm going to drop a card to my mother right away and let her know about this."

"That's proper," said the president, "and when you get through with that I'll show you our pool and billiard room."

This room proved to be one of the largest and most popular in the club. Men, old and young, circled around the tables, smoking both cigars and cigarettes. The air was opaque with exhalations.

"Of course, we have a bar," said the president, "and it's a very popular place for a lot of members who like that sort of thing. For my part I always take a cigar when I am asked to drink. They keep several boxes of the best kind close at hand for fellows like me."

"I do not drink," said the young man, with wisdom, "but I certainly like a good cigar like the one we got upstairs."

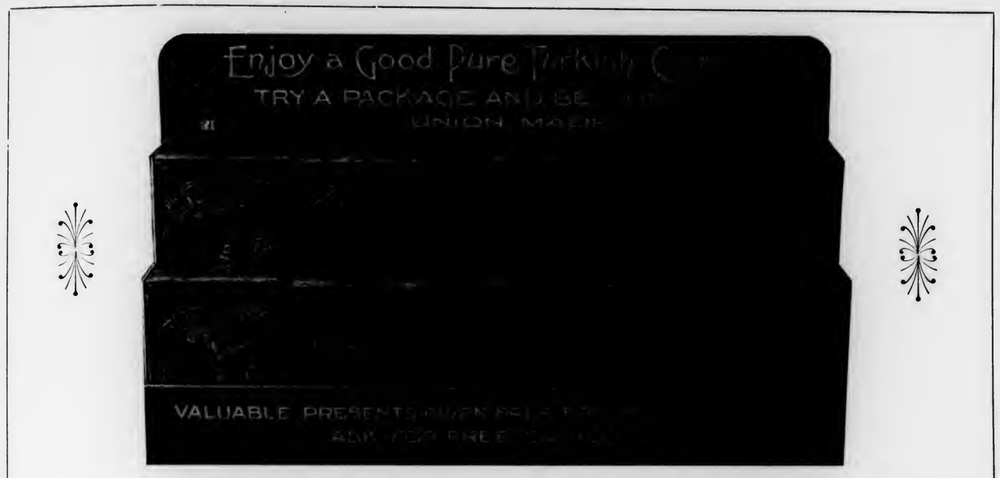
"Perhaps you would like to meet Mr. E. R. Young, who is in charge of our cigar department," suggested the president.

The young man was agreeable, and Mr. Young proved to be a most pleasant gentleman.

"Yes, we sell lots of cigars here, and we handle none but the best. We sell lots of cigarettes also, especially to the younger members. The members are very discriminating and like fresh cigars for the most part. However, we have excellent humidor facilities. We have three stands throughout the building, one on the main floor, one on the third, near the billiard room and one on the fifth, near the dining room. We serve members from the stand which is closest, and thus save our servants many unnecessary steps."

"And now," said the president, "we have seen the University Club. None but college graduates may enter, and at the present time we have a long waiting list. We always manage somehow, though, to get a man in who makes himself really wanted. Of course, the cost of membership is high, but as we take only the men who succeed, they can afford what is asked. Some day, you will belong, my boy, if you make good as I think you will, but to belong now would be beyond your means and would hinder you in making your way up in the world."

They passed out into Michigan Boulevard, throwing away the stubs of their cigars as they did so. The young man took a deep breath of fresh air off the lake, clenched his hands, and said, as though he had reached a decision: "Yes, I will succeed, and some day I am coming back here, as a member!"



SPLENDID DISPLAY PACKAGE FOR "FIFTH AVENUE" CIGARETTES

"CALICO" SERIOUS TOBACCO DISEASE

Known Under Different Names—A Development of the Mosaic Disease—Agricultural Department Issues Special Bulletin

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 9, 1914.

A SERIOUS disease to tobacco plants, which often greatly damages the crop, has been carefully studied by scientists of the Department of Agriculture. The Department has just issued an extensive report describing the nature and symptoms of the disease and such methods of control as have been found effective. Careful experiment has shown that certain insects spread this disease, and in greenhouses, plants screened with fine cloth and fumigated with a nicotin paper were kept free from it. In the field, the only method of control at present available seems to be the prompt removal of all plants infected with the disease.

Laborers in the operations of worming, suckering, and topping tobacco plants may readily communicate infection from diseased to healthy plants, for if healthy plants are brought in contact with the sap of diseased plants the malady is apt to develop. This is in addition to the spread of the disease by insects, and as the infection is so readily carried it is obvious that afflicted plants are always infection centers so long as they remain in the field.

The methods of fumigation tried in the greenhouse experiments proved so successful that the question of their application to the seed bed is now under consideration by the Department. The keeping of the "mosaic" infection from the seed bed seems a most important means of controlling its introduction and spread in the field. In so far as outbreaks of the disease may occur directly in the field the matter of successful control probably will be found to be exceedingly difficult. This is a matter still being investigated by the Department's scientists.

The development of the mosaic disease, commonly spoken of as "Calico," in tobacco plants, produces very noticeable changes in their appearance. The blossoms of the plant are often distorted; the leaves may be dwarfed, distorted and blistered and are always more or less mottled; frequently the entire plant is dwarfed. In very young plants at the two-leaved or three-leaved stage, and in much larger plants, in the rosette stage, the first visible symptom of the disease usually appears as a slight downward curling and distortion of the smallest, innermost leaves.

The disease is known locally in many sections by different names. In the tobacco sections of Kentucky and Tennessee "walloon" is often used. The disease has also been termed "chlorosis," "mottled-top," "calico," etc.

The new bulletin regarding this disease can be had free on application to the Department of Agriculture, at Washington, D. C. The bulletin is No. 40, of the Department series and is entitled "The Mosaic Disease of Tobacco."

New Cigar Company for Lancaster

It has been rumored in tobacco circles that a company would soon be formed in Lancaster to put on the market an All-Lancaster cigar, to retail at five cents. The plans call for a cigar factory that will employ a couple of hundred cigarmakers and a thoroughly trained force of tobacco sorters, men who will be able to select the very finest tobacco grown in Lancaster, as it is important that the first All-Lancaster cigars put on the market shall be of the very best quality.

It is believed that if a trade could be established for an All-Lancaster cigar that it would be a big boost for Lancaster County tobacco growers.

Bloch Brothers Tobacco Company Holds Annual Meeting

The stockholders of Bloch Brothers Tobacco Company held their annual meeting on January 27, at their headquarters in Wheeling, W. Va. According to reports the past year was a successful one and everyone seemed pleased with the volume of business that is coming to the company.

The following directors were re-elected for the ensuing year: S. S. Bloch, J. A. Bloch, W. M. Tiernan and A. O. Maxwell.

Otto Zeigler is removing his wholesale cigar business to his new building at 523 East Michigan Avenue, Lansing, Mich. For the time being the retail and wholesale departments will be conducted separately.

Detroit

Many Cigar Salesmen in Town—Elks Plan New Home—Detroit Factory of Spietz & Worch Turned Over to United Cigar Manufacturers—Harry Earnshaw at Banner Factory

DETROIT, MICH., February 9, 1914.

"It never rains but what it pours," is well applied to the large number of cigar salesmen who have been visiting here for the past two weeks. Prominent among them have been Ben Lesser, of F. Lozano & Company, who has many friends here and who succeeded in doing a nice business; Jose M. Cuyar, of Andrez Diaz & Company; Jesse Powell, representing the "First Consul" cigar; Isador Mayer, representing Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., of Philadelphia, who has a number of fine accounts here with Soper Segar Company, E. M. Harris & Company and McAllister & Smith, jobbers; Jack "Aploma" Kelley; Fred Suss, representing the American Cabinet" and "Liederkranz" cigars; Frank I. Horning, who is visiting the retail trade in the interest of the "Don Antonio" cigar, and his jobber, Claude Howell; J. H. Weller, boosting the "Solace" cigar; Al Korn, of S. H. Furgatch & Company; Nate Shapero, representing the "Van Dyck" cigar; Perry Bland, of Martinez Havana Company; Nate Rice, little cigar department, American Tobacco Company, and Will Charles, of G. S. Nicholas & Company. All called on THE TOBACCO WORLD correspondent and said they were enjoying a good business; also that they were glad to get to Detroit, "the finest town in the country."

W. F. Collins, general sales manager of the Ben Bey Cigar Company, has been spending a few days in the Upper Peninsula of Michigan calling on old friends and looking up trade for the "Ben Bey" cigar.

A new Elks' Temple building is soon to be constructed in Detroit on Lafayette Avenue. It will cost close to a half-million dollars and will be one of the finest institutions of its kind in the Middle West. Plans have been completed and contracts will be let very shortly. There will be a high-grade cigar department in connection with the same, which will be located on the main floor.

John R. Macdonald, former cigar dealer in Flint, Mich., has been chosen by the Progressive Party in that city as candidate for mayor, and has accepted.

At the smoker given by the Greeters Club, of Detroit, on February 5, the crowd was so large that many had to stand up. The number of tickets actually sold was over 800, although not more than 500 was really expected. "Natural" and "Philip Morris" cigarettes were used and "Dutch Master" cigars. Most everybody wanted the cigarettes on account of the crowd comprising mostly the younger element. Eddie Lichtig, representing the Philip Morris Company, was present and greeted his many friends.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Globe Tobacco Company, the following officers and directors were elected for the ensuing year: Homer McGraw, president; A. C. Stellwagen, vice-president; W. R. Hamper, secretary-treasurer and general manager. Directors: Homer McGraw, A. C. Stellwagen, John R. Kempf, C. M. Hamper and Walter R. Hamper. The financial report showed that 1913 was an excellent business year.

B. E. West, of the West Drug Stores, Inc., Grand Rapids, Mich., has secured the controlling interest in the Walter K. Schmidt Drug Company, operating at 308 Monroe Avenue. Through this purchase the Schmidt store will be added to the chain of the West drug stores. It gives the company control of four stores on Monroe Avenue; all of them handle cigars.

A new store is being built for J. C. Taggart, cigar and confectioner in Cheboygan, Mich., whose former place of business was ruined by fire a few weeks ago.

The directors of the Detroit Club elected the following officers for 1914: F. M. Alger, president; George W. Alexander, vice-president; Burns Henry, vice-president; R. G. Lathrop, secretary; Henry H. Sanger, treasurer; J. T. Whitehead, auditor; W. A. Livingstone, chairman of the house committee, and A. W. Russell and James H. Holden, members of the house committee.

Charles A. Holt, who occupies a position as salesman in one of Snyder's stores on Woodward Avenue, Detroit, was arrested ten days ago on a charge of stealing over $600 from his employer.

Otto Ziegler, of Lansing, Mich., has moved his wholesale cigar department from the South Washington store to the new Ziegler Building at 523 East Michigan Street. This is Mr. Ziegler's own structure and gives him considerably more room to carry on his growing business.

Billy Freleigh, of the Best & Russell Company, is working the western part of Michigan, giving most of his energies to "Sanchez y Haya" and "Robert Burns" cigars.

Edward T. Cary, in charge of the pipe and novelty department of the Snyder chain of stores, has returned to Buffalo after closing out the Snyder stock at 119 Woodward Avenue. On the first of February this store was taken over by the Harry W. Watson Company.

The Mazer Cigar Company, manufacturers of the "Miss Detroit" and "La Cavalerie" cigars, are now in their new addition. They have added many cigarmakers, and will now be able to increase their output and take better care of their customers. Henry Mazer is on a trip through the Middle West.

Frank Niles, of Niles & Moser, passed through here recently on his way to the Bermudas. While in the city he spent a few hours with Al Worch and Charlie Spietz, of the Wayne Cigar Company.

Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Company, returned on February 9 from an extensive business trip through the West.

The appraisal of the Spietz & Worch factory in Detroit will be resumed after the ninth with the return to the city of Oscar Rosenberger, who is one of the appraisers, and who represents the United Cigar Manufacturing Company. Fred Meyer, as appraiser, represents Messrs. Spietz and Worch, while Charles Davison, of the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company, as appraiser, is the referee. When the appraisal is completed, Messrs. Spietz & Worch will be paid their price for the value of their holdings, thus abandoning their interests in the company and turning them over to the United Company. When this arrangement has been completed and settled up, the Detroit factory, now known as the Spietz & Worch Company, will be changed to the name of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company.

A quantity of cigars and money was stolen recently from the cigar store of Lynch & Roser, at Kearsley and Asylum Streets, Flint, Mich. Entrance to the store was gained by raising a window. This firm has been the target for robbers twice before, but has never before this suffered any loss.

Thirty boxes of cigars were stolen from the store of Mark Howitz, 801 St. Antoine Street, Detroit, on February 6. The thieves gained entrance through a cellar window. The value of the stolen cigars was $56.

Fred McCloy, of Bay City, is doing some fine work as salesman for the Blackney Cigar Company, of Saginaw. He is numbered among the "star" salesmen that visit the Saginaw Valley district.

A. Courtney succeeds M. J. Hill in the cigar and billiard business in Potterville, Mich.

William W. Watson, arrested by the Federal authorities in Detroit for illegally packing cigars, was released last Monday under the terms of a compromise effected with the Internal Revenue Department in which a fine was paid.

The National Cigar Company, of Detroit, has been capitalized for $20,000 to engage in the cigar manufacturing business. Those holding most of the stock are F. J. Rogers, Leo F. and Jacob Freund.

Card Garrison, of the Banner Cigar Manufacturing Company, left February 1 for a business trip to the Pacific Coast which will consume the major portion of two months. He expects to open up a number of new accounts.

A prominent visitor to the Banner factory recently was Harry A. Earnshaw, manager of the cigar and tobacco department of Stone-Ordean-Wells Company. In 1913 Mr. Earnshaw disposed of about one million "Royal Banner" cigars, and in 1914 hopes to do better than that. He says it is the best selling seed and Havana cigar he handles. Mr. Earnshaw also has a big trade on the "Lucius" cigar. He told THE TOBACCO WORLD representative that the "Lucius" was the first clear Havana cigar that his firm was able to make any headway with in thirty-five years; as a matter of fact, he only took on this brand five months ago and during that time has had a phenomenal business on it.

Alexander Herbert, vice-president of the Philip Morris Company, arrived in town this morning and will remain for a few days. This is Mr. Herbert's first visit to Detroit in some time.

The first week of February was one of the largest in the history of the cigar department at the Hotel Pontchartrain, the sales exceeding the same period of any previous year.

A number of cigar salesmen visiting here this year and calling on the retail trade have shown an inclination to get "sore" because some dealers would not put in their line. Doesn't the salesman understand that no dealer can put in every brand that's made and that naturally someone must be on the outside? Just the other day a salesman called at the Hotel Pontchartrain with a line of goods that is not even advertised in any of the trade journals. He started in by telling what a better line of goods he carried than his competitors, and he succeeded in getting the manager to look at his samples. "Your price is right, although I have seen better goods; but we could not put them in at present anyway." The salesman was actually insulted; thought he was doing a favor by showing his samples and thought he should have got an order. He used a lot of unnecessary language, with the result that he will probably never get his goods in at that particular stand. If this salesman uses these same "strong arm" methods everywhere he goes, it is no wonder that his firm would find it a waste of money to advertise in the trade journals. What good the adver-

Ozier & McCready Get Permanent Injunction

Ozier & McCready, of Akron, O., have won a victory in the case brought against the Realty Benefit Company and others, involving the lease of the cigar firm in the burned Woods Block. In a decision recently handed down by the Court of Appeals, Ozier & McCready were granted a permanent injunction, substantially as asked for in the petition.

The suit arose over the burning of the Woods Block in November. Ozier & McCready had a cigar store in one corner of the building. Their storerooms had not been much damaged by the fire and the firm attempted to continue business. The city building inspector declared the block unsafe and ordered it torn down. Ozier and McCready were told to vacate.

The cigar dealers immediately obtained a temporary injunction against the destruction of the building, their complaint being that the razing of the structure would terminate their lease. They contended that the block had not been totally destroyed, but could be rebuilt. Judge Rogers ruled against them.

The decision from the Court of Appeals is from Judge Grant. He holds that there was no total destruction and no forfeiture of rights of the plaintiffs. He declares that the building inspector ordering the destruction of the building acted unreasonably, arbitrarily and oppressively.

tising might do the company would be offset by the harm done by the salesman. The purpose of this little true incident is not to cast reflections on any cigar salesman; on the whole, the cigar salesman is a mighty fine fellow and a thorough gentleman, yet there are some who fail to realize that you can "catch more flies with molasses than with vinegar."

McAllister & Smith, the enterprising jobbing concern which started in business less than nine months ago at lower Woodward Avenue, are building up a fine clientele and report a great business. They are handling a number of brands made by Sig Mayer, of Philadelphia, with good success.

J. M. Gans, of Gans Brothers, makers of the "Malco" cigar for LaFond & Company, of Detroit, spent a few days here the early part of the week in conference with Charle and Mose LaFond. Mr. Gans was pleased to note the big business which is being done week in and week out on the "Malco Five," which is the big feature at all of the LaFond stores.

Bon Furnas, of the San Etta factory, is on a trip through the West and has already landed some new customers. The "San Etta" is now being packed in tins, and at the stores of LaFond & Company in Detroit over 10,000 a week are being sold. Shipments are also being made to Parker-Gordon & Company, of St. Louis, who will distribute "San Ettas" in the South and West. Give the San Etta factory two years more and you are going to hear of them in a big way; they are making a good cigar for the money and the fact that it has the stamp of Detroit is going to help a great deal. People all over are getting to realize that a cigar made in Detroit means that it is the best, the same as an automobile made here.

T. C. Gales, of Henry Clay & Bock & Company, was in town early in the month calling on a few of the leading dealers.

Another prominent visitor here lately was Willis Andruss, in the interests of the "Fifty-Six" cigarette. With all due respect to Mr. Andruss, it must be admitted that of all the new cigarettes brought out in the past nine months, particularly of high-grades, "Fifty-Six" is the only one that is holding on and making any headway.

At the annual meeting of the Scotten-Dillon Company on January 27, reports were read of the various officers the past year and an election of officers took place for the ensuing year. The reports showed that about 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco had been manufactured during 1913, which was an increase of about 2,000,000 over the previous twelve months. The balance sheet ending December 31 showed a surplus of $732,000, after payment of dividends, including regular and extra disbursement. Election resulted as follows: President, M. W. Dillon; first vice-president, Alexander McPherson; second vice-president, Walter Scotten; secretary and treasurer, Daniel M. Lynch. E. C. Way, former president, who was injured recently by falling, was retired with a year's vacation and pay. Directors elected were: M. W. Dillon, Alexander McPherson, E. C. Way, M. E. Farr, A. B. Atwater, Henry Stephens and George W. Fowler.

Key West

City to Build Cigar Factory—Gato Company to Make Five New Shapes—Auto Polo Played at Army Post—Two New Sizes of "Mi Favorita"—Two More Applications to Bond Factories

KEY WEST, FLA., February 11, 1914.

THE cigar business has shown an upward tendency since my last report, as is attested by the healthy statement from the bonded warehouse both as to importations and withdrawals of leaf for immediate consumption. All the factories are operating under much more favorable conditions than at my last writing and at many of the larger shops additions to force have been made on the cigarmaking floor, while at others the production limit has been removed. In the shipping lists many new names will be found, which shows trade expansion.

Advices received by the Key West Realty Co. last week state that the park bonds had been sold and that the $60,000 voted by our citizens for that purpose was now in the bank at their disposal. Under the terms of purchase of a certain tract of land from the Key West Realty Co. by the city of Key West to be used for a park, it was agreed that the purchase price should be used in the erection of cigar factories and the bringing of other industries to the city. Thirty thousand dollars of this amount now available will be used to erect on the County Road a building for the "La Diligencia" factory of Moreda & Co., work on which now will be started this month. Laborers started yesterday to clear away the land so that building operations could begin immediately. The building will be of concrete, steel reinforced, one story high, 220 x 110 feet; 200 x 45 of this space will be taken up by the cigarmaking force, this being ample for the seating of five hundred workmen. The balance of the floor space will be divided between the picking, packing, stripping, shipping and office departments. The citizens of Key West are elated over the acquisition of the new factory. The "La Diligencia" factory of Moreda & Co. is owned by M. A. Gunst & Co., who are in turn controlled by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Co., which is one of the largest, if not the largest, cigar jobbing combines in the United States. The company under the terms of their contract with the Key West Realty Co. will be required to carry a large force of cigarmakers throughout the year.

The most prominent and important trade arrival since my last report was Monroe Falkenstein, of the large Pacific Coast jobbing house of S. Bachman & Co., of San Francisco, Cal. During his stay in town he made his headquarters at the office of the E. H. Gato Cigar Co., holding lengthy conferences with the heads of the firms and mapping out the business of 1914. It was decided to launch five new sizes for use in that territory. They will be known as "Longfellow," "Del Monte," "Thilats," "Queens" and "Ideals," and will be made up especially for the Pacific Coast trade. Mr. Falkenstein is very optimistic as to the outlook for the "Gato 3371 Yellow" label during the next twelve months in his section and leaving contracted for 10,000,000 smokes, which will be greatly augmented by many additional orders from the jobbing houses of S. Bachman & Co. at San Francisco and Los Angeles during the year. E. H. Gato, Jr., and family left last week for Cuba on a few weeks' pleasure trip. Thomas H. Gato, secretary and now acting manager, last week closed a contract for a handsome residence, which will be erected near the factory.

Superintendent Remigo L. Trujillo, of the Havana-American Co.'s factory, returned last week from Cuba, bringing with him over four hundred bales of very choice leaf for the use of his house.

Aaron Straus and Celestino Vega, of Celestino Vega & Co., the Tampa cigar manufacturers, passed through town last week, being en route to Havana on a leaf purchasing expedition.

The English and American Auto Polo teams which arrived here recently gave two exhibitions at the United States Army post much to the delight of our local sports. This is the first time that the game has been played in this city and our people displayed much enthusiasm in the game. The teams are under the management of Nat Reiss and have left for Cuba, where they will play several games.

Ralph Henson and Arthur Lecuona have opened a factory under the firm name of Henson-Lecuona Cigar Co.; factory number 328 has been assigned them by the Internal Revenue Department.

Robert S. Tatum, representing the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co., was a caller on the local trade last week in the interest of the "Piedmont" cigarettes. He has since left for Tampa.

W. P. Archer was an out-going passenger to Tampa last week. Mr. Archer is the manager of the Key West Cigar Box Factory and goes to that city on business connected with his firm.

Carlos Tarro, of the Tampa-Havana Co., passed through town last week, being en route from New York to Tampa.

José Lovera, of the José Lovera Co., also passed through town, being en route to Havana.

Don Luis Martinez, president of the Martinez-Havana Co., is expected to arrive tomorrow from Havana. The matter of bonding the factory is now in the hands of Secretary James D. Connor at their New York office.

Business is in fine shape at the factory of the Ruy Lopez Ca. Orders are coming in both by wire and mail. A few additional cigarmakers were seated yesterday.

The Mi Favorita Cigar Co. made their initial shipment of two new sizes last week. They are known as "Rosita," a small cigar, and "Londres," a medium large size. Both are packed under their famous "Mi Favorita" label. At the factory business is in excellent shape.

While there are two applicants for permits to manufacture in bond, there is "nothing doing" as yet.

Ill-Health Causes Retirement of Harry Swisher

Announcement is made of the purchase of the new cigar factory of Harry Swisher, of Newark, O., by John H. Swisher & Son. In addition to the factory it is said that about $70,000 worth of stock was taken over.

The reason given for the sale is that Harry Swisher is in poor health and desires to retire from business.

Harry Swisher Sells Bethesda Cigar Factory

The T. M. Kildow Cigar Company, of Bethesda, O., has recently purchased the cigar factory, fixtures and good will of the plant in that city recently owned by Harry Swisher. The sale is said to have involved a considerable sum of money.

When it became known that the property and business was to be sold, A. O. Orrison & Son, former owners of the business, made an effort to secure an option on the factory. The deal was consummated, however, with the T. M. Kildow Cigar Company. This company is composed of J. B. Wilson and W. T. Bolon.

Hickey Brothers Open Sixth Store

Hickey Brothers, of Davenport, Ia., have recently acquired their sixth cigar store and will shortly open at the corner of Third and Harrison Streets, in the location now occupied by Berg Brothers. The store has been leased by Hickey Brothers for a long term of years.

Deisel-Wemmer Company Makes New Record

During the year which ended December 31, all records of the Deisel-Wemmer Cigar Company were broken, when it was found that the output had totaled 113,000,000. The company is now employing upwards of 3000 people and has recently opened two new factories. With these increased facilities it is predicted by officers of the company that during the current year they will push the mark up to 135,000,000.

Two hundred and fifty applications have been received at the branch factory of the Deisel-Wemmer Company, at St. Mary's, O., for positions when the factory opens. The quota of the factory is four hundred. Experienced employees will be sent to St. Mary's to instruct the green hands.

National Cigar Leaf Growers Benefit

In order that higher prices might be obtained and their crops marketed in better condition, the tobacco growers of the Miami Valley, O., banded themselves together under the title of the National Cigar Leaf Growers' Union, and today it is composed of 6000 members. The union, which is built upon a co-operative basis controls twelve co-operative warehouses, each capitalized at $10,000, with from twenty-five to twenty-seven stockholders. Each warehouse handles the tobacco of approximately one hundred and fifty growers, the same varying from 300,000 to 450,000 pounds per year. As a result of the work of the association the growers have been benefited by an increase of from two cents to three cents per pound on their tobacco, and this with hardly any noticeable effect on the market price. Each stockholder is limited to a certain number of shares of stock, and the voting is done by shares.

While much has been done for the betterment of the tobacco growers through the co-operative system, it is not thought, according to Senator John Cunningham, of Knox; and Representative W. M. Brown, of Ashland, the best plan to follow. They suggest the establishment of individual houses and individual selling until the basic principles of co-operation are thoroughly learned, when a state-wide organization could be formed and co-operative warehouses utilized to much better advantage.

Another reason for the formation of a state-wide organization is that cigarmakers may be furnished with a better grade of tobacco. At the present time, twenty-four cents to twenty-seven cents per pound is paid for filler while wrappers bring seventy-five cents, netting the grower but seven cents. This low rate per pound, having tended to discourage the grower, he has eliminated the raising of the better qualities of Ohio tobacco and confined himself principally to the lower grades. As the result of the latter course, a movement has been started to secure higher prices for the tobacco, which eventually will countenance the raising of a superior quality. This, also, will materially aid the growers in their co-operative system.

New York State Tobacco Growers Elect

Minnesota Growers Form Association

A meeting of the tobacco growers of Clear Lake, Minn., and vicinity was recently held in that town for the purpose of formulating a plan to sell and market to the best advantage, the tobacco crop of 1913. A buyer was procured and on a motion it was unanimously voted to ship the tobacco to its destination as early as possible. It was also voted to organize a Farmers and Tobacco Growers' Association, which was done. The following officers were elected: H. J. Fierick, president; S. L. Nes, vice-president; N. J. Weis, treasurer, and Nick Weinand, clerk. The new association has about forty members.

Gain in Cigars Manufactured in Reading

During January, 1914, there was a big gain in the number of cigars manufactured in Reading, as compared with January, 1913. The receipts from the sale of cigar stamps at the local internal revenue office totaled $40,196.59 for the thirty days of January, ending on Friday, the 30th. A considerable gain is shown as compared with the figures of January, 1913, when the total cigar stamp business amounted to $31,930.20. The January business of this year even exceeds that of the previous December, when the receipts from cigar stamps amounted to $36,500.80.

Claus Koch, who recently purchased the John Dahl Building in Nebraska City, Neb., is having the same overhauled before he removes his cigar factory to that location. When the work of renovation is complete Mr. Koch will have one of the most modern and up-to-date cigar stores in that section of the country.

Leaf Tobacco Market

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

Except for the organization of the "Seedleaf Tobacco Growers' Company," the leaf market is quiet here. There has been little buying as far as the growers are concerned and very little activity among the dealers and packers.

Prices are a little higher, due in some measure to the fact that several of the large buyers have come into the field. They range from five cents to ten and a half, and it is believed that they may go higher if the buyers start jumping over each other to get the crops. However, that is not the case now; most of them are taking it very easy and are inspecting the crops in a careful manner, and are paying for the leaf on its merit.

There is some of the crop that is hail-cut and a considerable amount of inferior grades. Nevertheless, there is much really good leaf to be found and such as is for sale is readily bought at good prices. Some of the farmers show a tendency to hold on for a while, but the opinion is that the period is at hand to get a good fair price. The 1913 crop is very uneven and naturally the buying is being done with care. With the exception of the 1909 leaf, there is very little old goods in the market, and there is nothing to purchase but 1913.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

With buyers still traversing the growing districts in an effort to secure, after inspection and approval, the remainder of the 1913 crop, at prices which generally prevail for the same, the disposition of the crop is proceeding slowly.

At the present writing it is stated that in all probability a substantial portion of the crop on hand, averaging at least 10 per cent., will go at stemming goods prices.

The tobacco received for packing is of fair quality and the packers are kept pretty steadily employed taking care of the early purchases.

Regarding the cured leaf, there is not much to be said, the local packers having distributed the majority of the old stock on hand.

JANESVILLE, WIS.

Tobacco growers here are much elated over the success with which they have been meeting in the disposal of this season's output. Not only have the leaves been of excellent quality, but the prices asked, except at rare intervals, have been satisfactory to the buyers.

While most of the contracts call for delivery before acceptance, many of the crops have been examined on the farms, and the quality proving satisfactory to the dealers, have, in most cases, been accepted. Eliminating a small portion of the crop taken down in the first casing, the remainder is proving entirely satisfactory as regards delivery for packing.

Unlike other years, there has been an utter lack of trouble in the buying and investigating of the crop, this being due, it is stated, to the fact that the greater part of the crop had been procured and placed under shed before being disposed of.

There seems to be a steady demand for 1913 remnants, the better grades going for sorting and stemming purposes. Quotations, however, on the greater number of sales are much lower than those reported at an earlier date.

There has been a keen demand on the part of the growers for delivery, inasmuch as but a trifle more than one-half of the crop has been delivered.

THE CAROLINAS

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

The quantity of poor tobacco placed on the market is said to be the cause of the low average prices which have prevailed recently, and the opinion is that the prices paid are good considering the quality of the leaf. A rise in the average price has been looked for but it has not come yet.

Good tobacco, as always, is bringing very good figures and the growers for the most part seem rather pleased with the prices they are receiving.

The breaks are not running very heavy, as the tobacco remaining to come to the market is scattered about through several counties, and there are hardly enough farmers with tobacco unsold within one day's ride of the city who would decide to come to the market at the same time.

CONNECTICUT.

SUFFIELD, CONN.

Throughout this section the warehouses are now operating on full time, and a general feeling of satisfaction pervades the whole valley. The 1913 crop is practically all sold and plans are now being made for the planting of the 1914 crop, which promises to be of unusual acreage.

¶ First introduced to the trade in 1869 by the late Juan F. Portuondo, one of the pioneers of cigar manufacturing in the Quaker City.

¶ The superior quality and workmanship of these goods, which made their maker famous from coast to coast, has been maintained ever since and is typified in the above brand, a Havana filled, Sumatra wrapped cigar of most excellent flavor.

CRESSMAN'S COUNSELLOR 5¢ CIGAR

Countless Consumers Confidently Consume Cressman's "Counsellor"

or, in other words, "they appreciate the 'real thing' in a cigar when they strike it." Quality considered, they know they are smoking the best. Knowing this, Mr. Dealer, can you afford to ignore a brand with the reputation and selling quality embodied in the "Counsellor"? Are you getting your share of that business?

BILL OFFERED IN THE HOUSE TO MAKE MONOPOLY OF TOBACCO

Would Take Over Domestic Industry in All Its Branches —Would Issue $500,000,000 Worth of Bonds for Purpose—Would Create Bureau of Tobacco Industry—Trade Corporations Would Be Prohibited After July, 1916

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")
WASHINGTON, D. C., February 25.

All attempts to devise an organization among domestic tobacco growers in Virginia and Kentucky to compete with the foreign purchasing agent of European nations, seem to fall flat. Representative Flood, of Virginia, and Senator Martin of the same state, were successful in having Congress pass a resolution at the last session to investigate this situation, but that special committee has been unable to formulate any remedial legislation. It was charged that the European nations which have tobacco monopolies are in the habit of employing but one purchasing agent in this country. The particular brand of tobacco which finds a market only in these foreign countries is grown in Virginia and Kentucky, and therefore the small tobacco growers complain of being at the mercy of a big monopoly maintained by foreign powers.

Representative Carter Glass has introduced a bill proposing to create a government monopoly, authorizing the same to issue $500,000,000 government bonds to float the project, and to dictate who shall buy and sell tobacco for export. The bill was referred to the Ways and Means Committee, where it will probably never be touched. The important point about this proposition is that the bill in question is not Mr. Glass', but is one that was written by the Farmers' Union and was introduced by Mr. Glass by request.

It can be definitely said that Mr. Glass has no great interest in the measure other than a friendly feeling toward those who are sponsors for it. If the bill is to gain any support it will come from those entirely outside of Congress. Furthermore, it is such a measure as is obnoxious to the present administration. Further than desiring to create government monopolies the administration is now busy trying to find a way whereby all private monopolies may be destroyed.

British-American Tobacco Company Upheld

Declaring that the use of the name "British-American" by the cigar stores company formerly doing business under that title, is an unwarranted intrusion on the rights of the British-American Tobacco Company of England, whose main offices are located in London, England, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, through its opinion, has doubtless settled a mooted question. The decision which was rendered by Judge Coxe, with concurrence by Judges Rogers and Lacombe, overrules a recent opinion by Judge Ward in the United States District Court, who contended that "the words 'British-American' were merely geographical and political and the defendant could not be enjoined from using them." Since the filing of the original suit by the British-American Tobacco Company, the defendant company has gone into bankruptcy.

METROPOLITAN MAY BE OUT OF ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S REACH

Must First Decide if Company is Within Federal Jurisdiction—Complaints of Independents Not Yet Fully Examined—Case Rests on Attorney-General's Report

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")
WASHINGTON, D. C., February 25.

Whether the Government will file a suit against the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, of New York City, will depend entirely upon an investigation that is now being made by the Department of Justice. A formal complaint against the Metropolitan has been placed before the Department by the Independent Tobacco Dealers' Association of that city, which claims that the Metropolitan is a combination in restraint of trade and should be dissolved under authority of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

It was alleged that previous to the advent of the so-called trust there were two hundred jobbers in New York City, whereas now there is but one, the Metropolitan Tobacco Company. As a result the chain stores of the alleged trust are benefited and only the trust goods are handled in the metropolis. Because of its affiliation with the so-called trust, the Metropolitan, it was said, will handle only the goods of those tobacco manufacturers it chooses. The Independent dealers asserted that this results in preventing many independent tobacco manufacturers from being able to enter the New York market and dispose of their goods.

Beyond proving the allegations which have been placed before the Department as stated above, the Attorney-General will first decide whether he has jurisdiction over the Metropolitan Tobacco Company. While its practices may prove monopolistic from the investigation that is now being made, it might also prove that the jobbing house in question is doing business entirely within the State of New York, and is, therefore, without the purview of the federal statutes.

So far, the complaint of the Independents has not been fully examined by the Department. The Attorney-General turned the document over to the investigating division of the Department and asked for an investigation and a report. The investigation is now being made and a report may be filed with the Attorney-General within a short while. Everything rests upon the facts which may be obtained in that report.

V. GILMORE IDEN.

New Cigarette Firm Incorporated

The Custom Made Cigarette Company, of 132 Clifton Street, Philadelphia, Pa., has recently been incorporated for the purpose of manufacturing and selling cigarettes. They will manufacture only high-grade goods and will feature a perfumed cigarette for ladies. This will retail for forty cents the pack. They also sell an excellent custom made Turkish cigarette for gentlemen. Heretofore they have been interested almost exclusively in the manufacture of monogram and initial cigarettes for clubs, private trade and fraternities.

The company now expect to market a stock cigarette which will shortly appear on the market. Thomas D. Gratz is the manager of the company.

He was born on February 3, 1858, in the Hartz Mountains, Germany. He came to this country in March, 1878.

For the past twenty years he has been in the Turkish leaf tobacco business, having his offices and warehouses in Cavalla, Turkey, and in New York.

Mr. Drucklieb was also president of the Cado Company, Inc.; president of the New York Cigarette Machine Company, and vice-president and treasurer of the National Importing Company.

He was a director of the Richmond Borough National Bank, and a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Municipal Art Society of New York, Chamber of Commerce, Staten Island, Staten Island Civic League, Staten Island Club, German Club, Richmond County Country Club, Milo Round Table Club, besides being a patron of many hospitals and charitable institutions.

Mr. Drucklieb is survived by his sons Karl, Paul, Henry and Herbert, and a daughter Edna. His sons Paul, Henry and Herbert have been connected with him in his various businesses for the past eight years, and will continue to do business under the same lines and principles as heretofore.

William F. Fletcher

William F. Fletcher, identified with the cigar business in Ottawa, Canada, since 1875, died in that city on February 15 of neuralgia of the heart. He had long been a prominent cigar manufacturer in that section. The deceased was fifty-nine years old.

Mr. Fletcher was born in Baltimore, Md., March 26, 1855. He went to Ottawa in 1875, and became associated with Jacob H. Baisch in the cigar business. Later, Mr. Baisch sold his interest to George Jobst and the firm became Fletcher & Jobst. After Mr. Jobst's death in 1896, Mr. Fletcher purchased his interest.

The deceased is survived by a widow and one daughter. Two sisters, one brother and two grandchildren, all of Baltimore, are also living.

Albert Beach

Albert H. Beach, general agent for the Bloch Brothers Tobacco Company, and well known in musical circles in West Virginia, died at Wheeling, W. Va., on February 14. He was eighty-one years old. The deceased is survived by Austin Beach, news editor of the "Pittsburgh Dispatch," an only child.

W. H. Manley

W. H. Manley, manufacturer of cigars at 19 Harriman Avenue, Jamaica, L. I., died on February 14, at his home, 43 Brooklyn Avenue, Jamaica. The deceased owned a tobacco plantation in Cuba and secured much of his leaf from it.

George B. McCue

George B. McCue, aged sixty-eight, formerly chief of police of Waterloo, N. Y., and for many years proprietor of the McCue cigar and tobacco shop in West Main Street, Waterloo, died February 13, at his home, following a brief illness. Deceased leaves four daughters and three sons and one sister.

W. H. Wilber

W. H. Wilber, for many years engaged in the cigar manufacturing business, and well known in tobacco circles of Detroit, Mich., died recently at the home of his son in South Bend, Ind. The deceased, who was seventy-one years old, is survived by a widow, three sons and a daughter.

W. S. Somerville

W. S. Somerville, of Sault Ste. Marie, died on February 11. He was proprietor of Somerville & Company, one of the principal cigar emporiums in that city. During Mr. Somerville's business career he had made many friends who regret very much to hear of his sudden death. While he was suffering for some time with heart disease, his death was not wholly unexpected, but came as a severe shock nevertheless. The remains were shipped to Menominee for burial, that city having been his home before coming to the Soo. He is survived by his wife, daughter and stepson.

Samuel H. Bingaman

Following a stroke of paralysis, Samuel H. Bingaman, for many years postmaster at Hopeland, Pa., died at his home recently. Mr. Bingaman was also a cigar manufacturer of some note, having engaged in the manufacture of cigars for quite a long period. He is survived by a widow, one son and a daughter.

Old Cigar Merchant to Retire

Edward McSweeney, aged sixty-nine, for the past forty-two years retail tobacconist of Rochester, N. Y., and who has conducted a retail tobacco and cigar store at 105 Main Street East, Rochester, for the last ten years, will retire from business on April 1, when a ten-year lease of his store will expire. Mr. McSweeney was born in Rochester on August 8, 1844, and when a schoolboy was employed as tobacco stripper by W. S. Suggett, who came to Rochester from Utica, N. Y., and in the early fifties opened the first tobacco manufacturing plant in Rochester in a building in Main Street directly across from where the Hotel Whitcomb now stands. In 1872 Mr. McSweeney became actively engaged in the retail tobacco business in Rochester. In that year he purchased the tobacco and cigar store of Dunn & Colbert in the Metropolitan Building, where he remained for eighteen years. Then he removed to Main and North Water Street, where he remained for ten years. Later he moved into his present store at 105 Main Street.

Shirk & Company to Erect New Factory

Though only having opened their factory a couple of months ago, Shirk & Company, cigar manufacturers, of Terre Hill, Pa., now find their present quarters inadequate and will erect a new factory. For this purpose a public meeting was called recently to consider the advisability of erecting a larger structure, and the project having met with favor, a committee on sites was appointed in addition to a soliciting committee, who plan to call on the business men and citizens of the town to aid the new venture by subscribing for stock. Starting originally with thirty-five cigarmakers, Messrs. Shirk & Company plan to increase their force to one hundred just so soon as the new factory is erected. Work will start at the first sign of favorable weather.

Activity Marks Career of M. H. Newmark & Company

HARRIS NEWMARK, who founded the wholesale grocery business of M. H. Newmark & Company, has been an active upbuilder of home industry in Los Angeles since the days when the city was little more than a pueblo. His business career extends from 1853 to 1906, when he retired from active life. But even today he uses his best efforts to forward the consumption of Los Angeles made goods by Los Angeles people.

In 1854, Mr. Newmark embarked on the business sea alone. In 1862 he engaged in the commission business and the following year started the pioneer wholesale grocery business of H. Newmark & Company. A year later he went to New York for a stay of two years. On returning, he again took up the management of the business of H. Newmark & Company.

The Newmark grocery business prospered and grew from a small concern to one of the principal business institutions of Southern California. In 1896 the firm of H. Newmark & Company was succeeded by that of M. A. Newmark & Company, the name by which the business is now known. Morris A. Newmark, son of Harris Newmark, is at the head of the business today.

Harris Newmark was for ten years, after turning his grocery interests over to M. A. Newmark & Company, associated with K. Cohn & Company, in the handling of hides and wool. In 1896 Mr. Newmark engaged in the business alone and ten years later retired from active business life. His entire business career has been one closely associated with the growth and development of Southern California and his efforts have been to forward the interests of Los Angeles at all times.

The famous "Lucky" Baldwin ranch at Arcadia once was the property of Harris Newmark. It was he who sold it to Baldwin. In 1887 Mr. Newmark bought the Temple Block, which is now a city possession and which was bought for a City Hall site. The famous Vejar vineyard and Repetta ranch are two of the proud possessions of Mr. Newmark.

The firm of M. A. Newmark & Company are also the possessors of an enormous cigar trade, wholesale, and have such well-known brands as "Jose Vila" for their leader in Havana, and "Don Remo," "El Dallo" and others in five-cent lines. Their large cigar department is presided over by Mr. Seligman.

New Quarters for Skinner & Knecht

Skinner & Knecht have leased, through W. Ross Campbell Company, the basement and mezzanine floor of the new fireproof building at 761 Los Angeles Street, for their entire wholesale stock and business of cigars and tobaccos. The approximate consideration of $25,000 in the transaction represents only a portion of the expenditure that this firm will make in establishing their new quarters. Skinner & Knecht are sole agents for the "La Confession" cigar.

Reid, Murdock & Company, Preparing to Move

THE cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Company, is excited over the prospect of moving into the new building which is now nearing completion for the large wholesale grocery house across the river. Some preliminary plans have been made for moving the department, but the date of migration is still too far in the future to warrant immediate packing of stock for transportation. "El Roi Tan" cigar has been moving so well of late among the retailers that the department is kept busy most of the time. It seems that this cigar has pushed right to the front through sheer merit. Few stands which handle high-grade goods in the city now leave "El Roi Tan" from the list.

"La Mega" Demand Still Continues

Mason, Ehrman & Company, Portland, Ore., Northwestern distributors for the "La Mega" (V. Guerra, Diaz & Company), report that they are doing a splendid business on this brand, and that "repeats" are the order of the day, no matter where placed. Twenty thousand of the brand were recently received by this progressive firm, 10,000 of which were the Pearl shaped and the other half Emilys.

Lease Secured by M. A. Gunst & Company

Having secured the lease of the corner store in the Broadway Building, a ten-story office building located at the northwest corner of Broadway and Morrison Streets, Portland, Ore., M. A. Gunst & Company, the large jobbers and distributors, will upon the completion of the refitting of the store, open the same as their seventh store in Portland.

"Charles Denby" Distributed by Stone-Ordean-Wells

The ever increasing popularity of the "Charles Denby" cigar, made by H. Fendrich, Evansville, Ind., continues. The latest firm to take on this brand for distribution is the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, of Duluth, who look forward with much optimism to a good business on this popular cigar.

Hartford Company's New Warehouse

The Hartford Cigar Company, Hartford, Conn., recently gave out a contract for the erection of a new warehouse to cost $40,000. The new structure, which is to be 141 feet long by 75 feet wide, will be five stories in heighth and constructed of brick, timber and concrete. Work has already been started and it is expected that the building will be completed at an early date.

Acker Stores Featuring "Luxury" Smoking Tobacco

The cigar departments of the Finley Acker Stores, are meeting with success in distributing Palmer's "Luxury" smoking tobacco in eight-ounce tins which retails for a dollar the package. This tobacco is manufactured by the J. Ward Palmer Company, Ltd., of Baltimore, and is causing a sensation wherever introduced.

BILL OFFERED IN THE HOUSE TO MAKE MONOLLY OF TOBACCO

It has been said that foreign nations sanction monopolies when we deal in international trade and there is no reason why we should permit the monopolistic nations to enter our competitive markets and reap the benefits from both systems of commerce. If the pending bills, however, provide that domestic producers may combine for export trade, such will not be coddled or promoted directly by the Government. Such export combinations will be permitted only by members of the trade coming together to organize an export company. The Government will not of itself attempt to do this business for them. The law will merely permit the organization of such export companies without being adjudged in contravention of domestic law.

After all, it is said by Congressional leaders, this is practically the only way we can combat the evils of foreign monopolies such as was brought to light in connection with the foreign government tobacco monopolies. The only salvation the tobacco producers of Virginia and Kentucky have will be the organization of an export sales company in which all such producers are interested.

"A bill to provide a new method of collecting revenue from tobacco, and so forth.

"Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That a Bureau of Tobacco Industry be, and the same is hereby, created within and subordinate to the Treasury Department. The President shall appoint a director for the said bureau, who, under such regulation as the Secretary of the Treasury may ordain, shall proceed to effect such organization, build, buy, or lease such buildings, install such machinery, and employ or appoint such assistants and laborers as may be necessary to provide the necessary facilities and help to buy, manufacture, and sell tobacco in all forms, including all products derived from it.

"Sec. 2. That the term of office of the director shall be during satisfactory service, and the director shall receive a salary the amount of which shall be regerlated by the Secretary of the Treasury, except it shall not be less than $25,000 nor more than $50,000 per annum. The President shall have power to remove the director at any time for cause and to appoint his successor, except at no time shall the political faith or party affiliations of either the director or any other official, appointee, employee or any other person connected with the Bureau of Tobacco Industry be considered in making appointments or in giving employment in said bureau either by the President or any other person having power to appoint, select, or hire persons to serve in said bureau.

"Sec. 3. That the director of the bureau, by and with the consent of the Secretary of the Treasury, shall have power to purchase the real estate, buildings, and machinery, or either of them, of any person, firm or corporation engaged in buying, handling, manufacturing, or selling tobacco or its products, at prices not in excess of the cost of duplicating said machinery and buildings, but it shall be unlawful to include in such prices the value of brands or to make any allowance for the good will of the business.

"Sec. 4. That the director of the bureau shall inaugurate such system of accounting as will show the conduct of the business and shall, at the end of each fiscal year, show the profits or losses resulting from such operations for the year. Each year a reasonable allowance shall be deducted for depreciation of plant, and as soon as the business has reached a profitable basis an allowance shall be made for a revenue equivalent to that which is now imposed on the same tobacco when in the hands of persons, firms, or corporations, which allowance shall be annually paid into the Treasury of the United States as revenue.

"Sec. 5. That after five years from the date of establishment of this bureau the Secretary of the Treasury shall annually set aside a sinking fund out of the net profits of the business sufficient in amount to provide for the payment at maturity of the bonds hereinafter authorized to be issued.

"Sec. 6. That after July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen, it shall be unlawful for any person, firm, or corporation to buy, manufacture, sell, or deal in any form of tobacco or any of its products except such persons, firms, or corporations as may be the duly appointed agents or officers of the United States Government who may be charged with the duty of buying or selling tobacco or its products for the account of said Government, and such persons, firms, or corporations as may buy tobacco and its products exclusively from the Government for export, provided that manufacturers of cigars and dealers in tobacco to be used in the manufacture of cigars may continue to buy, manufacture, and sell such tobacco under existing laws and regulations or such laws and regulations as Congress may hereafter enact. Any person, firm, or corporation violating this provision shall, upon conviction thereof, be fined $1,000 for such offense, each purchase or sale shall be construed as a separate offense, and shall be imprisoned for not less than one year nor more than five. In case the offense is committed by a corporation, the fine shall be imposed upon both the corporation and its officer, employee, or agent who commits the offense, and said officer, employee, or agent shall be imprisoned just as though he acted for himself.

"Sec. 7. That the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to sell from time to time United States industrial bonds not exceeding a total amount of $50,000,000 to carry out the purposes of this Act. The said bonds shall bear interest at the rate of three per centum per annum, which interest shall be payable January first and July first of each year, and shall be subject to call after ten years from date of issue, and payable thirty years after said date of issue. The Secretary of the Treasury when any of the bonds above mentioned are to be sold shall give due notice of said sale and shall invite bids for same, and allot the bonds to the highest bidders, except that no bonds shall be sold for less than their par value.

MINIMUM WAGE HEARING BRINGS OUT INTERESTING STATISTICS REGARDING DETROIT

Ten Factories Produce 250,000,000 Cigars a Year—Girl Cigarmakers Average From $9.95 to $16.45 a Week —Minimum Wage Would Work Harm to Cigar Manufacturers in Detroit—Salient Facts Brought Out in Arguing That Low Wages Cause Vice

DETROIT, MICH., February 25.

There was a great deal of interesting discussion by cigar manufacturers at the hearing on February 16th before the members of the Minimum Wage Commission, appointed by the Governor of Michigan to investigate the working conditions in factories as applied to female help. At this hearing, there were present several hundred representatives of concerns in various lines of industry who employ large numbers of female help. Albert E. Bunting, of the Superior Cigar Manufacturing Company, of Detroit, represented the leading cigar manufacturers of the city, and he gave statistics showing that the average wage paid girls in cigar factories run from $9.95 to $16.45 per week. He also stated that the annual pay-roll of the ten leading factories would run no less than $2,000,000, that the capital invested was nearly $3,000,000, annual business was approximately $7,500,000 and that close to 250,000,000 cigars were made each year by these ten factories. He brought out the further fact that to establish a minimum wage would have a tendency to cause dissatisfaction, in which case some of the Detroit factories might be forced to seek locations in cities outside of the state.

It was the contention of the commission that low wages produce vice. Here are some of the points brought out by the employers:

"Girls who have gone wrong were the biggest wage earners in my shop."

"There is no connection between low wage and vice, but there is between high wage and vice."

"There are girls in my factory earning $15 a week who pay more for hats than my wife."

"It costs from $60 to $150 to turn out experienced cigarmakers."

"The supply of girl workers does not meet the demand. There is always a scarcity of women workers."

M. Lopez & Company Announce Opening

MUCH interest in the trade attaches this week to the opening of offices at 90 Wall Street, New York City, by M. Lopez & Company, for the purpose of specializing in the sale of Vuelta Abajo tobaccos. S. Loewenthal & Sons Report Good Business

S. Loewenthal & Sons, the New York Havana importers and packers of leaf tobacco, are very enthusiastic over the business being done, since they have been in position to offer to the trade the Florida, Georgia and Connecticut shade-grown tobacco. Large quantities have been disposed of and additional shipments received. The firm spent the past week in conference with quite a number of its out of town representatives, and it is stated made plans for the pushing of an extensive campaign during the coming year.

February Orders of H. Duys & Company Double

Reports from H. Duys & Company, the importers of Sumatra wrapper, with offices at 170 Water Street, New York, state that the business of the February just ended, has nearly doubled the business done in the same period of any other year. The demand for Sumatra wrappers has been a continuous one, the last week witnessing the consummation of quite a few good size orders. J. H. Duys, of the company, left for Amsterdam this week to attend the forthcoming inscriptions.

Demuth & Company's New "Drysmoke"

WHILE it is true that business conditions have not been very good during the past fortnight, this in all sections of the country, nevertheless, William Demuth & Company, the well-known New York pipe manufacturers, report that they are very well satisfied with the business on their products throughout the country. They direct particular interest to their new Drysmoke pipe, of sanitary construction, and made in a great many attractive styles and designs. This latest addition to the Demuth line has met with much success in the trade and has resulted in the opening of many new accounts.

Waitt & Bond Secure Larger Quarters

Waitt & Bond, of Boston, manufacturers of the well-known "Blackstone" brand, who recently opened a branch at 331 Bowery, have leased and now occupy larger quarters at 318-324 East Thirty-second Street. The advertising copy for the "Blackstone" cigar used in newspapers has received much favorable attention of late in Printers' Ink.

Heard on Broadway

J. M. Gans is back again in New York after having completed a trip through the Middle West boosting "El Radios."

"Ruy Lopez" and "Webster" cigars were featured prominently in the windows of I. N. Maaskoff's Nassau Street store (near Liberty) recently.

M. A. Gunst & Company are boosters when it comes to the "Van Dyck." This cigar occupies quite a position of prominence in their Wall Street store.

The display of "First Consul" cigars, made by P. Pohalski & Company, in the window of Fred W. Grafer's cigar store, 159 Fifth Avenue, has attracted quite a good deal of attention during the past fortnight.

W. Curtis Thompson, chairman of Philip Morris & Company, is in New York, having arrived recently on the "Olympic" from Liverpool, for a visit to the American branches of the company.

B. F. Alexander is back again in New York, having returned from a ten-days' trip to Canada, where he visited Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa and Quebec. Mr. Alexander, who is much elated over the condition of trade in the Northern country, was accompanied by Richard Davis, also North American representative of "Flor de Tomas Gutierrez" and "A. Fernandez Garcia" factories in Havana.

In every line of trade price-cutting flourishes despite determined efforts to stamp it out. Chain stores set the pace and individuals will be found trailing along doing the same thing. The independent merchants who have refused to meet these cuts in established prices on standard goods have labored valiantly, but thus far to little effect. However, for the best interests of all lines of business it is evident that there is a determined trend toward Federal legislation which will effectively check ravages on goods that are nationally advertised and which have established prices.

The Problem of Price-Cutting

It is not to be denied that in many cases the manufacturer is unable to control the price at which his product is retailed, despite the claim that there are situations in which the manufacturer is a party to this method.

Price-cutting in cases where nationally advertised goods are used as a leader seems unfair. In the grocery trade there are cases cropping up continually where an independent retailer cuts out the widely known goods and substitutes a brand of equal quality but little known. He does this because the chain store has taken most of his business on that particular brand. And it must be remembered that he has many customers who still buy all their goods from him and their confidence in him is such that they will take the new brand on his recommendation. At once an outlet for the advertised goods is closed. Multiply this by several hundred such retailers in a number of the large cities, and it will be seen that the output of the advertised brand must be considerably curtailed, for the chain stores cannot reach the customers who deal with the independent retailer, and the national advertising begins to lose its effectiveness. This works a hardship for the mediums that carry the advertising. In many cases they have made the manufacturer's business for him, and they cannot be blamed because of the apparent loss in "pulling" power.

Take the situation in the cigar and tobacco lines; goods of the allied factories, as well as those of the independent factories, are continually cut by both factions. The manufacturer, without the aid of legislation, cannot help himself very much. However, it does seem unjust to the manufacturers to see old established brands made the football in the price-cutting scrimmages.

Price-cutting may be a pernicious practice, but it is a matter of perspective. Business ethics still exist, despite a belief to the contrary.

Legislation apparently is the only solution, and should the time come when it is possible for a manufacturer to establish the retail price at which his goods may be sold, you will find those who still believe that, morally, price-cutting is all right, although it may be unlawful.

However, in the final summing up, the principles which actuate those who cut prices on other established brands to draw attention to goods of their own manufacture, is a subject for grave consideration.

After all, is it not using the advertising results of another's years of labor and large expenditure of money, to find a short cut to the consumer's market for another line of goods?

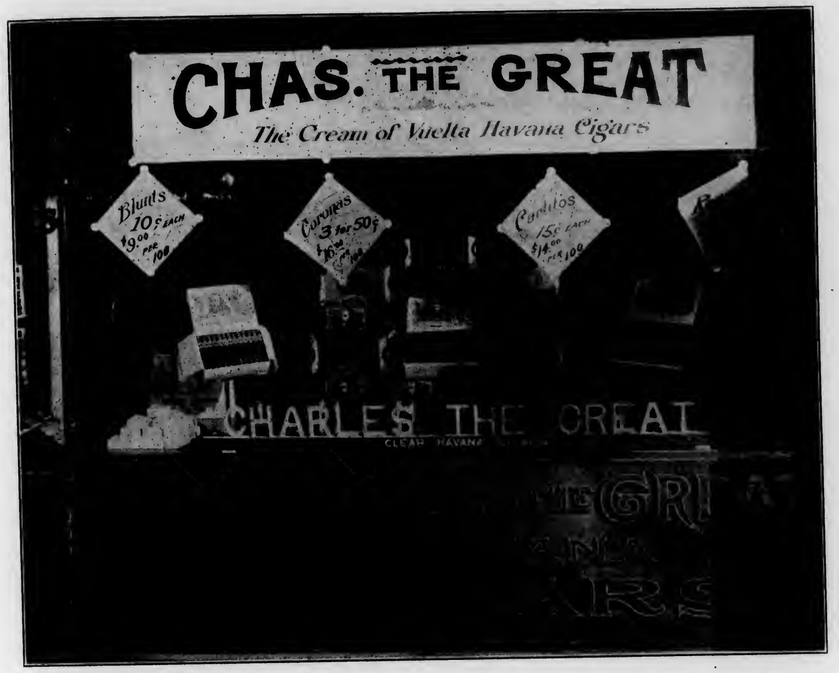
A Fine Display for "Charles the Great"



The accompanying photograph showing display of "Charles the Great" cigars, manufactured by Salvador Rodriguez, New York and Tampa, is attracting much attention in the store of J. G. Atherholt, 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia.

The electrically lighted sign announcing the brand is here displayed for the first time in Philadelphia, and gives the decoration an added charm, especially during the evening hours.

The sale of "Charles the Great" cigars in all sizes has increased to an appreciable degree.

Heavy Demand for "Charles the Great"

Fernandez Rodriguez, New York sales manager of the "Charles the Great" factory, returned to Manhattan last week after a short visit to the factory in Tampa. The demand for "Charles the Great" seems to be thoroughly well maintained over all the territory which they cover and that means the United States. For a high-class clear Havana cigar made in Tampa the goods of the "Charles the Great" factory, have long held an enviable reputation, and the new offerings for this year are indicating that Salvador Rodriguez, the veteran head of the factory, secured some super lots of Vuelta Abajo during his last trip to Havana.

Diplomacy Avoids Strike

Having failed in their demand for higher wages, two operators but recently employed at the Greenville, S. C., plant of the Seidenberg Cigar Company, attempted to enforce a walk-out. They were at once dismissed and what promised to be a strike of some proportions was avoided by the diplomacy of the manager of the plant, who called the girls together, averaging nearly 500, and stated exactly the conditions existing, which resulted in the strike being declared off. Many of the girls average from $12 to $15 per week.

F. Lozano, Son & Company, to "Make in Bond"

Announcement is made by F. Lozano, Son & Company, Tampa, Fla., that their factory has now been converted into a bonded manufacturing warehouse in accordance with the law enacted by Congress, on October 3, 1913. As an earnest to the trade that all cigars coming from this factory are made only of tobacco imported from Cuba and under the supervision of the United States Government, all future shipments will bear the new United States Custom Bonded Stamp. We quote further from the announcement of this well-known firm: "We trust that this action on our part will meet with the approval of our patrons, and will assist them in the sale of our product." The announcement closes with an expression of thanks for past patronage, and solicitation for the continuance of the same in the future.

Charles L. Storm, of the Tobacco Products Corporation, returned to New York on the nineteenth ultimo, after a brief trip to Richmond, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Mr. Ellis, of the company, has been out in Chicago during the past fortnight.

Los Angeles

Heaviest Storm in History of City Ties Up Railroads—Total Damage May Approximate $3,000,000—Business in General Keeping Up—Vanderbilt Cup Race Brings Crowds to City—Salesmen Have Varied Experiences in Storm

LOS ANGELES, CAL., February 23, 1914.

BUSINESS is keeping up remarkably well of late, despite the bad weather being handed us by Forecaster Ford Carpenter. Cigar trade especially has not slackened and jobbers are working continually to fill orders from outside points. Premiums such as tie-clasps, scarf-pins and cigarette holders are proving an added stimulus in the disposition of cigarettes.

The Vanderbilt and the Grand Prix automobile races, the two race classics, which were to have been held here on February 21 and 23, respectively, were postponed on account of unfavorable weather conditions, a thing never looked for in California. But—would you believe that the course, that of the already famous Santa Monica course, the course upon which the world's speed record of some 78.88 miles per hour was made by one Teddy Tetzlaff, was not bothered one whit by the continual downpour. The postponement of the races was announced for fear that the crowds that were to witness both races, estimated at being near on to 400,000 persons, would be greatly diminished by the threatening weather conditions. Now that a suitable date has been provided, a date where Southern California sunshine will be much in evidence, the influx of tourists from the East and all over the State will tend to make business move and things in general brighten up.

E. Klauber, of the Klauber-Wangenheim Company, left for San Diego on a business trip, making the trip on the steamer "Yale," as all railroad connections are out of commission, due to the rains of the past few days. He will be absent for about ten days. In his absense Albert Greenwood will look after the interests of the firm.

Klingenstein Company reports an enormous shipment of "American" cigars on the road, "made in bond." They have many orders booked for this cigar and the first shipment will undoubtedly be disposed of shortly after arrival.

J. B. Bonhaus, star salesman for Klauber-Wangenheim Company, has recorded the most harrowing experience of his young life. Mr. Bonhaus was one of the many to be marooned in Santa Barbara while the storm was at its highest. Wishing to get back home as soon as possible, he and forty other cigar salesmen procured a gasoline launch and after an exciting voyage out at sea, arrived in San Pedro harbor much upset and vowing they will never be caught in like manner again.

The thousands and thousands making up the army that people Los Angeles' business bee-hive, its office buildings, stores and other workaday places had an unusual frolic after breakfast on February 21. They walked, prevailed on a stranger with an auto to accommodate them, "stole a ride," or paid from a nickel to a dollar to the driver of a delivery wagon or auto truck to get to work.

Completely isolated from the outside world by every means of transportation and communication, Los Angeles began reckoning yesterday, the damage, estimated at nearly $3,000,000, inflicted by the four days' storm, the worst in its history.

The Postal Telegraph system is completely cut off from the North and the East as a result of the storm.

The Western Union is taking care of a limited amount of business by means of roundabout loops. To communicate with San Bernardino and Redlands, it is necessary to reach those cities through far-off Chicago. The towns of the Imperial Valley are connected through El Paso. Wires are down between Los Angeles and Santa Barbara and the connection is made through San Francisco. The telephone companies' service also was impaired. Service was later resumed.

A tie-clasp is one of the important little articles that every well-dressed man appreciates. The tie is kept in trim, even position by a tie-clasp, so that it always looks crisp and snappy. This free tie-clasp, which the American Tobacco Company is giving away with each package of "Egyptienne Straights," is of genuine enamel over gold-finished metal and is an attractive as well as a serviceable piece of jewelry. Only one tie-clasp will be given to a customer, and as the supply is limited, "first come, first served."

"Egyptienne Straights" have made a phenomenal success. They are an absolutely pure Turkish cigarette, made solely of Turkish tobacco. They have made such a hit with the men who prefer a straight Turkish cigarette that they are now the largest selling straight Turkish cigarette in the world.

Fred Barman & Brothers have had the opening of their new cigar store at Sixth and Spring Streets, Saturday, February 21. Between the hours of 11 A. M. and 12 M., they gave to each person entering their store, one of their (the customer's) favorite cigars with no questions asked. Fred Barman, Jr., was around the place all day receiving his many friends and looking after things in general. Ike Wentworth was also seen around spending some loose change. It is estimated that there were 8650 persons visiting the store during the day. This location is considered one of the best in the city and Fred Barman & Brothers have good reason to be proud of it.

Dave Erdrich, with the "El Sidelo" cigar interests at hand, is a visitor in town, and was also one of the many cigar men to be seen around Sixth and Spring Streets, at the opening of Fred Barman & Brothers' new cigar store. Fred Barman & Brothers are distributors of the "El Sidelo" cigar.

Sam Wertheimer, of Wertheimer Brothers, of Baltimore, Md., manufacturers of the far-famed "El Dallo" cigar, is visiting in this city, enjoying the many friends and calling on his distributors, M. A. Newmark & Company. He expects to be here for at least two weeks longer.

The Klingenstein Company has been up against it of late, not having been in a position to fill orders on "Cinco" cigars. Since the first of the year this concern has been plugging away under difficulties, brought about by the factory not being able to keep up with their hustling sales force. Klingenstein Company are sole distributors for "Cinco" cigars in this section.

"Henry the Fourth" cigar, manufactured by Bustillo Brothers y Diaz, are getting a wide distribution through the never-failing energies of the sales force of Beck & Company, successors to George W. Walker, distributors of "Henry the Fourth."

Cameron C. Trau, manager of Haas-Baruch & Company's cigar department paid me an unlooked-for compliment the other day when he presented me with the first box of "Lovera" cigars, made in bond, the same coming direct from the factory and being part of the first shipment of "Lovera" made under bond, to be received in this territory. Naturally, I feel highly elated over it.

Beck & Company, successors to George W. Walker Cigar Company, have just received a shipment of "Counsellor" cigars, manufactured by Allen Cressman Sons, of Philadelphia, Pa. The "Counsellor" cigars have been in this market for the past twenty years and are still much in evidence. Window displays are now in order all over town and are very attractive.

Rob Gans, of the firm of J. J. Gans Brothers, expects to leave for New York City within the next week or so. While on the trip he will pay visits to the manufacturers whom he represents in this territory. Mr. Neidres, salesman for the firm and closely connected with the doings of the house, will look after the territory covered by Rob. Rob expects to be gone about ninety days.

"Copyright" cigar, distributed by Woodward, Jones & Johnson, of this city, is getting a very thorough distribution and is reported as moving splendidly. Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb are manufacturers of this fine piece of goods.

Morris Burke also reports the "Reynaldo," made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, as going to his utmost satisfaction. Mr. Burke is the distributor of this cigar.

Cuesta, Rey & Company Open New Building

HAVANA, CUBA, February 27.

A. L. Cuesta, Mrs. Cuesta and son Carl, and party arrived here from Tampa today to formally open their new warehouse and factory at Velascoin and Penalver Streets, this city, tomorrow.

The building is a four-story modern stone and steel factory embodying the most improved equipment and facilities for the care of tobacco and the manufacture of cigars.

"The Truly Spanish House" has long enjoyed the confidence of smokers and the brands "White Heather, "La Flor de Cuesta Rey," "Ponce de Leon," "El Anclo" and "La Unica" are a few of their products which have given them a world-wide prestige.

Corrall, Wodiska y Ca to Open New Factory

The big brick factory which has been built by Corrall, Wodiska y Ca, in the rear of their present plant, will be finished and occupied in about two weeks. This plant will be utilized for making cigars out of bond, and the present structure will be bonded under the new law for the manufacture of "Julia Marlowe" clear Havana cigars.

Edw. Wodiska, of the firm, is at present in Chicago, making his final rounds preparatory to a trip to Germany. His plans are now that he will reach New York about April first and sail a few days later.

The Home Office of "Egyptian Princess" Cigarettes

"Havana Ribbon" Sales Active

Bayuk Brothers state that they find conditions very active on the "Havana Ribbon" sales throughout the different territories, particularly in the Central and Far Western sections. Mr. Yochem, Pacific Coast representative, is, at the present time, overseeing a sales campaign in favor of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, Los Angeles, where he finds an active duplicating business on the brand.

A. G. Bucher, Iowa and Nebraska representative, has just concluded a most successful trip throughout his entire territory and has sent the factory some fancy orders on the brand.

D. S. Achenbach, Pennsylvania and New York representative, was at the Philadelphia headquarters during the past week arranging for a special advertising and sales campaign to be inaugurated at Scranton, where the Scranton Tobacco Company has jurisdiction over the "Havana Ribbons," and where he intends having his assistant, Joseph McFetridge, work in conjunction with the Scranton salesmen for an extended period.

Lancaster Growers Form Pool

LANCASTER, PA., February 25.

At a meeting of a thousand tobacco growers of Lancaster County here today, they decided to pool their interests in the marketing of their crops under methods similar to those pursued by the growers of the Burley tobacco in Kentucky. A board of forty-five directors, representing all sections of the county, was chosen and they will conduct the organization. In recent years the price of local tobacco has been setadily decreasing and the system is regarded as the most effective to secure better prices.

R. L. Kimbrough, of Winchester, Ky., and Colonel Joel Port, of Adams, Tenn., attended the mass meeting and assisted in perfecting the plans. A central packing warehouse in this city has been leased, where the members of the association will deposit their crops.

Englehardt Brothers to "Manufacture in Bond"

Arrangements having been completed for the operating of a bonded cigar factory, same to be under the supervision of the customs service, Englehardt Brothers, Nashville, Tenn., who conduct a large domestic cigar factory in that city, will shortly begin operations. High-priced cigars will be manufactured extensively. The new plant, which will be conducted entirely independent of the domestic factory, will employ a large number of cigarmakers.

Judge Hanbery to Hear Motion for New Trial

Morgansfield, Ky., will be the scene of another legal battle on March 2, when Judge J. T. Hanbery, of Hopkinsville, will preside to hear arguments on the motion for a new trial in the Imperial Tobacco Company's case.

Since the trial attorneys on both sides have been busy preparing their sides of the case for argument on the motion and it is predicted that another large crowd will attend court on that day to hear the motion argued. In the event Judge Hanbery overrules the motion an appeal will be taken to the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Yost Cigar Factory Incorporated

A certificate of incorporation was filed a short time ago by the Yost Cigar Factory, of Bridgeport, Conn., capitalized at $20,000, $15,000 of the amount having already been paid in. Isadore Haflich and Israel J. Cohen, of Bridgeport, and Andrew J. Kraussman, of Stratford, are named as the incorporators.

Death of Allen S. Curlett

Allen S. Curlett, former president of the Western corporation of the United Cigar Stores Company, with headquarters in Chicago, died within the past fortnight at his home in New Rochelle. Mr. Curlett, who is survived by his widow, retired from business in the late spring, at which time he tendered his resignation as president of the corporation above mentioned. The deceased was in his fifty-third year.

Y., for thirty-five years engaged there in cigar manufacturing business, expired Tuesday morning, February 24, following a series of paralytic strokes suffered one week previously. Deceased was oldest member of Watertown Cigarmakers' Union. He manufactured the "Social," "Little Havana," and other favorite brands of cigars in Watertown. He was born in Frankfort, Germany, seventy-one years ago, and came to America with his parents when seven years old, settling in Brownville, N. Y., afterward removing to Watertown. Trade Conditions Good—Local Manufacturers Opposed to Bonded Factory Act—To Settle Kuttnauer Failure Out of Court—William Best Back in Town—Havana-American Company's President a Visitor

TRADE conditions continue good, despite weather which has not been the most favorable for the retailers. The snow storm which played havoc with the middle Western portion of the country last week visited Chicago in all its fury, and retailers declare that the weather had a tendency to keep down sales. However, as they have had a nice business during the period following the holidays which is usually dull, they are not inclined to complain. Jobbers and distributors are receiving plenty of good orders, although the permanent ban which has been placed on the "26" dice game is having a severe effect on the cigar business in general. Manufacturers are as busy as usual at this time of the year, which means that they might be doing more. Nevertheless, it is predicted unanimously among the latter class that they might it is predicted unanimously among the latter class that the trade is in for a good year.

Considerable excitement was manifested at a meeting last week of the Chicago Cigar Manufacturers' Association at the Hotel Sherman, to discuss the fight which is being waged by local manufacturers against the recent bonding provision which was incorporated in the new tariff law. More than twenty of the leading manufacturers of the city were present, with Abe Benner, of Benner Brothers, in the chair. Mr. Benner announced the purpose of the meeting and said that the chair was ready to hear speeches from members. Several made short talks. In the end it was decided to wait for a time before taking any definite steps to knock out the provision. It is believed by some of the manufacturers here that the bonding provision may not cut a large enough figure in the cigar game to warrant the expenditure of a large sum of money to make war on the measure. It is said that evidence is in hand showing where the government officials have badly contradicted themselves on several occasions in interpreting the law. If the developments of the next few months show that the business of the small manufacturer is in danger owing to the presence of the provision on the statute books of the nation, efforts will be made at once to annul the law. The New York manufacturers have shown a disposition to co-operate with those of Chicago, who have been most active in opposition, but in some of the other cities there is a tendency to let the other fellow do the work and spend the money. However, it is believed by the local manufacturers that in a serious crisis plenty of assistance would be rendered from manufacturers all over the country.

Shock caused when he found that his little store on the north side had been robbed of its stock of cigars during the night, caused the death of "Grandpa" Larsen, seventy years old, a retail dealer.

Frank Johnson, vice-president of the Havana-America Company, was making the rounds of his old friends in the trade last week. Mr. Johnson was formerly in business here.

William Taussig, of the leaf firm of Taussig & Company, has returned from New York, where he went on business connected with the recent failure of Kuttnauer Brothers, leaf tobacco dealers, of this city. It is said that practically all of the creditors of the latter firm have agreed to the proposition to accept fifty cents on the dollar. The bankruptcy suit, according to best advice, will be dropped. The firm is interested in the La Vello Cigar Company, which manufactures and distributes "Lady Abbey" and "La Vello" cgars.

T. W. Clayton is an addition to the number of brokers of cigars in the city. He has taken offices at 186 North La Salle Street, in the North American Building, and reports that he is making excellent progress for a beginner.

A. Marco will open a retail cigar store at Greenwood Avenue and Forty-third Street, in an exclusive residence and business district on the south side.

William Best, Jr., genial vice-president of Best & Russell, has returned from a Western trip. He was for some time in Kansas City, where he inspected the branch of the company. He also went to Memphis, Tenn., on his return trip, and performed a similar duty in that city.

The La Kurba Cigar Company has taken a lease on the entire fourth floor of the building at South Water and North State Streets, for ten years, from May 1, at a term rent of $30,000. New furniture and equipment will be installed.

At last week's election here less than one-third of the women who registered a few weeks ago were interested enough to vote.

Anton Bock & Company, having received 3000 in his first order, which has since been exhausted. The new brand has taken well with the trade and has been given a repeat order.

Regulations Issued to Provide for the Removal of Scrap from Bonded Premises

Proprietors Must Keep Record of All Transfers—Forms Prescribed for Use—Cover Scraps, Cuttings and Clippings

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 26.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin today issued new customs regulations governing the transfer of scraps, cuttings and clippings of tobacco produced in bonded warehouse in the manufacture of cigars, reading as follows:

"Attention is invited to the provisions of section 4, paragraph M, of the tariff act of October 3, 1913, for the manufacture in bonded warehouse from imported tobacco of cigars which may be withdrawn for consumption in the United States.

"Proprietors of such premises are hereby permitted to withdraw therefrom under these regulations scraps, cuttings and clippings produced in the premises for transfer to cigar or tobacco manufacturers operating under the internal revenue laws.

"In order that a check may be obtained on the quantities of tobacco transferred to factories operating under the internal revenue laws, proprietors of bonded manufacturing warehouses engaged in the manufacture of cigars for withdrawal for consumption in the United States, will be required to keep a record of each transfer of scraps, cuttings, or clippings.

"Monroe" Disaster Affects Tobacco Men

After waiting two weeks for a shipment of tobacco from the South, J. William Brundage, a wholesale tobacconist, of Newburg, N. Y., learned recently that the tobacco was at the bottom of the Atlantic, near Hogg Island off the Atlantic Coast, the tobacco having been on the unfortunate steamship "Monroe," when she was rammed by the "Nantucket" a few weeks ago. The tobacco, which was rated at $250 wholesale, had been shipped by the R. J. Reynolds Company, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

James F. Martin, of Peekskill, N. Y., well known as a cigar manufacturer and a wholesale tobacco dealer, also suffered from the same accident, he having had two shipments of tobacco on board, the same having been consigned to him by the R. J. Reynolds Company, of Winston-Salem, and Larus Brothers, of Richmond, Va.

Syndicate Arranges to Continue American Meerschaum and Pipe Corporation

Ogdensburg Business Men to Finance Plant—May Reorganize With Local Capital—Assets Estimated at $110,000—W. M. Stevens Appointed Receiver

(Special to The Tobacco World.)

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., February 25.

ARRANGEMENTS were completed Monday afternoon which will enable Receiver William M. Stevens to resume operations here in the plant of the American Meerschaum and Pipe Corporation, which recently admitted inability to meet payments to its creditors. William B. Richardson, of Boston, Mass., the principal petitioner, holds a promissory note for $5,173, which the local concern was unable to pay, and for the interests of other creditors the Bostonian brought suit in equity at Utica, N. Y.

A syndicate of Ogdensburg business men have offered to go security for the payrolls of the company for an indefinite period, so that the receiver would be able to manufacture the raw material that is on hand. These local men are actuated by two motives, the first being to assist the receiver in his efforts to secure as much as possible out of the defunct company for the creditors and the second to enable the receiver's backers to study the business with a view of ultimately assisting in a complete reorganization of the company with local capital should they become convinced that it is a paying business.

W. J. Seidenberg, the former president of the local pipe company, has returned to New York City, where he has re-entered the tobacco business, being in charge of a large cigarette manufacturing establishment in the metropolis.

The creditors of the firm were ordered to appear before Judge Ray Wednesday last and show cause why the receivership should not be made permanent.

R. S. Waterman, of Waterman & Waterman, attorneys for the receiver, stated that the estimated assets of the corporation are $110,000, but that they will probably fall below that in actual value. They consist of stock, raw material, machinery and meerschaum mining interests in New Mexico.

At the time it moved from New York to Ogdensburg it was known as the Meerschaum Company of America, but subsequently it was reorganized and took the new title.

For some time past it has been quietly rumored that the establishment was not in a flourishing condition, and to those on the inside the appointment of a receiver was no surprise, though the public generally was not prepared for this move by the creditors. Attorney Waterman says that the liabilities amount to upward of $200,000 and consist mostly of promissory notes. There are said to be very few local creditors. Mr. Waterman said that the liabilities exceeded the assets to such an extent that it became necessary to liquidate. He said that President Seidenberg would lend his personal endeavors in assisting the receiver to save all he could for the creditors.

Attorney Waterman said that he hoped the affairs of the company could be so adjusted that the industry could be saved to the city.

The meerschaum deposits which the company controls in New Mexico are said to be the only ones known to exist outside of Asia Minor, where the bulk of the product comes from.

Philadelphia Notes

Mr. Davis, representing H. Anton Bock & Company, left Philadelphia last week with a well filled order book.

Ramon Rey, of Ramon Rey & Company, Tampa, Fla., visited the trade in Philadelphia last week, looking after the interests of this well-known firm.

H. G. Eshelman, formerly manager of the United Cigar Stores Company, at Fifty-second and Market Streets, Philadelphia, has accepted a position in the Market and Juniper Streets store of Yahn & McDonnell.

Mr. Eshelman has had five years' experience in catering to smokers of good cigars, and should easily adapt himself to the Yahn & McDonnell clientele.

Albert Falk, of the Falk Tobacco Company, New York City, spent a few days in the Quaker City last week, collecting nice orders on "Snap Shot" cube-cut smoking tobacco.

"Andy" Stein, of the Pera Cigarette Company, has returned to Philadelphia after a successful trip throughout the Keystone State, with special attention to Pittsburgh.

John Boltz, of the Boltz-Clymer Company, whose Philadelphia headquarters are located at Fifteenth Street and Lehigh Avenue, left on Saturday, February 28th, for a month's stay in Tampa.

While in Tampa, Mr. Boltz will inspect the factory where the well-known "El Palencia" cigars manufactured by this firm are produced.

A season of rest will also be in order, as Mr. Boltz has never fully recovered from the effects of the railroad accident which befell him some months ago.

Victor Lopez and Mr. Doebler, of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, who are manufacturers of the "La Mega" clear Havana cigars, booked some nice orders while in Philadelphia last week.

The four stores of Yahn & McDonnell are showing attractive window decorations on the "Hoyo De Cuba" cigars, manufactured in Tampa by the San Martin & Leon Company.

This firm are distributors of this high-grade smoke, and thirty sizes are regularly carried in stock.

"Daddy's Delight" is the name given to a new brand of smoking tobacco, for pipe or cigarette, which will shortly be found on sale in the several stores of the Finley Acker Company, and marketed under this firm's label.

The package will sell for ten cents, foil packing. J. D. Acker, of the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store, is very optimistic over the reports which have reached him from introductory samples.

New Glass Lids for Counter Display

When one goes into a cigar store and sees the cigar boxes on the counter covered with convenient glass lids, he realizes that he is dealing with a man who believes in protecting his goods and his customers as well. But it is doubtful if the man will remember that it has taken fifteen years for the retail trade to become educated to the use of these glass lids and to the attendant sanitary conditions which these covers produce.

Years ago these glass lids were introduced by P. A. Becker, who has continually added improvements to his products until now they seem to have approached perfection. Mr. Becker keeps abreast of the times and is known to the trade as the originator of the celebrated self-hinging glass box lids and humidors. He is constantly visiting the trade and coming in contact with the leading cigarists, and by absorbing their ideas, and with his own experience and mechanical genius for creating, he has been able to invent and patent many devices of value. He allows "no grass to grow beneath his feet," and as soon as one invention becomes antiquated he has another involving many improvements to take its place.

In neatness and practicability his latest production, the All Glass or Artistic Wire Edge Glass Lid, has surpassed all others, and the proof of this is found in the unusual enthusiasm shown by the trade in adopting this new lid.

Simplicity and strength have replaced the old ideas of bulky and clumsy construction which prevailed for years, and now the few old-type lids look as out-of-date in a store as old style counters and show cases.

The tobacconists have not been long in recognizing the fact that the old style lids, with their bulky frames around a bit of glass, and extremely out of proportion, cover the best part of the cigars and cheapen the surroundings and affect the sales.

Experience has shown that the cause of 90 per cent. of the breakage in this style of lids is due to the contact of the glass against the hard metal frame. In the latest product of Mr. Becker's brains, the All Glass or Wire Edge Lids, are free from any strain or pressure. With its neat and artistic appearance, it has proven far stronger and more rigid than the old-fashioned "iron-clad" bound lid, and in addition is a saving of 50 per cent. of the cost in bulk weight and transportation.

After making more than 2,000,000 lids in the past fifteen years, Mr. Becker says that he is now compelled to condemn his own original inventions of the old style lids owing to the superiority of the new style Wire Edge Lids. However he adds that he will continue to make the various styles for those who want them.

Mr. Becker expects to shortly produce another more interesting new glass lid that will appeal to the retailer exclusively. He says that it is something that the dealer has wanted for many years and that it will be a great improvement over all his other inventions.

P. F. Alberty With Austin, Nichols & Company

ALBERTY, formerly president and general manager of Dusel, Goodloe & Company, the well-known Philadelphia jobbers and distributors, notifies the trade that he is now connected with Austin, Nichols & Company, New York. Broutan Purchases Business at 1303 Columbia Avenue

Announcement is made by the C. L. Martin Company, who for the past four years have conducted a cigar and tobacco business at 1303 West Columbia Avenue, that they have sold their stand to Percy Broutan. "Statesmen" Cigar Going Good

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, have just opened several attractive new accounts on their "Statesmen" cigar, as the result of a visit by Mr. Jeitles, of this firm.

The demand for "Flor de Jeitles," "Tungston" and "Masterpiece" still continues to require the running of their factories on a full time schedule with every bench occupied.

News of the "44" Salesmen

F. B. Stanton, of the "44" sales force, representing the company in the northern section of New Jersey, is sending in very encouraging news relative to his work with the distributors in that territory.

F. D. Crawford, who has charge of the interest of "44" in the Middle West, has been spending a few days in Buffalo with his specialty men, where he finds that the well-known "Lipschutz" cigar has many friends.

Optimistic letters are coming from W. H. Nicholson, Middle Southern representative of "44." Mr. Nicholson states that the few days he has already spent with the distributors in Norfolk have been productive of very good results.

Tillman Funk, who takes care of the distribution of "44" in the South, is having much success with his specialty men in the various parts of his territory, and reports exceptional progress for the distributors.

Reports from the "44" factory are very cheerful. The factory is working on full time and is putting in a strenuous time catching up with the incoming orders.

"Lord Colbecks" at Rutgers Club Dinner

"LORD COLBECK" cigars, made by the De Lisser-Schneider Company, were smoked by the members and guests of the Rutgers Club, of Philadelphia, at their eighth annual dinner, held at the Hotel Vendig on February 20.

At each cover was laid a package wrapped in foil and neatly tied with ribbon of Rutgers scarlet. Each bundle contained three cigars, one "Ideales," one "Reina Victoria" and one "Bouquet Finas." Needless to say, these handsome sizes made many friends for the "Lord Colbeck."

Charles Bobrow Confined By Illness

The many friends of Charles Bobrow, of the firm of Bobrow Brothers, makers of the "Bold" cigar, will regret to learn that he is confined by illness at his home, 5828 Chestnut Street.

Combination Offer on "Snap Shot" Cube-Cut Tobacco

Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, are featuring a ten-cent package of "Snap Shot" cube-cut tobacco, a product of the Falk Tobacco Company, and any regular twenty-five cent pipe, and three pipe cleaners on a combination offer for the price of the pipe alone.

The regular price of these goods is forty cents, so that the saving on the amount invested is well worth the consideration of pipe smokers desiring a high-grade, long-burning tobacco.

"Bold" Salesmen Busy on the Road

L. M. Walters is now in Chattanooga, Tenn., introducing the "Bold" cigar in this new territory. He reports that this popular smoke is finding ready takers in that section. During his stop with the W. H. Harris Grocery Company, at Richmond, Va., he found big business.

Henry Riesenberg, who recently returned from Paris, is now on Western territory and, as usual, found conditions flourishing and many orders for the "Bold" awaiting him.

During his trip he has visited the McPike Drug Company, Kansas City; H. J. Hughes Company, Omaha, Neb.; Churchill Drug Company, Burlington and Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Sargent & Rice, Nebraska City; E. B. Loser Company, Aurora, Ill.; Moreland Brothers & Crane, Adrian, Mich.; Oakford & Fahnstock, Peoria, Ill.; Platter Drug Company, Dallas, Tex.; Hamilton-Harris Company, Indianapolis, Ind.; O. H. Daly Company, Kokomo, Ind.; Wayne Tobacco Company, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; J. L. Marcero, Detroit and Pontiac, Mich. An attack of writer's cramp prevented us getting the rest of the list. We have come to the conclusion that Mr. Riesenberg can step some in thirty days.

Rapid Growth Features San Martin & Leon Company

FROM a beginning in a small building with twenty cigarmakers, it is interesting to trace the growth of the San Martin & Leon Company in Tampa, over a brief period of two years to their present factory which employs one hundred and fifty hands, turning out 20,000 cigars a day.

The factory is owned by Federico Marino Leon, a wealthy planter, and father of the president of this rapidly growing concern, Jorge Leon.

All the materials for the cigars are produced on Mr. Leon's plantations and the excellent reputation which such brands as "Flor de San Martin Y Leon," "El Briche" and "Hoyo de Cuba" have established, is no doubt in a large part due to the splendid quality of tobacco used in their manufacture. This without detracting one bit from the unusual success of the cigars due to the indefatigable efforts of Jorge Leon and Charles J. Castillo, and their assistants.

All the plantations on which the tobacco for the factory is grown are provided with the most modern improvements. It is either shaded with royal palms or covered with cheese cloth, and in addition the vegas have a system of artificial irrigation, so that a drouth can work no great harm. Federico Leon has the reputation of being one of the best growers of Cuban tobacco, and in his thirty-five years of labor with leaf plantations he has always been rewarded with success.

El Brillante, transplanted with 300,000 seedlings under cover of palm leaves and planted in groves of trees; El Briche, with 300,000 seedlings under palms, cover of palm leaves, and groves; La Abelina, with 500,000 seedlings under cheese cloth; La Carlota, with 300,000 seedlings; Soria, with 500,000 seedlings; Cocal, with 200,000; San Jose, with 100,000; and Marino, with 100,000 seedlings, all of the latter under cover of palm leaves, or in groves of trees.

The total quantity of seedlings that were transplanted in all of the vegas amounted to 2,300,000, which were set out in a soil well fertilized, and watched over by excellent vegueros, as well as supervised in person by Federico Marino Leon.

The quantity of poles, of plucked leaves, which is the system employed by Mr. Leon, owing to its better cure, amounts to 15,000, and which are curing well in the best of conditions.

The accompanying photograph, which gives a splendid illustration of the unfolding of the leaves of the tobacco plants, was made on the occasion of a visit of M. J. McDonnell, of the well-known firm of Yahn & McDonnell, of Philadelphia, and Charles Stauffer, of the house of Bock-Stauffer Company, of Pittsburgh. Both men are deeply interested in the distribution of the goods of the San Martin

INDEPENDENT RETAIL TOBACCO DEALERS GET HEARING BEFORE HOUSE COMMITTEE

Delegation Urges That New Legislation Protect the Small Dealer—Oppose Any Amendment to Sherman Law—Nicholas Ehrlich and Charles Dushkind Express Their Views

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 20.

Bills drafted with the consent of President Wilson to supplement the Sherman anti-trust law have been pending before the House committees for nearly a month. So far but few organized business men have made any representations on this matter, notwithstanding how vital it is to them. The most noted exception to this rule was the Independent Retail Tobacco Dealers' Association of New York City. That organization sent a committee of ten to protest against the proposed legislation and to suggest some of the trade evils which are needing reform.

The tobacco delegation appeared before the House Judiciary Committee and suggested that if the new legislation is to be insisted upon, it certainly should contain restrictive provisions whereby the small dealer will receive adequate protection before the law.

"We hope that any legislation that Congress may enact in regard to this matter," said the representative of the retailers, "will result in restoring to the people their individual liberty and their right to engage in any lawful calling that they may see fit."

For the most part the committee listened to the arguments in a receptive mood, but it was apparent that many of the propositions presented were too progressive for the leaders who are in charge of the legislation. The Democratic party frankly does not care to go so far as to reform the economic system of distribution. The intention is chiefly to define the debatable ground around the Sherman law.

Henry H. Hunter, of New York, opened the hearing, explaining that he was special attorney for the Independent Tobacco Retail Dealers' Association. In a short statement he said his clients opposed any amendment to the Sherman law.

Nicholas Ehrlich, a jobber in tobacco, also took the stand and explained some of the practices of the so-called trust. He brought with him a number of coupons and prizes inserted in tobacco packages which he said gives the discount to the consumer and thereby prevents the wholesaler getting any hold in the business. Chairman Clayton asked the witness what Congress could do to remedy the situation, to which Mr. Ehrlich replied that he intended to cite a condition and to leave it to the wise lawyers in Congress to devise a remedy.

The chief speech of the day, however, was made by Charles Dushkind, general counsel for the Independent retail tobacco dealers. He said that while his association opposed any amendments to the Sherman law, because that would reopen the whole subject of trust litigation, if Congress fully intends to enact supplemental legislation he hoped it would keep certain facts in mind.

Mr. Dushkind said his association favored the provision prohibiting a discrimination in prices as between purchasers of the same article. Such prohibition he said, must be absolute, for to permit such discrimination in regard to differences in quality or quantity or to permit the vendor to select his own customers, would practically nullify the good of that prohibition.

"We certainly approve," said Mr. Dushkind, "of the provisions in the Clayton Bill permitting a party who is or is threatened to be injured by a violation of the Sherman law to apply for injunctive relief and suspending the Statute of Limitation during the pendency of a suit brought by the Government against offenders and that a decree against a trust in the Government suit may be used as evidence in a private suit for treble damages but we respectfully submit that these provisions are entirely inadequate and insufficient, and, moreover, they would be ineffective without making some changes in regard to the practice and procedure in the Federal courts."

The attorney opposed the establishment of a trade commission, but if such is to be established, he urged that its jurisdiction should be limited over large corporations. Such a commission should also have the power to grant summary relief from trade abuses.

Concluding, Mr. Dushkind said:

"We believe also that subject to proper regulation by the commission it should be made lawful for manufacturers of proprietary articles to fix and maintain the prices at which their products shall be sold by both the wholesale man and the retail man, and that contracts in that respect shall be enforcible in the courts. It has been common practice for dealers to sell well-known articles at prices sometimes below cost to attract prospective buyers and upon the strength of the reduced price on the leader they succeed in selling them something that repays them several times the amount that they lost on the leader.

"Moreover, in view of the present tendency to establish chain stores in almost every line, which stores are controlled by unlimited wealth, the small dealers should be protected against the chain stores underselling leading brands. By making it lawful for manufacturers of trademark goods to fix and maintain the prices at which their goods should be sold, this evil will be readily abated."

Other members of the New York tobacco delegation present at the hearing were Ike Ochs, Robert E. Lane John A. Locker, M. Monday, Adolph Hirstein and J. W. Schenker.

G. H. P. Company's Cigars Selling Big in the West

Charles H. Fee, Western salesman for the G. H. P. Cigar Company, of 119 North Third Street, has recently returned from a trip to the West and reports that it has been one of the most successful that he ever made for the house.

Mr. Fee says that Philadelphia-made cigars have the best name of any in the country. He adds that his observation is that the cigar business is booming in every state in the West, and that he has enjoyed an unusual number of heavy orders. "Dakem," "Goodina" and "Vincello" are brands that are meeting the popular demand among the G. H. P. Company's jobbers and distributors.

& Leon Company, and paid a visit to the plantations for the purpose of admiring the excellent growth of tobacco from which the company's cigars are made.

Jorge Leon, president of the San Martin & Leon Company, is a distinguished sportsman, but despite the fact that he is wealthy, the results of the past two years have proved him to be an indefatigable worker. He is gifted with a frank and communicative nature, which is marked by a generous spirit and delicate tact. Those who know Mr. Leon, for these reasons do not marvel at the fact that the company over which he presides is producing brands that stand high in the cigar industry, and that his factory figures among the important independant concerns of the country.

Zero Temperatures Flag Cigar Sales—Tobacconists Find Lid On Gambling—"Lozanos" In for Big Distribution—"Philip Morris" Men Say Success Is Due to Dealers—Cigarette War Stopped—"Websters" Growing in Popularity

DETROIT, MICH., February 25.

DETROIT is now "paying" for the beautiful weather which it enjoyed the early part of the season. Since the tenth of February the temperature has been "flirting" with the zero mark and the result has been that the retail cigar business has been none too good. However, what sales have been lost by people not being on the streets has been made up, to some extent, in smokers and banquets. Previous to the Lenten season, there has been an unusual number of social functions, both stag and otherwise, and they always mean a lot of cigars and cigarettes.

Another thing that has been helping local business, and continues to do so, is the large number of people patronizing cafes. It used to be that Detroit was never "strong" for this sort of diversion, but go any night to the Penobscot, Griswold, Frontenac and Tuller and you are lucky to get a table. In this particular respect, Detroit is a close rival to Chicago and New York. All the cafes have cabaret entertainments, and there are a few that have even adopted the Eastern plan of permitting dancing. The Wayne Hotel is planning on using the upper floor of the pavilion for a restaurant and spacing off the center for dancing. The pavilion will accommodate about 1500 people and should prove a big success under this proposed plan. Anything that serves to bring out more people to the cafes naturally results in more cigars and cigarettes being disposed of.

Along with the campaign started a few weeks ago by the police department to rid Detroit of vice and gambling, at least a half dozen prominent cigar retailers who run hand-books in connection with their business have been placed under arrest, and while no penalty was inflicted they were all given a "lecture and warning." In connection with this crusade, a prominent member of the police department, who sometime ago headed the squad who cleaned out all punch boards and dice found in cigar stores, said to THE TOBACCO WORLD correspondent: "Troubles of this sort the cigar retailer only brings upon himself. Everybody knows that there is always going to be a certain amount of dice shaking, raffling and gambling, and the police department in no city will raise any strenuous objection when these things are conducted orderly and in moderation. But where there is one cigar dealer who is careful there are eight others who are not, and as the result everybody must suffer. For instance, take dice shaking. Not long ago I passed the store of a prominent retailer on Michigan Avenue, and as I did so I could hear someone saying, 'Come on you seven,' accompanied by very loud swearing. This sort of conversation was kept up for fully ten minutes. Think of it, right in the heart of the city, where hundreds of women pass every hour, this dealer was allowing disorderly conduct, and the worst of it was that the dice shaking took place near the door entrance. Can the department be blamed for putting a stop to dice shaking when such things are the result?" This police officer is absolutely right. The average privilege is shamefully abused, and it is simply the old story of the good ones suffering for the deeds of the bad.

The Hotel Statler, recently incorporated, has effected complete organization. The board of directors will consist of E. M. Statler, Charles Mozier, Frank W. Hinkley, John H. Lasceles, W. J. Statler, Edward J. Smith and Alfred Y. Thorn, all of Buffalo. The directors have elected E. M. Statler, president; Charles N. Mozier, vice-president, and Frank W. Hinkley, secretary and treasurer. The Hotel Statler has a capitalization of $3,500,000 common and the same amount of preferred stock. The company now operates the Statler hotels in Cleveland and Buffalo, and will have a third one in Detroit, which is now under construction and which will be completed by the fifteenth of December, 1914. Executive offices have been opened in Buffalo. Mr. Hinkley, now manager of the Statler in Buffalo, will relinquish that position in April to give all his time to the new office of secretary and treasurer. He will be succeeded by H. N. Dutton, who comes from the Piedmont Hotel in Atlanta, Ga.

Frank Bechold, who assists Ed Heineman at the cigar department of O'Brien & Company, on Woodward Avenue, was married on February 24th. Frank did not go on any honeymoon trip, but took a few days off to pick out the furniture and fix up the apartment.

The American Hotel in Kalamazoo, remodeled and rechristened, was opened on February 16th. It will be known hereafter as the Park American. Ernest McLean continues as manager. There will be a formal opening in April.

Paul F. Alberty, of the cigar department of the Austin-Nichols Company, of New York City, formerly with Dusel, Goodloe & Company, of Philadelphia, was here on February 24th and spent a few days drumming up orders.

Although E. M. Harris & Company will have to vacate their present store at 117 Woodward Avenue when the lease expires in May, 1915, they will be ready at that time to move into another store. Mr. Harris has taken options of a number of excellent locations in the heart of the city, but as yet has not fully made up his mind which to take. The Harris Company has been in existence for over thirty-five years right in Detroit.

"None prettier the world over" would be an adequate description of the handsome electric sign which has just been placed on top of the building at Monroe Avenue and the Campus advertising "Fatima" cigarettes. The same sign, although a trifle smaller, was for a year on top of a building on Cadillac Square, but it was taken down on account of a new building being erected on adjoining property. The new location is much better, as it can be seen from practically every section of Detroit's open loop.

When Ben Lesser was in town the early part of February, he put over a very nice deal that will ultimately result in the "Lozano" brand of cigars being on sale at practically every leading cigar store in Michigan. The deal was that Lee & Cady shall become distributors for the F. Lozano & Company cigars in the State of Michigan. The cigar department of Lee & Cady, who are the largest wholesale grocers in the state, is in charge of Mr. Higgins, who is making a hugh success of the same. It is the intention of Mr. Higgins to make a strong leader of the "Lozano" brands. Actual campaign work will start very shortly, and in another year the name of "Lozano" will be as well known as any brand.

C. J. Becker, who makes his office at 168 Horton Avenue, is working up a good trade on Holland tobacco, for which he has the agency in this section of the country. He has recently started to send out a lot of "direct-by-mail" literature to the individual smokers, and the returns are coming in very satisfactorily.

W. H. Wilbur, for over forty years a resident of Detroit, and for many years engaged in the cigar manufacturing business, died several weeks ago. He was very well known among the tobacco merchants.

On or about May 1st, Milford J. Daner, for the past six years with the Owl Drug Store in Mt. Clemens, will open a new store of his own on South Gratiot Avenue, in the waiting room block, to be known as the Standard Drug Store. He has already ordered his fixtures, and has given orders for a large part of his stock, which will consist of a complete line of drugs, stationery, cigars and cigarettes. The location is a splendid one, being directly across from the Medea Hotel, and a stone's throw from a half dozen other hotels.

Alex Herbert, vice-president of the Philip Morris Cigarette Company, was in town February 9th and 10th. He paid a great compliment to the dealers, to whom he said was due the credit for the enormous success of the company's goods. "We believe in advertising; we also believe in having good representatives in the various localities, but what good would all of this do if we didn't have the co-operation of the men behind the counters?" Mr. Herbert went to Chicago after his stay here. Ben Block was also here at the same time. He returned again on the sixteenth, and from Detroit went to Canada, which has been added to his territory. Mr. Block now has the states of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio and a good portion of Canada to supervise. Eddie Lichtig continues in charge of Michigan under Mr. Block. By the way, the style of boxes for Canada will in the future be the same as in the United States. Up to the present time, all of the packages have been of the "push" type. The American style of packing will undoubtedly be a novelty at the start, but in time is sure to be a winner.

McAllister-Smith Company, cigar jobbers, who started in business last summer at the foot of Woodward Avenue, have incorporated their business, the capital stock being $15,000. The men holding most of the stock are Frank S. McAllister, Adolph Ruhl, James E. Smith, Jacob Mazer, Henry Mazer and James Lee. The business is managed by Messrs. McAllister and Smith, the other stockholders being in simply for investment purposes. This concern, although very young, has made remarkable strides and is close on the heels of older concerns.

The cigarette fight, which lasted for one week, ending on February 21, is over and prices are back to normal. The bone of contention was between Lee & Cady and John T. Woodhouse Company. Cigarettes were sold to dealers at the cost price to the jobbers. The American Tobacco Company heard of the battle and had one of their representatives come on to adjust the trouble, which he did to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Lee Schoeneman, representing the "La Venga" cigar, arrived in town this morning with his wife, who is seriously ill at her apartment at the Ponchartrain. Lee will probably remain the week. He has a lot of friends here, and some splendid accounts, to which he will no doubt add very materially during his stay.

The Michigan Tobacco Company, of Detroit, has been formed with a capital stock of $10,000. Those holding most of the stock are Robert D. Smith and E. F. Wilkinson.

"Nena" Cigar Factory Rushed With Orders

A few well placed advertisements to the trade, together with hard work on the part of salesmen, have resulted in the manufacturers of the "Nena" cigar being rushed with orders. This piece of nickel goods was launched by Reguera & Berengher, the manufacturers, simultaneously in New York and New Orleans, on January 1. The result is that the factory is loaded with "at once" orders, and more coming with every mail.

In a letter to THE TOBACCO WORLD, Mr. Berengher, sales manager of the firm, says:

"The 'Nena' cigar, owing to its quality and the attractive way in which it is packed and banded, is making many friends among smokers who know. There is not a place of importance in New Orleans and vicinities, where you will not find 'Nena' cigars, and an ever increasing number of dealers are selling it in New York. In fact, it is being sold in places along Beaver and Wall Streets—the financial section of the city—that never stocked a five-cent brand before."

Arrangements have recently been made with H. J. Widness, proprietor of the Widness Hotel in Park Ridge, N. J., to distribute the "Nena" cigar over a large territory.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, has purchased a new automobile, a fine Hudson Six, 1914 model. Charlie Spietz, of the same firm, is back from a two weeks' visit to Texas, where he went for a short rest.

Jacob Mazer was in St. Louis, Mo., February 22d and 23rd in connection with his two leading brands of cigars—"La Cavalerie" and "Miss Detroit."

George W. Stocking arrived in town on February 23rd and is remaining the balance of the week. He is here in the interests of Marcelino Perez & Company, who have accounts at the Hotel Ponchartrain and G. & R. McMillan. Mr. Stocking is a new man with the concern, and this is his first visit here for them.

Charles J. Holton, who left early in the month for Cuba, is expected back the first week in March. Mr. Holton is a wholesaler and retailer at Adams and John R. Streets, where he owns his own building.

Considerable damage was done to the factory of the Billion Cigar Company in St. Joseph a few weeks ago, when the building in which it is located took fire, causing practically complete destruction to the property.

I. A. Mitchell, of T. H. Hart & Company, of Philadelphia, manufacturer of "Heartsease" and other high-grade seed and Havana cigars, was in town on February 23rd, it being his first visit to Detroit in many years. He will stop at all of the principal cities in the Middle West in search of business.

Mr. Ackerman, representative of the "Webster" cigar, arrived in town on February 17th and left two days later. Unfortunately a bad cold prevented him from calling on as many of his friends here as he usually does. He had to leave suddenly for Columbus and hopes to get back here very soon. As for business, Mr. Ackerman need not worry so far as Detroit is concerned. The "Webster" cigar is getting better every day from the selling standpoint of the retailer. Every dealer who handles "Websters" is unanimous in the statement that it is one of his leaders, and furthermore that "Webster" customers seem to stick. It enjoys a splendid patronage among the traveling men, as evidenced by the big business which is done on the "Webster" at the Ponchartrain cigar stand.

B. O. Scott is now at the head of the cigar department of the various stores owned by the Standard Drug Company. He was formerly manager of the cigar stores operated in connection with the Liggett drug stores. As announced once before, the Standard will have another store in the new Kresege Building at Adams and Park Streets, which will be one of the finest in town. The cigar department will be given prominence and only the best brands handled. The building will be eighteen stories high and will cater to the leading doctors and dentists.

Among other visitors to Detroit the past ten days have been: Frank L. Rowland, of Lopez Hermanos, of Tampa; Walter Eisenman, of Eisenman Brothers, leaf tobacco dealers in Cincinnati; Mr. Campbell, sales manager for "Rameses" cigarettes; Bill Higgins, of Park & Tilford, of New York; Julius Marquzee, of New York City, leaf tobacco; James Glacum, of Glacum & Sons; W. D. Walker, of S. S. Pierse, of Boston; Charles Baswitz, of the Gonzalez & Sanchez Company; Steve Herz, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, and Hi Hammer, of Corral, Wodiska & Company.

Tampa

TAMPA, FLA., February 25.

FEBRUARY 28, from 1 to 4 P. M., has been the date set by Cuesta, Rey & Co., for the opening of their new home in Havana at No. 90 Belascoain Street; engraved invitations having been issued to the trade.

Inasmuch as the supply of storekeepers for the made-in-bond factories is limited, many of them have been compelled to work overtime, but these conditions have been eliminated recently, the storekeeper's hours having been reduced to but eight hours a day.

After a considerable absence, we have had the pleasure of greeting A. Santaella, of "Optimo" fame, he having arrived recently from New York. President Santaella, who is stopping at the DeSoto will be here for several weeks.

Jose Garcia More, of the well-known Havana lithographic firm of More y Sobrino, has been inspecting Tampa lately, with a view towards finding a suitable location on which to open an additional branch of the company. Mr. More feels very favorable towards our city, and it is possible that action will be taken in the very near future. More y Sobrino do quite a large business in Havana, confining their attention largely to cigar labels, the German process of lithography and German employes, making it possible to turn out a product equally as good as that produced across the Atlantic.

George L. Harris, the well-known "live wire" of the P. Lorillard Company, is here for a two weeks' stay with his crew. It is needless to state that "Stag" pipe tobacco is being boosted thoroughly. Mr. Harris thought it might be a good plan to give each of the visitors to the Gasparilla Celebration a can of "Stag," but when he began to take account of stock, he found that he would need at least 100 tons of the tobacco, so he decided not to do it this time.

T. H. Burt, who looks after the interest of the State of Florida for the Reynolds Tobacco Company, acting in the capacity of State manager, has been spending the week in Tampa on business.

Combining business with attendance at the Gasparilla Festival was the pleasant duty of John M. Carlisle, the genial salesman of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

Emilio Suarez, the well-known New York and Havana tobacco dealer, is staying at the Hillsboro. Mr. Suarez plans to spend a couple of weeks in Tampa on business.

Emilio Cabanzon & Co., who manufacture the well-known "Imperator," report that they are well pleased with the orders being received at the factory. They also state that the brand is meeting with splendid success throughout the trade.

M. B. Pendas, well-known through his connection with "Webster" and "Farragut" cigars, made by Y. Pendas & Alvarez, left Tampa recently for New York. While here, Mr. Pendas made a short visit to Manager Alfredo Pendas, of the factory

The following resolutions passed by the Western Association of Retail Cigar Dealers of Seattle recently, commending the work of Congressman Sparkman and Senator Fletcher in passing the cigars-in-bond amendment to the Underwood Tariff Bill, will doubtless be of interest:

"Whereas, Senator Duncan U. Fletcher and Congressman S. M. Sparkman have, by their support of the 'Manufacture of Cigar-in-Bond Bill' declared themselves in favor of honest merchandise and honest merchandisers, and

"Whereas, The Retail Dealers' Association of the states of Washington and Oregon in convention assembled, have reached the conclusion that to mark the origin of the material and the character of all tobacco products on all packages offered for sale would tend to lessen the extent of the tobacco monopoly and re-establish free competition, and

"Whereas, This convention desires to assure Senator Duncan U. Fletcher and Congressman S. M. Sparkman that they recognize and appreciate their efforts in behalf of the retail dealers of the United States,

"Now, therefore, be it resolved, That this convention extend to Senator Duncan U. Fletcher and Congressman S. M. Sparkman their thanks, and that the secretary of this convention be, and he is hereby instructed to spread this resolution upon the minutes of the meeting, and send a copy of the resolution to Senator Fletcher and Congressman Sparkman."

W. B. More, who takes care of Florida from the cigarette standpoint of the P. Lorillard Company, spent several days here waging a campaign on the well-known brand "Zubelda."

Col. Alfred Garcia, en route to Havana from New York, stopped off in Tampa for a few days to visit the "La Flor de Garcia y Vega" factory of the company.

Celestino Vega has returned from Cuba.

Key West

Shipping Lists Show Trade Expansion—Mi Favorita Factory Preparing to Operate in Bond—Many Orders Specifying Packings With "Made in Bond" Stamp—Preparing New Factory for Moreda & Company

KEY WEST, FLA., February 27, 1914.

THERE has not as yet been any great revival in business since the winter season has opened up and, while at a few of the shops the production limits have been removed and some additions have been made on the cigarmaking force, yet the trade status at many of our factories is not as good as it was at the same period of last year. The shipping lists contain many new names, which shows that trade is expanding and the reports given out at the various shops would lead one to form the opinion that at a very early date there will be "something doing" on a more lively basis.

The M. Perez Company and the Mi Favorita Cigar Company, the two firms which recently made applications to make their cigars in bond, will soon be in shape to work under the new system. The Mi Favorita Cigar Company will in all probability be the first Key West firm to have the honor of sending out cigars with the made-in-bond stamp, as, judging from the way things look at present, although the M. Perez Company was the first to declare their intention of taking advantage of the new law, carpenters have been busily at work for the past few days partitioning off one-half of the Mi Favorita Cigar Company's factory, which will be utilized as a bonded shop. As this work is nearly finished, it is very likely that they will be operating under their new order of things by the time that this letter appears in print.

Other firms are anxiously waiting to see the result of the experiment, so that they can follow suit if it is successful. As many letters and inquiries from jobbers and retailers throughout the country for the cigar with the government bonded guarantee stamp have commenced to come in, and until their factories are bonded they cannot fill these orders.

While as yet there have not been any new applicants for the bonding privilege, it is safe to say that very shortly several more of our large shops will be compelled to fall in line rather than lose their orders, as the jobbers and retailers of all sections seem favorably impressed with the idea.

Collector of Customs Griggs, for the State of Florida, spent a few days in town last week conferring with Deputy Wm. L. Delaney. He left for Cuba on Saturday, where he will spend several days.

Hon. Rhinelander Waldo, ex-police commissioner of New York City, passed through town recently en route to Havana on a pleasure trip. With Mr. Waldo were his wife and family and his two big bull dogs.

M. B. Pendas, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, the Tampa cigarmakers, was a through passenger to New York via Key West. During his stay in Cuba he made purchases of leaf for the use of his shop.

Miss Rosalee Navano, daughter of J. M. J. Navano, manager of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company's branch factory, and Lieutenant Harry Pillans, U. S. A., were united in marriage here on the 19th inst.

Fecundo Arguelles and Celestino Lopez, of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother, passed through town recently en route from Havana to Tampa.

En route to Havana were A. L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, Tampa; Chas. J. Holton, the cigar dealer, of Detroit, Mich.; John Evers, the cigar dealer, of Atlanta, Ga.

S. M. Gans, of Max Gans & Sons, the New York leaf dealers, was a caller on the local trade in the interest of his house. He left for Tampa on Saturday night.

At the Martinez-Havana Company's factory business is in excellent shape and an addition to the force was made on Monday. Mrs. Eladio Martinez and little daughter arrived last week from Cuba, where they have been spending some time as the guest of Don Luis Martinez at Guira de Melena.

A feature of the month at the factory of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company was the receipt of many night letters and cablegrams from S. Bachman & Company, the Pacific Coast jobbers, calling for rush shipments of goods by the express route.

President John Wardlow, of the Ruy Lopez Ca., left last week for Havana on a leaf purchasing trip. Business is slowly but surely increasing at this shop, and since last writing the production limit has been removed and several additions have been made to the force.

One of the prettiest home weddings which has taken place in Key West for many a day occurred during the month at the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Gato, when Miss Jennie Comas and Mr. Ralph Du Bruel were united in marriage. Miss Comas is a sister of Mrs. Gato and is very popular in socal circles.

José Lovera, of the José Lovera Company, of Tampa, spent a day in town recently calling on his many friends. He was en route from Havana to Tampa.

At the factory of Moreda & Company orders are reported as improving. Manager Jaime Pendas is back from a business visit to Tampa. Workmen are busily at work cleaning off their land on the Country Road, where construction work on their new $30,000 factory building will be started early in the coming month. Contractor W. W. Ward is in town making arrangements for necessary material.

Tobacco Show at Red Lion

The Tobacco Show held at Red Lion, Pa., on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, February 21, under the direction of the Pennsylvania State College Experimental Station, United States Department of Agriculture, proved very successful. The exhibits were many, while the quality of the tobacco shown was exceptional. Samuel A. Roseman, William H. Toomey and Howard H. Minnich acted in the capacity of judges.

At the afternoon session much interest was manifested in the address of Dr. William Frear, State College Chemist, on "Fertilizers Used in Growing Tobacco," who stated that stable manure was considered the best, but would give better results if used with some commercial fertilizer. He advised the growers not to buy fertilizer which is advertised and sold as tobacco fertilizer, but should buy and mix their own. He said lime should not be used unless the soil is sour and gave several ways in which to test the soil and find whether it is sour. He also said the cost of home mixed fertilizer would be about $28 to $30 per acre, 2250 pounds to be used to the acre.

One of the disappointments of the show was due to the fact that there was no testing of the burning quality of the tobacco by smoking machines, as had been previously announced, this being due to an accident to the machine in transit. The visitors during afternoon and evening numbered about five hundred.

A Visit to the Tobacco Farms of "La Catalina" and "El Santico"

WE left the Central Station (Havana) on Sunday, the eighteenth of January, gallantly invited by the owner, Manuel Rodriguez, well-known cigar manufacturer of the famous brands: "La Sirena," "La Venus," "Violeta," "Las Cantoras," "El Angel, "Venus de Cuba," etc., established at 188 Manrique Street, Havana, in order to enjoy a day free from work, and to breathe the vivifying air of the beautiful fields of the Island of Cuba.

We were four in our party, Don Manolo Rodriguez, Jr., son of Don Manuel, a sympathetic young man of twenty-eight years of age, well educated, a hard worker, and speaking the English language perfectly, having lived several years in Great Britain; Don Inocencio Cuervo, Don Celestino Menendez, and the narrator. We started at 6 A. M. to the minute, and as the sun had not risen yet it was too cold to open the windows of the wagon. Traveling in the trains of the Central Railroad is quite comfortable, being electric, therefore there is no dense smoke of the locomotive, and there were no complaints on the part of the ladies of the tobacco smoke, although the windows were closed.

Our Group on the Plantation

Rapidly and without any mishap we passed the different stations until Guanajay, looking with growing interest at the various vegas of tobacco, distributed from Punta Brava until Guyabal de Caimito, covered with cheese cloth mostly, although there were also some growing in the open fields.

At half-past seven to the minute we arrived at Guanajay, and after having visited the factory "La Sirena" Nos. 29-33 Maximo Gomez Street, and the bakery of Mr. Rodriguez at 30 Martires Street, as well as paying a visit to the handsome building of the Spanish Casino, we started in two commodious coaches for the principal object of our visit, to inspect the vegas "La Catalina" and "El Santico." Our company had been increased by two additional persons, besides the two coachmen, first the cousin of Don Manolo, Don Francisco Menendez Rodriguez, who is the manager of the cigar factory and also has charge of the above-named vegas and the various properties of Mr. Rodriguez in Guanajay, and second, a famous cook of the village, Don Pedro Herrera.

The road from Guanajay to Artemisa is in very good condition, flanked by shade trees that arch and throw a grateful shadow, but after having left this road and entering a soft country road our hardships began, which fortunately were not of the worst kind, and we reached our destination safely at 11 A. M. During the transit we saw principally only luxurious cane fields, as well as some sweet potato patches, malangas (a sort of potato) and Yuca (Cassava).

As the cook had to prepare our hot lunch (almuerzo) we had three hours to run over the vega "La Catalina" on foot. This farm has six caballerias, about two hundred acres, and of which one-third is dedicated to tobacco, the rest is planted to sugar cane, banana trees, fruit trees, many royal palms and to the raising of fodder for the animals. There are also virgin forests, into which nobody could enter without having cut a way previously with a machete. The country house presents no particular observation, except saying, that it is of two stories with a tile roof, and is occupied by the caretaker or manager, Don Domingo Rodriguez, a Canary Islander, intelligent and honest, a hard worker of middle age.

Our principal object was to look at the different stages of growth of the tobacco fields, and also at the hanging leaves cut already in the drying sheds. As the latter were still green they could not be judged perfectly, but notwithstanding they promise to give light colors, of good sizes and of a silky texture. The burn is perfect, as we tried several leaves. The plants in the fields show up well, being sound, and were of all sizes, according to the different periods of having been set out. The second growth is developing well. It must not be forgotten, that Mr. Rodriguez has provided his farm with a donkey engine and the corresponding pipes over all the tobacco fields, so that a prolonged draught could do him no harm, in case of need. Mr. Rodriguez is not fond of raising tobacco under cheese cloth, and still he employs some of this stuff on the sides of the fields, as a protection against the strong winds, and to keep the chickens out. The first harvest began on the thirtieth of December, then from the eighth to the tenth of January, and now he is cutting right along as fast as the leaves mature. Very soon he thinks of starting the second cut of the capaduras, or sucker growth, which are developing well, thanks to timely rains in the latter part of December and January. The shade thrown by the palms is very beneficial in producing a thin, aromatic leaf, and for this reason many vegueros are anxious to plant as many palms as possible, and select the palm alleys for the planting of tobacco. While we were looking at the fields, Don Manolo was very busy with his kodak, drawing photographic pictures, some of which we present.

Walking in the fresh, pure air, warmed up by the "King of the Stars," had given us an excellent appetite, and returning to the house we found the lunch waiting for us. We did full justice to the different plates, and the typical rice with chicken, as well as to a good glass of Spanish wine, and felt better than before a sumptuous dinner in the fastidious Hotel Miramar.

In the afternoon we paid a visit in coaches to the farm "El Santico," which contains twenty-six caballerias, or about 860 acres, planted with sugar cane; 100 acres with tobacco upon shares, and the balance being devoted to pasture lands. This time we were accompanied by the private country policeman, Don Eduvigis Padilla, mounted on horseback, in order to open the different bars of the fields. He was armed with a machete and a revolver, although there was no necessity to use the arms.

A Field Well Developed

The two farms represent a capital of $50,000, and contain numerous pigs, hens, guinea hens, chickens, turkeys, about 200 cows, 25 to 30 yoke of oxen for the work on the farm and from 60 to 70 horses. According to the season of the year there are from 30 to 50 farm laborers, and on the Santico farm there are five small farmers who work on shares, and one tenant of one-half caballeria, or about sixteen and one-half acres.

When the sun was nearly setting we returned to Guanajay in our coaches, taking a good dinner in the factory, thence taking the train to Havana, and where we finally arrived a trifle tired at 10 P. M. Thanking our host for his hospitality and the pleasure he had given to us, we went home to sleep.

Bowl-Shaped Cavity Replaces Cigar Tip

Now that hygiene has become such an important factor in our everyday life, it will, doubtless, cause little surprise, when it is learned that even the cigar has come in for its share of attention as regards manufacture, etc. No longer will the fastidious user of the weed shudder when he happens to remember that sometimes it is necessary to employ paste to insure the permanent fastening of the wrapper on the tip of the cigar, inasmuch as a new cigar form has been patented in Germany doing away with the tip. This new process replaces in its stead, a bowl-shaped cavity, which is a decided improvement from the sanitary standpoint, and has been patented by Baer Brothers, of Mannheim, Germany. The machine by which the cigars are given their new form has already appeared on exhibition, having been awarded a gold medal at the International Exhibit in Brussels, in 1910, and having won much praise and commendation at the hygienic exhibition held in Dresden in 1911.

No Grounds for Infringement

Alleging that L. W. Savage, of Bangor, Me., was infringing upon their rights in the distribution of a cigar under the title "208," which title closely resembled "108" cigar, manufactured by them for many years, and was deriving some of the benefit of the advertising performed by the plaintiffs, Messrs. Goldsmith and Silver, doing business as the Goldsmith-Silver Cigar Company, Boston, Mass., brought suit recently against Mr. Savage, asking that he be restrained from the use of the said title. The suit, which was reviewed by Judge Merrill, of the Portland Municipal Court, was decided in favor of the defendant, Judge Merrill finding that inasmuch as the Goldsmith-Silver Company owned no trademark upon which infringement could be based, and that there was no unfair competition, that the injunction would not be granted nor damages awarded.

Cleveland

CLEVELAND, O., February 24, 1914.

Cleveland has been hit by another bad snow storm, but is gradually recouperating and coming back into its own.

The Richmond Cigar Company were forced to discontinue their store on Euclid Avenue, as their lease was cancelled to make room for the cafe that was in the rear. This will leave this concern with only one stand, that being located on the Public Square.

Harry Fagan, whose stand is located on Superior Street, near East Ninth, has gone into bankruptcy. Most of the creditors were local concerns.

Unger Brothers will open their new stand on lower Superior Street on the fifteenth of this month. They will have an up-to-date pool and billiard hall, barber shop and cigar stand.

The Consumers Cigar Company will open up a new store in the Wilkshire Building. It will be in charge of Al Cohn and will be open for business about March 1st.

Burt Smith, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, was laid up for several weeks, but is again out and around and will start his regular trip within the next couple of days.

Fred Falkenberg, ex-Nap pitcher, who is at the present time manager of the Euclid Avenue Bowling Alleys, is attending the annual bowling tournament in Toledo and will endeavor to bring home at least one, if not more, of the prizes.

Harvey Ducker, formerly with the H. C. Christy Company, is engaged in the jobbing and manufacturing of cigars and candies and is located at Superior and West Ninth Streets.

Wm. Loveman, of the J. C. Loveman Cigar Company, was married on the 10th and after a wedding trip through the East will take up his residence at Hough Avenue and Sixty-fifth Street. The night of the wedding Mr. Loveman sustained a $2000 loss through burglary, burglars having broken into the home while they were being married and secured about $2000 worth of wedding gifts.

Fred Singer, of S. Rossin Sons, New York, made a flying trip to the city.

There have been several changes in the internal revenue department. Chief among which is the collectorship, which has gone to Harry Weiss, of Canton, who succeeds A. R. Rodway.

Harry Lichtig, of Mt. Clemens, Mich., is spending his winter vacation here.

Walter Biddlingmyer, who operates a stand in the Electric Building, is once more back on the job after an illness of several months.

On the 24th the Marshall Drug Company sustained a total loss in their stand at East Ninth Street and Huron Road. The entire store was gutted by fire. Preparations are being made for a new structure to rise on this site and it is almost certain that when this building is completed they will again occupy the corner store.

The Erie Cigar Store, also in this building, sustained a total loss and it is uncertain at this time where they will locate.

The George B. Scrambling Company have remodeled their offices, located on West Third Street. Mr. Scrambling reports business as extremely good, both in their store and the wholesale end of it.

M. Mendelsohn, a member of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, is expected here the middle of the week. It is the first time that Mr. Mendelsohn has been in town since his recent illness.

Grover Mendelsohn reports many orders on "Decisions," "Rigolettas" and "El Symphonies." The factory is keeping busy and is proving to be one of the liveliest cigar concerns in town.

Louis Klein Cigar Company sustained a small loss by smoke and steam in the recent Gillsey Hotel fire. They have fixed up their stock and fixtures and are again operating as usual.

Abe Jacobs, who operates a cafe and grill room in Vincent Street, has moved to 734 Superior and will operate an exclusive stag restaurant and cafe.

Mr. Sharples, of Shipley-Massingham, of Pittsburgh, was in town the past week and placed his order on "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" for 1914.

William Schwartz, of the Volunteer Cigar Company, Nashville, Tenn., formerly of this city, has been retained as manager of the Nashville Ball Club for the ensuing season. Mr. Schwartz, with Mr. Weisenberg, is operating the Volunteer Cigar Company, located at 236 Sixth Avenue, and is keeping open day and night catering to the trade. They have an up-to-date stand and they are keeping many brands of cigars, stogies, etc.

Oldest Cigar Store in Cincinnati, Ohio

JOHN C. DAVIS, the oldest cigar man in the State of Ohio, observed the anniversary of his fifty-fifth year in business at 412 Vine Street, Cincinnati, O., on February 1. From his doorway Mr. Davis has seen lower Vine Street change from a thoroughfare of vacant lots in 1859 to one of the main arteries of the city in 1914.

"I have seen many changes," said Mr. Davis, who is seventy-two years old, but does not look more than sixty. "There have been great changes in business life and in men. I began to work in this place on February 1, 1859, just after I had graduated from Woodward. I was a clerk employed by R. L. Leary & Company, manufacturers. I succeeded this firm a short time later, when I established my present business. Twenty years ago, my little store, which was a landmark for years, seemed to be crowded by the bigger buildings that were springing up all around me, so I built the building I occupy now on the same lot. When I started in business only three kinds of tobacco were grown—Havana, Virginia and Connecticut. Now, besides these three, there is tobacco grown in almost every state in this country. Cigarettes were unknown at that time, although they were imported from Cuba several years after I went into business."

Mr. Davis is proud of his reputation as the oldest cigar man in America, and during the past week has been busy receiving congratulations from traveling salesmen, who refer to him as the "Nestor" and the "Dean" of the tobacco business.

In 1856, three years before he started in business, Mr. Davis was selected as one of the pages from the Public School of Cincinnati, for the National Democratic Convention which convened in that city and nominated James Buchanan for President.

Mr. Davis writes THE TOBACCO WORLD that during the convention he became acquainted with Benjamin Butler, who afterwards became a general in the Union Army. "After the war started," writes Mr. Davis, "I became a member of the army that defended this city during the Kirby Smith raid."

"On July 19, 1866, I was elected president of the Live Oak Baseball Club, the first baseball club organized west of the Alleghany Mountains."

He adds: "I have discounted every bill I have purchased in the last forty-five years. There has never been a bank in Cincinnati that has seen a note of mine."

Fendrich Factory Biggest in Country

Recently compiled statistics show the output of cigar factories in Evansville, Ind., to be between 450,000 and 500,000 cigars daily. The leading factory in the city and probably the largest in the country is the H. Fendrich factory, makers of the famous "Charles Denby" brand. The output of this factory is about 300,000 cigars a day and is said to have a capacity for the making of at least 350,000 daily.

Working six days a week, the Fendrich factory turns out 7,200,000 cigars in a month or 86,400,000 in the course of the year. Fifteen hundred girls are employed in the Fendrich factory.

The new plant on Oakley Street was built in 1912 and is a model cigar factory with light from four sides and big, airy rooms and high ceilings. The structure is fireproof in construction and was designed by John Fendrich, the present proprietor of the factory.

The next largest plant in Evansville is the American Cigar Company's, which employs about 450 girls and makes about 100,000 cigars a day when working its capacity. This company employs fewer girls because the tobacco it receives is ready for the wrapper, having been prepared at some of the company's other plants.

Allotments for Tobacco Experiments

The Department of Agriculture has made the following allotments to states for tobacco work in 1914:

To Connecticut, $2700 for tobacco breeding investigations; the state will spend $1500.

To Maryland, $1225 for tobacco breeding experiments; the state will spend $1000.

To New York, $1250 for cigar filler and binder tobacco tests; the state will spend $500.

To North Carolina, $6080 for investigations with flue-cured tobacco; the state will spend $3000.

To Ohio, $1550 for tobacco breeding and handling; the state will spend $2500.

To Pennsylvania, $2400 for filler and binder tests; the state will spend $2500.

To Tennessee, $1000 for investigating tobacco insects; the state will spend $500; also $1262 for tobacco improvement investigations; the state will spend $1000.

To Virginia, $4580 for tests with fire-cured, sun-cured and flue-cured tobacco; the state will spend $5000.

To West Virginia, $700 for experiments and demonstrations in the culture of improved Burley tobacco; the state will spend $2000.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, February 21, 1914.

THE uncertainty about the coming tobacco crop continues, as the temperature is abnormal for this season of the year. Instead of a mostly cool atmosphere with northerly winds, interspersed only by a few warmer days, and one rainstorm a month, or at most two, the reverse has been the rule since the beginning of this month. While this has been propitious to forward the growth of the young tobacco plants in the fields, it has however spotted the wrapper leaves when they were nearly ripe to be plucked, as well as washing all the gum from the leaves that had attained their maturity. Under these circumstances the 1914 crop will be very much mixed, and unless we should still henceforth have some more seasonable weather, the general characteristics will be of a light and partly flimsy nature. Besides, how much damage may have been done by pole sweat, will only be found out later on, when the dry leaves are being bundled, thrown into piles and have undergone the fermentation process. We may say, that perhaps about half the crop has been harvested, and is now hanging in the drying sheds. How much the other half, still growing in the fields, may finally give is an unsolved riddle yet, that Dame Nature alone could reveal. The 1914 crop is fully a month later than usual. All estimates that are made now are mere guesses, and in all probability will have to be rectified later on, principally as some transplantings have been made as late as the beginning of this month, and whether they can mature nobody could tell. In any ordinary year there would be nine chances against one that they would give any result, but possibly this year the tables might be turned. The rule is, that all tobacco still growing in the Vuelta Abajo after the fifteenth of March, never does amount to anything, while the Semi Vuelta and Remedios districts under favorable weather conditions have given good capaduras even in the month of April.

Judging our leaf market by the number of sales made during the past fortnight, it ought to be classified as even duller than the preceding two weeks. Lately more buyers have arrived, but it remains to be seen yet whether they will operate more freely, or restrict their purchases to the absolutely needed requirements to tide them over until the next crop. A good many of our leaf dealers seem to be more disposed to make concessions, and would not let a reasonable offer of a buyer go by, as they would like to liquidate their holdings, in order to be ready for the new campaign. An exception has to be made, however, as far as prime goods are concerned of heavy quality styles or factory vegas of a high aroma, as the holders of such goods appear in no way anxious to part with them, except at the old figures.

Recent Leaf Sales.

Sales during the past two weeks amounted to 5461 bales, divided into: Vuelta Abajo, 2715; Partido, 478, and Remedios, 2268 bales.

Buyers were: Americans, 2638; exporters to Europe, 140; shippers to Mexico, 50; to South America, 785, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1848 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the past fortnight, ending February 14, 1914, consisted of 10,001 bales, distributed as follows, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 9116; to London, 40; to Hamburg, 60; to Rotterdam, 10; to Mexico, 50, and to South America, Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Valparaiso, 785 bales.

Cigars.

Romeo y Julieta has enough orders on hand to work strong until the end of March, and by that time enough fresh orders ought to be received.

H. Upmann & Company, having many orders for the "Regies" on hand, are fully occupied, naturally considering that we are in the dull season of the year.

Partagas stated that if business should only continue throughout the summer as it is now that they would be perfectly satisfied. Angel Granda, formerly foreman of the Villar y Villar and Pedro Murias factories, has now become the foreman and inside manager of the Partagas factory.

Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., report that they are working better than last year at this period.

Castañeda and Fonseca are quite busy, as they have plenty of orders on hand from all parts of the world.

Sol is satisfied with the present state of affairs, as there are always orders arriving to keep up the normal activity at this period of the year.

While business cannot be called brisk in any of our factories, nobody expects to receive large orders at the moment, but taking everything into account the general outlook for the future is promising, and this hope is sustaining the small factories, which are suffering mostly from the quieter times. The different European "Regies" in any event are giving work to quite a number of our factories, as their principal shipments are made in the winter and spring months, thus counterbalancing a decreased demand from other countries.

Factories that are also fairly well supplied with orders are: Por Larrañaga, Punch, Hoyo de Monterey, La Flor de José Otero, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, Flor del Fumar, Belinda, Eden, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez and C. E. Beck & Company.

Leaf Tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzales were sellers of 750 bales of leaf tobacco of all kinds during the past fortnight.

E. A. Calves & Company only secured 325 bales of Remedios tobacco as far as we were able to ascertain.

Gonzales & Benitez sold 900 sales of Remedios and Semi Vuelta.

Santiago Perez Palacio, the father of Don Pablo J. Perez, joined the silent majority on the 12th inst., after having suffered from heart disease for some time previously. The deceased was a nephew of the late Gregorio Palacios, who was the richest leaf dealer in the city of Havana. In the name of THE TOBACCO WORLD we extend our deepfelt sympathy to Don Pablo J. Perez.

Leslie Pantin was a buyer of over 400 bales of leaf for account of his customers by cable orders.

Exporters of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from February 1 to February 14, 1914, above 200 bales of leaf, were:

Maximilian Stern	1,037 bales

Tariff Act Not Likely to Change Situation

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, D. C., February 25.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin has referred to the Department of Justice the technical questions arising under the Cuban treaty since the enactment of the new tariff law. The greatest difficulty encountered is in connection with the tariff on sugar, although there have been some points raised in connection with the tobacco duties.

While it is very obvious on the face of the thing that the duty on sugar from Cuba will be 20 per cent. lower than the contemporaneous tariff duties, Mr. Hamlin thought it would be best for all concerned to have the Attorney-General express an opinion as to the law in the case. Furthermore, it was pointed out there has been practically no change in the tobacco duties and therefore it is most likely that the Cuban treaty and the new tariff act will alter the present situation not in the slightest.

Announce Removal of Offices

The Theobald & Oppenheimer Company announce to the trade the removal of their accounting and order departments to their new offices at 1020 Second Avenue, New York City. It is requested that all remittances, orders and other communications be directed to the company at the new address. The removal took place on February 23.

The offices of the manufacturing department will be retained at 1147 North Fourth Street, Philadelphia, under the personal supervision of John N. Kolb, as heretofore.

Pittsburgh

Weather Puts Damper on Business—Salesmen Boosting "Unis" Cigarettes Here—Acker, Merrill & Condit Now Have Pittsburgh Athletic Club Stands

PITTSBURGH, PA., February 24, 1914.

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh for the last two weeks has not been as good as expected. We have had lots of snow and very cold weather, registering as low as 6° below zero in some places.

J. H. Gollner, secretary and treasurer of M. Marsh & Son, Wheeling, W. Va., was in Pittsburgh for a few days looking after their business. He reports it very satisfactory, as their brands always sell very big in Pittsburgh. Mr. Gollner was accompanied by John Wolf, their factory foreman.

Mr. Bosworth, of H. Fendrich, manufacturers of "Chas. Denby" cigars, is in town.

Arthur Herbert, E. M. Robins and S. Soffel, all connected with the Phillip Morris Cigarette Company, are in this city boosting "Unis" cigarettes. They are putting in some very fine window displays.

Mr. Rosenfeld is in town selling "Charles the Great" cigars, made by Salvador Rodriguez, of Tampa. He is visiting the trade and has a very nice report on his cigars.

Reymer Brothers have some nice window displays on "Charles the Great" and "Cortez" cigars. Also showing a nice line of pipes.

Reymer Brothers have furnished cigars for the bank clerks' banquet at the Hotel Schenley. They will also furnish them to the Pittsburgh University banquet at the University Club.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand has a very nice display of "Royal Nestor" cigarettes. This display was put in by Mr. Deskau, of the Tobacco Products Company, who is working very hard on this brand.

J. Bering, who has succeeded Mr. Fleischauer as manager of the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand, is again on the job after a two weeks' illness. We think Mr. Bering will make a success of the Seventh Avenue stand.

Reymer Brothers have taken over the stand in the Carnegie Building, formerly controlled by Jos. T. Snyder. Mr. Goetz, formerly with Jos. T. Snyder, has taken charge for Reymer Brothers.

Fred Kuehneisen and Miss Mabel Hallam were united in marriage on February 18th. We extend our heartiest congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Kuehmeisen. Mr. Kuehmeisen was formerly connected with Melachrino & Company.

The Bock-Stauffer Company are still advertising and boosting "Jenkinson's Best" stogies.

R. Thompson, manager of the cigar department of the W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, has taken a trip to the eastern part of the state in the interest of the "El Verso" and "San Felice" cigars.

J. Edwards, of New York, has taken charge of the Pittsburgh Athletic Club's stands. These stands were formerly in charge of A. C. Kefer. Acker, Merrill & Condit now control these stands.

J. R. Criswell, representing the Bock-Stauffer Company, has just returned from a business trip to Harrisburg, Pa., and surrounding towns. His principal work while on his trip was in the interest of one of the above named concern's most famous brands, "Jenkinson's Best." Criswell was delighted with the results from his trip. The business done on this brand proved to be most successful.

Charles Bock, president of the Bock-Stauffer Company, is calling on Chicago jobbers, and expects to be absent from the city for a week or ten days.

A rumor has it down town that Acker, Merrill & Condit will locate in the neighborhood of Fifth Avenue with a fine retail and wholesale store. They will carry all of the high class imported and domestic cigars, wines, liquors and groceries.

A. J. Fleischauer will have to delay opening his new store at Liberty and Smithfield Street until February 28th or March 5th, as his fixtures have been lost in the snow storm.

C. A. Gibbs Company have a great run on "Lozano" cigars, made by F. Lozano & Company, Tampa.

The following visitors were in town:

Dan. Manheimer, of the Imperial Cigar Company, Lancaster.

J. Planco, of Ruy Suarez Company; he is homeward bound.

J. B. Sheridan, of Ramon Rey Company, opened a number of new accounts in the East.

D. Easton, of the Falk Tobacco Company, New York.

G. Schoeneman, of Celestina Vega Company, Tampa.

J. Feist, of M. Stachelberg Company.

Albert Calish, of Cortez Cigar Company, Key West.

J. Andrew Stein, representing "Pera" cigarettes.

San Francisco

Weather Elicits No Complaint From Local Trade—Gunst & Company Enjoying Big Business With Manila Smokes—Bercovich Company Reorganized—Glaser Brothers Back in Old Quarters

SAN FRANCISCO, February 20, 1914.

THE fine weather of the first half of February brought out a lot of business for the local cigar men; and even now, with another heavy storm in full swing, there is little complaint. Country business has been very active. Traveling men and visitors from the inland towns alike report splendid prospects in all parts of California and the Coast in general. The unusually heavy storms since January 1st have caused the early spring and late winter work of the traveling men to lag a little behind the average. In a number of sections, particularly in Southern California, railroads and wagon roads were damaged considerably on several occasions, and the labors of the outside salesmen were made disagreeable and expensive for a time.

There is some talk of changing tastes on the part of California smokers, with especial emphasis on San Francisco and the cities and towns of Northern California. It is claimed that San Francisco, long known as a distinctly clear Havana town, is now turning its attention more and more to cheaper grades of cigars; but it must be admitted that this talk comes mostly from the distributors of Manila, Porto Rico and seed and Havana lines. Importers and distributors of these classes of cigars are certainly having a revival in business; but handlers of clear Havana cigars are unwilling to admit that they are losing any ground. The latter are inclined to think that the revival in the demand for the less expensive cigars is more marked than in other lines for the simple reason that the drop in these lines sometime ago was also the most noticeable.

M. A. Gunst & Co. now find that their big arrivals from Manila are none too large for the demand. This company carries the "Alhambra" line of Manilas, and is getting them in at the rate of about a million a month. The last steamer brought in a round seven hundred thousand.

Gene Stolz, the San Francisco representative of the Cortez line of cigars has just returned from a trip to Southern California, where he reports having found a good volume of business.

The reorganization of the Bercovich Company, San Francisco wholesalers, has now been about completed. One of the important phases of the reorganization is the affiliation of Mr. Superstein, a well-known cigar man, formerly of Denver, Colo., with the company. Mr. Superstein has removed to San Francisco and will hereafter make his headquarters with the company's Front Street store.

A. Clisbee, formerly well known in the San Francisco and Pacific Coast tobacco trade, is now successfully engaged in the manufacture of peanut butter in Oakland, Cal. Mr. Clisbee was the introducer in this territory of the "Lucky Strike" line of tobacco for the R. A. Patterson Tobacco Company. Later, with D. K. B. Sellers, he opened an office and undertook to act as distributors for independent lines of plug and smoking tobaccos with the idea of fighting the American Tobacco Company in the Pacific Coast field.

Sol Arkush, representative of the Luis Martinez Cigar Company, was in San Francisco last week visiting the Bercovich Company, local distributors of the "Luis Martinez."

W. H. Bailey, a retail cigar dealer of Santa Rosa, Cal., has been in San Francisco this week visiting the local trade. He reports that conditions in the Sonoma Valley never looked more favorable for a good season than they do just now.

Glaser Brothers, wholesale cigar and tobacco dealers on Montgomery Street, who were recently burned out and who made a lightning like record in starting deliveries to customers within three hours after the fire was out, are again back in the old quarters with a bigger stock and a bigger business than ever.

Arthur Meyers, Coast representative for Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, is now in Los Angeles for a couple of weeks' work on the "Henry the Fourth." It seems a pretty safe guess that Mr. Meyers will take in the Vanderbilt Cup races at Santa Monica before returning to San Francisco.

Al Mendel, a cigar man of Marshfield, Ore., has been looking in on the local trade lately. He says that Marshfield and the entire Coos Bay section of Western Oregon are moving ahead right along, and that the outlook is of the best.

The cigar men for the Coast who left for the East early in the year are now drifting back to San Francisco. Herman Moss, of the S. R. Moss Cigar Company, has been back for a week, and is already picking up orders for the Moss cigars. Charles McCormick, Western representative of Y. Pendas & Alveras, has just returned, and is now conferring with H. L. Judell & Company as to plans for the boosting of the "Webster" during the spring. George R. Webb, cigar department manager for the wholesale drug house of the Coffin-Reddington Company, has also arrived with a lot of new plans for the M. & W. line of Tampa cigars.

The Edward Wolf Company has had a good response to its increased efforts on its Manila lines of cigars and cigarettes. The company will continue to act as factory representatives for clear Havana cigars, but finds that the growing demands for Manila goods necessitates giving additional attention to these. In recent months the "La Insular" Manila cigarettes have come into prominence, and these are now being imported in constantly increasing quantities. The "La Prueba" and "La Insular" Manila cigars are also growing in demand, and Mr. Wolf finds that the recent additions to the selling force on these goods has brought in good returns.

Ed Owens, a well known cigar man of Salt Lake City, spent last week in San Francisco visiting with the local jobbing houses.

Monroe Falkenstein, of S. Bachman & Company, who has been on a visit to the eastern factories represented by his house, is now on his way back to the Coast and is expected to reach San Francisco within a few days.

Skinner & Knecht, of Los Angeles, Cal., are now getting things in shape at the new store at 761 South Los Angeles Street, and expect to get moved within a few days.

I. Danziger, importer of the "La Yebana" line of Manila cigars, is now showing these in new tin boxes holding twenty-five cigars each.

Weather Holds Up Business—Big Demand for Griffin-Neuberger Leaf—Henry Straus Plans New Quarters—"Kenrico" Cigar Now On Market

CINCINNATI, O., February 24, 1914.

BUSINESS in general in Cincinnati has not been quite up to the standard in the past two weeks, due largely to the fact that the weather has been far from good.

J. J. Eisenman, the well known leaf tobacco man, will, in the future, look after the interests of the Griffin-Neuberger Company, growers of the shade and primed leaf tobacco in this locality. Mr. Eisenman is home from a successful trip in Chicago, and said there is an overwhelming demand for his company's product.

Charles M. Krohn, who conducts that busy cigar store in the Commercial Tribune Building, and who is also the local distributor for the famous "San Felice" brand, is featuring a handsome window display of the "John Ruskin" cigar. Mr. Krohn reports business as being only fair in general.

Fritz Brothers, cigar manufacturers, are enjoying good business. They are having a splendid trade with their "Rose Stahl" five-cent brand.

Morris Davis, of A. Davis & Sons, returned from a trip to Cuba, where he has purchased some very choice leaf.

The effects of the E. J. Hamberger Company's entire stock in the hands of the receiver, embracing tobaccos of various kinds, labels, boxes and machines, will be offered at auction by the Ezekiel & Bernheim Company, auctioneers for the receiver. It is not known what the stockholders will realize on their claim at this time.

J. H. Lucke Company have a number of attractive window displays of their "Lucke Rolls," two for five stogies, in the best sections of the city. Mr. Lucke reports increasing demands for his product of over a quarter of a century popularity. These goods have reached to nearly every corner of the United States. His son, Howard, is contemplating a trip to the Coast.

Si Schwartz, formerly the Cincinnati representative for the J. & B. Moos Company, who took over the First National Bank Building cigar stand a short time ago, reports that the inclemency of the weather has largely interfered with his business. Still he has no regrets, stating that the stand is on a good paying basis now, and he predicts a bright future for it.

Mr. Hirshberg, junior member of L. Newberger & Brother, cigar manufacturers, is gamboling through Ohio, and is sending in some splendid orders. He reports big business for the "Picadura" and "Swissen" brands.

Henry Straus has bought a piece of land adjoining the new Gwynne Building, at Sixth and Main Streets. The plans call for a three story building, with a concrete foundation, that will enable the building of seven additional stories. They have outgrown their quarters at Sixth and Vine.

Mr. Johnson, of the Havana-American Company, makers of the well known "Anthony" and "Cleopatra" brands, breezed into Cincinnati and appeared to be quite satisfied with the outlook for business. Henry Straus is the exclusive dealer for his goods.

L. S. Kent, of South Bend, Ind., recently blew into Cincinnati and is negotiating with a jobber to handle his "Kenrico" five-cent cigar and "Schnitselbank" ten-cent brand. He contemplates an extensive advertising campaign.

The offering for seed leaf tobacco on the "Breaks" is rather light for this time of the year. There are many purchasers, but the scarcity of Ohio tobaccos is very apparent.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

Snow has kept the buyers at home for the past week, but activity is slowly being resumed and brisk sales are anticipated. Deliveries at the warehouses are running heavier than generally supposed, which indicates that the buying movement has been stronger than was at first thought.

Low grades in the hands of the growers have been going at good prices and the hail cut goods that has been marketed has brought satisfactory sums to the farmers.

There has been a demand for the fine goods and some excellent leaf has changed hands at more than average prices. During the past two weeks filler goods has been in prominence and prices have ranged from 9 to 11 cents on wrappers in seed leaf, while Havana has been selling from 13 to 15 cents.

The opening of the packing houses is good news to the unemployed in the city, as there is little outdoor work to be done and openings for new help have been very few.

CONNECTICUT.

WINDSOR LOCKS, CONN.

The end of the season is at hand and some of the warehouses will close about the first of March, while others will continue into the middle of the month and perhaps longer. There has been a scarcity of light wrappers in the crop, but the demand for them is unabated. All the manufacturers are hunting for desirable goods and when they are located they are generally purchased at a fair price.

Broadleaf has proven to be a better dry weather tobacco than Havana seed and the packing of this type is keeping up to the average of other years.

SUFFIELD, CONN.

Preparations are now being made to close most of the warehouses here, as the tobacco is about all delivered. The dry spell hurt the crop considerable this year; it did not come up to the average weight per acre and varied somewhat in quality. As a result none of the warehouses have put up as much tobacco as usual.

KENTUCKY.

OWENSBURG, KY.

Despite the fact that this has not been a good stripping season since the deliveries began a month ago, estimates show that between 10,000,000 and 12,000,000 pounds have already been delivered since the first of the year. In the Green River district it is figured that at least 15,000,000 are still undelivered. A heavy rush is expected within a week. There has been a falling off in the delivery of pooled tobacco.

LEXINGTON, KY.

Offerings here have been of a poor quality. The roads have been so bad that hauling has been practically at a stand still. It is estimated that at least ninety per cent. of the crop has been sold and this, coupled with the fact that the weather has been so dry that handling has been impossible, has kept the receipts down to a low mark.

The market is very firm for new dark tobacco and shows a tendency upwards. In the burley market prices have remained firm and active and there has been a slight improvement in prices.

TENNESSEE.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

Wet weather early in the month prevented heavy deliveries, but the time was not lost, as most of the growers used those days in stripping and bulking what was left in the barns. Tobacco has been coming in large quantities and it would seem as if every one had raised some tobacco. It is estimated that about thirty per cent. of the crop has been sold.

Very few of the crops have been uniform and practically all the crops have been sold at varying prices, as the buyers seem intent on getting hold of the lengthy types. A large part of that sold lately has been done from the wagons.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Work in the warehouses continues unabated and the full quota of employes is found everywhere. Wagon load after wagon load of leaf has been arriving at the packing houses and many of them have been crowded to capacity.

The unsold remnants of the crops are being taken up very quickly and it will not be long before the balance of the crop is in the packing houses. Some of the crops that have been brought in have been of good quality and they have commanded prices of 12 and 13 cents.

The frost caught some of the crops, but care in stripping removed most of that quality and it is probable that a larger percentage of the leaf will pass through for binder purposes than usual.

May Secure New Cigar Factory for Jackson

The Chamber of Commerce of Jackson, Mich., has opened negotiations with B. E. Poor, a cigar manufacturer of Jonesville, to induce him to remove his plant to Jackson. Mr. Poor is the manufacturer of the "B. E. P." cigar, which has a large sale throughout southern Michigan. The chief obstacle in the way is the fact that Mr. Poor has been unable to find a purchaser for his property in Jonesville. The factory of the "B. E. P." cigar employs about thirty hands at the present time.

DEALERS!

Do you realize that it is a fact that when a smoker of imported cigars wants a milder smoke or a more economical one (as many of them do just now), he buys a good imported Porto Rican

SAVARONA

These imported SAVARONAS, like the imported Havana cigars, are made up in the district where the tobacco is grown. The cigars are packed and shipped over seas, and subjected to the same conditions as the imported Havana, except that they pay no duty. The result is great similarity between imported SAVARONAS and imported Havana, the SAVARONA having the advantages of mildness and the price less than half for the same sizes, because they pay no duty.

Remember there is no other Porto Rican cigar in the same class with SAVARONAS. They are made of genuine Porto Rican tobacco from the best districts, and it makes all the difference in the world where the tobacco comes from.

They suit the same class of smoker. Prove it yourself by putting in SAVARONAS and getting your "imported" smoker to try them. YOU will make MORE MONEY if you do, and your CUSTOMERS will SAVE MONEY.

THE VERDICT

¶ Mere words, our words, that

BOLD

Cigars are superior in quality, workmanship and taste, would mean naught, if we did not have the confidence of the jobber, the respect of the dealer, and verdict of the smoker.

¶ The verdict is ours by long odds, the phenomenal sale of BOLD 5c. Cigars substantiates our claim.

¶ In this, the sixth year of BOLD Cigars, it requires three large factories to supply the demand.

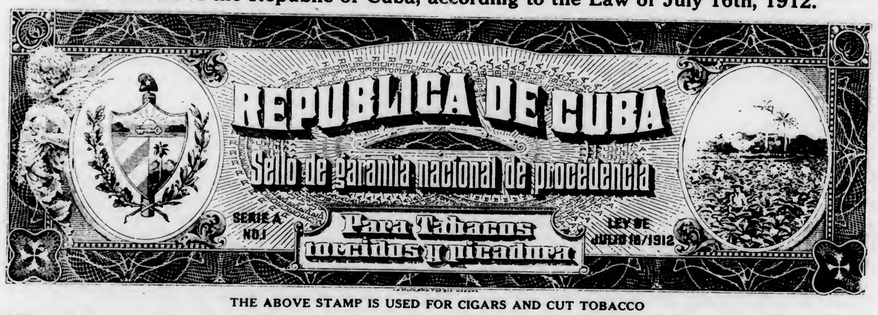
Exact Fac-simile of the Government Stamps on Cigars, Cut Tobacco and Cigarettes, issued by the Government of the Republic of Cuba, according to the Law of July 16th, 1912.



THE ABOVE STAMP IS USED FOR CIGARS AND CUT TOBACCO

All manufacturers are compelled to affix these Stamps on all boxes of Cigars, packages of Cut Tobacco, as well as packs of Cigarettes, which are manufactured by them, and which constitute an absolute guarantee to the smokers, that the Cigars, Cut Tobacco or Cigarettes contained therein, are of Genuine Cuban Origin, made by Expert Havana Cigarmakers and Tobacco Workers.

THE ABOVE STAMP IS USED ON ALL PACKAGES OF CIGARETTES

The COLOR of THE ABOVE STAMPS is GREEN.

M. E. Canle, 156 Water Street, New York, Representative for the United States, of the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba, is duly authorized to prosecute any falsification, or colorable imitation of the above stamps by law with the assistance of the Cuban Minister at Washington.

"It Makes an Irresistable Appeal"

That is the way a consumer spoke of the "La Tonia" cigar.

¶ He added, "I have smoked imported and domestic cigars for years but not until I lighted a "La Tonia" did I realize that I had found a brand of which I could never grow tired."

We buy the best tobaccos.
We have been able to produce a blend of unusual fragrance and flavor.
We have never allowed the workmanship to vary.
The quality has been maintained for twenty years.

The result is a cigar that is constantly growing in popularity.
"La Tonia" cigars mean an increased box trade.
¶ To those who have not yet stocked "La Tonias", we urge that they find out at once what they are missing.
There are still a few territories open for high-grade jobbers.

THE NEW GLASS CIGAR BOX LID

Many Dealers refusing to place them on their counters, compelled us to condemn these Antiquated Lids, after securing many patents and making over 2,000,000 the past 15 years.

The Efficiency and Practicability of the New Lids

are the greatest factors that lead to bountiful sales and satisfactory results. The Distinctive Originality and Superiority of the "Steel Wire Edged Glass Lid" is creating wonderful interest by its simplicity and strength, while the neat and refined display creates a cheerful and appetizing taste to smokers.

The bulky cheap metal framed lids, create a dull and shoddy atmosphere and depress sales in any store. We still make them at reduced prices for those who want them.

Smart and Progressive De. lers discard the clumsy devices from their counters to adopt the new "Classy Lids" and display them effectively, predominately and profitably.

UNITED STATES TO PROSECUTE METROPOLITAN TOBACCO COMPANY

Attorney General McReynolds Announces Suit—Decision Based on Alleged Restraint of Trade—Matter May Be Settled Out of Court

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 11, 1914.

ATTORNEY GENERAL McREYNOLDS decided last night to bring suit against the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, of New York, under the Sherman anti-trust act. The decision was based on evidence of alleged restraint of trade by the Metropolitan Company, laid before Mr. McReynolds today by H. Snowden Marshall, United States District Attorney at New York, and his assistant, C. A. Thompson, who has made investigation of the case.

The principal complaint against the Metropolitan Company is alleged discrimination against independent tobacco dealers. The Metropolitan acts as distributing agents for producing companies that made up the old tobacco "trust," and while it would be the principal defendant in a suit brought by the Government, the producing companies necessarily would be parties to the action.

The question of criminal prosecutions of officials of the companies was not settled today.

Independent tobacco dealers charge the Metropolitan's grip on the business of Greater New York, Long Island and Jersey City is firm and powerful, and that they are in worse condition than before the Supreme Court ordered the dissolution of the old American Tobacco Company.

According to Mr. Marshall's report, investigation has shown that the Metropolitan Company sells to independent jobbers at the same rates it sells to retailers, so that jobbers are compelled if they handle Metropolitan goods to handle them at no profit at all.

The fact that there has been negotiations between officials of the tobacco companies and representatives of the department was pointed out tonight as a reason for believing the entire matter might be settled out of court.

Independent dealers, however, have charged that nothing but the elimination of the Metropolitan Company would restore competition to the Greater New York field. If the department holds this attitude sound, it is not probable the Metropolitan Company will retire without putting up a fight in the courts.

United Cigar Stores to Cover World

A dispatch from London quotes George J. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company, as saying that his concern plans to extend its system of stores not only in Great Britain, but throughout the world.

Mr. Whelan is quoted in reference to the Underwood anti-coupon bill, now before Congress, as saying that the passage of the bill will mean a saving of more than $10,000,000 yearly to his company, and that it will cause a big boom in all tobacco securities.

Mr. Whelan also said that the Hegeman Drug Company, in which he has an interest, intends to establish branch stores throughout the United States.

COMMITTEE HEARS BOTH SIDES IN FIGHT FOR ANTI-COUPON BILL

More Than One Hundred Present—Many Philadelphians Submitted Case in Writing—Opposition Says Bill Will Tax Coupons Out of Existence—Unusual Friendliness Displayed Toward Bill by Committee

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 12.

MEMBERS of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives display an unusual friendliness toward the bill introduced by Representative Underwood, of Alabama, proposing to do away with tobacco coupons. There are several anti-coupon bills pending before the Ways and Means Committee, but the Underwood measure is the one which has the greatest chances of success.

The real attitude of the committee was brought out at The three for fifty cents is proving exceedingly popular, of witnesses, pro and con, appeared. There were possibly more than one hundred persons present in all, the preponderance being from New York and Philadelphia. Among the Philadelphians were Felix Eckerson, of F. Eckerson & Company, representing the Philadelphia Leaf Tobacco Board of Trade. Several Philadelphians submitted their case in writing to the committee.

Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers wrote that they favored the passage of the bill.

A. M. Schwarz, of Bobrow Brothers, said that coupons are a long existing evil upon the consumer as well as the trade in general. R. B. Frishmuth suggested that the tax on coupons should be graduated. Resolutions endorsing the Underwood bill were filed by the Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association of Philadelphia, carrying the signatures of M. J. McDonnell, Henry G. Cutler, Samuel Beckett and Arthur L. Holt.

The greater portion of the hearing was given over to the two leading representatives of the opposing sides, the independent dealers and the United Cigar Stores Company. John W. Yerkes, of Washington, D. C., representing the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association, opened the hearing in favor of the bill.

Mr. Yerkes asserted that the bill provides for a tax upon the right to sell and facilities used for sale of tobacco and not upon the commodity itself. Therefore the measure is constitutional. If money were given instead of coupons, Mr. Yerkes said he would think a tax a good thing because it would be a tax on doing business in a separate and extraordinary manner. He contended that the giving of coupons is for the purpose of striking down the competition of the independents. "Coupons or trading stamps," he said, "are used as a bait to draw the purchaser back."

S. M. Stroock, of New York City, representing the United Cigar Stores Company, took the stand in reply and to oppose the proposed measure. He said that the bill is not a revenue producer, as it will tax coupons out of existence.

Thereupon, Mr. Stroock briefly reviewed the history of the tobacco trust case, asserting that since April 12, 1912, the companies which formerly composed that trust have not owned a share of stock of the United Cigar Stores Company.

Many Prominent People Attend—Bishop of Havana Officiates—Description of Factory—Sketch of Firm

ONE of the most important events in the cigar and tobacco industry of Havana which has occurred in a number of years was the dedication and formal opening on February 28th, of the magnificent new factory and warehouse which has just been completed in that city by Cuesta Rey & Company, who have an international repute as cigar manufacturers in Tampa.

Just two years ago an exclusive cable to THE TOBACCO WORLD gave the first intimation to the trade that Cuesta, Rey & Company were to build the magnificent structure which was opened two weeks ago. The authentic details as outlined at that time caused a great deal of speculation and some doubt as to whether the company would carry out its announced plans.

Invitations were issued by the company about three weeks ago to all the prominent cigar manufacturers, leaf men, bankers and other important officials of Havana to attend the dedication of the building on the 28th ult., and inspect the completed plant.

Mr. A. L. Cuesta, head of the firm, accompanied by Mrs. Cuesta, their son Carl, and daughter Carlotta, by Mr. John Trice, president of the Citizens National Bank, of Tampa, and Mrs. Trice and by Judge Glenn, counsel for the firm of Cuesta, Rey & Company, left Tampa on the 25th to be present at the opening.

The main offices and entrance halls of the new building were bowered in roses and other cut flowers when the guests began to arrive, and an orchestra of fifty musicians entertained until the formal ceremonies took place.

The Right Rev. Pedro Gonzalez y Estrada, Bishop of Havana, conducted the religious rites and made the dedicatory prayer. A unique feature of the ceremonies was the raising of the three flags on the roof of the new building, the United States, the Spanish and the Cuban flags. Mrs. John Trice was the sponsor for the American flag and pulled it up the flagstaff with her own hands. Mrs. Rosa L. Pazos did a similar service for the Cuban standard, and then Mrs. Angelo L. Cuesta and her dainty little daughter helped to hoist the Spanish flag, emblem of a government at whose hands Mr. Cuesta has on two occasions been signally honored by the King in the way of royal decorations, the last occasion being given the title of "Excellencia."

Hundreds of prominent folks attended the opening and the Album of Guests recorded the names of scores of tobacco and cigar men, leaf dealers as well as bankers and merchants in the city, all of whom took evident delight in congratulating Mr. Cuesta and his firm on the possession of what was pronounced unqualifiedly the finest structure ever erected in Havana for tobacco purposes of any kind.

Refreshments were served to all guests, the wine glasses seemed to be automatically refilled and altogether it was a gala day in the Havana industry.

The factory itself needs to be seen to be appreciated. It is located on the corner of Belascoain Street and Penalver. The frontage on Belascoain Street is about two hundred feet with a depth of about four hundred. Massive pillars give the facade a strikingly dignified and imposing appearance. The entrance is particularly handsome, with the splendid heavy doors typical of Spanish architecture of the finest sort.

Private offices are situated on the left of the entrance, and are an excellent combination of all that is best in both American and Cuban types of counting rooms. A fine American steel vault is built in the office for the proper care of the firm's records and valuables.

The building is three stories and basement in the front, and on the back a fourth story has been built which Mr. Cuesta intends to fit up in luxurious style for his personal use as an abiding place when he is in Havana. This includes several bedrooms, a dining room and the finest bath and toilet facilities.

The four illustrations accompanying give an idea of the factory from the exterior and interior and were taken on opening day.

No. 1 is an interior view which shows something of the spacious central court on both sides of which the various warerooms are arranged.

No. 2 is a good outside view of the building taken on Belascoain Street.

No. 4 is an interesting picture taken on the roof of the building and shows Mrs. A. L. Cuesta and her little daughter Carlotta, in the act of running up the Spanish flag. Mr. Cuesta can be noted in the foreground by his white trousers.

The firm are now preparing to vacate their old warehouse in Havana, and expect to have their removal fully completed and business running smoothly in the new building by the first of April. Mr. Cuesta will remain in Havana for several days yet to supervise this work.

Facts about Cuesta, Rey & Company.

This firm was established in the year 1884, and from a modest beginning they employ today over one thousand hands in the United States and Cuba.

Cuesta, Rey & Company manufacture sixty-four sizes of cigars and their output for the year 1913 was 24,019,650 cigars, on which they paid the United States Government over $200,000 in duties and internal revenue taxes.

They are noted as being in the forefront of every movement which will tend toward the uplift of the industry and were among the first to bond their factory under the recently enacted law which provides for governmental supervision of manufacture. The firm are also operating an electric X-ray sterilizing machine in their plant which is an exclusive feature in the handling and packing of clear Havana cigars.

Some years ago they adopted as a trade slogan the phrase "The Truly Spanish House" and in their relations with their customers, and in the manufacture of their goods, as well as their intercourse with the commercial world at large, the fine sense of honor displayed and the uniform courtesy extended to everyone without exception has proven the slogan to be a most appropriate one in the broadest sense.

J. L. K.

J. Stanley Hutcheson, vice-president of the Patterson & Brothers Company, Richmond, who has been at Saranac Lake, N. Y., for several months past on account of his health, is recovering rapidly according to his letters home, and is expected in Richmond in a short time.

The Underwood Anti-Coupon Bill

Those for and against the Underwood anti-coupon bill appeared in large numbers before the Committee on Ways and Means, in Washington, on March 11th. An interesting fact about the hearing is that every member of the committee was present at one time or another during the day. The widespread feeling in regard to the bill took the form of hundreds of letters, directed to Representative Underwood; both sides were well represented in the correspondence.

The hearing proved to be of vital importance, as the defenders of the bill and its opponents lined up their evidence in formidable array.

Aside from the chain store interests, there appeared in opposition to the bill representatives of the allied trades, and of several industries engaged in the manufacture of goods used for premiums. It was brought out at the hearing that the coupon business had resulted in the establishment of plants to do this work and that the passage of the bill would curtail the lithographic industry twenty per cent.

The opposition called attention to the fact that if the bill was to be considered as a revenue proposition it would be a failure, as it had for its object the abolition of coupons; if they were discarded there would be no revenue.

In connection with the hearing it is interesting to note that George J. Whelan, head of a large chain of cigar stores, is quoted in a recent dispatch from London as saying that the passage of the bill would add considerably to the value of tobacco stocks and that it would result in the saving of millions of dollars to tobacco companies now using coupons as inserts.

It is noteworthy that many of the tobacco companies using coupons in their goods were not represented at the hearing, which gives an air of indifference to their stand in the matter.

The abolition of coupons gives a benefit to the greatest number; not only does the consumer benefit in the long run, but the manufacturers will effect great savings in the cost of production. This will mean a greater margin of profit, which in turn will add considerably to the value of the stock.

In considering the bill it is fair to call attention to the fact that if the giving of coupons is harmful to the tobacco industry, the giving of trading stamps and other rebates in other lines of business is also harmful. For this reason it might be said that the Underwood bill is discriminatory.

Where the cost of these rebates comes ultimately from the consumer it is only fair that he should be protected in those lines which comprise the necessities of life. The trading stamp flourishes in the grocery lines with even greater vigor than the coupon does in the tobacco business, and if the rebate is to be condemned on general principles, it applies to the retail trade in all its branches.

Leonard Dinkel

Leonard Dinkel, a cigar manufacturer of Springfield, Ill., dropped dead on his way to his factory on the morning of March 9th.

The deceased is survived by a widow and one son. His mother, two sisters and three brothers are also living.

John W. Osborn

Recently, John W. Osborn, formerly connected with the old Cincinnati leaf tobacco breaks, and one of the best known tobacco dealers in Kentucky, died at his home in Dover, Maysville, Ky., aged eighty-one years. He is survived by a widow and one brother.

William H. McCormick

Much regret was felt in Cincinnati, recently, when it was learned that William H. McCormick, a lifelong resident of the city, and for more than forty years actively engaged in the tobacco business, had died suddenly at his home, 408 East Fifth Street. Though a sufferer from heart trouble for the past few years, Mr. McCormick's death was not expected. His career dated back to the pioneer days of the tobacco breaks and covered a large acquaintance in the trade. Three children, a brother and sister survive.

Joseph B. Harvey Dies

Joseph B. Harvey, seventy-six years old, for more than thirty-five years the proprietor of a cigar business on Columbia Avenue, near Twentieth Street, is dead at his home, 1938 Columbia Avenue. A short time ago Mr. Harvey was preparing to take a bath, when he fainted and fell to the floor. In doing so he upset a gas stove which ignited his clothing. As a result he was very badly burned. His age and weakened condition retarded his recovery. His condition was aggravated a week ago by an attack of pneumonia, which caused his death.

Splendid "Hoyo de Cuba" Display

This splendid display of "Hoyo de Cuba" cigars, illustrated herewith, appears in the window of Store No. 4, Market and Juniper Streets, of Yahn & McDonnell, whose headquarters are at Fifteenth and Chestnut Streets.

The well-known "Hoyo de Cuba" brand is made by the San Martin & Leon Company, Tampa, Fla., for whom Yahn & McDonnell act as distributors in this city, Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware. The distribution is well secured and several prominent clubs and cafes have recently added this line.

Within a few days a Circassian walnut sign, bearing the words: "Hoyo de Cuba," will be placed in the window. It should prove a valuable accessory in exploiting these high-grade cigars.

This new store of the Yahn & McDonnell house has broken all records in the sale of medium-priced pipes and is proving an unusual outlet for the pipe line in general.

"Havana Ribbon" Salesmen Find Business Booming

Bayuk Brothers Company report a very satisfactory sales record for the first two weeks of March, the orders arriving with a pleasing regularity from the different territories, while a great majority of their more responsible jobbing accounts are sending in regular standing orders, so as to insure them receiving prompt shipments on "Havana Ribbons."

E. C. Bolm, representative for Kansas and Missouri, is on an extended trip through his territory and reports "Havana Ribbons" duplicating to the entire satisfaction of both the jobber and the retailer.

Robert I. Gressitt, Ohio and Michigan representative, has just completed a sales campaign in the interests of Harry C. Jacobs, of Dayton, O. Mr. Gressitt was completely successful from a distribution standpoint, and succeeded in placing the brand with some exceptionally attractive retail accounts in Mr. Jacobs' territory.

Joseph E. Lange, Indiana and Kentucky representative, is also completing a sales and advertising campaign with McMahan & Leib Company, who control the Anderson territory and reports conditions in the best possible shape, while the indications for a banner year of "Havana Ribbons" distribution are particularly bright. Mr. Thomas, his assistant, still continues to work in the interests of Robinson-Pettit Company, who have control of "Havana Ribbons" in the Louisville territory, and is meeting with his full measure of success on the brand.

BIG RICHMOND FIRE

RICHMOND, VA., March 12, 1914.

A fire which almost totally destroyed the plant of Neal & Binford, 13-17 South Eighth Street, manufacturers of tobacco supplies, at 1.15 o'clock, this morning, with a loss of $25,000, covered by insurance, was momentous chiefly because of its location in the very heart of the business section of the city. Large manufacturing plants, wholesale houses and warehouses, as well as office buildings, surround the burned building and many almost touch it.

The blaze got a good start before fire apparatus arrived. When "three sixes" were sounded, however, eleven engine companies and three trucks were rushed to the scene, and overcame the flames after a hard fight of an hour. Frozen water plugs delayed the firemen for a time, and apparatus from Fulton did not get into action until the fire was almost out, due to the snow in the streets.

Novel Lid Supplied by Mason, Ehrman & Company

Mason, Ehrman & Company, Portland, Ore., are having quite a success with their big-sized four for a quarter "Carabana Smoker." Each dealer featuring the brand is furnished with a glass lid fastened to a metal strip bearing the name and price of the cigar.

Success Attends Cayey-Caguas "Mango"

A LONG filler cigar, composed of tobacco grown and ripened in Porto Rico, is the "Mango," the new five-cent brand recently placed on the market by the well-known Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company. The "Mango," which is made in several sizes, is regarded by Cayey-Caguas to be a "Peach of the Tropics" both in name and in quality, and they state that they are of the opinion that no better cigar for the money may be had by the smoker. The "Victorias" size of this new brand is having quite a demand out in the Detroit section, taken care of by Claude E. Howell, while Franklin MacVeagh & Company are reporting splendid business on the "Brevas" size in the Chicago district. Yahn & McDonnell, of Philadelphia, have also taken on the "Mango," featuring the "Pan Extra."

"El Consuleos" Boosted With Free Humidors

On and after March 16th, a fumed oak humidor, valued at three dollars, will be given by the Surbrug store, 204 Broadway, with every five-dollar purchase of "El Consuleo" cigars, this being their leading clear Havana brand. This announcement was sent out to its friends and patrons by the store and stated that orders could be filled as early as March 11th, though the actual sale would not start until the 16th.

P. Lorillard Company Leases Executive Offices

The P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, with headquarters at Jersey City, N. J., has just recently leased space in the Lewisohn Building, on the north side of Fortieth Street, between Broadway and Sixth Avenue, which is to be utilized for executive offices of the company. The lease, which has been taken for a long term of years, calls for a rental of $300,000.

Goetze & Company Occupy New Quarters

John H. Goetze & Company, the well-known New York importers of Sumatra and Java tobaccos, are now installed in their new offices and sample room at 203 Pearl Street, just a door north of Maiden Lane. A trip to Amsterdam in the fore part of April is contemplated by Mr. Goetze.

Leo Rieders With P. Pohalski & Company

Having recently severed his connections with H. Ottenberg & Company, Leo Rieders, the well-known secretary of the Independent Tobacco Salesmen's Association, is now connected with P. Pohalski & Company, manufacturers of the famous "First Consul" cigar. Mr. Rieders will represent Lincoln Brothers in Greater New York.

Liggett & Myers Open New Premium Store

Arrangements have been completed for the opening in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., of a premium store for the redemption of Liggett & Myers coupons. This department will be established at the Field cigar store, on Ashmun Street. This is the third to be established by the firm in the State, the other two being at Grand Rapids and Detroit.

Heard on Broadway

"Nacionales," the newest Por Larranaga product, is meeting with quite a bit of success these days, according to J. V. Flanigan, United States representative of the Por Larranaga factory.

Menko Rose, of the New York importing and packing firm of Rose & Wobbe, with offices at 158 Water Street, on March 11th last, celebrated the twenty-eighth anniversary of his entrance into the cigar leaf tobacco trade.

According to a report received from Morris J. Levi, from Cayey, Porto Rico, of the well-known Levi-Kaften Company, arrangements have been practically completed with Rucabado & Company to manufacture cigars for Mr. Levi's company. Mr. Levi, who has been at Cayey for the past few weeks, left for New York within the past week.

Packer Brothers, wholesale jobbers, announce to the trade that they are now ready to do business at their quarters, 328 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, which, as is well known, is in the busy Harlem section. The brands of S. Monday & Sons, Brooklyn, are being featured by Messrs. Packer Brothers, and from past endeavors of these gentlemen, it is safe to predict that the jobbing end will meet with a full measure of success.

Albert Falk, president of the Falk Tobacco Company, of Richmond, returned to New York headquarters a few days ago after a visit to the factory. He says that they are doing big things with their "Herbert Tareyton" smoking tobacco and with the "Tareyton" cigarettes as well.

Leslie Pantin Going Abroad

Leslie Pantin, the prominent Havana commission merchant, who is credited with shipping a large percentage of all the Havana cigars which come into the United States from Cuba, arrived in New York on the 12th instant, and will sail on Tuesday for a vacation trip abroad on the steamship "Caronia."

Mr. Pantin is accompanied by his wife and his son and two daughters. They will land at Gibraltar and journey through Spain and into Portugal, which latter country Mr. Pantin represents as Consul-General in Cuba. He expects to be gone for about three months.

Cigars Denied Free Entry

NEW YORK, March 10, 1914.

The Board of United States General Appraisers today upheld the legality of revised customs regulations dealing with the importation of cigars from the Philippine Islands, when it was decided that single entries of less than 3000 cigars cannot obtain duty exemption. The J. B. Moss Company, of Cincinnati, imported 705 cigars from the islands which were denied free entry.

Yahn & McDonnell Stock "Charles the Great"

AN important addition has been made to the varied lines handled by Yahn & McDonnell in Philadelphia in taking on the long-established brand of "Charles the Great," made by Salvador Rodriguez, which they are now showing in six sizes.

This brand has been for a number of years a prime favorite among many select Philadelphia smokers of the old school, who want good cigars and knew that such goods cost money. The Salvador Rodriguez factory has never lowered its quality standard in a single instance and as a consequence they never attempted to compete with cheap goods sold under the name of clear Havana. In taking on this line Yahn & McDonnell have added decided strength to their clear Havana assortment.

Baum Brothers' Business Growing

With the increasing of their facilities for the manufacture of "A. J. Cassatt," "Little Cassatt" and "Coiner" brands, Baum Brothers call attention to the fact that they are making better cigars than ever before in their history. The process of sweating tobacco has been much improved upon by the installation of a sweatroom humidifier (Elmer H. Hope & Company), and the additional efforts put forth of the cigars now manufactured are bringing them up to a high standard.

For the past months the factory output has been oversold, but these orders are now being filled to date and again the firm is able to work on new accounts. Nathan Baum has recently returned from a trip as far West as Omaha, Neb., and brought back with him an order book well filled with new accounts, as well as many duplications on old business.

The City Cigar Store (Ostrow's), at Seventh and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia, has a fine display on "La Verdad," made by Simon Batt & Company. They are running a special sale on this cigar for a few days and report that the window display has resulted in a considerable increase on the brand.

The cigar departments of the Finley Acker Company stores have received their allotment of a recent shipment of "Monte Cristo" cigars, manufactured by P. Pohlaski & Company, 466 Broome Street, New York City.

J. Durbin Acker, at the Twelfth and Chestnut Streets store, has an attractive display of these goods in his department, and finds considerable satisfaction in the manner in which repeat and box orders have increased and duplicated.

Philadelphia Notes

C. W. Saunders, Eastern sales manager for the Cortez Cigar Company, Key West, Fla., spent a few days in Philadelphia last week, selling "Cortez" cigars.

R. D. Shelp, of Lincoln & Ulmer, 75 Water Street, New York City, was in Philadelphia, and reported a successful trip throughout the Middle West on "La Modina" and "Rodina" cigars.

Sig. Mayer, who has recently been on an extended trip through the West, introducing "Rey Oma" Ponies, and other of his well-known brands, returned on Monday to the home office. He reports a good trip.

A. Gumpert, of Gumpert Brothers, manufacturers of "Full Weight" and "Pure Gold" cigars, is now calling on the trade in the Middle West. He is expected home about April 1st.

J. B. Annis, representing the American West Indies Sales Company, 6 Church Street, New York City, closed some attractive business on "La Turina," while in Philadelphia last week. This is a Porto Rico brand of cigars that is meeting with much success among local dealers.

The cigar departments of the Hotel Adelphia are meeting with success in marketing their "Adelphia," manufactured by Berriman Brothers, in their bonded warehouse. The three for fifty cents is proving exceedingly popular, with a fair demand for still higher priced goods.

In the cigarette line, Starr & Reed, "Adelphia," "Pera" and "56" are considerably in the lead.

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Limited, 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, are much gratified with the "repeat" orders which have arrived on their "Statesmen" cigars from the new accounts recently opened by Mr. Jeitles on a recent Western trip.

Throughout the entire Middle West this line of cigars has secured a firm foothold, and jobbers and distributors are placing this line with dealers as a winner in the five-cent market.

Tampa

Gasparillian Echoes Still Linger—Bolano Brands to Be "Made in Bond"—Diaz-Havana Company Incorporated—Liborio Cigar Company Has New Packing Method

TAMPA, March 11, 1914.

THOUGH the mad whirl of gayety is over, and the participants in the carnival have put aside their masks and habiliments of many hues, still the Gasparillan echoes linger, seemingly loath to depart. To this strain met the pirates and their honor guard during the past week and proceeded to re-elect Jack Mahoney captain of Ye Mystic Krewe, and Lieutenants Jesse G. Barkley and Jerome Waterman. Five directors were also re-elected and two additional names were placed on the Board. One of the interesting features of the meeting was the appointing of a committee to look into the matter of the erection of a permanent auditorium in which to hold each year in the future, the Coronation Ball.

While all sections of Tampa were well represented in the Fete, I feel that the palm should be given to our cigar manufacturers, when it is taken into consideration that they were represented by no less than twenty-four floats, the greater number coming from West Tampa, each illustrative of the various cigar factories in our city. Among those appearing were: Y. Pendas & Alvarez, Morgan Cigar Company, Cuesta, Rey & Company, Celestino Vega & Company, San Martin & Leon, Samuel I. Davis & Company, A. Santaella y Ca, L. Sanchez & Company, Boltz, Clymer & Company, J. M. Martinez Company, Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, Balbin Brothers, Erlich Manufacturing Company, Salvador Sanchez y Ca, Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, Andres Diaz & Company, Garcia & Vega, Francisco Bolano & Company, F. Garcia & Brothers, J. W. Roberts & Son, and Val M. Antuono. Representatives from the cigar box factories were D. N. Holloway Cigar Box Factory, and the Sheip-Weidman Company, the latter company's float being particularly novel in that the background was composed principally of cigar box labels. An added feature was the throwing out of cigar boxes all along the line of parade.

Business on "La Megas," V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, is well maintained.

Jorge Leon, of San Martin & Leon, manufacturers of the famous "Flor de San Martin," "Hoyo de Cuba," and "El Briche," is en route for the North, having planned to be away for two months at least.

Edward J. Stachelberg, of Sanchez & Haya Company, reports quite a demand for the well-known "Sanchez-Haya" brand.

Quite a deal of interest attached to the announcement that the famous brands of Francisco Bolano & Company had been taken over by Grommes & Elson, of Chicago, which firm, it will be remembered, was in the manufacturing business in Tampa some six or seven years ago, but which, for some reason or other, they discontinued. It is now stated that that company will continue to manufacture the "Bolano" brands, just as soon as permission is received from the government to "manufacture in bond," application having been made to this effect. In addition to the standard "Bolano" brands, Grommes & Elson will manufacture some of their own. Francisco Bolano is to remain in charge of the newly-acquired plant.

Fred R. Hensley, the genial spirit in charge of the cigar stand of the Hillsboro Hotel, within the past fortnight celebrated the first yearly anniversary of his recovery from a ten weeks' illness.

J. Pendas, manager of Moreda & Company's factory, Key West, was a visitor to this city within the past week, combining pleasure with business.

Another cigar and tobacco company has invaded Tampa in the Diaz-Havana Company, who have incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000. This company, which has succeeded Antonio Fernandez & Gonzalez, will manufacture cigars, cigarettes and other smokers' articles, and it is stated, may deal in real estate, and own or operate factories and cigar stands. Ernest Berger, is president of the new company, with 700 shares of stock; Emilio Pons, first vice-president, 100 shares; Florantino Diaz, second vice-president and treasurer, 100 shares, and Antonio Paz, secretary, 100 shares. These gentlemen will also compose the board of directors pending the election of their successors. The company intends to manufacture in bond and name "Fomento Cubans" and "F. Diaz" as their leading brands. It is expected that the line will be ready in about thirty days.

T. H. Burt, the popular representative of the Reynolds Tobacco Company, recently spent a few days in Tampa.

F. Lozano, of F. Lozano, Son & Company, is now in Cuba, it being his intention to spend a couple of weeks in the islands.

Quite a good bit of amusement has been the result of a recent article appearing in the Key West Morning Journal. It seems that the Key West editor lamented the fact that "the clear Havana business is not what it used to be," stating that Key Westers realized this fact just as much as did Tampa. But our Tampa editor resents such a statement, as was shown by his reply to the editor of the Key West journal, in which he said that "the idea is strictly local, and is not to be entertained by any others than those who live in that city."

Corral, Wodiska & Company have practically completed the addition to their factory, and just as soon as skilled cigar operators can be secured, work will begin.

Celestino, Vega & Company are very well satisfied with the prospects for the present year and look forward with much optimism to the future. They are now occupying their new addition, having workmen at all the benches. It is needless to say that "La Venga" will receive a fresh impetus when it comes to sales on this famous brand.

Rock Marsicano recently returned from a two weeks' trip to points in the middle part of the State in the interests of the O-K Cigar Company.

Quite a departure in the marketing of Tampa cigars is that which has been adopted by the Liborio Cigar Company, located at Thirty-second Street and Third Avenue, whose intention it is to manufacture Spanish hand-made cigars of Havana tobacco, each cigar to be packed in individual cardboard carton. Fifty cartons will constitute a box, this method of packing, it is stated, being a guarantee that the cigar has not been handled. It will also assist in the keeping of the cigar moist and sanitary, and will enable the smoker to carry the cigar in his pocket without fear of breaking or bruising the same. A patent has been applied for relative to the new method of packing. Dr. J. R. Avellanal, well known in Tampa, is interested in the new factory and believes that a cigar of Havana tobacco, in its individual package, selling at fifteen cents, will find a market all its own. A reward of $1000 is offered by the company for proof that Havana tobacco is not used exclusively in its factory. This notation appears on each separate carton. The company's brand will be the "Liborio."

Manchester Company Making "Synoras"

THE Manchester Cigar Company, of 38 South Frederick Street, Baltimore, Md., have recently bought out the Steppacher Cigar Company, of that city, and have within the past month put out their own manufacture of the well-known "El Synora" brand, which Steppachers formerly made. Mr. Paris, head of the company, says that the new goods met with a cordial reception and are fine running mates for their well-established "Havana Cadets."

The Manchester Company's business has steadily expanded since they occupied their present new factory last October.

Frank J. Moehringer Bankrupt

Frank J. Moehringer, cigar salesman of Amsterdam, N. Y., filed petition in bankruptcy in Utica, N. Y., listing liabilities at $3248, with no assets. F. B. Richards & Company, of Binghamton, N. Y., one of the heaviest creditors of the bankrupt cigar salesman, holds debt against Moehringer of $1957. The El Draco Cigar Company, of Philadelphia, Pa., is creditor for about $1000, the latter in part for money advanced on commissions.

Cigar and Tobacco Houses Change Owners

Two large cigar and tobacco houses in Penn Yan, N. Y., changed hands during the past two weeks, the McLeod Tobacco House, the oldest and undoubtedly the largest tobacco house in the southern section of New York State, and the John Birmingham cigar factory and store. Glenn Horto and Dr. J. M. Ward purchased the McLeod Tobacco House, and Mr. Horton will manage the tobacco business. William Bird bought the Birmingham plant, as Mr. Birmingham is now employed in the State Agricultural Department, and was unable to be in Penn Yan to conduct his business.

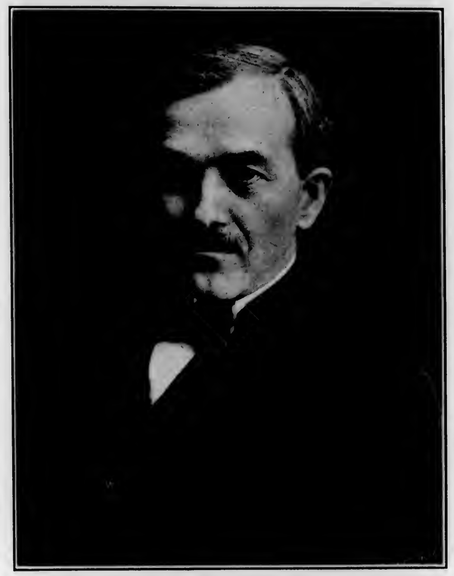
MEN WHO MADE GOOD

SIDELIGHTS ON INTERESTING TRADE PERSONALITIES

NEW men stand higher or are better known in the cigar trade of Chicago than John J. Dolan. He has had a remarkable career, rising from a poor farmer boy, come to the city to make his fortune, to the owner of fourteen large retail cigar stores in the loop district, many of which are on the best corners to be found in the city. In addition to his cigar stores, with an established trade, some of which dates from the old days following the great fire, he holds options on certain other desirable locations, and has business backing and connections which make him one of the leading business men of the city in his line. He has made good in every sense of the word.



John J. Dolan

John J. Dolan can be found in his large store at the corner of Washington and Dearborn Streets almost any hour of the day. This store is by no means his principal store, but as it is the "old place," being the one which he first established, it stands first in his heart, and for that reason serves as his headquarters when he is downtown.

To look at John J. Dolan the chance observer would see nothing remarkable. He looks much like the average prosperous business man. He dresses well, but not fastidiously, in neat blue serge, with black shoes, and a black overcoat, silk-lined, with a velvet collar. The average clerk could dress as well without straining his income. When it comes to Mr. Dolan's physiognomy, however, the observer will detect some things which will cause him to look twice. In that firm chin, bright eyes and brow slightly wrinkled show the intrinsic qualities which make him different from other men. The close-cropped iron gray mustache helps the general effect. Few indeed, however, are the signs which would lead to a correct guess of his age at fifty-two years. He looks younger. The iron in his character and in the strong body which he brought with him from his rural birth-place have stood well the wear and tear which the city exacts as the price of success.

John J. Dolan came to Chicago from Marshall, Michigan, when he was eighteen years old. That was thirty-four years ago. When he began he had nothing but a few hundred dollars which he had saved from his wages, and his nerve. From his point of vantage as clerk under the famous Colonel Schaffner, at the cigar stand in the Grand Pacific Hotel, he looked around over the fast-growing city, rising like a Phoenix from the ashes of the great fire of 1871. He looked and he thought, and the more he looked the more he thought. He became convinced at last that the opportunities for establishing a successful retail cigar business, expressed by stores on the principal corners of the loop district, were attractive enough to diminish the chances of failure. He accordingly assembled what little capital he had saved and on the strength of this and the confidence which he inspired in the breasts of other business men, he borrowed enough to make a start in a little one-story building at the corner of Washington and Dearborn Streets. From the first his business grew. He found that when customers were treated right they returned, and little by little, through the pursuance of intelligent business methods, he built up a business which soon melted his indebtedness like snow in June. In a short time he was securing options on other corners in the loop district, and it is safe to say that if other interests had not seen the advantage of establishing retail stores on the remainder of the corners he would have secured options on these also, for John J. Dolan is almost as sharp a real estate man as he is a cigar dealer.

"From the days beginning way back in '79," said Mr. Dolan, "when I was working with Colonel Schaffner in the Grand Pacific Hotel, I have made it one of my rules to treat a customer as though I had no other thought in the world than to see that he got what he wanted in the cigar line and paid no more than it was worth. I have never had reason to change this early policy, and I attribute much of my success to the confidence which this policy has inspired in my customers. I have won in the keen competition in the retail cigar business here because my customers come back where those of some of my competitors do not. I have done nothing remarkable. I have simply worked. I believe that any man of average business acumen, getting in on the ground floor here in Chicago, when the city was taking a new impetus following the fire, could have accomplished what I have. Strict attention to business is what has won the game for me, and you can tell them that, in those very words."

To hear John J. Dolan talk is a treat. He has formed the habit, on his own admission, of talking in a slow fash-

Business Conditions in the Trade Good—Smoking Ordinance Turned Down in Councils—Some Parents Object to Sons Getting "Cigarette Cure"

CHICAGO, ILL., March 11.

WHILE the cigar and tobacco trade here has been a little quiet during the past week, the volume of business transacted has been large enough to cause satisfaction in all branches. General trade is good and the usual number of high-priced cigars have been consumed in the fashionable restaurants and clubs. Collections have been good. Leaf men say that road conditions in the Central West are all that could be desired. Retailers declare that the mild weather of the last few days has brought out the crowds. In the loop district thousands of cigars and cigarettes are sold in a few minutes every day during the noon lunch hour. When the weather is favorable the clerks and office men "walk around the block" and take a smoke. While this is a small matter in itself, nevertheless in the aggregate the custom adds thousands of dollars every year to the amount of money which is spent for cigars and cigarettes.

Following a long wrangle the question of smoking in the street cars seems to have been settled at last, in a manner favorable to the tobacco interests. The bill forbidding smoking in the cars has been politely but firmly turned down in a committee of the City Councils. While the committee did not definitely report the proposed ordinance dead, the members recommended a number of amendments, or "jokers" as the opposition says, which would render the measure worthless in operation. One of these was a limitation of the proposed ordinance to apply to the winter months only, which would mean that it would never be enforced. The opposition, which is championed by a local newspaper which fears to tackle any problem of real importance, has now taken the stand that the defeat of the measure is due to the influence of the tobacco interests with certain "low-brow" members of the Council. While it is true that a number of prominent cigar and tobacco men spoke against the measure before the Council, as reported in a previous issue of THE TOBACCO WORLD, it is also a fact that they protested purely on the ground that the ordinance would be a violation of personal liberty, and as such ought to be defeated.

"Buck" Scanlon, cigar man and one of Chicago's most famous sporting celebrities, is dead. He had been manager of the cigar department of Bartelt & Raap, on the west side for eleven years. Twenty years ago he was manager of the famous Bachellor's Cafe at South State Street and Peck Court. The body was shipped to Rochester, N. Y., for burial.

Rumors are current that an investigation will be made as to the sanity of Miss Lucy Page-Gaston, superintendent and founder of the Anti-Cigarette League. Miss Gaston's latest move is to establish a clinic where she attempts to treat small boys for the cigarette habit. She hopes to have the assistance of several juvenile court judges, who will send her victims. The treatment consists of a mouth wash, constituted for the most part of nitrate of silver, a dangerous mineral. The treatment is supposed to cause a complete nausea for the weed in any form. When the patient is beset with the craving for a smoke, he is given a gentian root to chew. Parents of several boys who have been "treated" against their will are up in arms, it is said, and have raised the question as to Miss Gaston's mental balance.

The cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Co. is in a rather torn up condition, owing to the fact that they are preparing to move out in order to make room for the cigar department of Franklin MacVeagh & Co., which will occupy the quarters in the old home of the company about the middle of the month. The new home of Reid, Murdock & Co., across the river, is almost complete, so that the cigar department will be inconvenienced only a short time. The external appearance of the new building is even better than was expected, and the cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Co. can well be proud of the new home.

Weiss & Berger have bought the cigar stand which was started by M. F. Rothschild & Co. a short time ago in the Webster Building.

John Suhofer, a cigarmaker, was found dead last week in his room on the north side. His room was filled with gas, which was escaping from an open jet. Whether the case was an accident or a suicide has not yet been determined. Suhofer was well-known in manufacturing circles in the city, as he has worked in a number of factories.

Michael Schenokes, a cigar manufacturer at 3213 Auburn Avenue, won fame and criticism of various kinds last week when he caused the arrest of an employee whom he accuses of having stolen four cigars from him. The question which is being asked in the trade here is how far a young man can go in "mooching" smokes or "cripples" off the boss. When does the "mooching" cease and the thieving begin? That is the question.

Because he refused to light a cigar they stole from him, Michael Carrol, of Yonkers, N. Y., reported to the police that two armed robbers beat him soundly over the head. He was on his way home late at night. The two men approached him and after thrusting guns in his face, took five dollars from his pocket. Further search resulted in the discovery of the cigar. One of the bandits placed it in his mouth and, having both hands occupied, demanded that Carrol light the weed for him. This was too much, and the victim rebelled. He is now in the hospital recovering from his trouncing.

Tom Kingsbury, of the Tulsa Indian Trading Company, of Tulsa, Okla., has returned home from a trip to Kansas City, Chicago and St. Louis. He placed orders for factory shipments of "Cuesta-Rey" and "El Sidelo" cigars.

The new Cuban "Ben Bey," of Grommes & Elson, is having a phenomenal sale without being featured at very many stands. The sheer merit of this smoke is winning its way to the front.

Victor H. Paraski, an employee of the county, was dismissed recently on the charge made by the Bureau of Public Efficiency, that he was calling on the cigar trade for a local house during the hours when he was supposed to be giving his services to the county. He has been reinstated, however, following a statement by the firm that he stopped working for them some time ago.

Cigar Box Factory for Jacksonville

Officers of the Besser Patent Box Company recently paid a visit to Tampa, Fla., to inspect cigar box machinery in plants in that city. They desire to become acquainted with the manufacture of cigar boxes and it is understood that they intend to erect a plant in Jacksonville that will cost $25,000.

During the past week the American Cigar Company broke ground for their new four-story building, to be located at the corner of Passaic Street and River Road, Garfield, N. J. The new building is to cost $75,000.

Bradley & Newman, Knoxville, Tenn., distributors for the "44" cigar in that territory, are much elated over the success attending the sales of this very popular five-cent brand, business having increased wonderfully during the past few weeks.

Men Who Made Good

ion, with a slight hesitation after each word. Nothing excites him. Each sentence is planned and considered before it passes from his lips. Whether this is the caution born of long years of experience, or whether it is just a survival of the Michigan drawl is not known, but anyway, when John J. Dolan talks there is something in his manner of speech that makes you say to yourself, "a wise man has spoken well." He convinces by the exactness with which he weighs each word.

Mr. Dolan lives at 19 Chalmers Place, on the north side, in one of the most exclusive residence districts in the city. However, it does not follow from this that he is exclusive, for he is not. He is common as an old shoe. He lives there because it is nice for his family. He would do anything for his family. When asked what his hobby might be he replied without more than the usual hesitation, "getting home in the evening to my family like the devil was after me." He belongs to the Chicago Real Estate Board, Cook County Real Estate Board, Press Club of Chicago (life member); Knights of Columbus, and the Michigan Society of Chicago.

In a business way the stores of Mr. Dolan are models of how a cigar store should be conducted and out-of-town retailers who chance to visit Chicago should drop into the "old place" at the corner of Washington and Dearborn Streets and take a look. If John J. is there he will be glad to explain the fine points of the retail business as he has figured them out, even down to the psychology of spelling "cigars" "seegars," as the word appears on all windows and signs connected with the Dolan stores. The leaders of the stores operated by John J. Dolan are "Henry Irving," "Baron De Kalb," "De Luxe," "Cuesta Rey," "Maravilla," "Partagas," "Montereys" and "Romeos." In addition to his large retail business, Mr. Dolan does some jobbing business, but he has never pushed this end. If he had he would have made money, for everything this financier of the retail cigar business in Chicago pushes is a boomerang which flies back to him in the form of profits.

This Display Made New Friends for the "Lovera"

Ike Wentworth, the genial representative for the Lovera Company in California, gave the patrons of the Owl Drug Store, at Seventh and Hill Streets, Los Angeles, something to talk about after he had dressed the window as shown in the accompanying illustration.

It is needless to say that many new customers were won for the "Lovera" by this tempting display.

"Lovera" cigars are now "made in bond," and this additional guarantee of quality has increased the home office orders tremendously.

New Jobbing House for Los Angeles

MUSSATTI, for the past year and more one of the ablest of the salesmen of the Klauber-Wangenheim Company, of Los Angeles, has decided to enter into the wholesale line. He will take with him as a partner, Mr. Boggio, a well-known merchant who is taking his first venture into the cigar field. Mr. Mussatti is very versatile, speaking seven languages fluently, and has a record in the trade that speaks for him everywhere.

This new jobbing house, which will be known as the Mussatti-Boggio Company, has taken over the well-known "Reynaldo" line, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia. This cigar is made in fifty-two sizes and stands high in the estimation of smokers of high-grade cigars.

New Jobbing House for Detroit

The Michigan Tobacco Company, capitalized at $10,000, has recently been organized in Detroit and will conduct a general wholesale business in cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos, and will be Michigan distributors for William Tegge & Company, manufacturers of cigars.

The company will be located for the present at 261 Cass Avenue. Edwin F. Wilkinson, prominent in the steel manufacturing business and formerly of Columbus, O., is president. Robert Smith, formerly with John T. Woodhouse & Company, has been made secretary and treasurer and general manager.

We wonder what Dr. Osler would say if we were to tell him that Abram Hershour, who lives near Wrightsville, Pa., and who claims ninety years, helped his son Abraham this winter to strip a seven-acre tobacco crop. This, in addition to other chores about his home.

The witness said that the coupon business amounts to about $100,000,000 annually, of which the United Cigar Stores Company spends about $2,000,000, and the tobacco manufacturers spend $5,000,000. Mr. Stroock asserted that the coupon business benefits the lithographer and other trades, which furnish premiums. He characterized it as a method of advertising and the only form of advertising in which the consumer directly benefits.

Mr. Stroock said that the goods manufactured by one hundred and seventy-four independent manufacturers are handled by the United Cigar Stores Company, and that his company purchases annually about $4,700,000 worth of goods from the independent manufacturers out of a total annual purchase of $22,000,000. In other words, he said, the United purchases about twenty-three per cent. of its goods from the independent manufacturers. Inasmuch as the output of what are called the trust manufacturers is eighty-five per cent. of the total output of the country, said Mr. Stroock, it would appear that the United Cigar Stores Company sells a larger percentage of independent goods than do the so-called independent retailers.

Mr. Yerkes, on behalf of the independent manufacturers, suggested to the committee that the Underwood bill be modified by inserting the following for the taxing section of the measure:

"That there shall be levied, collected and paid by adhesive stamps, a tax of two cents for and upon every article or thing of value given by a retail dealer at the time of sale, or thereafter, with tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, little cigars or snuff, and said stamps to be attached or affixed by said dealer to said tobacco, cigars, cigarettes or snuff, and this tax to be levied, collected and paid at the following rates, according to the quantity of each sale, to wit: Two cents for each two ounces, or fraction thereof, of tobacco or snuff sold; two cents for each sale of ten cigarettes, or ten little cigars, or five cigars, or fraction thereof, and at the same rate for a sale or sales in larger quantities or numbers of tobacco, snuff, cigars, cigarettes or little cigars."

Among those who registered their appearance at the hearing in favor of the bill were Representative L. W. Mott, of New York; E. C. Berriman and Isaac Lipson, of Chicago, representing the Retail Cigar Dealers' Association of San Francisco, the Western Association of Retail Cigar Dealers of Tacoma, Wash., the Retail Dealers' Association of Chicago, Berriman Brothers, of Tampa, Fla., the Retail Merchants Association of Salt Lake City, Utah, the Manufacturers and Dealers Association of Chicago, the Tampa Merchants Association of Tampa, Fla., the Havana Cigar Manufacturers Association of Tampa, Fla., the Retail Cigar Dealers Association of Bellingham, Wash., the Retail Cigar Dealers Association of North Yakima, Wash., and the Alameda County Retail Cigar Dealers Association of Oakland, Cal.; Rawlins D. Best, of Covington, Ky., representing the Lowell Buffington Tobacco Company; Charles Dushkind, of New York City, representing the Independent Retail Tobacco Association of America; and Oscar S. Veit, representing the Independent Tobacco Salesmen.

Among those who registered their appearance in opposition to the proposed law were Louis H. Whalen, of Rochester, N. Y., of R. Whalen & Company; Thomas P. Littlepage, representing Bloch Brothers Tobacco Company, of Wheeling, W. Va.; Thomas W. Pelham, of Boston, Mass., representing the Gillette Safety Razor Company; William A. Coakley, representing the lithographers; and Henry Weigan, of the Weigan Tobacco Company.

March 4, 1914.

Hon. Oscar W. Underwood,
House of Representatives,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

As cigar manufacturers, with an annual production of over 180,000,000 cigars, we take the liberty of addressing you upon the subject of the Anti Coupon Measure now before your committee (to levy taxes on the issuance of coupons, price tickets, etc.) to say that we consider that the enactment of such a bill would be greatly to the advantage of the tobacco trade generally, as the issuing of coupons can be done successfully only by very large business concerns, and this is seriously to the detriment of dealers who cannot meet such competition.

Aside from this, we are confident that a great many consumers regard the quality and merits of the article purchased as of secondary consideration in their eagerness to obtain the coupon, which brings about an unhealthy business condition. If the coupon were eliminated, the various brands of cigars would be passed upon by the consumer strictly upon the basis of price and quality, which, undoubtedly, would have a tendency to encourage a raising of the standard of quality, and the consumer, in this way, would have the benefit of the better value in the article itself, in place of practically buying the premium in conjunction with the cigar.

Very truly yours,

Otto Eisenlohr & Bros.

Extracts from the letter written by Bobrow Brothers to Representative Underwood:

"Amongst the several thousand dealers in cigars and tobacco in this city there are numbers of small stores conducted by widows, men with families whose visible means of support, aside from their little stores, has been taken away from them through illness or accident, and they are endeavoring every day to work out a livelihood from the cigar and tobacco business. The few penny profit they may have they are called upon to sacrifice if they are to meet the competition of the monster concern, who offers the coupon as an inducement to the consumer; for the consumer can purchase, when taking into consideration the value of the coupon, the same brand of article from one of the large so-called trust stores at the same price these smaller dealers are compelled to pay the self same so-called trust. We are quoting this in a general way, as we presume the general impression is that there is no connection between the two factors we are alluding to, but that is mere presumption. In our own business in the sale of cigars, where the large combined stores, or chain stores, as they are termed, sell our goods at the same price as little stores are compelled to sell them, but give this coupon with a cash value, which the little store cannot afford to give, thus creating an unfair competition."

* * *

"From any standpoint, from a consumer to the independent dealer, to the independent manufacturer, the coupon is an evil, and unfair competitor and a general disruption of fair competitive means of conducting a legitimate business."

* * *

"We sincerely trust that you can safely carry it through the House and that it will safely pass the Senate and become a law in the shortest possible time."

Yours very respectfully,

Bobrow Bros.

The important articles of the bill follow:

A BILL

To levy a tax upon the issuance of coupons, prize tickets, and other devices, and on the redemption, payment, purchase, or exchange of coupons, prize tickets, tags, bands, or other articles, things, or parts of articles or things that shall have been attached to, or packed in or with, or formed a part of, or encircling, or given with any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, cigarette or cigarettes, or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof, and to forbid the packing of other things into packages of tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, or snuff.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That there shall be levied, collected, and paid by adhesive stamps, a tax of 2 cents for and upon every coupon, prize ticket, or other device, attached to, packed in or with, or forming a part of, or encircling, or given with or accompanying any sale of any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, little cigar or little cigars, cigarette or cigarettes, or snuff, or any stamped package or receptacle thereof, if any such coupon, prize ticket, or other device, contains any direct or indirect promise, or proposition, or offer, to make redemption or payment in cash therefor, or for any number of same, or to exchange property therefor, or for any number of same, whether such redemption, payment, or exchange, is made or is to be made by a manufacturer of, or dealer in, such tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, or snuff, or any other person, firm, or corporation.

Sec. 2. That on and after the first day of September nineteen hundred and fourteen, there shall be levied, collected, and paid, by adhesive stamps, a tax of 2 cents for, and upon redemption, payment, purchase, or exchange of, any coupon, prize ticket, tag, band, or any other article, thing, or part of an article or thing, which before being offered for such redemption or purchase shall have been attached to, packed in or with, or formed a part of, or encircled, or given with, or accompanied any sale of any manufactured tobacco, cigar or cigars, little cigar or little cigars, cigarette or cigarettes, or snuff, or stamped package or receptacle thereof.

Sec. 3. That coupons, prize tickets, and other things mentioned in the first section of this Act, stamped in accordance with the provisions thereof, notwithstanding anything contained in the second section hereof, upon being offered for redemption or sale shall not be required to pay said tax, but all coupons, prize tickets, and other things mentioned in said first and second sections hereof, not stamped when issued by the manufacturer, merchant, or other person, firm, or corporation issuing same, shall, if presented for redemption on and after the said first day of September, nineteen hundred and fourteen, be stamped as provided in said section second hereof by the person, firm, or corporation presenting the same for redemption, purchase, or exchange.

Sec. 6. That if any person shall forge or counterfeit, or cause or procure to be forged or counterfeited, any stamp, die, or other instrument, or any part of any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, which shall have been provided, or may hereafter be provided, made, or used in pursuance of the provisions of this Act or any previous provisions of law on the same subject, or shall forge, counterfeit, or resemble, or cause or procure to be forged, counterfeited, or resembled, the impression, or any part of the impression, of any such stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, as aforesaid, upon any paper, or shall stamp or mark, or cause or procure to be stamped or marked, any paper with such forged or counterfeit stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, or part of any stamp, die, plate or other instrument as aforesaid, with intent to defraud the United States of any of the taxes hereby imposed, or any part thereof, or if any person shall offer, or sell, or expose to sale, any paper, article, or thing, having thereon the impression of any such counterfeited stamp, die, plate, or other instrument or any part of any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, or any such forged, counterfeited, or resembled impression, or any part of any impression, as aforesaid, knowing the same to be forged, counterfeited, or resembled; or if any person shall knowingly use, or permit the use of, any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument, which shall have been so provided, made, or used, as aforesaid, with intent to defraud the United States; or if any person shall fraudulently cut, tear, or remove, or cause or procure to be cut, torn, or removed, the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument which shall have been provided, made, or used in pursuance of this Act or of any previous provisions of law on the same subject from any paper or any instrument or writing charged or chargeable with any of the taxes imposed by law; or if any person shall fraudulently use, join, fix, or place, or cause to be used, joined, fixed, or placed to, with, or upon any paper or any instrument or writing charged or chargeable with any of the taxes hereby imposed any adhesive stamp, or the impression of any stamp, die, plate, or other instrument which shall have been provided, made, or used in pursuance of law, and which shall have been cut, torn, or removed from any other paper or any instrument or writing charged or chargeable with any of the taxes imposed by law; or if any person shall willfully remove, or cause to be removed, alter, or cause to be altered, the canceling or defacing marks on any adhesive stamp with the intent to use the stamp, or to cause the use of same after it shall have been once used, or shall knowingly or willfully sell or buy such washed or restored stamps, or offer the same for sale, or to give or expose the same to any person for use, or knowingly use the same, or prepare the same with intent for the further use thereof; or if any person shall knowingly and without lawful excuse, the proof whereof shall lie on the person accused, have in his possession any washed, restored, or altered stamps which have been removed from any article, paper, instrument, or writing, then, and in every case, every person so offending, and every person knowingly and willfully aiding, abetting, or assisting in committing any such offense, as aforesaid, shall, on conviction thereof, forfeit the said counterfeit, washed, restored, or altered stamps and the articles upon which they are placed and be punished by a fine not exceeding $1000, or by imprisonment and confinement to hard labor not exceeding five years, or both, at the discretion of the court. And the fact that any adhesive stamp be bought, sold, offered for sale, used, or had in possession, as aforesaid, has been washed or restored by removing or altering the canceling or defacing mark thereon, shall be prima facie evidence that the stamp has been once used and removed by the possessor thereof from some paper, instrument, or writing charged or chargeable with taxes imposed by law in violation of the provisions of this section.

Sec. 8. That whenever any person, firm, or corporation violates any of the provisions of section one, section two, or section three hereof by the issuance of any coupon, prize ticket, or other device, as provided for in section one, without attaching thereto any adhesive stamp denoting the tax before mentioned, or after the first day of September nineteen hundred and fourteen, presents for redemption, sale, or exchange, or redeems, purchases, or gives property in exchange for any coupon, prize ticket, tag, band, or any other article or thing, as provided in section two hereof, without affixing thereto an adhesive stamp denoting the tax herein provided for, or violates any of the provisions of section seven hereof, such person, firm or corporation shall, upon conviction thereof, be punished by a fine of $50 for every failure to affix such stamp or stamps.

STATEMENT OF LIGGETT & MYERS SHOWS SHRINKAGE IN PROFITS DURING PAST YEAR

Extra Dividend Announced—Company Proposes to Issue $7,376,100 Additional Preferred Stock—Stockholders May Subscribe on a Basis of One New Share for Every Five Now Held—Earnings on Common Stock Only 25.04 This Year

AT the annual meeting of the Liggett & Myers Company the report of the operations for 1913 was read, showing total profits of $8,308,666, a decrease of $709,455. The company earned 25.04 per cent. on the common stock, against 28 3/10 per cent. in the preceding year. It was announced that a special meeting will be called to authorize an issue of $7,376,100 additional seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock. Stockholders will have the privilege of subscribing to the new stock in cash at par in the proportion of one share of new preferred stock for each five shares of stock, whether preferred or common, now held by them.

Net profit from oper.	$7,860,985 —	$914,207
Divs. from subsid. cos.	447,681 +	5,181
Total profits	$8,308,666 —	$719,026
Surplus after charges	6,459,731 —	709,455
Preferred dividends	1,076,866	Unchanged
Balance	$5,382,865 —	$709,455
Common dividends	3,439,424 +	2,794,532
Balance	$1,943,441 —	$3,503,987
Previous surplus	5,803,050 +	5,447,427
Total surplus	$7,746,491 +	$1,943,440

An extra dividend of four per cent. on the common stock was announced, payable April 1. The retiring directors were re-elected.

President C. C. Dula issued a statement relative to the proposed stock increase. The statement in part follows:

"The cash working capital being inadequate to meet these demands without excessive borrowing, sound business policy requires that it be increased. The directors feel that it would be unjust to the common stockholders to push to an extreme the policy of accumulating these additional resources from earnings which are fairly distributable as dividends upon the common stock, and the only alternative is to procure the necessary money through increased capitalization.

"They have, therefore, decided to recommend to the stockholders an increase in the preferred stock of the company by the issue of $7,376,100 additional seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock, to be issued at such times and in such amounts as the directors determine to be necessary.

"Notwithstanding the conservative policy of the company in the declaration of dividends on the common stock, it still finds its cash resources inadequate for the needs of the business. The amount withheld from net earnings applicable to dividends upon the common stock in the two years of the company's operations is equal to more than one-half of the total amount of the outstanding preferred stock. Even with this addition to its resources, the company has found it necessary to borrow considerable amounts of money with which to make its necessary purchases during the early part of the year, which is the leaf-buying season.

"These purchases necessarily call each year for the investment of large amounts of money, which are released only by degrees, as sales of the manufactured products are made later in the year.

"That the net earnings are not quite so large as in the previous year is due principally to the increased cost of leaf tobacco and the greater activity in the competitive conditions under which the business is carried on. All kinds of leaf tobacco used by this company have materially advanced in price, and a considerable increase in the volume of our business has necessitated the heavy purchases of leaf at this high cost."

Big Fire in Dallastown Factories

DALLASTOWN, PA., March 10, 1914.

Three warehouses and a box factory, together with a large quantity of leaf tobacco, were destroyed this morning in a fire at Dallastown, York County. The loss approximates $75,000, partly covered by insurance. The properties destroyed were the tobacco warehouse and re-sweating house of Knaub & Nees, the lumber warehouse and cigar box factory of Michael Hose and the tobacco warehouse of Hose & Brillhart.

High winds drove the flames and frozen water plugs delayed the firemen to such an extent that for a time the entire town was threatened. With assistance secured from the neighboring borough of Red Lion, the fire, which started at seven o'clock in the morning from a defective flue in the Knaub & Nees resweating house, was brought under control at about ten o'clock.

The heaviest loser is Michael Hose, who, individually, owned the cigar box factory and was associated with Al T. Brillhart in the cigar business, in addition to the scrap and box factory, with all the machinery, the warehouse along Walnut Street contained almost 300 cases of tobacco, some very valuable. Their combined loss is estimated at $65,000, about half of which they think will be covered by insurance. Mr. Nees, of Knaub & Nees, said they had only $200 on the building and $1500 on the stock, and estimates the combined loss outside the insurance at over $3000. No statement was made as to rebuilding by those involved and none will be until the insurance is adjusted, though work may be resumed in the Dallastown factory, which was only damaged to the extent of about $500, in a few days.

E. P. Churchill Files Bankruptcy Petition

Edward P. Churchill, a cigar manufacturer of 168 North Main Street, Springfield, Mass., has filed a petition in bankruptcy in Boston. His debts are scheduled at $807.39, with no assets. There are about a score of unsecured creditors. Among them are: J. U. Fehr & Son, Reading, Pa., $108.66; Mrs. J. H. Hopkins, Ellington, Conn., $150; Reginald Spier, Enfield, Conn., $90.

Petition in Bankruptcy

Arthur O. Bernson, tobacconist, of Main and Snow Streets, Fitchburg, Mass., was petitioned into bankruptcy by creditors in the United States District Court in Boston, on March 4. This action was taken by three creditors of Fitchburg, whose accounts aggregate $4928.91. Their reason for so doing is based upon an alleged statement of Mr. Bernson's that he was unable to pay his debts and that he was willing to be adjudged a bankrupt.

Cigar Dealer in Voluntary Bankruptcy

Herbert C. Harvey has filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy with the clerk of the United States District Court in Knoxville, Tenn. He is a tobacco merchant and lists his assets at $2619.20, represented mainly by his stock on hand of tobacco, cigars, etc. The liabilities, as filed by the petitioner, are $5219.56.

Receiver Named for Cigar Company

H. W. Davis has been named as receiver for the Solla-Carcaba Company, cigar manufacturers of Chicago, Ill. The receiver, following his appointment by Judge Gibbs, of the Circuit Court, took charge of the factory which is closed, and placed an expert accountant on the books.

The appointment of a receivership came about through the application of the firm for a dissolution of partnership.

Notes of the Trade

"El Briche," San Martin & Leon, is being featured by Jacobs Pharmacy, Atlanta, Ga.

"Charles the Great" still holds its own in St. Louis.

"New Bachelors" took quite a jump in Kansas City recently, as the result of the persuasive powers of Oscar Banghart, T. J. Dunn & Company.

"Savaronas" are well liked in Buffalo, if the orders received by H. S. Michael, who recently visited that city, are to be taken as a criterion.

Sales of "San Felice," in Jacksonville, Fla., are much on the increase as the result of the recent boosting of Nick King, of Deisel-Wemmer fame.

Baker Brothers, Boston, Mass., New England jobbers and distributors of the "San Felice" nickel cigars, are kept on the jump, filling orders on this well-known brand of the Deisel-Wemmer Company.

Charles D. Manning, one of the "live wires" of Syracuse, N. Y., and sole local distributor for Bayuk Brothers' famous "Havana Ribbon," reports success on the sale of this brand, each succeeding month witnessing an increase in the sales over those of the month previous.

"Van Dyck" cigars, M. A. Gunst & Company, are being distributed by J. P. Whitwell, St. Paul, Minn. Mr. Whitwell reports a steady sale on the brand.

"Graham Courtney Brevas" are being featured by the Sibley, Lindsay & Curr Company, Rochester, N. Y.

Business on the "Baron de Kalb" and "Segar de Luxe" is still on the increase in Buffalo. Ask John W. Merriam, who visited that city recently.

Quite an increased business has been the result of the display of "Reynaldo" cigars, recently featured by Louis G. Smith, the well-known New York dealer, with headquarters on Beaver Street.

"Savaronas" in Porto Rican goods, and "Cuesta Reys" in clear Havana, are being boosted by Dee McCallum, Oklahoma City, Okla., with quarters at Strain and Harvey Streets. Good business is reported on the brands.

"Hard Times" Without Foundation

That the "hard times" gospel, now being preached so strenuously in New Brunswick, N. J., is not to be taken too seriously, is borne out by the fact that the New Brunswick Cigar Company, that city, has room for 423 girls at its factory on Somerset Street. In a statement to the trade, 400 girls are to be taken on, 100 each week, providing they apply for employment. Just as soon as a girl demonstrates her capability, she will be given an opportunity to earn as much as fifteen and sixteen dollars per week. Nor will she be harassed by a natural slowness, inasmuch as the company will give each employee an ample period in which to become thoroughly familiar with the work being done. Certainly, a policy of this calibre leaves little room for improvement.

Cuesta-Rey Sterilizing Machine Deals Death to Germs

THIS photograph shows the Franklin S. Smith electric sterilizing machine in operation in the Cuesta-Rey factory, in Tampa, Fla. "The truly Spanish House" has introduced this machine in their factory as evidence of their intention to give the smoker not only the best cigar that can be made for the money, but one that can arouse no doubts in the mind of the consumer as to "Cuesta-Rey" cigars being free from any danger of contamination.

After the cigars have been packed, boxed and sealed, they are passed through this machine where the powerful waves of the X-ray deal instant death to germs and insect life.

The machine was installed by Mr. Smith, personally, and the invention is now the property of D. C. Gillet, of Tampa.

This machine was first exploited to the trade in THE TOBACCO WORLD in the issue of February 15, 1910. The original machine is now in operation in the S. R. Moss Cigar Company plant, at Lancaster, Pa.

Cuesta Rey have carefully experimented with the improved machine and are now sterilizing all their cigars with it.

Society Woman Manufactures Cigarettes

Located in a small room in the annex of the select Washington Apartments, Charles Street and Mount Vernon Place, Baltimore, Md., cigarettes are manufactured by Miss Frances Taylor Gilmor, a very prominent society woman of that city. Miss Gilmor, who is the daughter of the late Judge Robert Gilmor, is assisted, or rather directed in her new undertaking by a Russian Jewess, whom Miss Gilmor imported expressly for the office she fills. The plant, which is listed as Factory 13 D, in the Internal Revenue Office, contains no machinery for the manufacture of the cigarettes, which are fashioned by hand. Though in operation about one month, a daily average of from 1500 to 2000 cigarettes of the finest Turkish quality are turned out, and they may be found on the stands of many of the large hotels in Baltimore.

"F. Lozano," the well-known Havana cigar of F. Lozano, Son & Company, has been taken on for distribution by R. H. Tiffany, Syracuse, N. Y.

Mascot Cigar Company Manufacture at Jacksonville

In order to supply the demands of Northern jobbers for Florida cigars, the Mascot Cigar Company, New York, opened a factory in Jacksonville, Fla., within the past week, for the manufacture of strictly high grade cigars. The factory, which is located at Bay and Liberty Streets, will give employment to from fifty to one hundred cigarmakers, many of them having already come from Tampa, experienced and first class in every respect. The company plan to manufacture a Florida cigar that will meet the most exacting requirements of a discriminating clientele.

Old-Time Tobacconist Sells Stand

The cigar store and factory on South Main Street, Phillipsburg, N. J., for forty years conducted by August Schultz, and more recently by his son Frank, has been sold to two of his cigarmakers, Daniel Zeigler and Joseph Pfeiffer. The latter was employed in the Schultz factory for thirty-seven years, and the former for thirty-four years.

Los Angeles

Business Keeping Up to Standard—City Now Getting Mid-summer Weather—Klauber-Wangenheim Company Very Busy—Heavy Call on the Coast for "Havana Ribbons"

LOS ANGELES, CAL., March 6, 1914.

KLAUBER-WANGENHEIM COMPANY have been unusually busy with both city and country business. The order department is moving at full speed at this time. Mr. J. B. Bonhaus, salesman for this firm, is now in the Bakersfield and Oil section of Kern County, and his orders for "Chancellor" cigars from this territory show a decided increase.

Mr. Marx, of Klauber-Wangenheim Company, has just returned from Arizona and New Mexico with a splendid business on "Optimo," "Picadura Import," "Post Dispatch" and "Permits." This firm has been doing a fine business on "Havana Ribbons," a five-cent cigar, which is showing splendid results here. "Pippins" continues to be one of the leaders in this market, and the high quality of this famous brand has been always maintained.

Business and weather conditions are of the best at present and business is continually coming in from the country territory. The exceedingly pleasant weather, which reminds the native Californian of the California summer, is much in evidence at this time.

Haas, Baruch & Company, distributors of the well known "Iris" line of high-grade canned goods, have been identified with the growth of the Southwest for nearly half a century.

This great concern of wholesale grocers and cigars occupies one of the most modern structures in the United States. This company is the outgrowth of the modest partnership formed in 1871 by Jacob Haas, Abraham Haas and Herman W. Hellman. Then Los Angeles was but a village, but it was not long before the business showed signs of remarkable prosperity that pointed to the company's future success.

In 1886 the business, long having outgrown its original quarters, moved to the German block on Los Angeles Street. About this time Mr. Hellman withdrew from the firm to commence his long successful career as a banker, and in the following year Jacob Haas died. Meanwhile Jacob Baruch had entered the business and the present firm name was adopted.

Not quite two years ago Haas, Baruch & Company moved into its present handsome structure at Second and Alameda Streets. Expense was not spared in installing every modern device that makes for cleanliness, sanitation and efficiency in the preparation of pure, wholesome products for the tables of the Southwest. This firm has always been the possessor of a large cigar department and handle many well known and widely distributed brands of cigars, cigarettes and stogies. At the present time Mr. Cameron C. Trau is at the head of this department and is making "good."

W. A. "Bill" Yochem, representing Bayuk Brothers, makers of the "Havana Ribbon" cigar, has been paying a visit to Klauber-Wangenheim Company, distributors of this cigar, for the past week, and expects to be with us about two months longer. He quite surprised himself and Klauber-Wangenheim Company in that he has been making good from his first day here. Klauber-Wangenheim Company were forced to wire the factory for more "Havana Ribbons" by express, for the reason that "Bill" sold out their entire stock during his first few days of work. Even if Yochem does come from the city of Philadelphia, known jocosely hereabouts as the "Sleepy City," he is an exception in that he is as wide-awake as they make 'em. The cigar is getting an excellent distribution by Klauber-Wangenheim Company.

R. W. Davis, of the cigar company of which he is the head, makers of the already famous "Don Remo" cigars, left Los Angeles for San Francisco and will return here about April 18th. He has already arranged to give an elaborate banquet to the cigar sales force of M. A. Newmark & Company for their fine work shown in the distribution of the "Don Remo" cigar. I will give the details of this affair in full at a later date, as I have been graciously extended an invitation to attend.

Geo. Yocum, of Yocum Brothers, manufacturers of the "Y-B" and "Spana Cuba" cigars is one of the most busy fellows in this section tacking signs. All that the eye can see hereabouts is "Y-B" be added that he "never spares a nail," and the signs Yocum tacked up make a lasting impression, for the wind cannot blow them off. These cigars are handled by the Klingenstein Company and are two of the most heavy seed and Havana sellers in this market.

J. J. Gans Brothers are facing a great shortage of "Tom Keene" cigars. There are no goods in sight and orders coming in from everywhere. There appears no relief in sight.

"Copyright," a five-cent cigar, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, is the talk of the town this day. Woodward-Jones-Johnson, distributors for the factory of "Copyright," report a heavy demand for this splendid seller.

Cleveland

New Cigar, the "Tom L."—Orders Piling Up on "La Saramita"—Stores Being Restocked for Spring Trade

CLEVELAND, O., March 11, 1914.

LOCAL trade is opening up with a boom for the spring season; quite a number of stores are being started and the old ones are being remodeled and also restocked.

The Erie Cigar Store, which sustained a total loss by fire several weeks ago, have opened up a new store at 2162 East Ninth Street, and moved the manufacturing plant there and beginning to regain their lost trade.

George B. Scrambling Company reports business as exceedingly good among the brands that they are featuring and which are meeting with unusual success. They are the "Osmondo," "Van Dyke," "Duquesne," "Owls," "Henry George" and "Montoros." Their jobbing business so far this year has run ahead of last and their retail stand is doing very nicely.

Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, has left on a trip through the West, being gone quite awhile, covering the Central and Middle West, on "Decisions," "Rigolettos" and "El Symphonies." His father, who has not been in Cleveland since his recent illness, is here and will remain until Mr. Mendelsohn returns from his trip.

The Snyder Cigar Company has just added "London Whiffs" to their stock, which are manufactured by the London Whiff Cigar Company, and have displayed them in all their windows.

Everett Lausten, who is operating the Euclid Arcade Cigar Store, has discontinued business and is selling out stock and fixtures.

Mr. Mahoney, in charge of the cigar department of the Euclid Arcade bowling alley, reports business as far exceeding their fondest expectations. They have three stands displaying cigars in the pool and billiard hall, one in the bowling alleys and one in the cafe, and they are catering to thousands of people daily.

Cy Falkenberg, who was in charge of their bowling alley, has left for the camp of the Indianapolis Federal League, where he will play this season.

Stace & Vincent are doing immense business in both their Euclid Avenue stands. They have one located opposite Fifty-seventh Street and the other in the Alhambra Building at East 105th Street.

The "Percy Haswell," which has proved a big winner, is one of the best packages on the market, being put up in the entire blue lable with light blue backing, and has met with universal success in all parts of the city.

A new cigar is being put up here and being widely distributed; this is the "Tom L." cigar, is put out with the head of Mayor Tom L. Johnson, and is selling for three cents.

George Bassett reports business as extremely good for this season of the year; his arcade through to the Empire Theatre is drawing large crowds daily and tends to make his business exceedingly good; he is constantly featuring fruit in his window which comes from his land in the Isle of Pines, which makes the natives around here sit up and take notice, as the fruit display is of exceeding size. Mr. Bassett is looking forward to spending his summer vacation on his island property.

W. O. Blasheky, of the Shields Wertheim Company, has just purchased a brand new machine and is expecting thereby to increase their sales and territory on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." Leo Eastern, foreman of the above-mentioned factory, has just recovered from a very serious operation and is again able to take up his duties. Fred P. Shields has just returned from his Eastern trip and brings back many orders for "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." These brands are taking a hold nicely in this section.

Hi Hammer, of Coral y Wodiska Company, was in town the past week putting in some good work on their numerous brands in town here.

Mr. Allen, of the Pyle & Allen Company, is in the East. Everything is going along fine in their retail stores and their wholesale business is coming to the fore by leaps and bounds.

Fred C. Gollmar, of the Fred C. Gollmar Company, reports business is exceedingly good. They are making big runs on their own brands of imported and domestic cigars, also tobaccos and cigarettes, and are giving their trade the best of merchandise obtainable. Among the cigars that they feature are "Somellos," "El Modelos" and "Saramyts."

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 11

The Hamilton Club of Chicago

(This is the eleventh of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

Articles in this series have appeared on the following clubs:

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.
No. 5—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
No. 6—The Chicago Athletic Association.
No. 7—The Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.
No. 8—The Union League Club, Chicago.
No. 9—The Fellowcraft Club, Detroit.
No. 10—University Club, Chicago.

NEW clubs in Chicago are looked upon with more eager eyes by rising young business and professional men than the Hamilton Club. In fact, it would be safe to say that membership in this old and exclusive organization is more coveted than affiliation with any of the other downtown social organizations. Few clubs in the city can boast the honorable traditions which repose in the archives and general atmosphere of the Hamilton Club. Then another thing. To belong to the Hamilton Club amounts to recognition at the hands of the highest social court in the city that the aspirant is a good fellow. Without exception, all the members of the Hamilton Club are good fellows. Somehow or other, the rest stay on the waiting list.

The Hamilton Club is a social Republican Club. Unlike the Union League Club, the Hamilton Club is out-and-out one of the limbs of the grand old party. Through the lean years and the fat ones the Hamilton Club has occupied an honored seat in the councils of the party. Presidents, senators, judges and orators are so common around the rooms of the club at 20 South Dearborn Street, that the bell-boys think nothing of telling them to step lively now and then when they think the elevator should wait for them with a brass band. Famous men, both in the present and past, have written their names on the membership list of the club, which is a long one in non-resident members as well as in active ones.

Now, with all these famous men, surrounded, of course, by many who are not famous, but only rich, it might be well to learn what they smoke. Taking the elevator to the third floor, the main cigar counter of the club will be found in a special room for that purpose. This room is located somewhat in the rear, near the wash room, and not far from the check room. The front portion of the floor is given over to an elegant lounging room, and includes the main desk of the club.

On the wall of the cigar room, as the room which contains the main stand may be well designated, hangs a large picture of William McKinley. The martyred president was a member of the club, and many a time purchased the strong, black cigars which he loved so well at the very case which still features the room. The case in question is constructed entirely of glass and is extra deep. It stands on the east side of the room, the space intervening between the case and the wall being used by members in passing to and from the wash room and check room. Everything is neat, clean and suggestive of quality at any price.

C. R. Aiken is in charge of the cigar department of the club. He is a young man for his position, but he gives the immediate impression of ability to do well anything which he tackles. He is assisted by Axel Johnson, and between the two of them, helped by the waiters and other servants, they handle things in excellent fashion. Mr. Aiken was formerly manager of the retail store of Egner & Company, located in West Adams Street. He has been in the cigar business in various capacities and with various concerns for the past twelve years, so that he is well seasoned for the important work of looking after a cigar department of which so much is exacted in the way of service and quality as is the case with the Hamilton Club. Mr. Aiken has some decided views on the cigar business in general. For instance, he believes that in late years the manufacturers of Tampa and other cities located in this country have been turning out better work at lower prices than the manufacturers located on foreign soil.

"I think I can see a tendency," said Mr. Aiken, "in so far as I can speak for the trend of the trade in the Hamilton Club, to place less value on the double stamp and cling more and more to the brands which are made in this country and which have been judged by experts to be the equal if not the superior of the imported article. I can remember the day when the critical smoker here in Chicago would not think of even so much as giving a trial to a cigar which was not imported. If the cigar was made in this country, that settled it. He had no further interest. This, however, is not the case now. Smokers who do not care what they pay for a cigar so long as they get the quality have found that the American manufacturers know how to make good cigars too. I can notice a decided decrease of the snobbish spirit which will turn a good cigar down just because it was made under the stars and stripes."

While the cigar stand on the third floor of the Hamilton Club is the main stand and does the most business, it is not by any means the only stand in the club. Three others may be found on the fourth, eighth and ninth floors, respectively. The one on the fourth floor is in connection with the billiard room, and like the subsidiary stands, as they may be called, in the other clubs of the city, is main-

Detroit

Police Ban Dancing in Cafes—Detroit Cigar Output Below Last Year—Retail Business Not Up to Standard—Howell Selling "Savarona" and "Mango"

DETROIT, MICH., March 9, 1914.

IS this or is this not a free country? That question is being asked by the proprietors of the Edelweiss Cafe and the Penobscot Inn. The Edelweiss several weeks ago put in two dancers, well known exponents of the tango, one-step, hesitation and maxixe. Up to the time of their engagement the Edelweiss was doing only a fair business, but since these dancers came it is simply impossible to get a table there any evening after eleven. The writer dropped in there last Saturday and men and women were actually eating standing up simply to be where they could watch the dancers. The Penobscot advertised a well known dancing couple would appear there, starting with Monday, March 9th. On March 7th the police department issued an order to the cafe owners that no dancing would be allowed, either by professionals or the public. If this is enforced it is going to be a terrible blow to the cafe proprietors and, of course, the cigar departments will also suffer. "I can't help but regard the order as being unjust," said Charles Glaser, proprietor of the Edelweiss Cafe. "Financially I see several thousand dollars loss ahead of me, my two performers being booked five weeks ahead at a weekly salary of $500. The increased patronage at my restaurant and cigar department disproves any intimation that the dancing is not artistic. There is not the least thing offensive in two high-class professionals performing the new steps, which certainly are the height of terpsichorean art. It is a feature in line with those of the other leading cities. Until the order is revoked, however, I intend to comply with it."

In connection with this phase of cafes, it really does seem as if the rights of the American people are being tampered with most unjustly. If such outrageous orders by the police department keep up and legislatures keep on passing any more of these laws, it won't be long before we will all have to pay a fine if we are seen on the public streets after nine o'clock at night. It's high time that the proprietors of these places and also the cigar dealers of every city got together and formed a strong organization to combat such ordinances and legislation. Right here let it be said that it is to be sincerely regretted that in every city there is not a strong organization of cigar dealers, which naturally would include cafe proprietors. If there was, they could take a hand in the various matters that come up from time to time concerning their business; as it is now, a complaint from a cigar dealer as an individual counts for nothing, whereas coming from a solid organization would go for something. Take a tip, cigar dealers, both large and small, and organize yourselves into local associations. The bricklayers, the bankers, the painters, the laundry owners, every other line you can think of, are organized, so why not the cigar dealers, who represent possibly the largest industry in the world?

Despite all the encouraging reports by local cigar manufacturers, the fact remains that for the past four months the numbers of cigars in the city of Detroit are not being turned out in as big quantities as compared with the previous twelve months. There are a few manufacturers, such as the San Telmo, Wayne, Banner and Mazer, who no doubt have increased their outputs, but on the other hand there must be many who are turning out less, if we are to judge the reports of the internal revenue office, which we know to be absolutely correct. For instance, take the month of February:

Tobacco	173,280.21	2,166,002 pounds
Snuff	568.00	710 "
1913.
Cigars	$69,505.68	23,168,560 cigars
Tobacco	170,347.96	2,126,849 pounds
Snuff	517.60	647 "

It will be noted that during February of this year, a total of 1,026,534 cigars less were made than the same month last year. In our issue of March 1st we showed figures where 813,456 less cigars were made during January of this year as compared to last.

Frank Smith, former manager of the cigar department at the Hotel Ponchartrain, and one of the best known men in Detroit not only in the cigar trade but among the high-class smokers, has taken hold of the cigar and periodical stand in the Hammond Building, which he will run on a percentage basis for the Lafond Company. The stand has always done a nice business, but with a man of Mr. Smith's standing in the community there is opportunity for still further increasing the business. It is located right in the "Wall Street" district and only a stone's throw from every big office building. Here's wishing Frank every success in his new venture.

Retail business seems to have fallen off in the past ten days. No particular reason unless men are economizing. Quite a number of dealers have complained that their trade is not as brisk as it should be for this time of the year.

A new cigar store will soon be opened in the Broadway Theatre Building on Broadway. This theatre closed sometime ago owing to poor business, but it has since been taken over by B. C. Whitney, one of the best known theatrical men in the country, who will redecorate it and open with a new class of attractions.

General Manager Lieberman, of the Central Cigar Stores, expresses himself as being more than satisfied with the business at his various branches. Mr. Lieberman has the right idea of success. He says that if a man will only have patience, and will give his customers the best goods he can for the money, it is only a case of waiting long enough and then you will have a steady clientele that cannot help but mean success. "The trouble with the average store, especially those away from the down-town district, is that he tries to give his customers the cheapest cigar he can for the money; in other words, he favors long shots," said Mr. Lieberman. "The smoker of today is getting to know what is a good cigar and what he should get for his money. Now, then, if he goes into one of these stores playing the long-shot game, and he buys one of them, the result is that the next time he wants a cigar he isn't going in that particular place. He will prefer to wait until he gets down town, where he knows he can go into such places like the Central Cigar Company, Mel Soper's Bert Johnson's or E. M. Harris, and get value received."

The Central Cigar Store is the name of a new store opened at 105 South Burdick Street, Kalamazoo, and the proprietor is J. L. Mondey, who for some time has been in the employ of the Cleenewerck stores. Mr. Mondey is well known among the business men of his city and there is no question that his stand will prove a most popular one.

Both Sunday papers of March 8th carried a two-column cut of Bert Johnson, who owns the cigar department at the G. & R. McMillan store. It is owing to Mr. Johnson that the weekly luncheons of the Moslem Temple members are proving so successful.

The Kalamazoo Label Company, of Kalamazoo, Mich., will shortly begin the manufacture of a patented cigar case. Machinery and equipment necessary to turn them out is now being installed.

Cornelius Vandenbout and Henry A. Gerbers have entered into the cigar manufacturing business as the Gerbers Cigar Company, with factory quarters at 610 West Fulton Street, Grand Rapids. Mr. Gerbers has been in the cigar business for some years, and is well experienced along that line.

Charles J. Holton has returned from a six weeks' sojourn among the tobacco planters in Cuba. He finished up his trip by participating in all of the Mardi Gras festivities in Havana. "The two sets of prices on the menu card in the Cuban capital cafes appealed to me about as much as anything I experienced while away," said Mr. Holton, in speaking of his vacation. "Each item of food is designated in the Spanish and English language. The prices are marked against the English, but none against the Spanish. This is to allow an elasticity to the Cuban purse. But there is one item the price of which is not marked on either column. That is a salad. I wanted a tomato salad and, not knowing the Spanish for tomato, had a devil of a time making my wants known on one occasion. After a pantomimic display of a tomato and dressing, including vinegar, oil, pepper and salt, the waiter brought me an orange. One should know the Spanish language after a fashion to gain pleasure in a sojourn in Cuba."

Claude E. Howell, the popular Grand River Avenue jobber, has just added the "La Dinora" cigar, a broadleaf, made by T. J. Dunn & Company, who also make the "New Bachellor," likewise handled by Mr. Howell, who in time hopes to make the "La Dinora" as well known and as well liked among the high-grade smokers as is the "New Bachellor" among its particular clientele.

H. S. Michael has departed from Detroit after having spent some time with Claude E. Howell in the interest of the "Savarona" cigar. The "Mango," a five-cent cigar, also manufactured by the "Savarona" people, has recently been added to the line of Mr. Howell.

George Longwell, who has been manager of the Cleenewerck Cigar Store in Battle Creek since it opened, has resigned to take a road position with the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company. He is succeeded by Elmer Prentice, formerly with the Oppenheimer Cigar Store.

Miss Lucile Watson, sister of Eugene Watson, of the Harry W. Watson Cigar Company, of Detroit and Flint, was married on February 24th, the wedding being one of the most beautiful this season. The affair took place at the Watson home in Flint. Eugene Watson was best man and Mrs. Eugene Watson acted as matron of honor, while Miss Pauline Watson attended as maid of honor. The young couple left for Havana, Florida and other points on a wedding trip, and will return by way of New York.

In the past thirty days there has been an unusually large number of "Pastora" cigar displays. This cigar is made by the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, of this city.

William James Walter, of Flint, who conducted a cigar store at 406 South Saginaw Street in 1877, died on February 22d from diabetes.

R. G. Casey, formerly Michigan representative for the Melachrino Company, is now a full-fledged groceryman, having become one of the principal stockholders of the Model Family Supply Company, which has just incorporated for $25,000 and which has been operating for years on Grand River Avenue.

A Live Smoke Shop in Kansas City

The accompanying cut shows the interior of the store of the La Salle Cigar Company, located at Eighth and Walnut Streets, Kansas City, Mo. The firm is not featuring any particular brand, but is trying to give their customers anything they want. Needless to say their lines of cigars, tobacco and cigarettes are very extensive.

tained for the sake of convenience. This stand is merely a branch of the main stand on the third floor. The one on the eighth floor is in connection with the grill room, and does a nice little business, as this is where the heavy after-dinner cigars are smoked. The one on the ninth floor is in connection with the cafe, and of course, stands in high favor with the members who cast about for a reed in the storm when the pace becomes faster than age or capacity can tolerate. With these four stands the Hamilton Club members are never at any time more than a mile away from a source of supply. The members of the Hamilton Club, being good fellows, without exception, find in the consumption of high grade cigars and cigarettes one of the main pleasures of existence. It is estimated that more than eighty-five per cent. of the members use tobacco in one form or another.

The private brand of the club is the "Hamilton Club of Chicago." This is used in connection with both cigars and cigarettes. In the cigar line the "Hamilton Club of Chicago" appears in more than twenty different sizes. This is not by any means an exceptional number for a private brand which is the subject of such wide and varied taste as a club brand. In some of the clubs of this city the club brand appears in as many as sixty-five different sizes. However, the members of the Hamilton Club have decided, apparently, that the range of twenty sizes covers all possible tastes, and for that reason the number has been limited to that mark. In addition to the private brand of the club which has been described, the leaders are "La Venga," "Castro," "Jose Vila," "Bolano," "Goya," and in the imported line, "Partagas," "Upmann's," "La Corona," "Romeo y Juliet," "Hoyo de Monterrey," and most of the other prominent brands. In addition to these the cases show "Tom Palmer," "Webster," "H. Antone Bock," "Lucius," "Abby," "La Venda," "Smokecraft," "Robert Burns" and "Ben Bey." In the cigarette line all the usual high-grade lines are carried, including "Pall Mall," "Melachrino," "Condax," "Fillmore," "56," and the rest. In fact, the Hamilton Club cigar department shows no discrimination. If a cigar has made good with the class of trade which frequents the club, the cigar department will not overlook that cigar in placing orders. Mr. Aiken is a Scot, and about as shrewd as they come to this country. He is always studious of the needs of the members in the cigar and cigarette line, as well as in the line of smoking tobacco, and if he sees that a certain brand ought to be included, he attends to the matter without delay. For that reason the cigar department of the Hamilton Club is a model one of its kind in the matter of complete stock perfectly suited to the trend of the trade.

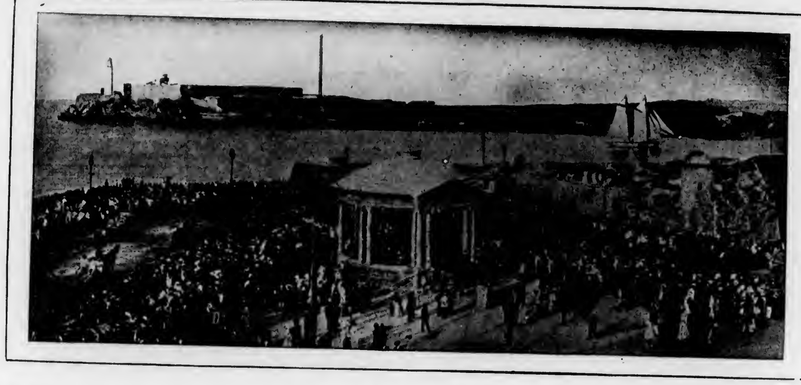
The officers of the Hamilton Club at the present time are Guy Guernsey, president; Robert S. Iles, first vice-president; Frederick A. Rowe, second vice-president; John I. Liever, secretary; W. F. Van Buskirk, treasurer, and Curt Vosburg, manager. Famous members, prominent and past, include Thomas B. Reed, William McKinley, John J. Know, John R. Newcomer, Fred T. Robinson, Richard Yates, Jr., "Billy" Mason, Martin B. Madden, Roy O. West, Furtin Q. Ball and many others who have played leading roles in shaping the destinies of the Republican party, not only in Illinois, but in a national was as well.

The Hamilton Club was organized in 1890, so for that reason is not as old as some of the other clubs of the city. Nevertheless, in the matter of things accomplished, the club is as old as the oldest. Several years ago the Marquette Club, which was another Republican Club of the city, merged with the Hamilton Club for the sake of harmony. Chicago was not large enough to hold two rival Republican Clubs, and as the spirit of both organizations was identically the same, little trouble was found in bringing about the union, although the opposition press made capital of the matter at the time.

Beyond a doubt, some of the most important political meetings of the Middle West have taken place in the Hamilton Club. How many of those "little sessions" which politicians love, but which are never mentioned above a whisper, have taken place in the private dining rooms up on the eighth floor no person can tell, except, perhaps, the time-honored chief of elevator service, and he won't. What part too, have the good black cigars played in the untangling of the knotty problems which faced these daring and determined men? Nothing of real importance, says Mr. Aiken, is ever decided in the Hamilton Club without the consumption of a proportionate number of weeds.

Will Manufacture Own Cigar Boxes

Just as soon as the factory equipment can be secured, the P. N. Jacobsen Cigar Company, Davenport, Ia., will start the manufacture of their own cigar boxes at the premises, 709-11 Harrison Street, that city, which building they leased but a short time ago. It is stated that the output of the factory will be 1500 boxes per day.



The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, March 9, 1914.

WE are still unable to state anything positive about the 1914 crop, except by saying, that the bulk has been harvested, and is now hanging in the drying sheds. There remains some tobacco growing in the fields yet, which might increase the quantity to a moderate extent, provided the weather conditions should be favorable. In its majority the crop will be of a light nature, and good, clean wrappers may be scarce again. The Partido growth has suffered most this year, according to all reports which we have heard, and may be the shortest in quantity, if we calculate the percentage of bales. Vuelta Abajo is estimated to yield about twenty per cent. less, while Semi Vuelta might give twenty-five per cent. more, and Remedios perhaps thirty per cent. more than the quantity last year. The yield of first and second capaduras may be, however, somewhat smaller than in 1913.

Our leaf market has been rather dull during the past fortnight, although the number of bales reported as sold indicate an increase in the volume of business. The buyer for the French Regie operated to the extent of 700 bales, and some of the sales in reality had made already during the previous two weeks. Prices for all heavy quality styles remain as stiff as ever, while the other grades are more or less nominal in prices. We beg to warn intending buyers, if they should nourish the illusion that prices this year would drop materially, as in our opinion the figures for all prime, first-class goods may be fully as high as last year, and only the medium and lighter styles might be possibly a trifle lower. The farmers must live, and they have formed a protective society in the Vuelta Abajo already to see to it that the prices do not go below the cost of production.

Sales during the past two weeks totaled 7102 bales, which represented: Vuelta Abajo, 3393; Partido, 1169, and Remedios, 2540 bales.

Buyers were: Americans and Canadians, 4109; exporters to Europe, 780; shippers to South America, 968, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1245 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from February 15 to February 28, 1914, amounted to 11,034 bales, or, which were distributed as follows, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 9716; to London, England, 10; to Hamburg, 80; to Buenos Aires, 1055, and to Montevideo, 173 bales.

Cigars.

The exports of cigars from the port of Havana during the month of February, 1913 and 1914, as per our official customhouse returns, were as follows, viz.:

From February 1 to February 28, 1913,	14,431,875 cigars
From February 1 to February 28, 1914,	13,487,995 "
Decrease during the month of February, 1914,	943,880 "

The principal decreases by countries were as follows, viz.:

United States	916,441 cigars
Great Britain and Ireland	454,402 "
Canada	368,614 "
Chile	200,807 "
Argentine Republic	195,876 "
British Africa	89,000 "
Italy	78,500 "
Austria	75,850 "

The principal increases by countries were as follows, viz.:

Spain	825,500 cigars
Australia	313,286 "
France	188,213 "
Germany	104,958 "

The exports of cigars from the port of Havana since the first of January, during the two years, now stand as follows, viz.:

From January 1 to February 28, 1913,	27,503,260 cigars
From January 1 to February 28, 1914,	24,995,439 "

The above showing is not satisfactory for our cigar industry, although as business in the same line is neither good in the United States, we could hardly expect any different result for the present, owing to our close relations with the great American Union of States. However, as everybody seems to be looking forward to good business later on this year, we are likewise consoling ourselves that the latter half of 1914 may make up for the present shortage in our exports.

Romeo y Julieta had closed down the last week of February to make their annual balance and, while Don Ramon Argüelles said that they had expected a better result through their increased output in 1913, they had to blame the very high prices they had been obliged to pay for their raw material, which had cut down their profits. Don Pepin Rodriguez felt anxious to have a look at the Panama Canal and, as his presence in town was not absolutely required, he left on the 7th inst. for a three weeks' trip.

Don Teodoro Garbade, of the house of H. Upmann & Company, and the president of the Union of Manufacturers of Cigars and Cigarettes of the Island of Cuba, sailed on the 5th inst., via Key West and New York, for Europe, partly for pleasure and partly on business.

The following factories are all working normally at this season of the year: Partagas, Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., Castañeda & Fonseca, Sol, Por Larrañaga, Punch, La Flor de José Otero, Flor del Fumar, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, Belinda, Eden, Hoyo de Monterey and C. E. Beck & Company.

Leaf Tobacco.

Leslie Pantin, Consul General of Portugal, and our most important commission merchant, left with his family on the 7th inst. by the "Governor Cobb," via Key West and New York, for Europe on a pleasure trip and recreation after his arduous work during the past tobacco season. He intends to visit the southern part of Spain during the early spring, and later on other European countries, but expects to return here by the latter part of June.

H. H. Strater sold around 1600 bales of Manicaragua and Remedios of his fine packings to his Northern customers during the past two weeks.

Don Angel Cuesta came here on the 28th ulto. with his family from Tampa to celebrate the opening of his new factory building, 90 Belascoain, and the corner of Peñalver Streets. The Bishop of Havana officiated in blessing the building before it should be opened for work. A long list of invitations had been sent out to the principal industrials and merchants, besides the press. The building is of modern construction, iron, steel, stone and cement, having all the latest sanitary improvements, three stories in height with a basement, and some sumptuous rooms on the top of the third story for the use of Don Angel when he should be in town. It might be called a palace of a factory on account of the artistic and rich appearance outside, as well as inside, and the plentiful distribution of light in every part of the building. Don Angel treated his guests in a royal manner, and everybody present wished success to the "Truly Spanish House" of Cuesta, Rey & Company.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana from February 15 to February 28, 1914, above 200 bales, were:

Neudecker Company's Building Rising Rapidly

Work is progressing rapidly on the new six-story building now being erected by the Neudecker Tobacco Company at the southwest corner of South and Lombard Streets, Baltimore, Md. The new building, which will occupy a space of 47 by 135 feet, will be fireproof and constructed of reinforced concrete.

A feature that is bound to attract much attention will be the thoroughly modern cigar vault, requiring in its formation as many layers as a protective belt of a battleship.

The Neudecker Company, which is at present located at Market Place and Lombard Street, acquired the present site only last fall, being much delayed in the transaction by the fact that the lot was owned by three different interests.

Cigar Store Changes Owners

The cigar store of William Brosnan, at 86 Center Street, Wallingford, Conn., has recently been sold to Thomas Wilson, of New Haven. The latter has taken possession and has announced to the trade that he will carry a complete line of cigars, smokers' articles, tobacco, cigarettes, etc., in addition to sporting goods, periodicals, etc.

Pittsburgh

Business Slack in the City—Afco Cigar Company Has Fine Opening—Splendid Trade on "Gato" Cigars—Seventh Avenue Stand Featuring "Websters"

BUSINESS in Pittsburgh during the past fortnight has not been up to standard, but it is apparently due to the weather conditions rather than to a falling off in consumption.

"Websters," distributed in this territory by Bock-Stauffer Company, were handsomely displayed recently in the windows of the Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stand.

March 7th marked the entrance of the Afco Cigar Company into the cigar and tobacco business in Pittsburgh. Notwithstanding the rainy day, the receipts were very gratifying. To the men who visited the store during the day Cuesta-Rey playing cards, ash trays and cigar pouches were distributed, while the fair sex received roses and carnations as souvenirs. Palms and flowers attractively arranged gave an inviting appearance to the new store. The humidor and fixtures were the cause of Mr. Fleischauer receiving many congratulations on the splendid arrangement of the stand. There were four good window displays that boosted trade. They were on pipes, candies, "Duquesne," "Bouquets" and "Cuesta-Rey." Among the brands offered were: "Cuesta-Rey," "Cortez," "Solace," "Girards," "Tubal," "El Versos," "Jose Garcia," "Boldt's Specials" and a full line of imported cigars. Cigarettes, smokers' articles and pipes were additional lines extensively covered.

The Joseph T. Snyder stands in the Anderson Hotel have been taken over by the R. Russell Company. After May 1st, J. T. Snyder will retire from business in this city. The Anderson Hotel stands are two of the best in the down-town section.

T. A. Kinney, who has the best cigar stands in Franklin, Pa., will soon occupy his new building, where he will also operate a moving picture theatre.

Stacey P. Koenemann, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, was in town last week and reported very satisfactory business on the "Gato" cigar. The Gilmore Drug Company acts as distributors for this brand in this city.

The following visitors were in town:

A. A. Gumpert, of Gumpert Brothers, Philadelphia.
E. L. Weil, of A. Roig & Langsdorf, Philadelphia.
J. W. King, of Cuesta-Rey & Company, Tampa, Fla.
A. Jacques, of Simon Batt & Company, New York.
Jos. Bankes, of the Boquet De Paris Cigar Company.
A. Osterloh, Jr., of the Standard Tobacco Company.
Geo. Becker, of Arguelles, Lopez & Hynos.
C. L. Staples, of Park & Tilford.
Geo. Adams, of Siller-Narten-Barnes Company.

No More Licking of Cigar Tips

Following the inspection in a number of counties, by the Division of Hygiene, of the State Department of Labor and Industry, located at Harrisburg, Pa., notice has been given by Commissioner John Price Jackson, that people in charge of cigar factories must stop the practice of cigar-makers placing tips of cigars in their mouths during manufacture. This order has come, only after a thorough investigation, it having been found that out of thirty-eight factories inspected, eight of the factories contained cigar-makers who placed the ends of the cigars in their mouths. We quote from Commissioner Jackson's report:

"Inasmuch as the practice of licking or wetting the end of the cigar seems to be a more or less prevalent practice and one which is not only unsafe to the operative, but certainly undesirable for the smoker, the commissioner gives notice that this practice must be absolutely done away with."

Tobacco Growers at Brownstown Organize

Very enthusiastic was the meeting which was held at Brownstown, Pa., recently, by the tobacco growers of that section. In addition to the formation of a local organization resulting in the election of Alvin Wenger as president, and John Burkhart, secretary and treasurer, R. L. Kimbrough presented the plans for the development of the Seed Leaf Tobacco Growers' Company.

San Francisco

Smokers Buying More Freely—Demand for Manilas Becoming Permanent—Bercovich Company Incorporates for $100,000—Planning Compaign for "Loveras"

SAN FRANCISCO, March 5, 1914.

THE hard rains of the late winter seem now to be over, and the trade is getting out after business in real earnest. Money in this city appears to be a little more plentiful. At least smokers are buying more freely; and some of the down-town stands are reporting "best days" of the year with gratifying frequency. Collections in both city and country are still a little slow; and some jobbing houses report that there is still some conservatism in buying for anything more than immediate needs. Nevertheless, more business is being done, and dealers are certain to get more confidence as the demand increases. The fact that California is to vote as a whole on the wet and dry question this fall may create a little uncertainty in the trade of the interior of the state until after the election; but the California cigar trade is much more independent of the liquor business now than in former times, and it is not expected that the election will have any very serious effect in the end.

Edward Wolf, of the Edward Wolf Company, reports that the revival in the Manila demand moves right along, with indications that the Manila demand will hereafter be a permanent feature of the Coast trade. George Gallagher, representing the Wolf Company, is now getting ready for a descent on the Coast country south of San Francisco. His last trip was down the San Joaquin Valley, where he did a bigger business with the "La Prueba" line of Manila cigars than ever before.

Fred Bates, who has been in and out of the cigar business in this city several times and who has had from one to a dozen stores at various times, is again to go out of the trade. This time he has only one store to sell, a place with a good business at Twenty-eighth and Mission Streets. Mr. Bates plans to sell out this store and go into the general brokerage business, and specialize on the buying and selling of stores and stocks.

Black Brothers, who recently opened a nice stand in the Merchants' National Bank Building on Market Street, are doing a nice business and report a steady improvement ever since the opening day.

O. J. Lansing, factory representative of Sanchez & Haya, has returned to the Coast from his recent visit to Tampa, and is now working the trade in this vicinity with headquarters at Tillmann & Bendel's. He brought out with him samples of two new fancy sizes, to be known as the "Queen" and the "Favorita."

J. Blumingdale, a cigar dealer of Fresno, Cal., is here this week for a few days with the local trade. He says that the outlook in his section is of the best imaginable.

W. I. Pixley, Pacific Coast agent for J. G. Dill, Incorporated, reports a nice run of repeat orders on "Dill's Lookout." This week he has got in several hurry-up orders from various parts of the state, showing that dealers' stocks are running low. Some good orders of this sort have come in from Los Angeles and other points in the southern half of the state, which was thoroughly covered by Mr. Pixley last summer. Mr. Pixley is now introducing in San Francisco a new cigar moistener, which he believes is destined to make good. It is manufactured in Oakland out of a special preparation of clay hardened with cement.

Harry F. Adams, special Western representative of the Benson & Hedges line of cigarettes, left San Francisco early this week for a long trip over his Northern territory, including Oregon, Washington, Idaho and Montana. His advance information was to the effect that most of this territory had excellent prospects.

D. Emil Klein, vice-president of the Lovera Company, is now on his way westward and is due to reach San Francisco on March 15th for a conference with Major Burrows, the California agent of the Lovera line. The major has things all ready for him and intends to prove to Mr. Klein that California in general, and San Francisco in particular, is just the place where the Lovera Company can best afford to put in some extra fine work this season.

J. L. Daniels, formerly in the leaf line in this city, has returned and will again engage in the leaf tobacco business.

A. Alloggi, of San Jose, Cal., one of the leading wholesale and retail dealers in the interior of California, sold out his business on March 1st to J. Goldberg, formerly of Seattle, Wash. Mr. Goldberg will give most of his attention to the retail end of the business. Mr. Alloggi, whose wife was killed in a collision between a freight train and an automobile several months ago, has now brought suit for $100,000 damages against the railroad company.

I. Dannenbaum, a dealer and sub-jobber of Santa Rosa, Cal., has opened a branch store at the neighboring city of Napa.

Milton Esberg, of M. A. Gunst & Company, who has been in the East for several weeks visiting the company's connections at New York and elsewhere, has returned to the San Francisco headquarters. While in New York he conferred with the other officials of M. A. Gunst & Company and the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company.

The Bercovich Company, the wholesale end of the H. Bercovich Company, in which D. M. Supperstein, formerly of Denver, has recently taken an interest, has now been incorporated with an authorized capital stock of $100,000. The company will now go after the wholesale business of San Francisco and northern and central California more energetically than ever.

O. E. Cartson, a cigar man of Astoria, Ore., is visiting in San Francisco this week.

Another Oregon dealer who is visiting the local trade this week is Sig. Sichel, of Portland. Mr. Sichel is well known in this city.

Upton & Jackson, cigar dealers of 163 North Spring Street, Los Angeles, Cal., have sold out their business to J. H. Jacoby, of the same city.

Charles Kohlberg, traveling representative of H. L. Judell & Company, of San Francisco, has been spending the past few days with his connections in the San Joaquin Valley. Dave Peiser, who looks after the Judell Company's interests in and about San Francisco, reports a noticeable improvement in business.

J. A. Gumier, a retailer of Antioch, Cal., has been calling on the jobbers this week.

Court Punctures Zion City Blue Law

The zealous guardians of Zion City, who have established rules and regulations regarding the conduct of strangers within the gates, as well as of the residents themselves, recently received a jolt from the Supreme Court, sitting at Springfield, Ill., when it refused to uphold the Zion City ordinance which prohibits smoking within the borough limits.

Some time ago Richard Behrens was found smoking on the streets of Zion City. He was promptly haled before a magistrate in Zion City and was fined. Mr. Behrens appealed his case and the court is inclined to hold that Mr. Behrens was within his rights.

Zion City lawyers contend that the city had a right to forbid smoking on the grounds of public health and safety.

"In the broad language in which the ordinance is enacted," the court says, "it is apparently an attempt on the part of the municipality to regulate and control the habits and practices of the citizens without any reasonable basis for so doing. The ordinance is an unreasonable interference with the private rights of the citizen and must be held void."

Dr. Pease please note.

Now We Have the Non-Refillable Cigar Box

One of the recent inventions which is attracting widespread interest among manufacturers of high-grade cigars is the non-refillable cigar box, worked out by A. Reiss, president of Alfonso Rios & Company, makers of "El Talento" cigars, 231 North Fifth Avenue, Chicago. This box is supplied with an ingenious device which absolutely prevents the substitution of inferior cigars by unscrupulous dealers. Four narrow slits are cut in each end of the box. Through these, and over the tops of each of the four rows, a continuous broad ribbon, which may be of paper or some other material, is passed. This makes it impossible for a cigar to be removed unless the ribbon covering the row is broken, and makes the possibility for substitution small. It also permits the dealer to display the box, open, on his counter without the annoyance of having an occasional cigar stolen. In fact, the device covers the purpose for which it is intended so thoroughly that the Government might well use a stamp in the case of the ribbon without risk. The patent for the invention is now pending. No arrangements have been made for the manufacture of the special boxes, but this will be no obstacle as the device is simple. Mr. Reiss was simply the first man to think of it, that's all. "El Talento" is made in twenty-eight sizes and is the leader of the firm.

Echoes of the Storm

As the result of the severe snow storm which visited the eastern portion of Pennsylvania during the past fortnight, the large 40 by 100 feet tobacco shed, located on the farm of Harry Smith, situated about half a mile from East Prospect, Pa., was blown over and destroyed. The shed was half filled with tobacco, the greater portion of which was blown away or destroyed. Quite a few farming implements were ruined also.

Damage to the extent of $2000 was caused when the roof was blown off the cigar factory owned by A. Scott Frey, Red Lion, Pa., during the snow storm which raged at this place recently. The building, which was new, having been erected but four months ago, contained ten cases of scrap tobacco and several cases of filler, all of which was lost, due to being blown away. The cigar factory of Herrman & Neff, located but a short distance from the Frey factory, also suffered to the extent of having the factory roof move about six inches.

Two Grades of Standard Binders

Our attention has been called to the fact that the Tobacco Production Company, of New Milford, Conn., are now manufacturing two grades of standard pure tobacco binders. Grade "X" is their regular product for cigars retailing around five cents and under. This is the grade that has established such a wonderful reputation for the company and which has proven by test and experience, to some of the largest and most representative cigar manufacturers in the country, the real merit of the standard binder.

Grade "XX" is the new product and is an Havana blend, slightly more expensive than grade "X," and is now being used in better grade cigars.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

Until the last few days the leaf tobacco growers of Lancaster County have been firm in their demand of ten cents a pound for their 1913 tobacco. They had been supported by the promises of the recently organized Lancaster Seed Leaf Tobacco Association to influence the packers to the extent that they would pay that price.

The buyers, holding that ten cents is beyond the limit, have refused to buy, with the result that prices have broken during the last few days, and many growers are now willing to take any reasonably fair price offered. April 1st is "settlement day" among the farmers of Lancaster County and the farmers are now anxious to dispose of their tobacco in order to get money for liquidating their liabilities.

The packers are not anxious to buy now under any conditions, because their own trade is extremely dull, such business as they have being of a mere jobbing nature, largely because the cigar industry of their district is in a very depressed state.

WISCONSIN.

STOUGHTON, WIS.

The tobacco situation is not much different from last week, some deals being made at lower figures, eight and one-half cents a pound being paid occasionally. All 1913 leaf will be absorbed before the spring season sets in, as the market needs the goods. Buyers say that they have all they possibly can do to care for present deliveries, without enlarging their investments, and that the remnants can be found later. Many crops have brought around the two hundred dollar an acre mark and all parties are pleased. Indications point to an increased acreage of leaf.

Banner Year for Tobacco in Minnesota

According to the recent report of Charles Lien, State tobacco expert, 1913 proved the banner year as regards the fruition of the tobacco crop in Minnesota, it having produced the largest and best crop in the past four years, this statement being the result of investigations carried on during that period. So extensive has been the increase in the acreage that more than 100 farmers located in Sherburne, Stearns, Benton, Dodge and Olmsted Counties, are now raising tobacco. The 1913 crop, which yielded 145,276 pounds of tobacco, was marketed at a value of $10,610.61, the prices ranging from six cents to twelve cents per pound, and covered more than 100 acres of land.

Owing to the fact that the past crop was not marketed under the most advantageous conditions, due to the growers not being able to agree relative to the proper time for its disposal, an association of growers has been formed for the purpose of marketing the 1914 crop at its right value.

As a result of the experiments made to ascertain the tobacco most suitable to Minnesota soil, of the three types grown, Connecticut Havana, Spanish Comstock and Silver Leak, it has been decided to devote future attention solely to the raising of Connecticut Havana, it having proved most responsive to prevalent conditions.

Key West

Many "Buckeyes" Springing Up—Professional Cigar Company Formed—Cuesta-Rey Factory in Havana Called "The Palace"—Cigar Man Thinks Everyone Will Soon "Manufacture in Bond"

KEY WEST, FLA., March 10, 1914.

MARCH has come in like a roaring lion and every one sincerely hopes that it will go out like a lamb. Heavy winds, rain and the coldest weather of the winter season has been registered by the thermometer within the past few days. The M. Perez Company and the Mi Favorita Cigar Company have not yet begun to manufacture in bond, as, owing to some mistake in their bonds, they had to be returned to Washington, D. C., for correction. Therefore the matter, as far as the actual making of cigars under the new system is concerned, is in statu quo.

Lately quite a number of "Buckeyes" have begun operation here owing to the scarcity of work in the larger cigar factories. In fact, they are springing up like mushrooms, and some of them are turning out some very creditable smokes.

With our cigar factories business has improved slightly since last writing, but not to any extraordinary extent. There is still a deficit in the shipping lists when compared with the same period of last year. Everybody appears to be optimistic and predict that 1914 will be a banner year, as they all have prospects of a business revival at an early date. The best thing that could happen for the cigar industry of Key West, Tampa and Havana would be that the United States cut itself away from Porto Rico and the Philippine Islands.

The "Omar" cigarettes, made by the American Tobacco Company, and retailing at twenty for fifteen cents, is being boosted in the morning daily with a half page ad. As an inducement for the consumer to purchase this brand a large Navajo blanket and a German silver cigarette holder is given with each package.

A. L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, of Tampa, Fla., and party, composed of Mrs. A. L. Cuesta, Miss Carlotta Cuesta, A. L. Cuesta, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. John Trice and M. Amdrous, passed through the city recently en route to Havana to be present at the dedication of the company's new handsome office building and tobacco warehouse, that is conceded by the citizens of the Cuban capital as the most elaborate building in that city, and is known to them as "the palace."

Godfrey S. Mahn, the cigar jobber of Philadelphia and New York, arrived in town recently from Havana, where he has been putting in a few days on business. He will leave some time this week for the North.

Manager Jaime Pendas, of Moreda & Company, got back from a business and pleasure trip to Tampa last week. At the factory trade is good and they have a full force seated. A. T. Hunter and H. Hamer, auditors of the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, were at the office recently for their regular inspection of the company's books. They have since gone on to Tampa.

Francisco Fleitas, of S. & F. Fleitas, is back from Cuba, where he went a few days ago to close several important deals in the leaf markets of Havana. "Homerica" is having a good run and is gaining new friends for this house every day.

J. Lamenhaupt, of Moss & Lamenhaupt, the St. Louis, Mo., cigar dealers and large handlers of Key West cigars, was a visitor to the city recently.

The following members of the trade were in the city since last writing: Louis Sondheim, the cigar dealer of Lancaster, Pa.; Emilo Suarez, the tobacco dealer of New York; Jose M. Diaz, of Bustillo Brothers & Diaz, the cigarmakers of Tampa, Fla.; C. Chapin, of Chapin & Gore, the Chicago, Ill., cigar jobbers; A. and F. Garcia, of Garcia, Vega & Company, the Tampa cigar manufacturers, and Thomas F. Carey, the cigar jobber of Greenwich, Conn.

Antonio Chavez and William H. Malone have been granted factory No. 405 as manufacturers of cigars. Their firm will be known to the trade as the Professional Cigar Company.

Samuel Paily, of the Congress Cigar Company of Chicago, Ill., passed through town last week, being en route to the leaf markets of Havana.

Don Luis Martinez, president of the Martinez-Havana Company, paid a short visit to his factory here last week. He has since returned to his tobacco farms at Guira de Melena. They will some time in the very near future file their application to operate under the "made in bond" law.

A prominent cigar man during his visit to Key West recently in the course of his conversation said: "The clear Havana cigar manufacturers of the country will eventually be forced to adopt the made-in-bond law or go away back and sit down."

The E. H. Gato Cigar Company received an invoice of over three hundred bales of tobacco last week. At the factory a large force is being carried and orders are coming to hand by every mail and also by night letter. Secretary Thomas H. Gato, accompanied by his family, left last week for Cuba, where they will spend some time. James R. Curry, Jr., chief bookkeeper of the company, is back from Havana, where he went recently for a business conference with Edwardo H. Gato, Sr., president of the company.

W. J. Ruthenburg arrived in the city from Cuba last week, being on his way to New York City. Mr. Ruthenberg's trip to Cuba was for the purpose of interesting the tobacco handlers there in a machine for stripping wrappers and fillers. He succeeded, I understand, in booking several orders in Havana for his labor-saving device.

Fire Damages Ottawa Cigar Store

The cigar store of Manny Levy in the Moloney Building in Ottawa, Ill., was the scene of a fire recently, which destroyed stock and fixtures to the amount of $500. It was covered by insurance. The entire stock of cigars was so badly damaged that it will be turned over to the insurance companies to dispose of it as salvage.

Short talks to Dealers

It is just as essential to use good cigarettes in order to build up a substantial cigarette business as to use good building material for a home. With you have a good, dependable foundation. Good, because the mild, mellow Turkish flavor of Fatimas is the flavor most desired by cigarette smokers. Dependable, because our process of manufacture insures the same uniform quality in each cigarette in every package.

FATIMA
CIGARETTES

And to increase the already enormous sale of Fatimas and to make it easy for you to build up a big, substantial trade with them, we are advertising them very heavily during 1914. More Fatima cigarettes are sold than any other brand in this country.

In fact, the 1914 Fatima advertising campaign will be one of the very biggest ever known for cigarettes.

And back of every ad—every cigarette and every dealer—stands the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

COMPANIES SUBMIT SALES PLANS TO AVERT SUITS UNDER SHERMAN ACT

U. S. Attorney Supplied With Draft of Concessions—Must be Passed on by Attorney-General—Investigation Caused by Complaints of Independent Dealers

NEW YORK, March 30, 1914.

THE four companies into which the Tobacco Trust was disintegrated by the decree of 1911 were represented by counsel at the conference held here today by U. S. Attorney H. Snowden Marshall and counsel for the Metropolitan Tobacco Company. A draft of the concessions that they are willing to make in order to escape a second action under the Sherman anti-trust act was submitted. Before this can be accepted it must be passed upon by Attorney-General McReynolds.

The Government is acting upon the complaint of certain independent dealers, who charge that a monopoly of the jobbing business in this district which was enjoyed by the Metropolitan Tobacco Company under the old trust still exists, and that independent dealers are forced to buy their tobacco at retail prices.

It was charged that the Metropolitan Tobacco Company was the sole distributor of the products of the components of the former trust and that the monopoly ordered dissolved by the Supreme Court decree still existed.

The basis of the agreement which the Department of Justice is willing to accept is that the American Tobacco Company, Liggett & Myers, P. Lorillard Company and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company promise to sell their products to distributors who are competitors of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company at the same prices quoted to the Metropolitan. Negotiations were entered into several weeks ago, but they did not progress far, as the reorganizations plans suggested did not go far enough to meet with the approval of the Attorney-General.

The Government's position was explained at a conference held on March 25th in the office of United States Attorney H. Snowden Marshall. It was attended by Junius Parker, attorney for the American Tobacco Company; Berton G. Craige, counsel for the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company; Paul Fuller, representing Liggett & Myers; J. Hamilton, attorney for the P. Lorillard Company, and ex-Justice W. N. Cohen, representing the Metropolitan Tobacco Company. Claude A. Thompson, special assistant United States Attorney, who had charge of the investigation, was also present.

Mr. Marshall pointed out that the Metropolitan held exclusive jobbing privileges in the territory bounded on the south by Trenton, N. J., and on the north by Stamford, Conn.

He reminded the lawyers for the tobacco companies that the Government had evidence conclusively showing that the Metropolitan Tobacco Company was formed for the purpose of driving independent jobbers out of business in this territory, which includes New York City, and that this monopolistic plan had deliberately been devised and continued after the dissolution decree entered against the Tobacco Trust.

FIVE PER CENT. DECISION MAY BE CARRIED TO SUPREME COURT

Bill Drawn to Provide Appeal From Customs Court—Favorable Report Expected in the House—Treasury and Importers Seek Early Decision

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30, 1914.

THE opinion recently rendered by the Board of United States General Appraisers regarding the five per cent. clause in the Underwood bill was quite a surprise, as it was believed that it would be granted to all vessels or none. Instead it was upheld that goods imported in American vessels should receive this discount, while those brought in foreign vessels should not receive it.

Before the case goes any further, however, a desperate attempt is going to be made to have the present law of the judiciary revised so as to permit of an appeal from the Customs Court to the Supreme Court in particular cases. The case is now before the Customs Court.

The importers involved in the so-called five per cent. case have noted an appeal with the Customs Court. The General Appraisers held that the clause granted a reduction to goods imported in American bottoms, but that the favored nation treaties did not apply and therefore a similar reduction could not be granted on goods imported in ships of countries with which we have favored nation treaties.

The Government contended that the proviso in the clause in question abrogated the right of giving the five per cent. reduction to any goods so long as the favored nation treaties were in force. It is upon this point that the Government also is expected to note an appeal to the Customs Court. Instructions have been issued to the Assistant Attorney General to bring the appeal, but this will be delayed until the assistance of Congress can be invoked.

It is argued that in customs cases where a treaty right is involved appeals should be permitted from the Customs Court to the Supreme Court. This point was originally raised in connection with the Canadian wood pulp case, in which it was argued that a reduction in duties should be granted on wood pulp imported from all favored nations because a similar reduction was granted Canada. The undecided point is still whether the law of the land supersedes a treaty right or whether a treaty right supersedes the law of the land.

Assistant Attorney General Wemple, of New York, who has charge of customs cases for the Government, has appeared before the House Judiciary Committee to argue in favor of a bill to permit an appeal in cases where a treaty right is involved. This bill was drafted at the instance of the Treasury Department by Attorney General McReynolds and is now pending before the Judiciary Committee. Mr. Wemple's testimony was largely explanatory of the conditions surrounding the wood pulp case and the American bottoms case, both of which involve the rights under our favored nation treaties.

It is expected that the committee will report the bill favorably to the House.

OBITVARY

Isidor Langsdorf Passes Away

ISIDOR LANGSDORF, head of the cigar manufacturing firm of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, and one of the leading Jewish residents of this city, died on Saturday, March 21st, at his home, 1432 Girard Avenue. His death followed an attack of heart trouble which lasted but twenty minutes.

Mr. Langsdorf had been at business on Friday and felt in the best of health. He left his office early to prepare for a family dinner which was held late Friday evening at his home, when his two children, Jacob Loeb Langsdorf and Mrs. Charles E. Fox, with their families feasted, and seemingly Mr. Langsdorf enjoyed the meal and the family meeting more than any one present. He bid them all good night and extended the usual salutation as his guests left. A short time after he was stricken and died.

ISIDOR LANGSDORF

Mr. Langsdorf was born in this city August 14, 1850. He was a widower, his wife, who was Miss Blanche Loeb, of Philadelphia, dying in 1896. His early education was received in the public schools. For a little time he had been a student at the Central High School for Boys, but did not graduate as he entered the cigar business conducted by his father, Jacob Langsdorf. That was nearly forty years ago. For twenty-five years he was a member of the Antonio Roig & Langsdorf firm, being at its head for ten years.

He was a member of the Rodeph Shalom Congregation ever since he was a lad, and had for years been an honorary member of the board of directors of that body. Mr. Langsdorf was also a director of the Hebrew Sunday School Society of Philadelphia; a director of the Hebrew Educational Society of Philadelphia, and a director of the Philmont Club. As vice-president and chairman of the executive committee of the Jewish Hospital Association he was a most prominent figure, having led many moves for the large improvements that have come to the Jewish Hospital.

E. A. Kraussman

Seized with an attack of heart disease while attending the annual banquet of the Connecticut Knights Templars, Willimantic, Conn., and at which he was to deliver an address, E. A. Kraussman, a prominent importer of Havana tobacco, with offices at 168 Water Street, New York City, was taken to a local hospital, dying ten minutes after having gained admittance. Born in Chicago, fifty-seven years ago, his early years were spent in the employ of his father, the late Andrew Kraussman, a cigar manufacturer, who, after having acquired quite extensive interests in the cigar field, later moved to New York, where he opened a factory. Upon his father's death, the younger Kraussman identified himself as a leaf tobacco salesman with the firm of Samuel Seymour, a well-known cigar leaf merchant of New York City. Mr. Kraussman was continuously connected with the leaf tobacco interests until 1902, when he started out on his own account, meeting success at his every turn. He was known practically in every leaf tobacco circle of the United States, and his death will doubtless cause widespread regret. The deceased was very prominent in Masonic circles and is survived by a wife and two sons, both of whom were engaged with their father in business.

Joseph J. Schaefer

Joseph J. Schaefer, a resident of Dayton, O., and a prominent cigar manufacturer of that city, died recently, as the result of an attack of apoplexy. Mr. Schaefer, who was a native of Germany, came to Dayton when but seventeen years of age, later starting in business for himself. The business grew and prospered, until the visitation of the city by the flood of a year ago, when Mr. Schaefer suffered considerable loss. The deceased, who was fifty-six years of age, is survived by a widow, two daughters and three sons.

F. J. Collman

F. J. Collman, a former resident of Freeport, died in his home at Madison, Wis., recently, following a ten days' illness from pneumonia. Mr. Collman, who was actively engaged in the wholesale leaf tobacco business with his son, was fifty-five years old, and is survived by a widow and several children.

William Marriott

Following a long illness, William Marriott, sixty-seven years of age, and for forty-three years engaged as a manufacturer and dealer in cigars, at 333 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, died at the address given, recently. Underwood Bill Interferes With His Personal Liberty

PHILADELPHIA, PA., March 18, 1914.

Editor THE TOBACCO WORLD,
Philadelphia, Pa.:

Dear Sir,—I see by your last issue, which has just reached me, that in your usual quiet editorial way you infer that the passage of the Underwood anti-coupon bill would be a boon to the cigar trade.

Now I am not interested in the tobacco business, except that I am a heavy smoker of tobacco and cigars. I subscribe to THE TOBACCO WORLD because I like its style, and I like to know something about lines of trade other than my own.

But you are going to get me in wrong if this bill goes through. My wife has become reconciled to my smoking at home because I give her the coupons and she is always able to use them to get something that she wants but does not like to spend the money for. If this bill passes, good-night! I won't be able to smoke in peace any more in my own home, but will have to do it around the corner, as I did when I was a boy.

Maybe the consumer is paying for the coupons, but believe me I'm one that is willing to do it. The argument, "the greatest good to the greatest number," is all right, but this bill is going to hit me an awful blow and I feel kind of selfish about it.

Hoping the bill does not pass, I am,

Yours truly,
A. CONFIRMED SMOKER.

Samuel Daniels

Samuel Daniels, founder of one of the first wholesale cigar houses in Chicago, died at his home, 4835 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago, within the past fortnight. Mr. Daniels, who was a native of Germany, had been a resident of Chicago for fifty years, and is survived by four daughters and a son.

"Movies" Shown on "Bull Durham" Auto

OBITVARY

Isidor Langsdorf Passes Away

ISIDOR LANGSDORF, head of the cigar manufacturing firm of Antonio Roig & Langsdorf, and one of the leading Jewish residents of this city, died on Saturday, March 21st, at his home, 1432 Girard Avenue. His death followed an attack of heart trouble which lasted but twenty minutes.

Mr. Langsdorf had been at business on Friday and felt in the best of health. He left his office early to prepare for a family dinner which was held late Friday evening at his home, when his two children, Jacob Loeb Langsdorf and Mrs. Charles E. Fox, with their families feasted, and seemingly Mr. Langsdorf enjoyed the meal and the family meeting more than any one present. He bid them all good night and extended the usual salutation as his guests left. A short time after he was stricken and died.

Mr. Langsdorf was born in this city August 14, 1850. He was a widower, his wife, who was Miss Blanche Loeb, of Philadelphia, dying in 1896. His early education was received in the public schools. For a little time he had been a student at the Central High School for Boys, but did not graduate as he entered the cigar business conducted by his father, Jacob Langsdorf. That was nearly forty years ago. For twenty-five years he was a member of the Antonio Roig & Langsdorf firm, being at its head for ten years.

He was a member of the Rodeph Shalom Congregation ever since he was a lad, and had for years been an honorary member of the board of directors of that body. Mr. Langsdorf was also a director of the Hebrew Sunday School Society of Philadelphia; a director of the Hebrew Educational Society of Philadelphia, and a director of the Philmont Club. As vice-president and chairman of the executive committee of the Jewish Hospital Association he was a most prominent figure, having led many moves for the large improvements that have come to the Jewish Hospital.

E. A. Kraussman

Seized with an attack of heart disease while attending the annual banquet of the Connecticut Knights Templars, Willimantic, Conn., and at which he was to deliver an address, E. A. Kraussman, a prominent importer of Havana tobacco, with offices at 168 Water Street, New York City, was taken to a local hospital, dying ten minutes after having gained admittance. Born in Chicago, fifty-seven years ago, his early years were spent in the employ of his father, the late Andrew Kraussman, a cigar manufacturer, who, after having acquired quite extensive interests in the cigar field, later moved to New York, where he opened a factory. Upon his father's death, the younger Kraussman identified himself as a leaf tobacco salesman with the firm of Samuel Seymour, a well-known cigar leaf merchant of New York City. Mr. Kraussman was continuously connected with the leaf tobacco interests until 1902, when he started out on his own account, meeting success at his every turn. He was known practically in every leaf tobacco circle of the United States, and his death will doubtless cause widespread regret. The deceased was very prominent in Masonic circles and is survived by a wife and two sons, both of whom were engaged with their father in business.

Joseph J. Schaefer

Joseph J. Schaefer, a resident of Dayton, O., and a prominent cigar manufacturer of that city, died recently, as the result of an attack of apoplexy. Mr. Schaefer, who was a native of Germany, came to Dayton when but seventeen years of age, later starting in business for himself. The business grew and prospered, until the visitation of the city by the flood of a year ago, when Mr. Schaefer suffered considerable loss. The deceased, who was fifty-six years of age, is survived by a widow, two daughters and three sons.

F. J. Collman

F. J. Collman, a former resident of Freeport, died in his home at Madison, Wis., recently, following a ten days' illness from pneumonia. Mr. Collman, who was actively engaged in the wholesale leaf tobacco business with his son, was fifty-five years old, and is survived by a widow and several children.

William Marriott

Following a long illness, William Marriott, sixty-seven years of age, and for forty-three years engaged as a manufacturer and dealer in cigars, at 333 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, died at the address given, recently. The deceased, who had a large and prosperous business, numbered many prominent men among his patrons, among them being the late Mayor William Gaynor. The deceased, who had been a traveling cigar salesman for many years, was connected in that capacity with John B. Milleysack, of Lancaster, at the time of his death. This remark was once passed about a prominent business man who was always promising to do more than he could.

"He is the Best Promiser on Earth"

After a time, many of his customers having been disappointed, he lost their confidence and their business as well

In placing advertising the wise manager does not base his contract on promises and expectations. He looks about, rather, to see what the medium he is considering has accomplished. He bases his decision on "past performances." He knows that when a solicitor is flirting with a big contract he is apt to strain his optimism a point. For that reason he finds out what the medium has accomplished in the past.

The influx of inquiries and of new business to THE TOBACCO WORLD has been due to the fact that we have solicited on "past performances." We have seldom had to make a statement for ourselves; our friends are doing that for us. They are doing it because we are "delivering the goods."

More men in the tobacco industry are reading THE TOBACCO WORLD than ever before; more advertisers are using THE TOBACCO WORLD than ever before in our history. It is needless to say that these facts concerning our growth are not due to "promises," but to what we have and are accomplishing.

That the cigar business in both the nickel goods and higher grades is showing no let-up is indicated by the reports of the manufacturers that they are considerably oversold. One firm stated the other day to a TOBACCO WORLD representative that on one brand alone they were more than a million behind. This brand is not sold east of the Mississippi and we did not know they made it. It has never been advertised, but has been made as a favor for a number of Western houses. The demand for these goods has increased to a point where it is interfering with the production of the nationally advertised brand.

Cigar Business Shows no Let-up

While we were talking to one manufacturer a clerk placed a telegram on his desk. It read, "Ship fifty thousand in addition to standing order at once." The manufacturer stated that the party would be lucky to get the goods by May 1st, if then.

How do you account for the increasing demand, he was asked. "We advertise continually, and we back our copy up by making good cigars. There is too much competition in these days to advertise an article and to try and fool the smoker with inferior goods. We manufacture cigars to secure 'repeat' business, and we always get it."

The same story could be told by a score of manufacturers in the Quaker City and it goes to prove that the consumer is getting more for his money today than ever before. Our manufacturers throughout the nation are making better cigars and the consumer appreciates this fact and is smoking more of them.

Morris Pach

Morris Pach, one of the oldest Republican leaders in Monmouth County, and who, until his retirement two years ago, was county manager of the New Jersey Tobacco Company, died at his home in Red Bank, N. J., on March 29th. The deceased was seventy-six years old.

Mr. Pach was a charter member of the Red Bank Lodge of Elks, a member of the Mystic Brotherhood, F. & A. M., and of the Navesink Hook and Ladder Company.

Emanuel Josephs

Though having lived in retirement from business for the past twelve years, Emanuel Josephs, whose death occurred at his home, 112 East Eighty-first Street, New York City, recently, previous to that time had engaged in the manufacture of cigars for many years. His death was due to diseases incidental to advanced years. He is survived by a widow, seven daughters and one son.

Henry Sandmeyer

Henry Sandmeyer, of the well-known cigar manufacturing firm of Sandmeyer & Company, with quarters at 208 South State Street, Chicago, Ill., died last week at his home in East Fiftieth Place, following an illness of six months. The deceased, who is survived by a widow and four daughters, had been active in the wholesale and retail cigar business of Chicago for close on to thirty years. He was eighty-five years old.

C. H. Crouch

C. H. Crouch, thirty-nine years of age, a tobacco expert and a resident of Paducah, Ky., died in that city recently, as the result of drinking carbolic acid. The deceased, at the time of his death, was engaged in the capacity of foreman in the rehandling warehouse of the Weyman-Bruton Tobacco Company, and is said to have been held in high esteem by his employers.

A WEALTHY American, who has recently fled the stricken territories of Mexico, and is now living in Key West, says that while he likes Mexican cigarettes, he does not want any at present.

I learned that he was craving for the little black rolls from Mexico, and as he was unable to get them in the city, I advised him to cultivate a taste for Cuban cigarettes. He tried them, but they evidently did not fill the bill, for he confessed that soon after he sent an order for two dollars to a Mexican factory.

Rather sheepishly he told me the following story regarding it:

"When I got notice that the goods were in the Customs House, I hurried down at once, as my craving for the Mexican goods was at a high pitch. Imagine my surprise when the clerk said: 'Twenty-four dollars, please,' as he handed me the goods. I was amazed. Then I bitterly arraigned the manufacturers for exceeding the amount of the order.

"'But the manufacturer did not exceed the amount of the order, sir,' said the clerk; 'that charge is for additional duties collected in Mexico, with our usual duty added.'

"I told him he could throw the cigarettes in the Gulf before I would pay twenty-four dollars for them, and turned on my heel to walk away. However, my craving was so great that I turned back and told him that I needed the smokes worse than I did the money, so I paid the twenty-four dollars."

He added that they are about the most expensive cigarettes he has ever smoked and that he is now very favorably inclined toward the more inexpensive Cuban brands.

When Schwarz, the genial advertising manager of Bobrow Brothers, tells of a successful advertising campaign, or any new deal that is put across, he generally ends his part of the conversation by saying: "By gosh, it was a well-laid plan."

I asked him one day how that sentence came to be so firmly imbedded in his mind. The result was the following story:

It seems that Eisenberg Brothers, known as the "Cigar Store Beautiful," in Dayton, O., was at one time headquarters for a clique of jokers and one, Jean Rhinheimer, who was a member of the clan, often became the victim of a practical joke perpetrated by some of the boys. The best part of it was that Jean's usual reply when he found himself victimized was: "By gosh, that was a well-laid plan."

On one occasion Jean planned to surprise the object of his affections with a handsome umbrella as a remembrance on her birthday. On a certain Saturday evening he called at the store and asked Morry Eisenberg if he could leave a package in the closet until the following afternoon. The request was granted and Jean went his way. The bunch was present on that evening in full force and their inquisitiveness was not to be overlooked, as Jean found out later.

On Sunday afternoon Jean called for the package and took a long slender box handsomely bedecked with red ribbon around to the home of the young woman in question. When he arrived he handed the package to the object of his affections and proceeded to the library to await the announcement of the evening meal. Meanwhile he was at loss to understand why the opening of the parcel had not brought forth endearing words and an outpouring of thanks, instead of deep silence. Finally there was a cool "Supper is ready," and Jean proceeded to the dining room. The rest is best told in Jean's words:

"I sat down at the table, wondering at the ungratefulness of a woman for whom I had spent twelve dollars for the best umbrella I could buy, and at the same time basking in an atmosphere peculiar to regions north of the Arctic Circle. I started to eat supper without relish or appetite and not a suggestion of a smile or word of thanks could I get from Miss Blank. Upon rising from the meal I happened to look around and there I saw in the corner, instead of a handsome pearl and gold-handled umbrella, an old relic with a corn-cob pipe for a handle and my card of greeting attached to it. That remnant of an umbrella was positively the worst looking apology for something to shed water that I ever saw. There were only a few ribs left and the covering had been rent in many places by wind and storm. Of course, I explained as best I could, but it took some time to raise the temperature of the room to normal."

Saturday night, after Jean had gone, the boys got the apology for an umbrella and substituted it for Jean's handsome gift. Sunday night, about six o'clock, he came into the store as if Old Nick was after him, rushed over to the closet and upon seeing his original umbrella reposing in all its glory in the corner, he breathed a sigh of relief, and turning around to the boys who could hardly restrain their laughter, he smiled and said: "Well, by gosh, that was a well-laid plan." And off he went with the new umbrella to square himself with Miss Blank.

My English friend informs me that the old clay "churchwarden" pipes are not quite so extinct as we might be led to believe, and that in the remoter districts of Lancashire the "yard of clay" figures quite prominently at funerals.

On the return of the mourners to the late home of the deceased a box of "long clays" is unsealed and the pipes handed to the male members of the company, who, ringing before the fire, indulge in the memories of old days called forth by the occasion. At breaking up the pipes are snapped in significance that the occasion for their use is ended.

The lawyers for the tobacco companies then brought up several suggestions as to what they might do to meet the views of the Government, and agreed to formulate some plan which they would have ready on Monday, March 30th, thus hoping to avoid action in the courts.

At the conference held today nothing was made public, but it is expected that a statement will be issued later.

Despite the fact that the Government is willing to agree to some basis of settlement with the tobacco companies which would satisfy their demands as to the legal operations of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company within a given scope, and that the lawyers are now busy trying to frame such a plan, the belief prevails that nothing short of actual going out of business, or, in other words, dissolution of the Metropolitan as a jobbing concern will be acceptable to the Federal authorities.

KNICKERBOCKER.

Expect Favorable Report on Underwood Bill

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 30, 1914.

There seems to be a slight majority of the members of the Ways and Means Committee in favor of the anti-coupon bill and now that it has been printed it is expected that there will be a meeting shortly to recommend some sort of legislation on it. Some of the members say they are undecided as to just what stand they will take in the matter.

At the time of the hearing articles appeared in several of the big metropolitan newspapers insinuating that the bill was backed by some of the majority stockholders of the large tobacco companies. It was pointed out that since the dissolution of the Tobacco Trust in 1911, it had been a case of "every fellow for himself" and that the several companies in working along this line had not felt any too friendly toward the "United," who have offered the biggest opposition to the bill. One article further stated that the "United" bought generously of independent manufacturers and that for this reason they had incurred the displeasure of several of the big companies. For this reason, it was argued, several of the big tobacco companies would be glad to see such as the Underwood bill passed.

Representative Underwood, however, does not believe that such is the case and points out that the hundreds of independent manufacturers and retailers would not fight so hard for the passage of this bill if it were going to benefit only the big companies.

Camp Importation Company to Occupy New Quarters

Brought into existence but a few months ago, the "Camp" cigarette, a turkish product manufactured by the Camp Importation Company, New York City, has achieved such a success that the company find it necessary to increase their quarters and have leased a loft at 105 West Thirty-ninth Street, and will occupy the same shortly.

Old Association Reorganized

Manuel Sanchez Does Not Aspire to Politics—Tampa-Cuba Head Visits New York—Fire Partially Destroys Cigar Factory—"Flor de Bolano" Now Made in Bond

TAMPA, FLA., March 27, 1914.

IN these days of political activity, one hears much concerning the nominee for this office and the nominee for that, but it is not often that one hears a protest from the supposed nominee that such is not the case. However, it seems that the name of Manuel Sanchez, of Berriman Brothers cigar factory, had been mentioned in connection with the office of Commissioner of Public Works, and as Mr. Sanchez does not aspire to the honor, he thought it best that his friends know about it. Hence, the notice.

Speaking of candidates, Joaquin Lopez, a member of the cigar manufacturing firm of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother has given his consent to run for office as a representative on the Board of Public Works.

Robert Tanksley and William H. Clements, salesmen for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, are here at present. This is Mr. Clements' first trip to Tampa, he being a new man in this territory.

Quite an influx of orders is reported at the factory of the J. M. Martinez Company on their famous "Norma Martinez."

Samuel I. Davis & Company are kept busy keeping up with the demand for "El Sidelo."

Important business matters requiring attention, called Jose Lovera, accompanied by Mrs. Lovera, to New York last week. "Flor de Lovera" needs no introduction to the trade.

John Carlisle, who takes care of the Western end of the State for Liggett & Myers spent a few days here recently.

Fire last night partially destroyed the cigar factory of Philip Citisci, a cigar manufacturer, located on Seventeenth Street, between Twelfth and Thirteenth Avenues, a loss of about $2500 being entailed. The cause of the fire is unknown, but is thought to have started through contact of a lighted cigar with other inflammable material. The fire had gained much headway before it was discovered, the flames having taken quite a hold on the building by the time the fire department arrived. The stock in the building, one-half of which was destroyed, is reported to have been valued at $3000.

Fred Dalton, who looks after distribution for Eli Witt, recently spent a week in the southern part of Florida, calling on the trade.

Among the building permits taken out lately, was one by Arguelles, Lopez, for an addition to his factory at Twenty-first Street and Fifteenth Avenue, to cost $2640.

A. L. Cuesta, of Cuesta, Rey & Company, recently spent a few days in Atlanta, on business.

In a recent interview with a member of the firm of Grommes & Elson, it was stated that the reason this well-known firm have not opened a factory in Tampa ere this, was due to the fact that being Chicagoans, they believed in manufacturing cigars in that city, which, according to their creed is a fine place in which to manufacture clear Havana cigars. Relative to the future conduct of the recently acquired Bolano interests, Grommes & Elson will run the factory here for the exclusive manufacture of "Flor de Bolano" cigars and the other brands manufactured by the former company. The new factory is to manufacture in bond just as soon as arrangements to that effect can be completed.

PERFECTO.

Duke Building, Durham, Destroyed

Damage amounting to more than $1,000,000, a fair portion of which was covered by insurance, was the result of a fire which recently visited the James R. Duke five story office building at Durham, N. C. The fire is said to have started in a plumbing shop located in the building. The flames spread with such rapidity that it looked for awhile as if the entire business district of Durham was doomed. The building itself was destroyed.

Fifty thousand postcards showing the various departments of the factory have been printed for P. Pohalski & Company, New York, which are now being sent throughout the trade for distribution to the public.

PHILADELPHIA.

Boltz, Clymer & Company Bond Tampa Factory

ADVICES from Boltz, Clymer & Company, Tampa, are to the effect that arrangements have all been perfected whereby their splendid new factory in Tampa will take advantage of the recently enacted law and become a bonded factory April first or thereabouts, so that after the date named their old-established brand of "El Palencia" cigars will bear the Government guarantee that the goods are all made of Havana tobacco, though the customers of the house for years past have been absolutely sure of this fact.

In going into bond, John H. Boltz, Jr., perfected an arrangement which might have been copied by other bonded manufacturers to a good purpose. He bonded their entire factory, but left the office section of the building free from governmental control so that members of the company could have access to it whenever desired. In adopting this course he was compelled, however, to entirely separate the office from the factory by solid partitions, but it gives the company an opportunity to remain in their offices at all hours after the eight-hour Government Inspector has closed up the factory. This is a convenience which manufacturers will appreciate later on.

John H. Boltz, Sr., is expected in Tampa in a week or so for his annual visit to their Southern plant.

Henry Ashburner Buys Old Cigar Store

Henry Ashburner, for many years connected with Duncan & Moorehead, has purchased the cigar business located at 206 South Fourth Street, which first opened its doors for business in 1856 under the ownership of Chas. G. Artzt.

Mr. Artzt was during his life one of the prominent factors in the cigar business in this city, and upon his death the business passed into the hands of his son, who still continued the business under the same title as that adopted by his father.

The output of this store consists principally of box trade for Tampa-made and Havana cigars, though all the popular domestic brands are carried in stock.

James L. Lee, who has been handing smokes over the counter for the past fifteen years, will retain his position as manager, which position he has held for the past seven years, since the death of Chas. G. Artzt, second.

The cigar department of the Finley Acker Company, are securing repeat orders on the "El Sidelo" smokers made by Samuel I. Davis & Company, Tampa and New York.

The Falk Tobacco Company, New York and Richmond, was represented in Philadelphia last week by Albert Falk, a member of the company.

Philadelphia Notes

Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, are well pleased by the continued repeat orders which they have received on their "Statesmen" cigars throughout the recently opened territory in the Middle West.

Terry & Duncan, Tenth and Chestnut Streets, have received a new shipment of Sanchez & Haya Company cigars, which are now made in bond. This firm are the distributors for the products of Factory Number 1 in Tampa, and are ready to meet any requirement in size or quantity.

The Market and Juniper Street store of Yahn & McDonnell, are featuring "Tungsten" foil-wrapped cigars, made by Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd.

W. P. Bushell has returned to Philadelphia after a successful Southern trip on the products of the Jose Lovera factory.

"Hi" Hammer closed some attractive business while in Philadelphia last week for Corral, Wodiska y Ca., on their well-known "Regreso" brand, now being handled extensively by Yahn & McDonnell.

Edw. Wodiska, of Corral, Wodiska y Ca., Tampa, Fla., left recently for an European trip which will probably cover a period of three or four months. Mr. Wodiska is on pleasure bent.

Jorge Leon, of San Martin & Leon, will buy the smokes when he arrives in Philadelphia this week accompanied by his bride.

H. Upmann & Company, Havana and New York, are giving away an attractive novelty in the shape of a vest pocket cigar cutter. The end is clipped by the pressure of the finger, and will last indefinitely as the cutter contains no spring to wear out.

Charles L. Staples, whose hobby is "Hoyo de Monterrey," was in Philadelphia last week after a successful trip through the South, which reached as far south as Texas. This trip is made by Mr. Staples twice a year and the new accounts opened each trip indicate that the demand for high-grade cigars is steadily growing.

Chicago

Retail Trade Keeping up to Average—Rumor That Best & Russell May Give up Old Location—"Ben Bey Cubans" Being Pushed—Reid, Murdock & Company Move to New Building

CHICAGO, ILL., March 26, 1914.

GENERAL conditions in the cigar and tobacco trade have been good during the past two weeks, in harmony with most other lines of business. Of course, in taking a view of a trade such as the one under discussion, it is necessary to consider the three great branches, namely, the manufacturing, the jobbing and the retailing ends. Each has more or less influence upon the other. Beginning with the retail end, because this is by far the most important when it comes to seeking a barometer for the trade, the fact is apparent that the usual number of cigars, cigarettes and tobaccos are being sold at this time of the year. Few complaints are heard from the retailers, either in the stands in the loop district or in the stores in the residence section of the city. In fact, retail trade seems unusually good for this time of the year. In particular, a large number of high grade cigars are being smoked by the public. This may be explained by the fact that most of the people in this great home of opportunity are making money, and that they consider the best none too good for them.

Really this ought to appear in the "Corner Store Chat," but the fact that it is news in the pure sense demands that it be inserted in this column. Last week a terrible wind howled across the prairies and tried to pick the town up and throw it into the lake. Many plate glass windows were blown in. Among others was that of Sam Marco's cigar store, on the northeast corner of Adams Street and Fifth Avenue. The large pane crashed late in the afternoon under the persuasion of a particularly forceful blast. Goods which had been used to form a window display were thrown into confusion. To save the property of the store from the great crowd which gathered, the police stretched a rope across the exterior of the store to prevent looting.

New incorporations during the past two weeks include that of G. Bluthardt & Company, with a capital of $10,000, to manufacture and deal in imported and domestic cigars, tobacco and smoking implements. The incorporators are Jacob Miller, William H. Morris and Arthur C. Hoffman. The concern is one of the few new cigar and tobacco manufacturing and selling concerns which has been started here since the first of the year.

William Best, Jr., of Best & Russell, was out of the city the latter part of last week on a business trip to local points. Rumor says that the store at Washington Street and Fifth Avenue is to be discontinued soon, as that section of the city does not seem to be making as much progress as some of the other portions. To tell the truth, the elevated railroad is the bane of the city and all the places of business on the streets which bear the brunt of the noise and dirt are injured more or less by the presence of the nuisance. The union loop circles the downtown section like a great straggling serpent, preventing the expansion of the downtown business section and at the same time causing almost insufferable congestion within its limits.

Robert Brunton, city salesman for Grommes & Elston, is tearing up the turf on the new "Ben Bey Cubans" which were put on the market by that firm some time ago. He is one of the most energetic pushers of the brand. In addition he sells plenty of the other cigars of the firm while he is resting from his strenuous endeavors on the Cubans.

Few cigar stands in the city put up a nicer appearance than the one in the Tower Building, as the remodeled structure formerly occupied by Montgomery Ward & Company is called. The stand is operated by Dettleback, Beckman & Ostheimer, and is located at the elbow of the Rotunda of the building. The usual brands of domestic and imported cigars are carried. "La Venga," "Flor de Bolano," "Jose Vila," "Cyrilla," "Charles the Great," "Van Dyck," and a number of other favorite brands are leaders.

G. E. McKenny, manager of the cigar department of Grossfeld & Roe, large west side wholesale grocers, announces that he has added two new brands, in the "Alona," of the Gene-Vall Cigar Company, and "La Palina," of the Congress Cigar Company. The department is one of the best conducted of the many ably conducted cigar departments of Chicago's wholesale groceries.

"Our Combination" is the name of a new cigar just out and manufactured by Rosenfeld Brothers for the Charles Donovan Cigar Company. The cigar sells for six cents through the week, with special sales at five cents on Saturday and Sunday, thus following an idea which has worked out very successfully here in connection with certain other brands.

The Fort Dearborn Hotel has been thrown open, and has a cigar department which will compare well with the cigar departments of the other hostelries of the city. The new hotel is owned by the Sherman Hotel Company, which is proof that everything will be conducted in a most modern manner. The Fort Dearborn is located on the southeast corner of Van Buren and La Salle Streets, and will cater to high-class trade from the Chicago Board of Trade, located within a stone's throw.

James Pfauts, who was formerly with the Wohl & Comstock Company, has gone with the Charles Donovan Cigar Company as city salesman, and will devote his efforts in the immediate future to selling "Mi Lola" cigars.

The Gene-Vall Cigar Company has completed arrangements with Lescure Brothers, of Danville, Ill., by means of which "Alona" cigar will be featured in all of the eight stores operated by the down state firm. The Company has branchs in Springfield and Champaign. Recently a new store was opened. The deal was made through Charles H. Storm, Western representative of the Gene-Vall Cigar Company.

Louis Weiller has sold his retail store at 5155 Broadway. In the future he will give all his time to his new place on Argyle Avenue.

Reid, Murdock & Company have moved into the new building which has been in course of construction for some time past. The cigar department was one of the first departments of the large wholesale grocery house to make the migration. Going on the rule of first come, best served, the cigar department is now about installed in the best location in the new home, being just inside the entrance on Clark Street on the ground floor. In the old place the department was on the second floor and it was necessary to make half a dozen turns and meanderings before you finally arrived at your destination. The new location has none of these disadvantages. The choice space given to the cigar department by the officers of the firm are an indication of the record which has been made by the members during the past few years.

Preparations have already been made to receive Franklin MacVeagh & Company in the large nine-story building at the intersection of Lake and Market Streets, which has been vacated by Reid, Murdock & Company. While the present aspect is somewhat dreary to that which has been usual during the past few years, nevertheless when the new firm is established business will go on around the corner in much the same manner. Some of the property of the cigar department has already been moved.

Site Purchased for Factory

The United Cigar Manufacturers' Company have recently acquired title to a tract of land 140 by 200 feet, at Morley and Wilson Avenues, Youngstown, O. It is stated that a four-story brick building will be erected on this plot in the near future.

The present factory of this company is located in East Commerce Street, but it has grown too small for the present needs of the company.

May Raise Tobacco at Chico

Rumor is current that Fresno County, Cal., capitalists have been scouring around Chico, for the purpose of securing lands on which to start the raising of tobacco, the advance in price for land at Fresno being given as the reason of the establishment of new fields for the industry. It is stated that a tract at Thermalitos, near Chico, is now being negotiated for, on which a small planting will be made this season, should the deal prove successful.

New Warehouse for Fresno

What is reported to be the first steps in a plan to establish a cigarette factory at Fresno, Cal., is the erection in that city of a large tobacco warehouse for a New York syndicate, which, it is stated, purchased about 200,000 pounds of the 1913 crop of the San Joaquin Valley. The warehouse, which is to occupy a space of 100 by 200 feet, will be located on Butler Avenue.

Leavenworth Cigar Firm Growing

Dolde & Kelsey, a recently established cigar manufacturing firm at 522 South Fifth Street, Leavenworth, Kan., report that business on their brands is most encouraging and that their "KD" and "La Grandia" cigars are on sale in practically every cigar store in Leavenworth.

The cigars are hand made; the "KD" contains a domestic blend, while the "La Grandia" is a clear Havana, it being made from Santa Clara goods.

Midget Cigar Store Features "Charles the Great"

This photograph shows the interior of the Midget Cigar Store, of Peoria, Ill., where "Charles the Great" cigars are featured and extensively sold. "Van Dyck" and other high-class goods are to be found here.

G. A. Dersch directs the fortunes of the Midget Cigar Company, and, as the appearance of the store indicates, carries a line that will fulfill the requirements of the most exacting smoker.

G. J. Johnson and the Minimum Wage

THE Minimum Wage Commission held a hearing before the merchants and manufacturers of Grand Rapids on March 17th, at the rooms of the Association of Commerce. The hearing was for the purpose of finding out what business men in the Furniture City had to say about a minimum wage for women. G. J. Johnson, of the Johnson Cigar Company, opened the symposium by reading what he declared was his purely personal view. He declared himself in favor of a minimum wage, until "we have more jobs than we have workers." He stated that in talks with a half-dozen intelligent women in his employ, he had found that a woman cannot well support herself for less than $9 to $10 per week, which figures he admitted was more than people in his business could afford to pay beginners or apprentices.

Mr. Johnson based his estimate on the following expense allowance or weekly budget, which he admitted he regarded as rather high in some minor details, although not in the essentials: Laundry, 75 cents; medical aid, 50 cents; wearing apparel, $2.00; room rent, $2.00; meals, $2.50; insurance, 25 cents; church, 10 cents; dentistry, 25 cents; incidentals (including street car fares), $1; total, $10.35. Mr. Johnson said that if his company could be forced to accept the same conditions he would not care how high the minimum wage was put.

He admitted that girls beginning the business as apprentices could not earn and do not receive more than $4 to $5 per week and that those one grade advanced earn from $6 to $7 per week, but stated that women who became proficient can earn at "piecework" in his factory from $15 to $18 per week. He said he thought it would take a girl a year to become competent to earn $9 per week, and he figured the cost to the factory of teaching a girl to become expert enough to earn that wage at an average of $75.

Mr. Johnson thought that if provision could be made in the law for apprentice workers a satisfactory minimum could be adopted. Then he said: "The first question we ask of a girl who applies for work is 'Do you live at home?' If the answer is 'No,' we don't give her work, because we know she can not live honestly on beginner's wages. I recognize the injustice of it. It isn't fair. It is inhuman. But we have to do it."

Mr. Johnson's high computations naturally provoked arguments to the contrary from manufacturers in other lines, who let it be known in no uncertain terms that their businesses wouldn't stand the shock of any such wages. One member of the firm of Lubetsky Brothers, cigar manufacturers in Grand Rapids, endorsed every utterance of Mr. Johnson and made it even stronger. His partner, however, held a different view.

"Reyes" Cigarettes Fine Turkish Product

Among the many cigarettes that are constantly making their appearance, "Reyes," manufactured by the Reyes Cigarette Company, 90 Wall Street, New York City, has found high favor with many discriminating smokers. These cigarettes are made of fine Turkish tobacco and put up in a neat purple package with "Reyes" in gold script across the lid. Manuel Lopez, Jr., is president of this new company.

Autos for Waitt & Bond

Five new White Roadsters, each built with a special trunk to contain samples of the various brands and sizes of cigars, have been purchased by Waitt & Bond, of Boston, for the use of their salesmen who are compelled to cover extensive territories. A feature of the purchase is that the new cars are of a much higher grade, and much more expensive than former cars bought by the company, the latter not having been equal to the demands made upon them. Certainly the distribution of the company's brands will receive a new impetus, especially the famous "Blackstone" brand.

Louis Martin's restaurant, located at Broadway and Sixtieth Street, has been taken over by Messrs. Andre and Jacques Bustanoby, prominent in the restaurant life of New York, who will conduct the place under the title of "Bustanoby's Uptown." The cigar department, one of the former attractions of the restaurant, will come in for its full share of attention also.

New Gonzalez & Sanchez Factory

THE accompanying photograph gives a fair impression of the structural beauty of the new factory of the Gonzalez & Sanchez Company, which they occupied a few months ago in Jacksonville, Fla.

The factory is located on East Adams Street, 800-826, and embodies every new wrinkle in factory construction which has been developed in the past years of progress.

The building was constructed under the personal supervision of George W. Hardee, the managing director of the company, and the exterior as well as the interior is most attractive.

The company have recently brought out a new shape which they have named "Tangos" in honor of the present dancing fad which has swept all over the country.

"Havana Ribbon" Business Shows Good Increase

Bayuk Brothers Company are closing their books with a very successful month's business, the final figures showing a nice percentage of increase over March, 1913. Business in the different territories points to a very satisfactory condition, reports from the various men indicating active business for some time to come.

A. B. Creech, Texas representative, is securing excellent results in the Lone Star State and is at the present time conducting an active sales campaign in favor of the Houston Drug Company, who have jurisdiction in the Houston territory.

E. C. Bolm, Missouri and Kansas representative, is preparing for an extended trip through his territory, with Kansas City as his objective point, where he intends inaugurating a sales campaign in favor of Sol. H. Cohn Company, who have control of the brand for the Kansas City territory.

The Stickney-Hoelscher Cigar Company, of St. Louis, are enjoying an enviable distribution of "Havana Ribbon," as are the Jett & Wood Company, of Wichita, and Wellington, Kan.

Mr. Sam Bayuk is still in Amsterdam, attending the Sumatra inscriptions and will scarcely leave there for home before the second week in April.

"Jose Vila" Selling Big in 'Frisco.

Hypolite Bier, the San Francisco distributor of "Jose Vila," made-in-bond cigar, by Berriman Brothers, Tampa, Fla., asserts that dealers are making preparations for the biggest year in their history. Mr. Bier is much enthused over the success of the "Jose Vila" line, and it is worthy of note that this brand is to be found on practically all the prominent stands in the city. The distributor states that all reports indicate that the cigar is giving satisfaction and that the made-in-bond stamp has done much to increase the sale of the goods. San Francisco ranks "Jose Vila" among one of the biggest high-grade selling cigars in the city.

American Sumatra Wrappers

REPORTS received from the American Sumatra Tobacco Company, whose headquarters are at 131 Water Street, New York, indicate that the popularity of the shade-grown wrappers produced on the company's great plantations in Connecticut, Georgia and Florida is steadily increasing with each year of the business.

President Julius Lichtenstein, of the American Sumatra Company, is rated as one of the closest students of tobacco and tobacco culture in this country, and he has accomplished, together with his associates, the rejuvenation of a great industry both in the South and in New England.

American shade-grown Sumatra wrappers have proven themselves beyond dispute, and the crop this year is a delight to look upon and equally pleasing when made up into cigars of all grades. The cigars wrapped with Florida shade-grown have demonstrated that they have the finest burning qualities, fragrant bouquet, and the yield is such that the large and small manufacturer alike finds in the use of these wrappers a margin of profit in the making of his goods which is a tremendous argument for their consumption.

The company's new warerooms down on Water Street, which they occupied a few months ago, are superbly adapted for their business and the showrooms on the top floors give the buyers every desired advantage as far as a proper inspection of the various showings is concerned.

Big Distribution Sending "Ramado" Ahead

"Ramado" cigarettes, made by the National Tobacco Products Company, are getting a good hold on the consumer, from recent reports. The distribution has increased enormously in the short time that the cigarette has been on the market. The company sees big things ahead and is helping its retailers by attractively printed display placards. The offices of the company are at 355 West Thirty-sixth Street.

"Blue Peter" Cigarettes Nationally Advertised

Reaching the consumer through several nationally circulated magazines has done much to put "Blue Peter" cigarettes on the road to a successful distribution. Although the company has been manufacturing about a year, it has only recently started to "deliver the goods."

The cigarette is a high-grade proposition put up in a flat red package, the lid of which is embellished with a burgee with a blue field and a white center. Beneath this in gold letters is printed "Blue Peter Cigarettes." The cigarettes are packed in this attractive package with either plain or cork tips.

A store has recently been opened at 1600 Broadway, devoted exclusively to the making and sale of "Blue Peter." The cigarettes are made in the window by a woman in oriental garb, and this unique advertisement has brought many customers to the store. Headquarters of the company are at 74 Beaver Street.

Begins Suit to Collect Insurance

Suit was recently begun by the London Whiffs Cigar Company, of 460 Woodland Avenue, S. E., Cleveland, O., to collect insurance aggregating $17,000 for a fire which damaged a building owned by it at 2318 Ontario Street. The fire occurred December 31, 1912.

Twelve insurance companies are made defendants for amounts varying from $500 to $2500. The petition claims damage to the amount of $4200 to the company's stock of cigars and tobacco and machinery by the blaze, and states that none of the insurance companies have paid any part of the claims.

Falk Tobacco Company's New Quarters

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Falk Tobacco Company, who have long maintained their New York headquarters at 149 Broadway, that they will remove uptown next month.

When Albert Falk returned from his recent trip to their factory in Richmond, Va., the company decided to take a lease on two floors in the new building which has just been constructed at 56 West Forty-fifth Street, just a few doors east of Sixth Avenue. Here they will have two entire floors, which will be devoted to the handling of their "Herbert Tareyton" smoking tobacco and "Tareyton" cigarettes, as well as the other brands which they make. The popularity of their "Tareyton" goods has grown so widespread that their present quarters were found entirely unavailable.

Albert Falk left last Wednesday for a short trip out West as far as Chicago, and upon his return the removal will be effected.

New Jobbing House in Harlem

Packer Brothers have just opened up at 328 West 125th Street, New York, an uptown jobbing house handling cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and playing cards, which should prove a great convenience to many dealers in the upper part of Manhattan.

The new concern will act as agents for S. Monday & Sons, the prominent Brooklyn house, and will feature all the brands manufactured or distributed by this concern, but their business will not be limited to the Monday lines and they will stock all goods for which there may be a call.

Both of the members of the firm are well versed in their business and they should make an immediate success of it.

Tobacco Men in Chewing Gum Combine

It has been announced by Percival S. Hill, president of the American Tobacco Company, that the plans for the new Chewing Gum Combine have reached a stage where it is known that the capitalization will be between $5,000,000 and $6,000,000. It is stated that negotiations are now under way with the Autosales Gum & Chocolate Company whereby its most important gum manufacturing plants will be taken over. Mr. Hill stated that the venture was not undertaken by the American Tobacco Company, but was purely personal to himself and several of his friends.

"Old Drury" Cigarettes Making a Hit

"Old Drury," the cigarette in the little yellow packing, although only a few months old, is finding prominent display space in many of New York's most prominent clubs, cafes and hotels.

The Old Drury Cigarette Company, located at 143 West Fortieth Street, finds that the demand for the brand is growing rapidly, and already applications have been received for the distribution of the brand in distant territories. Several large houses in New York are considering the distribution of the brand, and it is apparent from the sales records that the "Old Drury" is, as its makers claim, "a cigarette that sells itself."

H. Duys & Company in the Forefront

CABLE advices to his house from John H. Duys, who is attending the inscriptions at Amsterdam, relate that he is once again leading all American buyers in securing big lots of Sumatra for the American market.

At the first sale Mr. Duys bought conservatively as the offerings did not particularly impress him as to quality for home consumption, but at that he took in 200 bales which were of excellent color and quality.

At the second inscription on Friday, March 20th, Mr. Duys went at the sales with his old-time vigor, and the results as sent home was a total buy for the day of 1050 bales, all top-notch tobacco. He reported that the quality of the tobacco shown at the second inscription was much more pleasing than that exhibited at the first, hence his liberal purchases. Included in his lots were 380 bales of Deli My/QM; 352 bales Senembah My/p; 134 bales Dolok Deli; 158 bales Amst Deli Co./C, and scattering lots to total the 1050 for the day.

His initial purchases at the first inscription are already in New York, and the firm announce that the samples will be open for inspection at their warerooms, 170 Water Street, tomorrow, April 2d.

Back From Porto Rico

President F. R. Hoisington, of the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company, reached New York last week after his annual visit to the company's plantations and factory in Porto Rico.

Mr. Hoisington expressed himself as delighted with the outlook for the coming new crop, and stated that in color and quality it should prove one of the most satisfactory crops ever produced on the island.

The Cayey-Caguas plantations have been especially favored by Nature and the tobacco which will go into "Savaronas" this year will enhance, if possible, the fine reputation which these goods have made for themselves all over the United States.

Arabesca Sales Are Growing

Selling Agent Oakes, of the "Arabesca" cigarettes, which have been favorably known on the market for some years in a limited way, states that the goods are being produced today in an ever increasing volume and that the monthly sales have been increased by several hundred thousands since January first.

The "Arabesca" cigarette showrooms are located in the Mecca Building, 1600 Broadway, and they have just found it necessary to put in more machinery to keep up with their orders.

R. A. Bachia y Ca., of 43 West Sixteenth Street, New York, report a continued demand for their high-grade clear Havana cigars. This firm specialize only on the finest character of goods, and their product is becoming more widely known every year in select clubs and in territory where quality is absolutely necessary to make sales.

Detroit

Business Conditions Below Normal—Want to Close All Pool Rooms at Midnight—Live Goose Used to Advertise "Miss Detroit"—Albert Worch Now on Pacific Coast

DETROIT, MICH., March 25, 1914.

ROBERT LANE, American representative of the "Partagas" cigar, was in Detroit on March 21, and remained a few days. He succeeded in placing several new sizes at the Hotel Pontchartrain and other leading stores. Mr. Lane paid "The Tobacco World" a great compliment when he said he thought it was one of the leading trade journals, and that it was deserving of the fullest support from cigar and cigarette manufacturers. No matter where I go, East, West, South or North, I see the "World," he added.

For some reason or other, general business conditions in Detroit have fallen off in the past thirty days. This does not particularly apply to the retail or manufacturing cigar industry, but to every line of endeavor. The other day a man came to the counter at the Hotel Pontchartrain and said that he could close a $100,000 worth of life insurance which he had actually been promised providing business would improve. A prominent calendar salesman, who has always taken thousands of dollars' worth of business out of Detroit during the months of February and March, said, for the first time since he has been coming here has he heard merchants complain that business was not up to the standard. A laundry owner who always buys his cigars at the Pontchartrain, said his business had fallen off and that he could speak the same for most of his competitors. Banks are not backward in reporting that there is no demand for money. We do not mention these things to be pessimistic; every Detroiter believes in the slogan: "In Detroit life is worth living," but readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD would much prefer to know the truth in preference to exaggerated reports. The lull in business is undoubtedly a temporary one, and with the arrival of warmer weather, when builders will get a chance to start their construction work, there is little doubt that business will get better than ever.

The night clerk at the Hotel Metropole, Detroit, was held up at the point of a revolver on March 19th, and robbed of $400, part of the day's receipts.

A well-known cigar salesman recently returned from the Northern Peninsula of Michigan, and makes this report. "Many of the leading merchants in the northern part of the State are of the opinion that business of late has been better than it has been for some time. Many are very optimistic and are of the opinion that business will continue to pick up, especially as spring is coming on, and within a short time conditions will be back to normal. The strike has raised havoc in the business world and there are but few business houses that have not felt the results of the men being out of work. Since the calling of the strike last July, business in general has been on the downward path."

William J. Chittenden, Sr., for many years proprietor of the old Russell House, and a large stockholder in the Hotel Pontchartrain, died on March 20th, at Tarrytown, N. Y. Burial was in Detroit on March 23. He is survived by two daughters, and two sons, one of whom is William J. Chittenden, Jr., who is manager of and part owner in the Hotel Pontchartrain.

John Jones has opened a retail cigar store in Hillsdale, Mich.

The United Cigar Stores Company has opened another store in Detroit, at the corner of Monroe Avenue and the Campus Martius. Whoever picked the location, did a nice job, as it is unquestionably the most prominent corner in the city, and is getting more popular every day.

The Grand Cafe window of the Harry W. Watson Company has been carrying a "Van Dyke" display of cigars for the past two weeks.

Charles Reattoir, one of the district managers for the American Tobacco Company, lost his father on March 9. He was seventy-five years of age.

James J. Brady, the newly-appointed Internal Revenue Collector for the First District of Michigan, took the office on March 16th.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, is now on the Pacific Coast, where it is understood he has made arrangements to put out a new brand for J. S. Bachman, large jobbers. The cigar is to be hand-made, on the order of the Niles & Moser hand-made. Mr. Worch is expected back early in April.

Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, says he never felt better in his life. Business is good, collections are good and the outlook is fine.

A big goose, on which is a red blanket bearing the words: "Miss Detroit, five-cent cigar," is the center of attraction on the downtown streets of Detroit. The goose follows its owner, who is a man; the two of them keep walking around the main thoroughfares and seem to thoroughly enjoy their work. The idea is very novel and is bringing results.

We are sorry to report that Gordon Bailey is no longer connected with the Tobacco Products Company. Gordon was well liked here, as well as everywhere he traveled in the interest of his company, and his disconnection with the firm came not because of lack of ability, but on account of the reorganization of the various departments.

Sandy Stewart, of the Superior Cigar Manufacturing Company, is back from a trip through the Middle West in the interest of the "Saturday Evening Post" cigar, which he says is coming to the front very rapidly.

Arthur Gramm, well-known local cigar retailer, and recently operating the cigar stand in the Trussed Concrete Building, has become associated with the Cadillac Cigar Company, and will look after sales in the downtown district.

The Oppenheimer Cigar store, on East Main Street, in Battle Creek, has had erected a very attractive electric sign over the entrance.

There seems to be a widespread movement to close pool rooms in all parts of the State at midnight. This comes about as a result of the recent outbreaks of lawlessness which started in pool rooms as well as the number of "bad boys" caught hanging around these places. There is nothing wrong with a pool room conducted on legitimate and straight lines. It is a hobby or sport with many men, the same as bowling, or fishing, or motoring, but the fault lies with the proprietors in permitting young boys to hang around, and use profane language, as well as to fight and argue. The Detroit ordinance, which was recently passed, calls for pool rooms to close at 12, while in Marquette, an ordinance is proposed, which calls for 11 P. M. closing.

In the passing of Isaac Lichtig, Mt. Clemens lost one of her most valuable citizens. Mr. Lichtig had been suffering for the past four months, and was confined to his home most of the time. He was sent to Battle Creek early in the fall, but returned, as it was found his trouble had gone too far to be remedied. Mr. Lichtig was fifty-two years of age. A wife and four children survive him. He was a brother to Harry Lichtig, proprietor of the cigar stand at the Park Hotel, and formerly proprietor of the cigar stands at the Medea and Sherman House. Isaac, for ten years, looked after the Park Hotel stand. His loss will be keenly felt by all who knew him.

Judd & Martin succeed Judd & Manuel in the cigar business in Neulah, Mich.

A. D. Servin, for some time proprietor of the Carpathia cigar store, at 31 South Jefferson Avenue, Battle Creek, has sold his business to John Holds. The Carpathia will hereafter be known as the Henson & Holds Cigar Company.

The Harnitt & Hewitt Company, wholesale cigar and tobacco dealers, Toledo, O., has moved its offices from the corner rooms in the Hall Block, Jefferson Avenue and St. Clair Street, to the new quarters prepared for the company in the same block.

Seven Cigar Factories in Jackson

The "Citizen-Press," in Jackson, Mich., recently contained the following interesting item: "A whole lot of the money that is earned in Jackson is spent for cigars, but Jackson makes cigars and an enormous amount of them. To say that the local manufacturers have a combined output of 200,000 cigars per month is a conservative estimate, according to a prominent Jackson concern. That would be about 2,400,000 cigars per year, to say nothing of the brands that are made in other towns and consumed here. There are seven cigar factories in this city: Dibble & Company, Central City, Sattler's, Keys & Schoenhard, Callahan's, Myers Brothers, and Schlenker's. Fully 100 men and women are employees in the manufacture of these goods. The death of Captain T. H. Phillips has removed during the past year one of the best-known manufacturers in Jackson, but his "Buds," "Ferndales" and other brands are still being made for the market and doubtless will be for years to come. There are probably thirty different brands of cigars made in Jackson, perhaps the newest one is known as the "Chief Boyle." It is made in both five- and ten-cent goods, and is put out by the Sattler factory. Boyle was ex-Chief of Police."

Battle Creek Cigar Store Changes Owners

The Carpathia Cigar Store, recently located at 31 South Jefferson Avenue, Battle Creek, Mich., has been sold by A. D. Servin, proprietor, to John Holds and Ellis Henson. The business will be conducted in the future under the name of the Henson & Holds Cigar Company.

Louis Engleman, of McKeesport, Pa., who has successfully conducted one of the best retail cigar stores in that town for the past eight years, has announced that he will retire from this business in a few days. Mr. Joe Glass, who is thoroughly experienced in the cigar business, will take over this store.

R. Thompson, manager of the cigar department of the W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, reports business very satisfactory on "El Verso," "San Felice," "Girard," "Roig" and "Gato" cigars. This firm has recently taken on the "Steber" cigar and are having a big success with same.

The Moore Cigar Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., have taken on the "Cuesta-Rey" cigar in three sizes. This cigar is distributed by Shipley-Massingham Drug Company, of Pittsburgh.

Edwards, have completed a most successful campaign on "Mecca 20's" in Western Pennsylvania territory. The gift scheme of the American flag on "Meccas" resulted in the most successful one ever worked in this section. The entire crew is now engaged in a campaign on "Omars," their large selling blended brand. The crew is receiving their usual welcome from the Pittsburgh dealers.

R. J. Dalzell, East End's popular cigar man, is enjoying good business, especially on "Walnut Blend" tobacco. He is the sole distributor for this brand of tobacco in Pittsburgh.

The C. A. Gibbs Company have received their first shipment of bonded cigars from F. Lozano Sons & Company, of Tampa, Fla.

E. G. Dunlap, of San Martin & Leon, Tampa.
W. D. Walker, of S. S. Pierce Company, Boston.
R. B. Appenheimer, of Heinemann Brothers, Baltimore.
C. L. Staples, Park & Tilford.
A. J. McBlair, formerly of Maxelino Perez Company, of New York, now with John W. Merriman, of New York.
Fred W. Bailey, of Detroit, Mich.

Unique Invasion of South America

A FLOATING exposition that will introduce the products of American manufacturers to the merchants of the West Indies and South America, with the object of increasing trade with those countries, is the novel project of the American Trade Tour Company, of No. 15 Maiden Lane, New York.

The steamship "Kroonland," one of the big North Atlantic liners in the New York-European service, has been chartered as the floating exposition. There will be accommodations on the steamer for four hundred traveling salesmen, who will boom up business for their various interests during a tour that will extend over one hundred and twenty days. The steamer will be overhauled for the purpose of the tour and there will be space enough for the display of the manufactured products of several hundred concerns.

For many years other countries than the United States have controlled the trade in South America. The American Trade Tour Company intends to make a change. As directors of the project the services of two international salesmen, Joseph J. Keegan and Hilliard J. Rosencrantz, have been obtained. These two men have had many years' experience in the Orient and they know what the foreign market wants and how it wants it.

It has often been stated that the reason Germany and England have been so successful in the South American trade is because their manufacturers know what the South Americans want and cater to their desires. It has been stated, on the other hand, that the American manufacturer is content to offer his products and if they do not meet with the wants of South America, let it go at that. On the trip of the "Kroonland" it is expected that this drawback will be eliminated. In each port the merchants of the town will be brought aboard the ship and will see the exposition and talk to the salesmen representing the various exhibitors. The merchants will see with their own eyes what this country has to offer and the salesmen will be able to find just what the merchants want.

The American Tour Company's expedition will leave New York on October 14th for the West Indies. Havana, Santiago and Kingston will be visited, after which the "Kroonland" will steam to Colon, where the salesmen will have an opportunity of seeing the canal and looking into the needs of the merchants there. From Colon the "Kroonland" will head to South America, visiting Cartagena, Colombia; La Guaira, Venezuela; Port of Spain, Trinidad; after which the boating exposition will proceed to Brazil. In Brazil the ship will stop at Para, Bahia, Rio de Janeiro and Santos. Montevideo, Uruguay, and Buenos Aires, Argentine Republic, will be next visited. At Buenos Aires the "Kroonland" will lay at anchor two or three weeks, giving the salesmen an opportunity of crossing over to Chili and visiting other places on the West Coast.

The "Kroonland" is an American-built ship and flies the American flag, and the tour will be entirely an American one. Foreign manufacturers or salesmen will not be permitted to participate. It is to be an American tour for Americans and to present the manufactured products of American shops and factories. Altogether, the tour will be the largest attempt ever made to drum up business in the West Indies and South America. The American Trade Tour Company is hearing daily from manufacturers who wish to be represented and it would appear that the invasion will bear much fruit.

It is quite possible that one or two of our large cigar manufacturers should be interested in this venture.

Key West

Spring Season Indicates Business Revival—Ground Broken for New Moreda & Company Factory—George L. Lowe Dies in Philadelphia—Demonstrating Universal Stripping Machine

KEY WEST, FLA., March 25, 1914.

THE spring season has opened up well with the cigar industry and there are indications that there will be a slight revival in trade shortly, but no extraordinary business stunts are looked for.

The shipping lists which accompany this show that during the latter part of the winter season trade picked up to some extent. The production limit was also removed at nearly all of the factories and some recruiting has also been done on the firmer sizes at several of the shops.

W. W. Ward, who has the contract for the erection of the factory building for Moreda & Company, on the County Road, arrived in town on the 20th inst., and immediately put a large force to work, breaking ground for the structure.

At the "La Diligencia" factory of Moreda & Company, business is in fine condition and they have opened up the spring season with full order files and all tables manned. Tom Johnson will supersede Ferris Lowe, as office manager on April 1st. Mr. Lowe recently tendered his resignation and early during the coming month will leave for Ohio, where he will make his future home.

John W. Ross, the hustling Southern representative of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, of Winston-Salem, N. C., was in town this week, boosting "Prince Albert," "the national joy smoke." He left on Wednesday for Jacksonville, Fla., via Tampa.

Senora Valez, wife of the Cuban representative to the Court of St. James, was a visitor to the city last week and has since left for Havana. Mrs. Valdez is a daughter of the late V. Martinez Ybor, the pioneer cigar manufacturer of Florida.

The remains of George L. Lowe, cashier of the First National Bank, of this city, arrived on the morning of 20th inst., and were laid to rest the same afternoon. Mr. Lowe was a highly respected citizen and all business places closed down at noon on the day of the funeral, which was one of the largest ever witnessed in this city. Mr. Lowe died at the German Hospital, in Philadelphia, Pa., on the evening of the 10th inst., where he had gone to be operated on for gallstones. He was held in high esteem by the members of the local trade and at one time was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue.

W. J. Ruthenberg, of the Universal Tobacco Stripping Machine Company, is still in the city, exhibiting his wrapper and filler stripping device. One day last week at one of the factories, he requested one of the women strippers to operate the machine, which she flatly refused to do. When she informed the other employees they became quite angry and getting ready to give him the run "La Cubano," when he hastily removed the offending machine. It is not very likely that the device will become popular here (although it does its work to perfection), as its adoption would cause a serious labor trouble.

Max N. Oberdorfer, Special Deputy Collector of Customs for Florida, arrived in town last week on official business.

Val. M. Antuono, one of the largest cigar manufacturers of Tampa, passed through town last week, being en route to Havana.

Orders are reported as fine by the Ruy Lopez Co. and a large force is being maintained.

Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Tuell, of Rhode Island, arrived on last week's Mallory steamer from New York, and are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Wardlow, Mrs. Tuell's parents, for a few weeks.

The R. W. Drane Cigar Company, Factory No. 32, of Florence, Ala., is using the name "My Favorite" as a brand. The Mi Favorita Cigar Company are the owners of the title "Mi Favorita," and have been using it as their leading brand for many years. This looks like a clear case of infringement and President A. W. Arnold has taken the matter up with the company's New York office and the same will be investigated.

William H. Malone, of the Professional Cigar Company, during his recent visit to Jacksonville, came out as a candidate for the lower house of Congress from this district.

Charles W. Lowe, formerly a citizen of Key West, has opened a cigar factory at Homestead, Fla.

Vivian and Percey Myers, of the Savannah, Ga., end of the Cortez Cigar Company, arrived in the city recently and after spending a few days at the factory, Percey left for home on Saturday night's steamer. Vivian Myers, accompanied by factory manager Claude H. Roberts, left on Monday for Havana, where they will put in a few days examining the company's leaf holdings.

At the factory, business is in fine shape and large shipments of "Hernan Cortez" are going out.

All the cigar manufacturers of this city, but especially the smaller concerns, are fully in accord with the movement of the Cigar Manufacturers' Association of America, to have the allowance of stripped tobacco per thousand cigars increased from 15 to 18 pounds. The allowance of 25 pounds of unstemmed leaf is quite sufficient after stripping, to make one thousand cigars, as the loss is from 20 to 25 per cent. during the stemming process, but when stripped tobacco is used the Internal Revenue Department only allows 15 pounds of leaf to produce that amount and there are very few sizes that one thousand smokes can be made out of that small allowance, yet the manufacturers have to pay the revenue tax upon the thousand cigars, whether they make that many or not. The larger concerns who make a variety of small and large sizes find no difficulty in complying with the ruling. The smaller concerns, which turn out what is known as smokers, a very large cigar, find themselves up against it when they try to get one thousand cigars out of only 15 pounds of stripped material.

The cablegram published in a New York trade paper on the 5th inst., stating that the E. H. Gato Cigar Company had made application for bonding privileges, has been denied by the company. They consider that the word "Gato" is a sufficient guarantee for their products. The "yellow 1871" label has been for over a quarter of a century recognized as guarantee that the cigars are made of the best tobaccos grown on the Island of Cuba. However, if the majority of their customers desire the "made in bond" stamp on their goods, they will brand sometime in the near future. At the big factory business is in fine shape.

The Mi Favorita Cigar Company began operations under the "made in bond" law this morning, having complied with all the requirements of the Act. Tobacco was taken up to the new bonded factory at nine o'clock and a large force of strippers were immediately put to work preparing material for the cigarmakers, who will probably be seated on Saturday morning.

Robert H. Givens, who was recently transferred from the Key West Custom House to the bonded warehouse at Tampa, Fla., has been appointed inspector at the Mi Favorita factory. He arrived yesterday afternoon and entered upon his duties this morning.

While the M. Perez Company has the distinction of being the first Key West house to apply for the privilege of bonding, the Mi Favorita Cigar Company is the first to begin the actual manufacture of cigars in bond.

The M. Perez Company have also received their permit to manufacture in bond and will probably begin operations on Friday morning.

Now the other manufacturers who have been sitting on the fence, waiting for a demonstration of the working of the "made in bond" law, will be able to note results and decide accordingly.

Wholesalers Look for Big Year on the Coast—"Charles the Great" Has Tremendous Sale in 1913—Had to Get "Websters" by Express Shipment—25,000,000 Cigarettes Shipped to the Orient

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., March 22, 1914.

ALL reports concerning the present state of the cigar and tobacco business point to one of the largest years in the history of the trade on the Coast. There is not one wholesale dealer in San Francisco who does not voice this conviction. Fine weather, the best prospects for big crops, the near opening of the Panama Pacific Exposition, all help to strengthen the general optimistic outlook.

Ed. C. Berriman, the manufacturer of the "Jose Vila" cigar and father of the made-in-bond stamp, is now in Washington, D. C., before the Ways and Means Committee representing several cigar dealers' associations throughout the Coast, working for the success of the Underwood Anti-Coupon bill.

M. A. Gunst & Company state that the demand for staple brands is increasing by leaps and bounds. Plans for active campaigns are now set on foot, and with the Exposition close at hand, this firm expects 1914 to be a banner year. The sale of the "Van Dyck," "Alhambra," "Owl," "General Arthur" and other staple brands is increasing in the interior of the state, traveling salesmen all reporting a considerable advance in the demand for these goods.

Chas. H. Knubel, who was absent for three months on a business trip visiting the factories in Philadelphia and Tampa, has returned to San Francisco. He reports that the Northwest is most promising. Montana is also in a fine condition. Porto Rico cigars are getting a big business. The "Tantos" and "Aguey Naba" Porto Rico lines of the Sola Cigar Company were only temporarily affected by the Manila goods, and they are now coming to the front again. The "Charles the Great," Mr. Knubel's clear Havana line, is going well; and even last year, although dull in general, was one of the best years for "Charles the Great" on the Coast.

A large increase of the cigarette trade is reported by L. C. Erdt, representing M. Melecrino & Company, Inc., throughout his territory, comprising the whole Pacific Coast. Since January 1, 1914, twelve million cigarettes have been sold by Mr. Erdt. In 1913, the state of California alone used over fifty million of his brands of cigarettes. Mr. Erdt is at present arranging for a very high class and comprehensive advertising campaign of his "Milo" yellow label. There seems to be no limit to the amount of business that can be obtained for a high quality Turkish cigarette.

Mr. Knubel observed also the immense increase of cigarette consumption. According to him at least thirty million cigarettes were sold in the first two months of 1914 on the Pacific Coast.

Michalitschke Brothers Company maintain that the Manila goods, although constantly on the increase, are not as popular at present as they were before. According to that firm there is a steady and fair demand for Manila goods, but not in such large quantities as last year.

H. L. Judell & Company had to order an express shipment of its "Webster" cigars to meet the increasing demand. Emil Judell has been on a prolonged inspection trip in Oregon, Nevada, and all along the Coast, and reports very favorably on the general outlook. The "Webster" cigar will be broadly advertised here in the near future by J. Alvarez, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, manufacturers of the "Webster," assisted by C. H. McCormick, who is in charge of the Coast for the manufacturers. In fifty windows the manufacturers of the "Webster" will display their goods.

Herman Moss, of the Moss Cigar Company, Lancaster, Pa., is now on a business trip through the Northwestern territory. He left San Francisco this week for Portland and Seattle.

H. H. Manley, Pacific Coast representative of the American Cigar Company, has gone on a business trip to Portland and Spokane. The trip will last about two weeks. Bob Blaine, the special "Belmont" representative, reports a very good business in the San Joaquin Valley. So does A. S. Lichtenstein, who looks after the "El Principe de Gales" interests.

H. Bercovich reports a very nice sale of "Luis Martinez" Key West cigars. He also notes an increased trade in the "New Bachelor" line.

William Bercovich, head of the Capital Tobacco Company, of Sacramento, celebrated this week the arrival of a fine specimen of baby boy at his home. The trade of the capital city welcomes the new member.

The belief is general in the trade here that a considerable number of Eastern manufacturers will put in interesting exhibits at the 1915 Exposition. A good many of the big men in the trade have been consulted regarding the Exposition, both here and in New York, and a meeting is soon to be held which will put the matter in definite shape. The trade here is more interested and more enthusiastic concerning the big fair with every succeeding week, as a result of the very substantial progress made so far.

The Japanese steamer "Shidzuka Maru" on her last trip from Seattle carried a total of 25,000,000 cigarettes from Shanghai. The shipment required the services of five large cars on their way from Virginia to Puget Sound.

A. T. Hueckendorf, connected with the Oriental division of the British American Tobacco Company, with headquarters at Shanghai, passed through San Francisco this week on his way to the Eastern States, where he will spend several months visiting with his family. This is his first trip to the United States in a decade.

J. R. Taylor and C. C. Pearson, formerly with the Alkon Cigar Factory, have now taken the management of the Club cigar stand in Sacramento, Cal., where they promise some innovations in the cigar business.

S. Bachman & Company are out this week with a new deal of two hundred free with each thousand of their five-cent "Traveler" cigar.

New Stickney Cigar Firm Opens for Business

The recently formed Stickney-Hoelscher Cigar Company is now located for a wholesale and retail business at 311 North Broadway, St. Louis, Mo. The store is attractively furnished in quartered oak. The humidors which have been installed have a capacity for half a million cigars, which are kept cool and moist with the use of ice.

The Stickney family has been in the cigar business in St. Louis for more than forty years, but no longer has any connection with the William A. Stickney Cigar Company.

Mr. Hoelscher, who is associated in the new business with Mr. Stickney, has been in the cigar business about four years. Previous to that time he was in the drug business and is now president of the Retail Druggists' Association.

The new company's officials are: J. Taylor Stickney, president; William A. Hoelscher, vice-president; Stuart G. Stickney, treasurer; William A. Hoelscher, Jr., secretary, and W. Arthur Stickney, second vice-president. The company was organized to do a wholesale and retail business, making a specialty of the finest grades of imported and domestic cigars.

Otto Albrecht Cigar Company to Withdraw

The Otto Albrecht Cigar Company, founded some sixty years ago in Davenport, Iowa, has announced its intention of withdrawing from business. For years this factory was the largest in Davenport. Several years ago it ceased manufacturing but continued the retail business.

E. A. Hartz, son-in-law of the founder, is the present head of the company.

Los Angeles

Orange Day Carnival Boosts Business—Changes in Management of P. Lorillard Company Lines—Advertising "Dixie Queen" With Pipes—"Commercial" Cigar Making Hit With Smokers

LOS ANGELES, CAL., March 22, 1914.

YESTERDAY was California Orange Day and it proved to be a huge success from every standpoint. This year, we had a record crop, bringing somewhere near $30,000,000 to the southland. In the evening, an enormous parade through the streets of the city was held, and oranges were distributed along the route from large automobile trucks, in large quantities. A person without an orange yesterday, felt out of place, I assure you.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company, Incorporated, established in 1869, is among the prominent old established houses of the West. Klauber-Wangenheim Company, of Los Angeles and San Diego, Cal., is established since 1869. They are known from Coast to Coast. A. Klauber, the founder of this great concern, came to Southern California in 1869 and established the business originally in San Diego as a general merchandise store, supplying the surrounding sheep and cattle men with the real necessities of life. From this small beginning, the concern steadily grew. The management has always been progressive, yet conservative—building up their business on a firm foundation. Their annual sales now run into the millions of dollars.

Klauber-Wangenheim Company have a large force of salesmen covering Southern California, Arizona, New Mexico and Nevada. Among the brands of cigars distributed by this old-time house are such well-known brands as "Optimo," "Chancellor," "Mendels," "Pippins," "Post Dispatch," "Havana Ribbon," "Juan F. Portuondo" and "Permits."

They are sole distributors for Bunte Brothers' candies, of Chicago, Ill., a line of which they are justly proud.

The Los Angeles house is under the management of E. E. Klauber, while the San Diego house is managed by Melville Klauber and Hugo Klauber.

An important change in the management of the P. Lorillard Company lines took place by the retirement from the tobacco department of E. M. Elam, who takes over the cigar account of this company, for the territory west of Denver, Colo. Mr. Lowenstein, in charge of the cigarette department, becomes the Coast agent for the entire tobacco and cigarette business, with Anthony Schwamm for his head man in Southern California and Arizona. Mr. Schwamm's experience and popularity are an asset to the P. Lorillard Company, which seems to have been fully appreciated. Under his charge, a tremendous compaign will be waged on "London Life" cigarettes, new ten-cent 100 per cent. Turkish cigarette, and "Murads," packed twenty to each package, a German silver cigarette holder with each package given therewith. "Stag" tobacco will also come in for its share of publicity in this campaign. P. Lorillard Company have the right man in "Tony" Schwamm and personally, I have never met a better friend and salesman. He is sure "one-whole" booster.

Local dealers have a limited supply of "Panama" corn cob pipes, and during the next few days, or until their supply is exhausted, they will give one, free, to each customer of a ten-cent pouch of Dixie Queen Plug-Cut Tobacco.

The "Panama" has a natural finish corn cob bowl that seasons richly and absorbs all the nicotine, thus insuring a mild, sweet smoke. The stem of imported German Weichsel wood, with amberine bit, adds its own aromatic perfume and is neat and serviceable.

"Dixie Queen" is what the local dealers call a man's tobacco, and they state that its great popularity is due to the careful ageing process, which takes from three to five years, and gives to "Dixie Queen" a flavor and sweetness that is exceptional. Several seasons' crops are kept stored away by the manufacturers of this tobacco, so that the quality of "Dixie Queen" never varies, and the lovers of this famous tobacco never switch. The popularity of the corn cob pipe seems to be greater than ever and all local dealers say their limited supply of "Panamas" will diminish very quickly, and lovers ot a good old corn cob smoke are taking advantage of the offer.

William R. Veith, with Haas-Baruch & Company, is surely placing the "Commercial" cigar on a firm basis here, as the cigar is on the lips of every smoker who took a "chance" on the first smoke. It is a fine piece of goods, and this, together with the exceptional ability of Mr. Veith, is making the cigar a sure winner in this territory.

Cleveland

Trade Slows up During Lenten Season—I. J. Mittelberger Out of Cigar Business—Orders Piling in for "La Saramitas"—Business Good With Pyle & Allen Stands

CLEVELAND, O., March 25, 1914.

BUSINESS in Cleveland for the past two weeks has not been as good as usual, owing to the Lenten season being on. Things in general look very bright for a big spring opening.

Grover Mendelsohn has left for a short trip through the West looking after their business through the section. He reports trade as being very good, which is attested to by several nice orders which have come into the factory in the past few days.

Walter Meyer, of Victor, Thorsch & Company, manufacturers of the "New Bachelor" cigar, was in town the past week.

Teddy Neirath, formerly with Best & Russell, of Chicago, is in charge of the new Vincent Street store of Pyle & Allen. Mr. Neirath is specializing on pipes and hopes to make this store the pipe store center of Cleveland. He has put on a campaign of pipe sales through all the Pyle & Allen stores, which has met with huge success.

Dave Haas, formerly in charge of Pyle & Allen's Hippodrome stand, has resigned from this institution and joined the Louis Klein Cigar Company, and will be placed in charge of one of their stands.

Leo Weis, of the "Ruy Lopez," was in town the past week, calling on the trade.

Mr. Maloney, formerly in charge of Pyle & Allen's cigar stand at West Third and Superior Streets, and which has been taken over by Mr. Upham, who is running the cafe in the rear, has been placed in the East Fourth Street stand of the Pyle & Allen Company, along with Mr. Curtis. Mr. Upham bought the entire stock and fixtures.

Things have been very good with the above-mentioned concern, both in their retail and wholesale stores, and Mr. Sanborn informs the writer that their business is running away ahead of last year.

J. W. Klein, of Cleveland, representing the Larus Brothers Company on Edgeworth Quoboid tobacco, has just returned home after a very successful trip through western Pennsylvania. Mr. Klein is certainly making a big showing with this brand and you can see his goods displayed in all the stores along the line.

J. C. Leverence, of the Shields, Wertheim Company, has just returned from a very successful trip through the West and succeeded in bringing back a large quota of orders on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." Bert Smith, also one of the Shields, Wertheim Company, is putting on a campaign throughout Ohio and Indiana and is meeting with much success.

Mr. Schuster is opening up a very beautiful cafe opposite the Statler Hotel. It is modern in every respect and will be run on an exclusive German style. He has been in Europe for some time, gathering ideas to place in this new cafe. Their opening takes place on the 25th inst., and should be largely attended, as this is right in the heart of the downtown district.

The number two stand of the Consumers Cigar Company, located in the Wilkshire Building, in lower Superior Street, looks as though it should be a huge success.

The Marshall Drug Company are expecting to get back at the corner of East Ninth and Huron Road within the next couple of months. This is the store that was burned out severad weeks ago.

Fred Singer, of S. Rossin & Son, leaf tobacco house, of New York, is expected in town in a couple of days.

The Euclid Arcade Cigar Store, formerly owned by E. B. Lausten and which was given up by him several weeks ago, is again running under the management of Harry Mitchell, and will continue under the name of the Euclid Arcade Cigar Store. Mr. Mitchell was formerly in the cigar business in Boston, Mass.

I. J. Mittleberger, formerly with Neuman & Mayer Cigar Company, of Philadelphia, has given up the cigar business entirely and is devoting his time in the brokerage business, namely in men's furnishings, and is meeting with a huge success. Mr. Mittleberger's large acquaintance and genial personality should build him an immense institution in a few years' working.

Mr. Loeb, of Canton, was in town the past week and claims business is constantly on the increase. Mr. Loeb, while here, placed his order on "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

Billy Shirk, of the Oppenheimer Company, of South Bend, was also in town the past week, placing his order on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives."

Stace & Vincent are putting a big campaign on "Sonadas" and "Percy Haswell," and are meeting with their usual success.

JERRY.

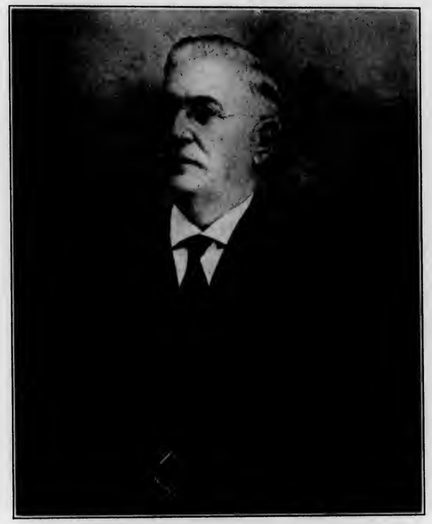
E. H. Gato Cigar Company

THIS great and successful factory of exclusively clear Havana cigars, now located at Key West for a number of years back, was originally founded by Mr. E. H. Gato, Sr., in the city of New York, as far back as the year 1871, thereby being today forty-three years in existence, and if we are not mistaken, can claim the reputation of being the oldest clear Havana cigar factory during the last half century in the United States.

The present officers of the company are: E. G. Gato, Sr., president; Fernando H. Gato, first vice-president; E. H. Gato, Jr., second vice-president; Frank H. Gato, treasurer; Tomas H. Gato, secretary.

Upon the twenty-fourth of February, 1914, the nineteenth anniversary of the war cry "Baire," a local newspaper, called "El Veterano," the organ of the veterans of Cuban Independence, wrote an article in Spanish about E. H. Gato, Sr., which we have translated for the benefit of the readers of THE TOBACCO WORLD, as it speaks in glowing terms about the eventful life he has led so far, and which is interesting, as an episode of the past, showing the sterling character of this self-made man in a plain and unvarnished tale.

ORETANIV.



E. H. GATO, SR.

(Translation from "El Veterano.")

Eduardo Hidalgo Gato was born in Stantiago de las Vegas upon October 6, 1847. When he was eight years old he started to learn the cigarmaker's trade, receiving as wages a peseta (20 cents) per day. When he was eleven years old he was already a full-fledged cigarmaker of regalia sizes.

The youth, Hidalgo Gato, at the age of fourteen did not know either to read or write, but he had such burning desires to learn that he begged Mr. Carlos Cepero to give him some lessons. This gentleman cheerfully complied with the wishes of his young friend, and thus commenced his early instruction. Shortly afterwards his spirit began to nurse revolutionary ideas.

When the war broke out in 1868 he commenced to take part in the revolutionary movements that took place in the western part of the island, with the object in view to cause an uprising in arms, in order to thus effectively help with his efforts the patriots, that were already fighting for their independence in the eastern part of the island.

At that time Mr. Gato was denounced to the Spanish Government and persecuted by the latter. His good chief and patriot-comrade, Mr. Frederick Pons, sent him to a boarding house in Havana, kept by friends of the latter, Mr. and Mrs. Antonio Perez. In said house there boarded at that time many Spanish officers. The very worthy Mrs. Perez was aware, that Hidalgo Gato was hidden only so long in her house, until Mr. Perez should succeed in fixing up the former's passport, so that he might leave Cuba in safety. Thus three or four days passed, until at last he abandoned the island on board of the "Alliance," visiting Key West, Cedar Key (the latter on account of a cyclone), Fernandina, Fla., and Charleston, from which city he took the steamship "Champion" for New York. He finally landed in New York after many days of enforced silence, because he only found one party who could speak Spanish in Charleston.

When in New York the young Gato tried to find work, in which he succeeded.

Shortly afterwards, hearing that an expedition of fighting volunteers would start for Cuba, by the steamship "Catherine White," under the command of the great patriot, General Goicuria, he enlisted in the same. Our young volunteer sailed in a tugboat, in the company of other patriots, for the open sea, in order to await there General Goicuria, who was to recover the volunteers from the tugboat, by the steamer "Catherine White." Time speeded quickly without the "Catherine White" arriving, and as the tugboat was short of water and provisions, it was considered prudent to get near the port of New London, in the State of Connecticut, so they might be able to get the necessaries of life, and continue to wait. They did this, but with such an unlucky fortune, that when they approached the land some of the foreign volunteers deserted by swimming ashore, therefore, the patriot Zenea resolved to make a counter movement, in order that the tugboat might not be captured. Unfortunately this movement came too late, as the tug had been seen already, and after a chase was captured.

Later on it became known, through the crew of the gunboat, that the "Catherine White" and General Goicuria had been captured by the Government authorities and were held as prisoners. The fate of the volunteers of both vessels was the same. All were transported to the Brooklyn Navy Yard and placed as prisoners on board of the pontoon "Vermont." Hidalgo Gato remained some days as a prisoner in

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, March 23, 1914.

REPORTS about the crop are still mixed; some people claim that the last rains in the Vuelta Abajo on the 17th inst. were general, thus benefiting the late set out plants, and assuring us a larger yield, while others state that they see no reason to change their former estimates, as tobacco cut this month may have no time to dry off before the rainy season sets in. The future alone can tell who is right. Some libre de pie and hojas de semilla have arrived already from the country, Vuelta Abajo and Semi Vuelta, which is only fit for the use of our cigarette manufacturers. This stuff has been partly dried by means of charcoal fires, and the required moisture was obtained by exposing it to the night dews, therefore it has undergone no sweat in the piles. The cigarette factories will have to give it some sort of a fermentation in the bales, and can only use it for mixing purposes. As the prices for this class of tobacco are considerably lower than for colas, it helps to lower the cost of production for cigarettes. No judgment can be formed about the future regular crop by these early parcels. We have heard some rumors that some party has started a packing already in Manicaragua. If true it could be only the very light part of the early harvested leaf, which is precipitated by artificial means for the packing. All these hurried trials to bring the crop to our market, without giving the tobacco a chance to acquire the necessary flexibility to the leaf by the natural humidity of the atmosphere, ought to be discountenanced, as they serve no good purpose, and in most cases only do harm in creating an erroneous impression about the expected quality of the 1914 growth.

Our leaf market has been dull, owing to the want of Northern buyers in town, although one of our commission merchants has operated to a fairly large extent, as he had received orders by cable to purchase Remedios and some Semi Vuelta styles for account to his customers. A Spanish firm with a connection in New York also made a few ventures in Remedios leaf. Our cigarette manufacturers were the principal buyers of old and some new leaf. Exporters to the South American Republics and for Europe only purchased sparingly during the past fortnight. Prices for most grades are favoring buyers, as our holders are more willing to close out their holdings in order to prepare themselves for the buying of the new leaf, excepting only the very choice vegas, prices upon which are maintained. The stocks in our market contain a quantity of good suitable leaf, which ought to attract buyers.

Sales during the last two weeks totaled 5535 bales, or divided: Vuelta Abajo and Semi Vuelta, 2055; Partido, 527; Remedios, 2753, and Oriente, 200 bales.

Buyers were: Americans and houses that purchased for the American market, 3174; exporters to Europe, 200; shippers to South America, 551, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 1610 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the two weeks ending March 14, 1914, totaled 8384 bales, which were distributed as follows, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 7375; to Bremen, 200; to Paris, 234; to Hamburg, 2; to Buenos Aires, 411; to Valparaiso, 142, and to Montevideo, 20 bales.

Cigars.

Business in our cigar factories has not improved yet, although our manufacturers are keeping up bravely in the hope that the present shrinkage in our exports of cigars may be made up later on during the year. Stocks must be decreasing in any event, and when trade in general should only become normal again we ought to see an increased demand for our cigars. It is rather strange that the United States, the richest country in the world, should show the biggest retrograde movement in the consumption of our cigars, but as some people consider Wall Street as the barometer of trade, and the latter is standing very low, we shall have to wait patiently for the rise, and which after all is bound to come, and can be only a question of time. Europe on the other hand is beginning to show some improvement. The extremely low ruling prices for sugar are affecting us rather seriously, as the sugar planters cannot cover the cost of production and are losing money on the sugar they are producing. However, this is only one of the natural consequences of the inexorable law of supply and demand, or when the production exceeds the demand prices are bound to fall, and will not recover until the equilibrium has been restored, through a decrease in the production, or an increase in the consumption. The same causes would produce the same result in our tobacco crops if the latter should be in excess of the coming demand. For the last ten years the demand has been always greater than the production, and therefore prices have been kept upon a high level, but who can tell when the reverse may take place? In the interest of the cigar manufacturers it would be desirable to see a fall in prices, in order to compensate them for the many handicaps under which they are suffering.

Romeo y Julieta is fairly busy on pending orders, and new ones are arriving in satisfactory quantities. Don Pepin Rodriguez returned from his trip to the Panama Canal on the 22nd inst., but we have not yet had the pleasure to see him.

Partagas received some good sized orders from the United States through its hustling representative, Mr. Robert E. Lane.

H. Upmann & Company report a steady normal demand for their celebrated H. Upmann cigars from all parts of the world.

Don Eustaquio Alonso, of the "Por Larrañaga" factory, admitted that while we are still in the dumps (Fuataca), and therefore cannot expect good business, that they have no reason to complain.

Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., had no news to give, except by saying that they are busy in any event.

Sol finds an improvement in the amount of orders arriving from Europe particularly, and which are of larger quantities than heretofore.

Other factories such as: Punch, Hoyo de Monterey, Belinda, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, La Flor de José Otero, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, Flor del Fumar, Catañeda and Fonseca, Eden, El Rey del Mundo and C. E. Beck & Company are all working in good shape.

New Samples of "La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia"

The illustration herewith shows the new line of samples of the "La Flor deA. Fernandez Garcia," for which B. F. Alexander is the United States and Canadian representative.

The brand shown herewith is absolutely controlled by Park & Tilford. These same sizes and shapes are made under the "Las Perlas" for S. S. Pierce & Company, of Boston, and is sold extensively by Chas. Gudknecht, their representative in Philadelphia, to the leading clubs in the Quaker City.

Leaf Tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were sellers of 920 bales of leaf of all kinds to their various customers during the past fortnight.

Mark A. Pollack was a buyer of 1000 bales of leaf upon cable orders from his American customers during the past two weeks.

Maximilian Stern, the general manager of Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., and the president of the Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company, had intended to leave, accompanied by Mrs. Stern, by the White Line of steamers, the "Calamares," on the 15th inst., but as at the last moment the company had given counter orders not to touch at Havana, they embarked instead on the 16th inst. by the steamship "Governor Cobb," via Key West.

Romeo y Julieta purchased the famous vega, Cruz de Cabejas, from the Sumidero section of the Vuelta Abajo, about 300 bales, which the late Don Leopoldo Carbajal always had bought, year in and year out, during his lifetime on account of its exquisite aroma.

Garcia & Company purchased for their New York house of F. Miranda & Company 540 bales of Remedios, first capaduras, besides some colas of Vuelta Abajo for one of the cigarette factories here, which they are supplying with leaf.

Faustino Lozano expressed himself as very hopeful of the business outlook in Tampa, at least judging by his own experience. He added some 350 bales of choice Vuelta Abajo vegas to their holdings of leaf during his stay here.

Exporters of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana during the last two weeks ending March 14, 1914, and from 200 bales upwards, were:

Moebs & Company First Payment is Large

The Security Trust Company of Detroit, receiver in equity for Gustav A. Moebs & Company, cigar manufacturers, is preparing to send out to the creditors of the concern checks covering the first distribution of assets. The payment will be equal to about thirty-three and one-third per cent., and there will be at least one more dividend. Such a first payment is regarded as unusual. The assets of the firm were sold for approximately $65,000. The liabilities were about $95,000.

Edward Wolf Company Specializing on "Manilas"

Edward Wolf Company, of San Francisco, Cal., are said to be specializing at present on Manila goods. Monthly this firm is shipping more than half a million of these cigars to jobbers all over the country. The brands are "La Insular" and "Trueba." There is apparently a heavy demand for Manila cigarettes as this firm has sold more than one million "La Insular" Manila cigarettes since January 1st.

Six salesmen of this firm who are covering California and Nevada, report that business prospects are excellent and that from their observations the country has never been in better shape.

company of his other brethren-in-arms, until the revolutionary committee in New York finally succeeded in obtaining the liberty of all the volunteers.

After this episode our hero, whose biograph we are relating, returned to New York, entering again as a cigarmaker in the cigar factory, and as his wages were more than he needed for his living expenses, and obeying his generous impulses, he maintained and supported on his own account, in the house marked as No. 5 Rivington Street, from twelve to sixteen Cubans, some comrades of the ill-fared expedition, and others of the unfortunates that had been swept to that city in the uneven fight.

Mr. Gato, since the year 1868 until 1898, has efficiently helped the revolutionary cause, now with his personal efforts, and then again with his disinterested financial support. He certainly has achieved the great satisfaction, that there has not been a single revolutionary movement, in which the emigrant Cubans took part, during the above stated period, that his name did not become associated in one form or the other.

Mr. Gato, whose motto has always been: "Labor Omnia Vincit," has given proof during the course of his life to possess four virtues, which have been his best recompense, and they have been: "To always have been a good son, a good father, a good citizen, and an honest worker."

In company of Messrs. Brun Diaz and Francisco Perez, they formed a society of three partners, establishing a cigar factory in Grand Street, New York, in the year 1871.

Big Campaign on "Mecca" Cigarettes

The double-page "Mecca" advertisement in colors, appearing in this issue, is an example of the large, striking and effective advertisements in this mighty "Mecca" newspaper campaign.

In this "Mecca" campaign the American Tobacco Company is using the monthly and semi-monthly colored magazine sections of all the biggest Sunday newspapers throughout the United States, with a total combined circulation of nearly ten million copies. On the accepted basis of five readers to each copy of a Sunday newspaper, these "Mecca" advertisements are read by approximately fifty million people every issue.

Moreover, this "Mecca" campaign is no one-time insertion, but extends over a period of six months. There is a complete series of these large, colored "Mecca" ads. They are scheduled for from six to twelve insertions in every paper on the long list.

The cumulative effect of such a broadside of advertising is far reaching and irresistible. These ads feature the new "Mecca" foil package of twenty for ten cents, and already dealers throughout the length and breadth of the United States are reaping the benefits in steadily growing sales on this new and popular packing of this nationally famous brand of cigarettes.

All the five great Sunday Magazine Sections of the press of the United States are included in this enormous "Mecca" campaign: The United Sunday Magazine papers; the Associated Sunday Magazine papers; The American Sunday Monthly Magazine papers; The Illustrated Sunday Magazine papers, and the Semi-monthly Magazine papers.

The following list shows the great Sunday newspapers with their circulation—belonging to these five big magazine section groups—all running these large, blazing "Mecca" ads over a period of six months:

Retail dealers throughout the country are praising this "Mecca" campaign. They say that this is the best kind of powerful manufacturer co-operation that brings them real results in cash sales and profits. They declare that they never have received such effective help as that given by the American Tobacco Company in this landslide "Mecca" campaign.

H. Duys & Co. Early in the Field

With a firm determination to eclipse the tremendous record which they made last year in the purchase and sale in the United States of upwards of 7000 bales of Sumatra tobacco, H. Duys & Company have been personally represented by John H. Duys at the first two inscriptions of the season in Amsterdam, and his advices to the New York house, are to the effect that they have been particularly fortunate in securing large quantities of strictly light tobacco out of the first two sales.

This is an unusual stroke of luck, for the new crop of Sumatra is predominated by medium to darker colors, but the House of Duys knows exactly what the American trade wants for wrappers and they get the goods which are best suited for the home market. Their announcement in this issue emphasizes the facts herein set forth with authority.

Some idea of the widespread character of their business can be gleaned from the fact, that notwithstanding the record breaking purchases of last year, they have but few bales of last year's tobacco on hand at the present time.

Westfield Wants to Keep Towne-Fuller Company

Rumors to the effect that the Towne-Fuller Company, of Westfield, Mass., is planning to move its factory to Springfield, Mass., has aroused the Board of Trade to a point of securing larger and more commodious quarters for the firm. They have already considered another factory in the town and there is talk of them renovating it and offering it to the Towne-Fuller Company. It will cost about $1700 to put the factory in shape, but it is much larger than the present quarters of the Towne-Fuller Company and it is believed that if this can be done the company will remain in Westfield.

The Towne-Fuller Company employs about one hundred hands and its removal would be a distinct loss to the people of Westfield. The company has manufactured cigars in that place for many years and finds that its well-established reputation is taxing its present factory to the limit.

Up-State Jottings

The McGuigan Cigar Company, the well-known manufacturing concern, located at Red Lion, Pa., recently made a purchase of 50,000 pounds of tobacco.

Jacob Workinger, who recently conducted a cigar store in Dallastown, Pa., is now located at Gettysburg, Pa., where he is continuing in the same line.

Michael Hose, of the firm of Hose & Brillhart, operating as the Dallas Cigar Company, Dallastown, Pa., reports that work will be begun at once on a four-story building to take the place of the factory destroyed in the disastrous fire of a month ago.

S. R. Kocher, the well-known manufacturer and packer of leaf tobacco, with offices and factory at Wrightsville, Pa., reports that he has been kept pretty busy lately packing tobacco.

The Red Lion Tobacco Association, Red Lion, Pa., reports that it has sold its 1913 crop of tobacco, approximating 200,000 pounds, having obtained quite a satisfactory price for the same. Realizing the advantages accruing through the association of buyers, the board of directors have instructed the association to begin operations for the season of 1914 as soon as possible.

Resolutions by "Frisco" Retailers

"RESOLUTION

"Whereas, the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, recognize the great work accomplished by the Honorable Oscar W. Underwood in the tariff and currency bills; and,

"Whereas, we greatly appreciate his work in the passage of the bill permitting the manufacture of pure Havana cigars in bond, it being a step toward honest merchandise in the tobacco industry; and,

"Whereas, he has now introduced in the House a bill to tax coupons when used with tobacco products, which, if made a law, will restore free and fair competition in the production of tobacco products, and prevent the entire destruction of the retailers of tobacco products, as well as remove that which has been largely, if not wholly, the means of creating the tobacco monopoly;

"Therefore, Be It Resolved, that the San Francisco Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, of the City and County of San Francisco, State of California, extend their thanks to the Honorable Oscar W. Underwood, and that the Secretary of the Association be, and is hereby, instructed to send a copy of these resolutions to the Honorable Oscar W. At a regular meeting of the Alameda County Retail Cigar Dealers' Association, the following resolutions were adopted, thanking the Honorable Oscar W. Underwood for his great work in behalf of the independent retail cigar dealers of this country:

New Cigar Factory for Baltimore

Max Diamond, a cigar manufacturer of Passaic, N. J., has recently visited Baltimore, Md., to look over locations for the erection of a large cigar factory in that city. It is said that the cause for this action is due to the difficulty experienced in Passaic for getting help.

Mr. Diamond believes that he can overcome the loss occasioned by shortage of labor by installing the machines manufactured by the Cigar Machine Corporation of America, which has its headquarters in Baltimore. It is stated that arrangements have been made with C. Ford Seeley, of that company, to install a number of machines in the factory, and to supply the help needed for their operation.

The new company has been incorporated as the Diamond Cigar Company. The company is said to have ample capital, and it is expected that they will erect one of the largest factories in Baltimore.

Waldo Newcomer, D. D. Mallory and Dr. M. H. Carter are among the Baltimore directors of the Cigar Machine Corporation.

Retired Tobacco Grower Celebrates Eighty-eighth Birthday

March 22nd last witnessed the celebration of the eighty-eighth birthday anniversary of Daniel N. Frost, who resides in West Grand Street, West Suffield, Conn., and who is known as one of the first tobacco growers in the Suffield district. He was but twenty-seven years of age at the time his first tobacco was grown, this being set out by hand in hills and taken up by a common table fork. The crop, which consisted of broadleaf and Havana seed tobacco, covered three-quarters of an acre. Mr. Frost states that the highest price he ever received for his Havana seed tobacco was forty cents per pound, this occurring during the time of the war. Paste cigars, cut off at both ends and grouped in bundles of fifty, were produced from the crop and sold to Hartford merchants in exchange for groceries. The success attending his first crop was duplicated through the years that followed until 1897, when he retired from active business. Mr. Frost was married in 1851 to Miss Louise Frost, of Tolland, Mass., who died in 1905, four years after the celebration of their golden wedding. He claims eleven grandchildren and one great-grandchild among his descendants.

Dallas Cigar Company's Losses Heavy

Relative to the fire which visited Dallastown, Pa., recently, and which resulted in destruction to three warehouses and a box factory in addition to a large quantity of leaf tobacco, the insurances amounted to but $6500 for the Dallas Cigar Company, and $3500 for the box factory, the entire claim being allowed. The loss is particularly severe, inasmuch as this was the sole amount of insurance carried by the concerns in question. In a statement to the trade, A. T. Brillhart, of the Dallas Cigar Company, said that it will take at least five years to get a similar supply of tobacco on hand, some of that destroyed having been ten years old and of fine quality.

Concerning the Proposed Tobacco Monopoly in Uruguay

American Minister Nicolay A. Grevstad at Montevideo, has sent the following report concerning the proposed tobacco monopoly in Uruguay, to the Daily Consular and Trade Reports:

The President of Uruguay has submitted to the General Assembly for approval a contract signed by the Minister of Finance, for the purpose of establishing a tobacco monopoly. This contract provides for the concession to a private company, for a term of twenty-five years, of the sole right to import, purchase, manufacture and sell tobacco in all its forms. The present manufacturers and dealers may become stockholders in the new company for the value of their plants and stocks on hand plus a bonus, or they may dispose of their establishments, machinery and stocks to the company at actual value plus a bonus.

The company is to pay the state 1,200,000 pesos ($1,240,800) annually during the first five years, 1,700,000 pesos ($1,757,800) from the sixth to the thirteenth year, and from the thirteenth to the end of the twenty-fifth year 2,000,000 pesos ($2,068,000). After twenty-five years the monopoly shall revert to the state, which is to become owner, without indemnification, of all plants, machinery, stocks and other property, with the exception of the factory buildings, which may be acquired at cost.

It is believed that the proposed monopoly will harmonize the interests of the tobacco industry with those of the state. Long experience has demonstrated that in order to protect its own interests and those of honest dealers, the state must carry on endless warfare against smuggling and dishonest practices. The necessity for this would be obviated under the proposed arrangement.

Under the comparatively low import duty on tobacco prevailing in the five years preceding 1888, the average annual consumption was 1,413,020 kilos, or 2.523 kilos per inhabitant. In the five years following 1888 the average annual imports under higher duties fell to 1,101,640 kilos, or 1.620 kilos per inhabitant. The duties were again raised in 1890 and 1891, and this increase, added to the circumstance that tobacco began to be grown in Uruguay at this time, caused the average annual imports to fall to 605,227 kilos. The duties and internal revenue taxes now in force, as fixed by the laws of January 11, 1896, and December 19, 1900, are as follows, in pesos ($1.034) per kilo (2.2046 pounds):

Kind.	Import duty, per kilo. Pesos.	Internal revenue tax, per kilo. Pesos.	Total. Per kilo. Pesos.	Per 100 pounds.[1]
Habana leaf	0.30	0.40	.70	$35.22
Rio Grande and Paraguay	.15	.40	.55	26.27
Twist (en cuerda)	.12	.40	.52	26.02
Other leaf tobacco	.30	.40	.70	34.25

[1] Including surtax of 8½ per cent. of official valuation.

The average annual imports of tobacco for 1908-1911 were 882,890 kilos, which, with the home production, make the apparent annual consumption 1,382,899 kilos, or 1.202 kilos per capita. On the basis of the consumption during the time of low duties, the present consumption, with a population of 1,300,000 may be assumed to be 3,250,000 kilos. Since the official returns show less than half that amount, the conclusion is reached that duties are evaded on more than half the consumption.

Some opposition to the bill is expected in the General Assembly.

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The long threatened cigarmakers' strike has unsettled the trade to quite an extent, and even if it does not take place, it will require some little time for it to return to normal. The leaf market is dull and the only thing at present that is attracting any attention at all is the attempt to form the tobacco growers' pool.

Altogether probably not a third of the crop has been sold. The local packers do not evince any inclination to buy just now, with a few exceptions, and, as the big concerns are not in the field, the outlook for an early closing out of the new crop is not promising.

CONNECTICUT

SUFFIELD, CONN.

Some of the largest tobacco warehouses in the town have closed and it is expected that the rest will probably shut down by the first week in April. Due to an abnormally dry season, the crop did not reach more than half growth. For this reason buyers have simply had the crops sized and cased, an operation requiring far less time than when sorted in the ordinary way.

The picked tobacco this year proved a failure and the dealers predict that hardly any of the weed in this section will be picked or primed during the coming season. The picked tobacco does not seem to go through the sweat as good as stalk tobacco, and does not seem to have much life, it breaking easily when placed in cigars.

The outlook for the 1914 crop is excellent and the prediction is offered that it will come up to the average.

BROAD BROOK, CONN.

The past winter has been one of the best in the history of tobacco packing in this town and many of the tobacco houses are still running a full lot of men and they have plenty to do for some time to come yet. In the winter this is the work that brings into the town thousands of dollars and makes it the leading industry with the exception of the Broad Brook woolen mills. One thing that has kept the work at top speed this year is that many of the buyers realized the good quality of the tobacco raised here bought the crops and then hired one of the packing houses nearby to do the packing and also in buying the crops in the neighboring towns they had them delivered here.

In the fall there was some fear that the packing of many of the crops would go to East Hartford or Windsor Locks, but all of this has remained at home and furnished work for the townspeople. It is estimated that when the packing houses are all working full force, that the salary roll is nearly $3000 a week. There has been some trouble this year in the fact that there is a scarcity of tenements and many of the men that have been working in the packing houses have had to board in the town or live in one of the neighboring towns. From the present outlook there will be enough work in the packing houses to last until the latter part of April.

TENNESSEE

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

There was a considerable falling off of receipts by the rehandlers of the city, but a small increase by the association prizing houses. Shipping has been more active and wherever the growers have succeeded in getting their crops in bulk early in the season the greater portion has been stripped. Those who failed to do this are unfortunate, as the crop will be materially injured by hanging so long. So far as can be ascertained, there is only a small portion of the crops that has been sold, now undelivered, but there is quite an amount in the barns that is unsold.

There have been reports of plants being killed by the freeze of two weeks ago. Most of the beds are now canvassed and if the weather remains as it is at this date the plants will soon be in evidence. The prices on tobacco are somewhat better than in the early part of the season. Longs are being taken at from $5 to $6.75 per hundred, while leaf is going from $8 to $15, and nothing fine on market.

Fire Destroys Big Warehouse

Fire which broke out in the night recently destroyed the leaf warehouse of H. T. Sweeney, entailing a loss of $15,000. The building was leased by the United Cigar Manufacturers' Company, and contained at the time of the fire about fifty cases of Wisconsin binder goods.

Rockford Tobacconists to Fight Cigarette Ordinance

The cigar and tobacco dealers of Rockford, Ill., are preparing to contest the recent measure of the Rockford City Fathers prohibiting the sale of cigarettes. Dealers believe that they have a recent Supreme Court decision to uphold them. Two firms which have been arrested for selling cigarettes intend to make test cases, it is understood.

Wilson Raises Bumper Crop

What is reported to be the season's bumper crop of tobacco was delivered in Clarksville, Ky., recently, by William Wilson, a tobacco planter residing in the Bell's Chapel vicinity, a few miles from Trenton, Ky. Mr. Wilson grew about 85,000 pounds of tobacco on his 100 acres, disposing of the same at an average of $9.50 per hundred. When the large acreage is taken into consideration, it is stated that the crop is the finest yield in the county.

New Combination Pocket Case for Smokers

A useful pocket case, similar to those used for carrying cigars, has recently been put on the market and should prove a boon to smokers who desire to safely carry a full complement. The interior is similar to the usual cigar case except that one side has a compartment for cigars, while the other side is arranged to carry cigarettes and a book of matches.

Short talks to Dealers

It is just as essential to use good cigarettes in order to build up a substantial cigarette business as to use good building material for a home. With you have a good, dependable foundation. Good, because the mild, mellow Turkish flavor of Fatimas is the flavor most desired by cigarette smokers. Dependable, because our process of manufacture insures the same uniform quality in each cigarette in every package.

FATIMA
TURKISH BLEND
CIGARETTES

And to increase the already enormous sale of Fatimas and to make it easy for you to build up a big, substantial trade with them, we are advertising them very heavily during 1914. More Fatima cigarettes are sold than any other brand in this country.

In fact, the 1914 Fatima advertising campaign will be one of the very biggest ever known for cigarettes.

And back of every ad—every cigarette and every dealer—stands the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

"The House That Merit Built"

April 18, 1908, BOLD cigars first came into the Philadelphia market. A small two story dwelling was converted into a factory. Few people would then have dared predict that on April 18, 1914, BOLD cigars would be known and sold in a major portion of the United States; that it would require three large modern factories to supply the demand; that BOLD cigars would be ranked as one of the largest selling brands in the country.

Merit and quality have wrought this truly phenomenal success.

THE NEW GLASS CIGAR BOX LID

Many Dealers refusing to place them on their counters, compelled us to condemn these Antiquated Lids, after securing many patents and making over 2,000,000 the past 15 years.

The Efficiency and Practicability of the New Lids

are the greatest factors that lead to bountiful sales and satisfactory results. The Distinctive Originality and Superiority of the "Steel Wire Edged Glass Lid" is creating wonderful interest by its simplicity and strength, while the neat and refined display creates a cheerful and appetizing taste to smokers.

The bulky cheap metal framed lids, create a dull and shoddy atmosphere and depress sales in any store. We still make them at reduced prices for those who want them.

Smart and Progressive Dealers discard the clumsy devices from their counters to adopt the new "Classy Lids" and display them effectively, predominately and profitably.

DEALERS!

Do you realize that it is a fact that when a smoker of imported cigars wants a milder smoke or a more economical one (as many of them do just now), he buys a good imported Porto Rican

SAVARONA

These imported SAVARONAS, like the imported Havana cigars, are made up in the district where the tobacco is grown. The cigars are packed and shipped over seas, and subjected to the same conditions as the imported Havana, except that they pay no duty. The result is great similarity between imported SAVARONAS and imported Havana, the SAVARONA having the advantages of mildness and the price less than half for the same sizes, because they pay no duty.

Remember there is no other Porto Rican cigar in the same class with SAVARONAS. They are made of genuine Porto Rican tobacco from the best districts, and it makes all the difference in the world where the tobacco comes from.

They suit the same class of smoker. Prove it yourself by putting in SAVARONAS and getting your "imported" smoker to try them. YOU will make MORE MONEY if you do, and your CUSTOMERS will SAVE MONEY.

Try LUCKY STRIKE.
You can bank on this:
All who know real tobacco when they smoke it,
Smoke LUCKY STRIKE.
LUCKY STRIKE won't "balk."
It "follows" you can "draw" well with it.

LUCKY STRIKE

ROLL CUT TOBACCO

is the one premier smoke for all men, whether billiard players or not. If you like a rich, yet mild, tobacco—if you like it in a pipe or a cigarette—if you like a smoke that has a sound, reliable, mellow, real tobacco taste to it —LUCKY STRIKE is your tobacco.

Fastidious judges of tobacco have for over forty years proclaimed LUCKY STRIKE'S pre-eminence. A wonderfully old Kentucky Burley, redolent of Nature's own sweet fragrance, ripened in golden sunshine, aged until flavor-perfect—LUCKY STRIKE is the grand old leader of them all.

For cigarettes: the new Roll Cut form is especially made so as to crumble easily into a compact, firm roll—no humps or bumps and no clogging—a free, easy draught.

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW YORK CITY, April 13.

A BITTER fight will be waged by the manufacturers of clear Havana cigars in New York who wish to take up the advantages of the Factory Bonding Provision of the recent Underwood Tariff Bill. Up to date, only two factories in New York City have placed themselves in bond. These two are the Guedalia & Company, 403-405 East Sixty-second Street, and the Crest Cigar Company, Inc., 401 East 124th Street, and after going to the expense of complying with the provisions of the law the manufacturers are confronted with a most serious problem concerning the rulings of the Treasury Department on the character of a stamp to be placed on their boxes. The Underwood bill was particularly vague on the details of the cigar factory bonding and left many of the vital points to the discretion of the Treasury Department. Guedalia & Company, acting upon the first rulings of the department, went into bond. The official stamps which the Treasury Department had adopted originally were thoroughly satisfactory to them, but after they had made about 150,000 cigars a change took place in Washington concerning the wording on the boxes in reference to the method of manufacture of certain grades, and a new ruling was issued which provided that any goods not made by hand in every detail by an individual cigarmaker must bear on the stamp "Team Work."

Naturally, a connoisseur would look askance at a brand labeled in this manner. As is well known in the trade, a large percentage of the cigars made in New York, where the price of labor is considerably higher than in the Southern cities, is made by two men working together, one of the men making the bunch and handing it to the other, who puts on the wrapper. By this method a larger output is obtained and thus the increase in the cost of labor is offset. It is claimed by the Tampa manufacturers that in the team work method, a cigar mould or paper, or clip or some other device is used in the making of the cigars, and that the use of these devices does not warrant the manufacturer in labeling their goods hand-made. The New York manufacturers dispute this contention and claim that their clear Havana cigars are not fully made by hand, but that the bunch and wrapping is absolutely according to Spanish methods and that no discrimination should be made in the labeling of their goods when they are made by team work in bond.

The New York manufacturers have expressed a willingness to leave out the term "Spanish method," but they do demand that they be permitted to use the phraseology "long Havana filler without binder and strictly hand-made," and they are fighting to obtain this concession, contending that

END ALLEGED TOBACCO MONOPOLY BY ADOPTING OPEN MARKET POLICY

P. Lorillard Tobacco Co. First to Advertise New Selling Plan—American Tobacco Company Follows With Similar Announcement Today—R. J. Reynolds Company Also Expected to Make Public New Policy.

(Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW YORK, April 14, 1914.

FOLLOWING closely the announcement made last Sunday in the newspapers by the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, that they would sell to any wholesale dealer in tobacco products any of their brands, the private and controlled ones excepted, the American Tobacco Company will tomorrow, April 15th, mail a circular letter, declaring a similar intention, to all tobacco jobbers in the district bounded by Stamford, Conn., on the north, and Trenton, N. J., on the south. This is the district in which the Metropolitan Tobacco Company formerly held jobbing privileges that were objectionable to the Government.

The Liggett & Myers Company, it is said, broke away from this practice about two years ago. It now remains for the R. J. Reynolds Company to adopt the open market policy —a plan which it is expected to embrace within the next few days.

When the Government began its effort to rectify the evils which are said to exist in the jobbing trade, it first considered the possibility of dissolving the Metropolitan Company. This plan, it was feared, would force the tobacco companies to retaliate by selling direct to the retailer at prices which the independent jobber could never hope to meet.

President Hill, of the American Company, said today that his company would not adopt such a plan, but would continue to distribute its products through jobbers.

It was said tonight that the tobacco companies would probably not alter their methods of doing business in any other essential details. Whether this will satisfy the Government is not known.

It was announced by a Government representative, that there will be no need of further conferences. According to those in a position to know, this does not mean that the Government has placed its stamp of approval on the course taken by the tobacco people or that the Government authorities have definitely decided to call off the contemplated Sherman law action.

Another meeting of the various interests was held on Monday last at which attorneys were present representing the American Tobacco Company, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, P. Lorillard Company and the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, as well as the Metropolitan Tobacco Company with U. S. Attorney Marshall and the move of the Lorillard Company at that time, we judge, was thoroughly discussed, but none of the details of the conference were given out by any of those present. A well-posted man in the trade says that the whole crux of the situation is what shall be done with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company.

A Handsome Display of "Originator" Cigars

This display of "Originator" cigars, made by E. M. Schwarz & Company, appeared recently in one of the windows of the Max Roth Cigar Company's store, located at 115 West Sixth Street, Los Angeles, Cal. Many smokers were attracted to the store by this excellent display and as a result sales of "Originators" jumped to a new mark.

Business Conditions Below Normal—"Courtello" Cigar Making Big Gains—"Steber" Factory Busy—"Rose-O-Cuba" Brand Far Ahead of Last Year's Record Sales

READING, PA., April 11, 1914.

WHILE the larger factories continue busy, there is a lull in the orders with the smaller manufacturers, and a number of them have reduced their hands to a minimum number. On the other hand, the big firms, who are continually advertising, find themselves busy trying to catch up on back orders. Persistent advertising keeps the factory busy in a dull season as well as in the prosperous months.

John J. Seiz has filed a bond for $500 with Deputy Revenue Collector Cranston for the opening of a cigar factory at 834 North Twelfth Street.

John G. Spatz, of John G. Spatz & Co., is expected home from the New England States about the twentieth of this month. Business on the "Heidelberg" brand continues good and "repeat" business is keeping the cigarmakers busy.

D. F. Fleck, manufacturer of the "Courtello" nickel cigar, has recently returned from a trip through Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Mr. Fleck states that he succeeded in opening a number of very desirable accounts and adds that "Courtello" is going bigger than ever this year. April 8 marked the third anniversary of his signing the lease for the property at 815 Court Street. In the short time that has elapsed the growth of his business is considered unusually remarkable.

C. B. Kutz, manufacturer of "Bard of Avon" and "Soul Kiss" cigars, has returned from a short trip through the state in the interests of his brands. The factory is now located at 133 North Third Street.

C. C. Roland, whose factory is now located at Schiller and Division Streets, has returned from a trip to the Coast in the interests of his "Goose-Bone" brand. He will shortly leave for an extended trip through Ohio and Indiana.

F. A. Steber, of F. A. Steber & Son, has been spending a few days in Warren, Pa., where he formerly manufactured his brands. "Steber," the leading brand of the concern, is holding up well and "duplicating" business keeps a large number of hands busy at the tables.

J. U. Fehr & Son, leaf dealers at 135 Maple Street, report business good. This firm has recently opened a warehouse at Trotwood, O., about 12 miles from Dayton, and are packing at that location "Dutch Zimmer," "Gebhart" and "Graham."

The Fleck Cigar Co., manufacturers of the well-known "Rose-o-Cuba" brand, report that for the first three months this year the orders have exceeded the same period in 1913 by more than one million cigars. George Parker, Philadelphia distributor, has been sending in "repeat" orders to the factory, and is doing a very pleasing business. D. D. Sulkis, Western representative, is now in New York State doing some display work for several of the firm's jobbers.

To Establish Cigar Factory in Talladega, Ala.

Talladega, Ala., has been assured of a cigar factory. W. O. Johnson, a former Key West cigarmaker, will establish a factory in that city shortly. In fact, he expects to begin manufacturing in a few days, as soon as the materials arrive. The factory will be located in the Baker & Johnson Building.

UNITED PROFIT-SHARING CORPORATION FORMED TO ISSUE COUPONS FOR CHAIN STORES AND OTHERS

To Have Authorized Capital of $350,000—John F. Whelan Elected to the Presidency—Stock to be Distributed to Holders of United Cigar Stores Stock

(Special to "The Tobacco World.")

NEW YORK CITY, April 11, 1914.

JOHN F. WHELAN was elected president of the United Profit-Sharing Corporation, which is to sell coupons to the United Cigar Stores Company, Riker-Hegeman Company and others. The corporation has $350,000 capital in $1 shares. A syndicate has underwritten 316,890 shares. Common and preferred shareholders of record April 20, have the right to subscribe to the shares.

The United Cigar Stores Company is sending out the following letter to stockholders:

"The United Cigar Stores Company has deemed it advisable to separate the profit-sharing department of its business, and in the future will carry on that department partly by issuing and redeeming in some places its own coupons and certificates, but in greater part by delivering to its customers coupons and certificates issued by a new corporation, which has just been organized under laws of Delaware, known as the United Profit-Sharing Corporation.

"The new company will have an authorized capital stock of $350,000 divided into 350,000 shares of par value of $1 each.

"The new corporation will redeem coupons and certificates which are so issued and will also offer to redeem coupons and certificates issued by the United Cigar Stores Company, in all cases subject to such limitations as imposed by law. The same high standards which have been maintained by the United Cigar Stores in operating and conducting its own profit-sharing department during the past thirteen years will be continued and constant effort to improve them will be made by this new corporation."

When asked if the object of the new company was to do away with the possibility of interference with the coupon business of the United Cigar Stores Company by adverse legislation in Washington, Mr. Whelan denied that the organizers of the company had any such intentions.

Eisenlohrs Again Victims of Theft

Believing the payroll for the week to be reposing in the safe, burglars last week effected an entrance to the cigar factory of Otto Eisenlohr & Brothers, on Franklin Street, Boyertown, Pa., and with the aid of nitro-glycerine blew open the safe, from which they extracted $200 in cash and $900 worth of cigar stamps. The theft which occurred about 1.30 A. M. is the second which has taken place within the past year, the first having transpired October 29th, last, when a robber, having solved the combination of the safe, succeeded in getting away with $600. Six armed men are said to have been connected with the latest robbery.

"Arizona Club" to Invite Attention

Realizing the value of the natural conditions prevalent at Phoenix, Ariz., Louis Lewkowitz, well known in this place, has decided to embark in the manufacturing game himself and will shortly put a brand on the market under the title of "Arizona Club." Mr. Lewkowitz is a born optimist and in a recent statement is quoted as saying that "tobacco conditions in both Cuba and the United States are better than they have been since 1905, and the growers are enthusiastic over the quality and quantity of the crop now being produced."

UNITED CIGAR STORE INTERESTS MAY ESTABLISH CHAIN OF RETAIL STANDS IN BRITISH ISLES

Chain Store System to Start About June 1st—Independent From American Company—Whelan is Interested

NEW YORK, April 13, 1914.

FOLLOWING close upon the announcement recently made in London, by George J. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company of America, that the interests allied with him were contemplating a chain of retail stores throughout the British Isles, comes a definite announcement last week from Charles A. Whelan, from the United Company's headquarters on West Eighteenth Street, that arrangements had all been perfected for the early registration of the proposed new company in England and that attorneys hoped to have the articles of incorporation filed by the first of June at the latest date. This eventually disposes of the many rumors which have been afloat for several years past, as to whether the United Cigar Stores Company would attempt to batter down English conservatism and introduce into the United Kingdom, the methods which have made the Shield stores the big success they are in the United States. Time and again reports have been issued to the effect that the United of America had bought the Baker chain stores and other similar enterprises in Great Britain. None of these ever bore the stamp of authority.

The new corporation will probably be known as the British and Colonial United Cigar Stores Company, though this point has not yet been definitely decided, and some of the parties interested favor the United Cigar Stores of Great Britain. It is, however, an assured fact that the stores will be opened and conducted precisely along the same lines as the United stores are in the United States, and while the British company will be a separate corporation, the directing minds will be practically the same as those back of the parent concern and American capital will finance the project.

In opening the stores in Great Britain, the Whelan interests accomplish a plan which has been under serious consideration for a number of years, and George J. Whelan, especially, if the venture proves a success, which is prophesied, will consider it one of the most noteworthy features of a career which has been marked with the doing of big things.

As far as London is concerned, the prediction is made that the United stores will have a hard battle to secure anything like the preponderance of retail business which they control in large cities like Philadelphia, New York, and elsewhere in the States, for it must be conceded that the British tobacconists, as a body, conduct a higher class grade of retail shops in the big cities, than we are accustomed to in the United States, and this, without disparagement to our home business. Hence, with the field in many sections adequately covered and the difficulty of obtaining the choice sites for shops, the entrance of the United Stores into British circles will be watched with more than passing interest.

Who Wants a Tobacco Representative in Turkey?

We are in receipt of a letter from a subscriber who desires to represent an American tobacco firm in Turkey. The correspondent states that he has lived for many years in Smyrna and that he speaks fluently Greek, Turkish and French. He adds that he is able to give a money guarantee if he can secure the proper connections.

Should anyone reading this notice be interested in securing a representative for Turkish tobacco, we will promptly put the parties in touch with the correspondent, if they will address this office.

It's only a matter of a few days now when Secretary of State Bryan will be confronted with the question of the re-adjustment of our Reciprocity Treaty with Cuba. As is well known, under the present terms of the treaty, Cuba received a drawback of twenty per cent. on all cigars and tobacco which they export to the United States, and they also have a reduction on the rates of their sugar, for which concessions the United States Government receives a similar rebate on her products entering Cuba.

What Will Bryan Offer?

Under the terms of the recently enacted Underwood bill, the preferential duties on Cuba sugar are of course wiped out and any country can send their sugar products to the United States on the same basis as Cuban sugar. The only advantage to Cuba, with the exception of the duty on Cuban tobacco, is thus lost to that country, and it is therefore a safe surmise that as soon as the new sugar schedule becomes operative the Cuban Government will perforce abrogate the reciprocal treaty, which they can do at their pleasure.

Then will arise a condition which will give Secretary Bryan a lot of serious thought if he wishes to renew the treaty and secure to the United States the inside benefits of the Cuban market. The imports of Havana cigars into the United States, as well as the imports of Cuban tobacco, will by no means offset the big loss of the United States as a sugar market, and it is quite possible that the Cuban government will put up a strenuous demand for a big reduction on the duty on tobacco and Havana cigars.

It is pointed out by a keen economic student that even if the Government should take so radical a step as to meet the requests of the Cuban Cigar Importers' Association on the matter of duties on Havana cigars, even this big advantage to the Cuban cigar manufacturers would not offset the sugar proposition.

The outcome of the situation will be watched with deep interest by all American clear Havana cigar manufacturers, as well as by our Cuban brethren.

* * *

The demands of the independent jobbers, that the alleged monopoly of the Metropolitan Tobacco Company in the district between Stamford, Conn., and Trenton, N. J., be broken up, has received the careful attention of the Government, and the latest reports indicate that the matter is being satisfactorily adjusted. The concerns involved in the Government investigation were the P. Lorillard Company, the American Tobacco Company, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, and Liggett & Myers.

Tobacco Companies Meet Government Demands

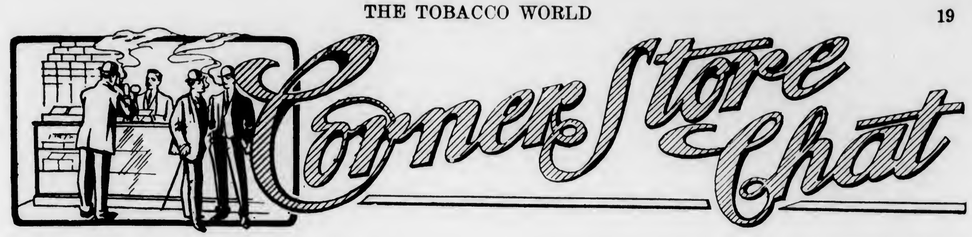
The first two firms have already indicated that they are willing to deal with all jobbers on an equal basis, while a similar announcement is expected from the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. It is stated that Liggett & Myers discontinued exclusive dealings with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company more than two years ago, so that their position will remain unchanged.

The Government has not yet stated whether this arrangement meets with their entire approval. The Metropolitan Tobacco Company still remains, and it is probable that the future actions of the Government officials will be guided largely by the movements of the Metropolitan.

The jobbers are now placed in a position where they can secure the goods of the big companies on an equal basis. They will have to push their brands in order to maintain the accounts, and their failure to do so may lead to business being done direct with the retailer, although announcement has been made that no such plan is considered. However, it is reasonable to assume that the distribution of the brands must be kept up, and especially in those cases where they are extensively advertised.

If the big concerns are precluded or are prevented from having one exclusive distributing jobber, there is nothing in the law or practice which would prevent them from dealing directly with the retailer, if they so elect, and if the general jobbing trade fails to push their products as they desire.

If such a contingency should arise the independent jobbers would be in a worse position than they are today. It is palpable that the big corporations with their tremendous expenditures of money for advertising and distribution of new brands must get distribution, and if the independent jobbers do not give it to them transactions between the big companies and the retailers are almost sure to follow.



I WAS returning from Florida recently, and much to my surprise found that the only other occupant of the smoker was a young Englishman, very much occupied with his own interests.

As all my friends know, I am a lover of a good cigar, and before entering the train at Key West I supplied myself with a goodly number of first-class domestic cigars.

After having read until I scarcely knew whether I was reading Kipling or Robert Chambers, I decided to vary the monotony of the journey by learning from my fellow-traveller his impressions of American winter resorts.

My efforts to carry on a conversation failed miserably, so resigning myself to the inevitable, I lighted a perfecto, and was enjoying to the full the fragrant weed, when I was surprised to see the colored porter bowing and smiling in front of me.

"Did you ring, suh," he queried.

"Must have been our English friend," I replied.

The porter hastened to learn the wishes of his patron, and a close observer might have noticed a peculiar twinkle in his eyes when the Englishman demanded some of the best "imported Key West cigars you have."

The porter returned shortly with several well known brands of Key West cigars, which he displayed in true Southern style.

"Are these imported Key West cigars," demanded the son of John Bull.

"No, suh," said the porter, "I have no imported Key West cigars."

"Well, did I or did I not ask for imported Key West cigars," exploded my fellow-passenger.

"'Deed you did, suh, but——"

"Very well then, imported Key West cigars are what I want."

The request was so unusual I thought it about time I had an ante, so leaning over the seat I volunteered the information that there was no such thing as imported Key West cigars.

This information was received with typical English hauteur, but what followed is the reason for this story.

"But when I go to my club in New York and ask for imported Key West cigars, do they tell me that I am a damn fool?"

"No," I replied, "they don't tell you, but they know it."

If you think this story is not true, ask my good friend Alfred J. Keppelmann, of Philadelphia.

* * *

While in England a short while ago, I had occasion to spend a few days with an American friend of mine in Chiswick, just outside of London, and as a result of some cigars that were passed out after dinner, I learned a trick that may prove of benefit to some other married men with marriageable daughters.

This friend has been established in England only a few years, and while he has met with success he is not to be classed as wealthy. It was therefore with some surprise that I found that he was giving me imported cigars that retailed for one and two shillings, to smoke after dinner.

After the third night, as we knew each other intimately, I approached him on the subject and in a roundabout way asked him how he could afford to smoke and pass out such expensive cigars. He laughed and said: "I have expected you would be asking me that, and I am going to tell you, for it is a joke on our daughter's young man who calls two or three times a week. He's an agent or something for a big firm of cigar importers, and generally has his pockets full of their best samples. Well, after we go to bed and the lights are turned down he takes them out of his pockets and puts them on the mantelpiece—to keep them from getting crushed, I suppose. Then, when it comes to leaving, between the desire to skip out without making any noise at such a late hour and the pain of saying good night to our daughter, he forgets all about them. I tell you, our daughter has been a pretty heavy expense, but she's sort of paying for herself now."

* * *

When I was in college some twenty years ago, one of the quietest and yet most forceful men with whom I came in contact was a tall, strapping, red-haired fellow, Henry W. Thornton by name. He was an able student in the course of engineering, made one of the best centre rushes on the Penn football team who ever played for his Alma Mater, and when out of the classroom was a constant cigarette smoker. Since graduation, Mr. Thornton has become a big figure in the railroad circles of the world, and no one was surprised recently when a committee of distinguished Englishmen came over to the United States and selected this comparatively young man to go to England as the general manager of the Great Eastern Railway system which has been dying of dry rot."

Thornton had already the Long Island Railroad system, which was a joke line, and made it a splendid property and a worthy child of the marvelous Pennsylvania organization.

His advent into English railroad circles has been watched with more or less suspicion and perhaps jealous unfriendliness, and I was immensely amused the other day to read that thus far the only unkind criticism which they were able to bring against him in London was "that he persisted in smoking cigarettes during business hours," which was directly in contradiction of the old English methods which had prevailed in the company's offices. Five years from now, we venture to predict, that the Englishmen will be sending for some more cigarette smoking Americans of the Thornton type.

Pittsburgh

Alleged Tobacco Thieves Arrested—May Drug Company Takes on "Reynaldo" Cigars—"Camp" Cigarettes Are Well Placed in City—Larus Brothers Working City on "Edgeworth" and "Qboid"

PITTSBURGH, PA., April 9, 1914.

AS the Lenten season is about over business is starting to improve, as many people who stop smoking during Lent are again buying their favorite brands.

L. K. Black, for fifteen years West Virginia representative for the R. & W. Jenkinson Company, now the Bock-Stauffer Company, was made general sales manager of this company. F. J. Kelly succeeds Mr. Black in West Virginia.

On April 0th at 9.30 A. M. two young men made an attempt to rob the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company of 75,000 cigarettes. One of the young men went to the third floor of the company while the other was waiting outside with a horse and wagon. One of the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company employees, hearing the noise on the third floor, which is unusual at that time of the day, went up to investigate and found the young man wheeling three cases of cigarettes to the elevator. The police arrested him, but his confederate, becoming suspicious of the long absence of his pal, took flight and escaped. The one arrested gave his name as John Smith, twenty-two years old, of Cleveland, O., but the police found out later that his right name is John Sullivan, of Cleveland, O. The B. & O. and P. R. R. Company detectives have been looking for these men for sometime past, as they took cases of cigars from the railroad platforms. A few weeks ago L. Goldsmit, Brother & Company had 6000 "Tom Keene" cigars stolen from their sidewalk and the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company had cigarettes to the amount of $150 taken.

Clarke Painter, representing the Barrington Tobacco Company, of Norwalk, Conn., is introducing a new twenty-five-cent cigarette put up in a very nice package.

H. D. Morgan and F. E. Everett, representing Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, are working the down-town trade with the No. 1 package of "Picnic Twist" tobacco.

F. I. Clemens, of the Park Building Cigar Stand, reports a very nice business on "Savarona" cigars. Mr. Clemens also handles the "White Heather" cigar, made in the Cuesta-Rey factory.

Mr. Sheenan, of Toledo, O., representing P. Lorillard Company, with a crew of six men, is introducing "Stag" tobacco.

A. R. Clark, of Pittsburgh, assisted by Mr. Wilkinson, representing P. Lorillard Company, are putting in many fine window displays in the down-town section on "Helmar" and "London Life" cigarettes.

Dave Achenbach, of Bayuk Brothers, Philadelphia, is in town in the interest of "Havana Ribbon" cigars. Siller-Narten-Barnes Company are distributors for this brand.

C. E. Peters is working the down-town section in the interest of "Rose De Vall" cigars, one of the new P. Lorillard brands. This cigar is taking very nicely with the dealers. T. C. Jenkins are the distributors.

O. K. Parker, of the American Tobacco Company, is working very strongly on "Bull Durham" tobacco. Mr. Parker had a young man in the window of C. J. Moye & Company, Sixth Street, showing the public how cigarettes should be rolled. The crowd was so large that the police made them discontinue this kind of advertising.

Reymer Brothers, Fifth and Wood, are featuring "Partagas" and "Sanche & Haya" cigars.

C. A. Gibbs Company just received a shipment of "Lozanos" made-in-bond and are displaying same in their windows.

Bob Ellis, of L. Goldsmit, Brother & Company, was highly commended on the way he introduced the "Little Barrette" cigars in Pittsburgh. They delivered them in two large moving vans decorated very nicely. They have placed them in nearly all of the down-town stands.

The May Drug Company have taken on the "Reynaldo" cigars, distributed by Arnheim-Herz Company, of Pittsburgh. This cigar is made in Philadelphia by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb. With the assistance of the nine stores of the May Drug Company they should have a nice success.

The Hotel Henry Cigar Stand is doing a very nice business. Chas. Boyle, with his fair assistant, are some hustlers and are very well liked by the patrons of the hotel. Among the brands carried in this stand are "El Versos," "Girards," "Gatos," "Cuesta-Rey," "Webster," "Cortez," "Solace" and "Van Dyke." They also carry a full line of imported cigars.

R. S. Sugden, representing the Cump Importation Company, of New York, has been in town the last two weeks introducing the "Camp" cigarettes. He has place them in the following well known stands: Henry, Newells, Antler, Afco Cigar Company, A. L. Kidner, Colonial Hotel, Monongahela House, Matt Weiss, Ft. Pitt Hotel and Duquesne Club.

T. A. Kinney, of Franklin, Pa., had his opening day of his new store on Saturday. The store is a handsome one and is fitted up with all of the latest and modern fixtures. A great many attended the opening and all received a handsome celluloid match box and a free cigar.

Fear Tobacco Firm's President is Suicide

ALL efforts of the police of Wilkes-Barre to locate Russell Uhl, president of the Penn Tobacco Company, one of the largest independent concerns in the country, have failed. It is believed that he committed suicide, as his clothing was found on the river bank. The Susquehanna River has been dragged without locating the body.

On April 3rd the missing man called his counsel and family together and dictated his will. He retired at midnight and was apparently in good spirits. He was heard to leave the house on April 4th about 5 A. M., which is the time he usually went over to the factory. However, he failed to appear at his desk and a search revealed his hat, coat and overcoat on the river bank near his palatial home. Uhl recently remodeled his home at a cost of more than $50,000 and was regarded as one of the wealthiest men in the community.

The Penn Tobacco Company is capitalized at $1,000,000. They recently erected a splendid new factory at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., costing $250,000. It has not been occupied a year. The stock of the company has been looked upon as a lucky investment, and it is said that several offers have been made the company for its business. The directors of the company insist that the books of the corporation are in excellent shape and that there was no cause for such action as Mr. Uhl is believed to have taken.

Mr. Uhl underwent an operation several months ago and had not been in good health since.

New Midget Cigar Store

G. A. Dersch, of the Midget Cigar Company, has removed from the store on Fulton Street to the new quarters he has recently secured at 117 South Adams Street, Peoria, Ill. The new store is up to the standard of the Midget stores and with its new fixtures is one of the finest cigar stands to be found in that section.

F. Harrower, of the Penn Tobacco Company, assisted by a crew, are working the Pittsburgh district on "Penco" and "Sterling" tobaccos.

J. W. Klein, of Cleveland, O., representing Larus Brothers, of Richmond, Va., has been working in Pittsburgh on "Edgeworth" and "Qboid" tobacco. The May Drug Company has recently taken on these popular brands and report nice business on same. Mr. Klein has been doing a lot of advertising here, which is sure to keep these brands to the front.

"Mose" Balsamo, manager of the cigar stand at Gaffney & Harding's Cafe, Braddock, Pa., has just received a new case and is featuring "Bachelors," "Cuesta-Rey" and "La Saramita" cigars.

Haworth & Dewhurst report good business on "John Ruskin" cigars and "Manillanettes" stogies. These goods are made by I. Lewis Manufacturing Company, Newark, N. J. Mr. B. S. Dripps is the factory representative for this section.

J. D. Armstrong, city salesman for the American Tobacco Company, has recently been promoted, much to the delight of his many friends in Pittsburgh. "J. D.," as he is known to the trade, won this recognition not on account of lack of men to take the place higher up, but because he had worked hard and faithfully to fit himself for something better. "J. D." was at one time a salesman for the "Fatima" cigarette, but changed to the American Tobacco Company when H. A. Lundgren had charge of the city forces. We wish "J. D." much success and will watch for him to make further progress, regretting only that Pittsburgh must lose the service of such a valuable man.

John Dyson, of the Dyson Cigar Company, Wheeling, W. Va., was in town for a few days.

The Spacious Home of "First Consul" Cigars

This illustration shows the spacious home of "First Consul" cigars, made by P. Pohalski & Company, Lincoln Brothers, proprietors. The offices and factory are located at 466-468 Broome Street, New York City.

"First Consul" cigars have long been a favorite with smokers of high grade tobaccos and there is scarcely a club of the better sort in the country that does not carry "First Consuls" for its members. The cigar is a favorite with consumers throughout the United States, and "First Consuls" have met with the highest approval wherever introduced.

Trade Jottings

Emanuel Frolichstein has been appointed manager of the cigar department of Dave Bauer, Mobile, Ala., who handles a high grade line of cigars. Mr. Frolichstein was formerly a cigar salesman.

B. Mirsky, San Francisco, who takes care of the local distribution of "Juan de Fuca," reports the receipt of a recent shipment of this well-known brand, bearing the bonded factory stamp.

First class business is reported by the Parker-Gordon Cigar Company, Kansas City, Mo., on "El-Roi-Tan" and "Class" brands.

"Grathwol's Havana," a nickel cigar, is the latest addition to the Grathwol store, located on Robert Street, St. Paul, and is proving a big seller in this class of goods. Y. Pendas & Alvarez' "Webster" was recently featured by this store in a window display which attracted much attention.

"Philip Morris," "Benson & Hedges," "Fifty-six," "Melachrinos," and other well-known cigarettes, formed the basis of an attractive window display recently made by the cigar department of the Powers Mercantile Company, Minneapolis, Minn.

A check of $100 was recently tendered by Messrs. Hose & Brillhart, cigar manufacturers, to the local fire company at Dallastown, as a slight testimonial of the manner in which the company handled the recent fire which proved so disastrous to the cigar manufacturing plant of the two gentlemen above named.

There was quite an increase in the sale of cigar stamps in the revenue office at York, Pa., during the month of March, the combined sales amounting to $24,503.61.

Though only in existence a few months, the Max-I-Mo Cigar Company, of 219 Occidental Avenue, Seattle, Wash., is leaping fast to the front, recent reports having been to the effect that business is exceptionally fine. Manila cigars are specialized in and are to be had at all prices and in many sizes. The "La Calidad," manufactured by the La Maria Cristina Company, Manila, is being featured and comes in ten sizes.

As the result of increased business, the Cambyses Cigarette Company, located at 404 Atlantic Street, Boston, Mass., will remove to new and larger quarters at 145 North Washington Street, about May 1st. The company will occupy the entire building, which will give them extended facilities for the manufacture of their popular product.

END ALLERGED TOBACCO MONOPOLY BY ADOPTING OPEN MARKET POLICY

One of the most interesting developments of the past fortnight was the public announcement, made through the New York newspapers on last Sunday by P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, to the effect that in future they would do business direct with any wholesale dealer in tobacco products. The advertisement which the company inserted in the newspapers was brief and to the point. It read as follows:

"Effective as of April 11, 1914, we will sell any brands manufactured or sold by us, private and controlled brands excepted, to any wholesale dealer in tobacco products.

(Signed),
P. LORILLARD TOBACCO CO."

This move on the part of the Lorillard Company is in keeping with the plan as outlined by Herbert C. Smyth, who is special counsel for the United States Government in the case which has involved the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, of New York, and that concern's exclusive control of the output of P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company and the American Tobacco Company's products. As previously stated there have been a number of conferences between Mr. Smyth, U. S. District Attorney Marshall, of New York, and the various eminent lawyers representing the big tobacco concerns over the legality of the various big companies' arrangements with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, and the whole matter finally sifted down to a demand by the Government that the present exclusive handling by the Metropolitan Company be abolished, and that all jobbers should be furnished goods directly by the various concerns implicated.

It now appears that the Lorillard Company has taken the first step to acquiesce in the Government's requirements and similar action will no doubt be taken by the American Tobacco Company and Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, though at this writing no authoritative announcements have come from either of these concerns, despite a rumor to the effect that the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company had issued a similar notice from their St. Louis headquarters.

Captain Barnard to Retire.

His resignation as president to take effect November 1st, next, was recently tendered by Captain I. P. Barnard, to the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company, it being his desire to retire from active business life at the end of the present year. It was with much regret that the directors of the company accepted the resignation. Captain Barnard is widely known throughout Kentucky through his affiliation with the tobacco interests of that State and was one of the organizers of the Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company which, beginning on a small scale eighteen years ago, has since handled on an average of 75,000,000 pounds of tobacco a year. This company controls eight warehouses in Louisville, loose leaf houses in Lexington, two each in Carrollton and Maysville, and one each in Owensboro and Bowling Green. Of the company's eighteen years of existence, fourteen have been presided over by Captain Barnard as president, during which time the organization has paid out in dividends to stockholders $1,500,000.

John Henry Miller, druggist, Lancaster, Pa., reports good business on the "Reynaldo" and Godfrey S. Mahn cigarettes.

UNITED STATES BONDED CIGAR FACTORIES IN NEW YORK DISTRESSED

if they do not, the production of cigars in bond will almost necessarily be confined to Tampa and Key West.

Up to the present time, the Treasury officials appear to side with the claims of the Tampa manufacturers and in the meantime the New York factories have suspended operations in bond, awaiting further ruling from the department.

There is much to be said on both sides of the controversy, but this is certain that definite guaranty should be given a manufacturer that goes into bond that onerous regulations would not be issued which would place factories in just such positions as these two companies in New York City at the present time.

Celestino Vega Arranging for Tobacco Warehouse in Havana—Arguelles, Lopez & Brother Plan Another Addition—John H. Boltz and Family Return to Philadelphia

TAMPA, FLA., April 11, 1914.

CELESTINO VEGA, of Celestino Vega & Co., is at the present time in Havana making arrangements for the securing of a warehouse in that city, in which to store his company's tobacco. This will do away with much needless expense and worriment incident to the storing of the tobacco in miscellaneous warehouses, which has been the custom heretofore. Mr. Vega, who was accompanied by his very young son, expects to spend a couple of weeks in Havana.

Arguelles, Lopez & Brother, of "Tadema" fame, are kept busy these days in the building line. It is now stated that just so soon as the present addition to the factory has been completed, work will be begun on a second addition, which is to extend about forty feet in the rear of the plant. The first addition is intended to be used as offices for the company, and that portion of the building now being devoted to office use, will be utilized for factory purposes. Should the present and contemplated additions not prove sufficient for the necessary requirements, the company states that they will not hesitate about the buying of additional ground. According to Mr. Lopez, 1913 was the largest year in the history of the firm, and that the output for the months of January and February of the present year doubled that for the same months of the year previous. March also proved very satisfactory to the company. So rapidly has the business of Arguelles, Lopez & Brother progressed, since its original inception, that this is the third time within a few years that it has been necessary to make additions to the company's plant.

Quite a pleasant visit was brought to an end within the past fortnight, when Mr. and Mrs. John H. Boltz and their daughter, Helen left here for their home in Philadelphia, after having spent some time visiting their son and brother, John Clymer Boltz, Tampa's well-known cigar manufacturer.

Among visitors to Tampa recently were George L. Harris, Jr., manager of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, and John M. Carlisle, of the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company.

W. H. Moore spent a couple of weeks here recently, taking care of the distribution of the well-known "London Life" cigarette.

William Murray, for several years with the M. Valle Cigar Company, has severed his connection with that concern.

Among the recent guests at the Hillsboro Hotel, was Lester Phearson, the popular "Bull Durham" salesman. Mr. Phearson spent several days looking over the trade here.

Frank Diaz, manager of the V. Guerra, Diaz & Co. factory, with Mrs. Diaz, has returned from a recent sojourn in Cuba, where he spent a couple of weeks, looking after certain matters for the company.

Edward R. Singleton has joined the selling staff of Quiros, Villazon & Co., and will cover Southern territory for the company.

Jerome Regensburg, recently left here for New York, where he plans to make an extended visit.

D. Llaneza, of Tampa, and Charles Aldrich, for many years office manager for Berriman Brothers in Chicago, have decided to go into the cigar manufacturing business and will shortly start to "make in bond." The new company will be located in the brick factory on Sixteenth Street, Ybor City, the place having formerly been occupied by Quiros, Villazon & Co.

JOBBERS & DISTRIBUTORS DEPARTMENT

Pittsburgh Jobbing House in Trouble

R. & W. JENKINSON COMPANY, wholesale and retail tobacco dealers, recently made application in the Common Pleas Court of Pittsburgh, for a receiver. Attorneys George C. Burgwin and H. S. McKinley, representing A. C. Shaw and others, presented the petition. Attorney Henry G. Wasson, representing the defendant, stated that the plaintiffs objected to the sale of certain leaseholds and property of the tobacco company that had been made by a creditors' committee which was appointed in March, 1913, to take charge of the affairs of the company. The bill is directed toward A. M. Jenkinson, president, and other officers of the company, and Preston Herbert, vice-president of the United Cigar Manufacturing Company, and other members of the creditors' committee.

The R. & W. Jenkinson Company was one of the first concerns in the United States to build up a chain of retail stores, having had twenty or more in operation at the time the United Stores came into being. This company started the manufacture of stogies as the result of demands for this product in their retail business and, in their efforts to obtain publicity, did not hesitate to use full page advertisements in the trade papers, which resulted in an extensive distribution of their stogies throughout the country. After some years, however, the company began to discontinue their advertising, with the result that sales gradually fell off, until at the time of the severing of the stogie business from the jobbing and retail operations of the company, the sales of stogies had reached a minimum.

William Laupheimer With Peregoy & Moore

William Laupheimer, for sixteen years representative in Kansas and parts of Oklahoma for the William A. Stickney Cigar Company, has recently been secured to represent the Peregoy & Moore Cigar Company in that territory. The house of Peregoy & Moore, located in St. Joseph, Mo., has long been known to the trade as jobbers of quality cigars, and Mr. Laupheimer's connection should prove highly favorable to an increased distribution of their brands.

Fay Lewis & Brothers' Company Among Largest Jobbers

One of the five largest cigar jobbing houses in the country today is Fay Lewis & Brothers Company, of Milwaukee, Wis., whose annual business is said to be in excess of $1,500,000.

In 1875 Fay Lewis, the senior member of the firm, now retired from active business, started a small retail store in Rockford, Ill., with a capital of $100. There was little growth until the early '80's when the two brothers, Harry and C. Herbert Lewis, were taken into partnership. In 1900 the business had grown beyond the limits of Rockford, and it was finally decided to establish headquarters in Milwaukee, with branches in La Crosse and Rockford.

In addition of jobbing cigars, Fay Lewis & Brothers Company own and control the "Harvester" brand, which this year will have a production in excess of 12,000,000.

New Wholesale Cigar House for Birmingham

IT is announced that the W. C. Patterson Cigar Company, of Birmingham, Ala., has purchased the lease, stock and fixtures of the J. R. Brown Company, located at the southwest corner of Second Avenue and Twentieth Street. The lower floor will be operated as a retail store, while the upper floor will be conducted as a wholesale department.

The company that has purchased the Brown Company is headed by W. G. Patterson, who has been for fourteen years with the R. D. Burnett Cigar Company. Mr. Patterson resigned his position of vice-president of the Burnett organization to take up the work of his new company that has purchased the Brown interests.

Mr. Patterson announced that his company was capitalized at $75,000, all of which is available for the business that will be transacted at the new wholesale house. He added that J. F. Hennessey would be vice-president and J. R. Lyle, secretary and treasurer.

This is the third wholesale cigar concern to open business in Birmingham, the other two being the Burnett Company and the C. C. Snider Company.

Lilly, Dungan & Company Urge Passage of Coupon Bill

Lilly, Dungan & Company, of Baltimore and Liberty Streets, Baltimore, Md., have recently carefully prepared an appeal which they are getting the dealers in Baltimore to sign and send to their six representatives and two senators.

They have been very much encouraged by the quick response of their dealers and their willingness to help stamp out this unfair method of competition.

Realizing the value of THE TOBACCO WORLD in reaching the tobacco trade they have forwarded a copy of the appeal with a request for its publication.

To the Hon.

WASHINGTON, D. C.,

Sir:

The undersigned respectfully and earnestly request that you support the pending legislation, taxing, or prohibiting the giving away of coupons with tobacco products.

The coupon or gift scheme is the most effective weapon used by the trust to destroy competition. The use of the coupon or gift scheme has driven out of business thousands of independent tobacco men, and if continued will become more and more dangerous to independent dealers.

Respectfully yours,

"Courtello" Selling Big With Reid Tobacco Company

Recent reports from the anthracite and bituminous regions, where the Reid Tobacco Company is the sole distributor for the "Courtello" cigar, made by D. F. Fleck, of Reading, Pa., indicate that this brand is rapidly becoming one of the leading nickel sellers in those sections. The only complaint that the distributors have to make on the brand is that they cannot get enough of them. The factory is oversold and every effort is being made to catch up with back orders. The Reid Tobacco Company has locations in both Milton and Altoona, Pa.

"Lord Colbeck" President Back From Jamaica

Stanley De Lisser, president of the firm of De Lisser-Schneider Company, manufacturers of high grade cigars, has recently returned to Philadelphia after a visit to his old home in Jamaica, B. W. I. The sea voyage did him much good and he has come back in excellent health to carry on a strenuous campaign in the interests of "Lord Colbeck," the firm's leader.

Mr. De Lisser is a former president of the Jamaica Tobacco Company, and while in Kingston he visited the factory of which he was the head for a number of years. He was pleasantly surprised to receive an almost royal ovation from the three hundred and fifty employees.

The city papers gave him welcomes on the front pages of their issues, and altogether Mr. De Lisser says he believes that they were really glad to see him again.

He had some chance to visit the tobacco plantations and reports that the crop, owing to an unusual drought, has suffered considerably. At the most, Mr. De Lisser says, the crop will be only a medium one with very little first-class tobacco in it.

Shipton & Payne Distribute "Courtello" Cigars

The Shipton & Payne Company, 2854 North Fifth Street, Philadelphia, Pa., has taken the distribution of the "Courtello" cigar for that territory. D. F. Fleck, of Reading, Pa., the manufacturer of the brand, reports that the cigar is taking well in the Quaker City and that the factory is kept busy supplying "repeat" orders.

New Trade-Mark Law for New York State

Cigar manufacturers in New York State are particularly interested in the bill which was passed by the recent Legislature, which is now awaiting the Governor's signature, concerning the protection of trade-marks in the Commonwealth of New York. The new bill practically wipes out the old trade-mark law, and under the provisions of it, swindlers and filchers of other men's honest and widely advertised brands can be put back of the bars, where they belong. The new provisions of the law read as follows:

"A person who shall knowingly sell, offer or expose for sale any article of merchandise, and shall orally or by representation, name or mark written or printed thereon or attached thereto or used in connection therewith, or by advertisement, or otherwise, in any manner whatsoever make any false representation as to the person by whom such article of merchandise or the material thereof was made, or was in whole or in part produced, manufactured, finished, processed, treated, marketed, packed, bottled, or boxed, or falsely represent that such article of merchandise or the material or any part thereof has or may properly have any trade-mark attached to it or used in connection with it, or is or may properly be indicated or identified by any trade-mark, is guilty of a misdemeanor and punishable for the first offense by a fine not less than $50 nor more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than one year, or both such fine and imprisonment, and for each subsequent offense by imprisonment for not less than thirty days or more than one year, or by both such imprisonment and a fine of not less than $500 or more than $1000."

The National Druggists' Association, the National Grocers' Association, the United States Trade-Mark Association and numerous other similar bodies, have joined in a strong appeal to Governor Glynn to affix his signature forthwith.

National Leaf Convention at Atlantic City Next Month

The National Cigar Leaf Association will hold its annual convention at Atlantic City May 11th and 12th. The officers of the association are: A. B. Hess, Lancaster, Pa., president; F. B. Griffin, North Bloomfield, Conn., vice-president; Charles E. Long, Lancaster, Pa., secretary; Ferdinand Cranz, New York, treasurer.

There is nothing more fascinating in the world than the history of success. The story of great achievements always catches the mind of the most simple man and the most brilliant genius. In every walk of commercial life there are some concerns which achieve success so noteworthy that they become standards by which other firms are judged. This is particularly true of the cigar industry, which discloses a list of possibly a score of houses, who, by sheer merit, entered a thoroughly crowded field and won a position for themselves on the top rung of the ladder.

Among this list today in the tobacco trade one of the most prominent names is that of Bobrow Brothers, which firm came into existence six years ago this April. Two hard-working young chaps, brothers, Harry I. and Charles Bobrow, determined that they would enter the cigar manufacturing business in Philadelphia, which they did in April, 1908. The fact that the country was suffering from the effects of a financial panic, and that there seemed very little room for a new concern, had no effect on their enthusiasm, and they opened up in a modest little shop with a well chosen brand name, and the best selected tobacco that they could get for the money, and started the manufacture of the "Bold" cigar. Today we find this firm owning three factories in Philadelphia, located at 114 South Second Street, 133 Arch Street and 125 South Second Street. All these establishments are thoroughly modern, and with the facilities they are capable of an annual output of 50,000,000, with a distribution scattered from Maine to California and from the oranges to the ice.

One of the most interesting features of the business is the fact that numerous imitators of their brand have sprung up, but the basic principles of diligence, honesty and hard work have brushed aside tribes of imitators, and the "Bold" business is increasing annually by millions.

It is needless to say that the firm have a splendid selling organization, that their business methods are thoroughly in keeping with modern ideas, and that their name on the ledger of any firm is considered money in bank.

They have been steady and careful advertisers, and their publicity manager, A. M. Schwarz, has added greatly to the popularity of his firm's goods by splendid copy in all the mediums they use.

THE TOBACCO WORLD has pleasure in congratulating Bobrow Brothers on their sixth anniversary, and wish for them a wider and more extensive measure of success in the years to come.

John Stevens Resigns From Associated Cigar Stores

Word is received from Syracuse that John A. Stevens, president of the Associated Cigar Stores of America, which was incorporated about two months ago, has resigned from that position and that he has sold his stock in the company to Leopold Stickly, of Eastwood, N. Y. The reason given by Mr. Stevens for his resignation is that the directors refused to uphold and carry out the plans which he had formulated for the expansion of the association.

Vice-President of Reid Tobacco Co. Will Recover

Friends of Russel Karachner, vice-president of the Reid Tobacco Company, Milton, Pa., will be glad to learn that the injury sustained through the accidental discharge of an automatic pistol recently will not prove fatal. Apropos of the accident, it seems that Mr. Karachner and a friend were in the dining-room of the Iroquois Hotel, when the latter drew from his pocket an automatic pistol for the purpose of displaying its merits. As he was about to hand it to Mr. Karachner, it was suddenly discharged, the bullet imbedding itself in Mr. Karachner's groin.

PHILADELPHIA.

Portuondo Brands on Sale at National League Ball Park

THE requirements of discriminating smokers at the National League Ball Park, at Broad and Huntingdon Streets, this season, will be met by the J. F. Portuondo Cigar Manufacturing Company, who will have their "All Alike" and "Sintoma" brands on sale there. The first named cigar is a nickel smoke, while the latter is a 10-cent piece of goods.

In addition to securing the cigar privilege at Broad and Huntingdon this conservative firm has at last yielded to the demands of the jobbers and will now pack their "Chicos" in tins, twenty-five to the packing. In the future, owing to the continued requests that they do, the Portuondo firm will pack their best known brands in these receptacles, both in 25's and 50's.

"Statesman" Cigar Going

The success of the "Statesman" cigar, which is a product of Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 S. Eleventh Street, Philadelphia, still continues; the factory is compelled to work on full time schedule in order to keep pace with the demand for this unusual five-cent cigar.

The Middle West territory recently developed by this firm is showing splendid results on this smoke, and plans recently formed for further expansion, have been held up on account of the business emanating from this locality.

"Durmont," a New Clear Havana

The "Durmont" is the name of a new brand of clear Havana cigars, with shade-grown wrappers, which the Finley Acker Company is marketing under their own label. These goods are sold usually for $7.00 per hundred, but an introductory price of $5.00 per hundred was made for the latter part of Easter week, with the result that duplicate rush orders were placed with the manufacturer to meet the demand for the past Lenten season.

Julius Nunes Starts on Western Trip

Julius Nunes, the well known Key West cigar salesman, who has recently joined the selling forces of the De Lisser-Schneider Company, after returning from a trip through the South and Southwest in the interests of "Lord Colbeck" and other brands, has immediately started West to push the sale of the firm's goods. Stanley De Lisser, president of the company, went over the territory some weeks ago and was successful in landing a number of big accounts. Mr. Nunes will cover a wider territory and will go West as far as Kansas City.

J. G. Atherholt Resigns

J. G. ATHERHOLT, formerly located at 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, has tendered his resignation as president of J. G. Atherholt, Incorporated, and became effective on Friday, April 10th instant.

The other members of the corporation have placed the store under the management of J. T. Gaine, for several years connected with the Charles G. Artzt business at 206 South Fourth Street.

Mr. Gaine has had a wide experience handling goods of high grade character, and should prove an able successor to Mr. Atherholt.

Philadelphia Notes

The Rofelda Cigar Company is working to capacity and is doing a nice business on "Rofelda" and "Quaker Ben" brands. The latter cigar is making quite a hit with consumers.

The "Havana Ribbon" factories report a nice increase for April, and news from the boys on the territories show that conditions are very active on this cigar.

Charles Bobrow, head of the firm of Bobrow Brothers, makers of the "Bold" cigar, has recently returned from a trip through the West. He reports that the "Bold" cigar is making splendid headway with all its jobbers.

L. M. Walters, Eastern representative for Bobrow Brothers, has started through New York State in the interests of "Bold." After calling on the trade in the Empire State, Mr. Walters will take a trip through some of the Southern States.

Jorge Leon, of San Martin & Leon Company, spent ten days recently in Philadelphia at the Bellevue-Stratford and left here on the 7th inst., for Baltimore, Md. Mr. Leon was accompanied on his trip by his charming bride of a month, the marriage having taken place in Tampa, just previous to their departure north.

Among those who will land in New York on Friday, when the "Lusitania" docks, is Samuel Bayuk, president of Bayuk Brothers, manufacturers of the well-known "Havana Ribbon." Mr. Bayuk has been at Amsterdam attending the Sumatra inscriptions, having sailed abroad in February. It is possible that he will return to Europe in May.

Chicago

Conditions Better Than at Last Year This Time—"Ben Bey Cubans" Making Many Friends—Pipe Business Shows Tendency Toward Better Grades—William G. Hargis Passes Away

CHICAGO, ILL., April 11, 1914.

GENERAL conditions have remained good in the cigar and tobacco trade of Chicago and territory during the past two weeks. It would be hard to say that any one line has found more favor than the others. Trade in all branches is about normal for the season. On the whole, things are better than at this time last year. Collections are fair in the country. In the city they are not so good. One of the reasons for this is that license time is approaching for the saloons. The thought that on May 1st they must let loose of a considerable amount of money has had the effect, as it always has, of making things a little tight. The leaf houses are selling the usual amount of goods to the small factories in the country towns. Most of the leaf men take little stock in the declaration which has been made in trade circles a number of times during the past month that the success of the dry contingent in the Middle West will in the end prove a severe blow to the trade. While it is true that in the smaller towns a large number of saloons have been ousted, the leaf men find that about the same number of cigars are being smoked. They are bought in drug stores.

M. Berriman, who represents the United Factories Company in the West, was recently in the city calling on the trade in connection with Best & Russell, distributors for "Owl" brand, manufactured by the company. Chicago has long been a famous town for "Owl" brand, and few indeed are the show cases where the eyes of the wise old bird on the label do not glare up at the customer.

William Best, Jr., of Best & Russell, has returned from a recent trip on the road. Trade with this large distributing house has been good all spring, both in the loop district and in the outlying sections of the city, where many of the company's cigars are sold.

The National Cigar Store, which is located in the First National Bank Building at 38 South Dearborn Street, is having the usual business for the season. "Jose Vila" cigars are being featured just at present. The store is fortunate enough to be located near one of the briskest business centers in the world. The home of hundreds of large interests, with tenacles reaching to all quarters of the globe, are within a stone's throw of the store. For this reason it has been found practical to limit the cases to only the best grades, as there is little demand for the cheaper cigars and tobaccos. The store is a favorite place for passing the time of day among the hundreds of clerks employed in the First National Bank Building.

Albert Breitung has been so quiet lately that it is certain that he has something under his hat. What it will be cannot be said in this letter. The last time the writer cornered him in his store in the Monadnock Building he was the usual garrulous Albert, but said he was not talking for publication. When asked for his permission for a write-up he refused, declaring that a man should not be written up until he was dead. The writer took one look at Mr. Breitung's ruddy face and then decided to search for another victim, as he saw no immediate chance for writing up Mr. Breitung on the condition he mentioned.

W. A. Vorhauer will open a cigar jobbing house in the near future, according to a rumor which is current in the trade here. Plans have not been definitely made, but it is probable that the firm will open about the first of May. The leading spirit in the new business will be W. A. Vorhauer, who was formerly with the Best & Russell Company, for a considerable period. The house will handle an extensive line of domestic and imported cigars.

Louis Neumann, of the E. Hoffman Company, has gone to Mount Clemens, Mich., to take the baths for rheumatism. He expects to be gone for two or three weeks. Perry Bland, who for some time has represented Luis Martinez & Company, of Tampa, has left to take the Western representation of the cigars of Sig. Mayer & Company, of Philadelphia. He will make his headquarters in Sullivan, Ill., which is in the southern portion of the state. He has many friends in Chicago, however, as well as business acquaintances, and will no doubt find his way to the city once in a while.

The new "Ben Bey Cuban," made by Grommes & Elston, whose factory is on the west side, seems to be gaining in favor, as was indicated by the reception which it received on its first appearance a few months ago. The shape is unique, and the well-known "Ben Bey" flavor is causing all classes of trade to take a whirl at the new brand. The "Ben Bey Cuban" has demonstrated that a two-for-a-quarter Cuban cigar will go big in Chicago with the general trade if it is pushed in the proper manner.

At the office of Francis Edler & Company, Lake and Clark Streets, it was said that trade was fair in all lines of pipes, although, of course, the rush which was one of the features of the holiday trade in this line has abated a little. The tendency of the trade at the present time seems to be away from the cheaper makes of pipes. The usual number of pipes are being sold, but they are of better grade. Buyers are becoming much more discriminating than was formerly the case, it is said.

Clarence Hirschhorn, of Clarence Hirschhorn & Company, has returned from an extended trip to the Pacific Coast, where he has been spending the winter.

William G. Hargis, old time Chicago cigar man, and one of the founders of the firm of Kantzler & Hargis, cigar jobbers, is dead. He had been a broker for many years and was a familiar figure in the local trade. The death of Mr. Hargis demonstrates that the boys of the old days before the fire are passing one by one, and more rapidly now as the years speed by. A few months ago the death of Colonel G. J. Davis, one of the very most prominent retired cigar men, was noted in these columns. Two weeks ago the death of Henry Sandmyer, prominent old time manufacturer, was mentioned. The death of Mr. Hargis makes three in a comparatively short period.

William Taussig, of William Taussig & Company, prominent leaf jobbers, is enthusiastic over business prospects for the spring trade. He says that in his opinion the general condition of the trade in both the large and small towns of the Middle West is good. Collections are good, and while the manufacturers are buying close, they are buying with discrimination and are paying their bills with pleasing promptness.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Berolzheim have gone to French Lick Springs, the popular Indiana resort, for a few days' rest. Mr. Berolzheim is a prominent loop dealer.

Notes of the Trade

Mason, Ehrman & Co., Portland, Ore., are doing quite an extensive business on "La Mega," the well-known brand of V. Guerra, Diaz & Co.

Leo Reiders reports that he has been signally successful in his efforts to open up new accounts on the "First Consul," P. Pohalski & Co., he having opened up quite a few within the past week. Mr. Reiders was only recently appointed New York City representative for this well-known firm.

Facilities at 168 Water Street, New York, having proved inadequate, Ruth & Driscoll, well-known cigar and tobacco commission merchants, have removed to new and larger quarters, and are now located at 99 John Street.

John C. Davis, veteran cigar dealer, of Cincinnati, O., with quarters at 412 Vine Street, is featuring "El Gallo" in a window display; he being local distributor for the brand, which is made by the Ruy Lopez Company.

E. Regensburg & Son's "American" formed an attractive Easter window display for Straus Brothers & Co., Cincinatti, O.

The Rosenfeld-Rovig Company, exclusive Seattle wholesalers, have taken on the "New Bachelor," T. J. Dunn & Co., for distribution.

Small's Pharmacy, Jacksonville, Fla., report good business on the "Cinta," a five-cent cigar, recently launched by the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company.

"Jose Vila," Berriman Brothers, Tampa, Fla., is meeting with splendid success through the efforts of the National Cigar Store, 34 South Dearborn Street, Chicago. The attachment of the Government bonded stamps seems to have infused quite a new spirit into the brand.

J. L. Marcero & Co., Detroit, Mich., who look after the distribution of the products of Cuesta, Rey & Co., report that their sales on this company's products for the month of March showed a larger gain than for any corresponding month since they have been in business.

Big trade is said to be the rule rather than the exception on Eisenlohr's "Cincos," distributed locally by the Peter Hauptmann Tobacco Co., St. Louis, Mo.

Announcement is made that the position of Havana agent for the well known leaf house of Morris Rosenberg & Company has been accepted by Jose P. Perez, a son of Marcelino Perez, and that he will shortly leave to take charge of the firm's interests in Havana. Mr. Perez has had some six years' experience in the leaf business and is well qualified for the position which his industry and perseverance has won for him.

Cayey-Caguas Will Occupy New Quarters May 1st

MAY 1st has been the date set by the Cayey-Caguas Tobacco Company for their removal to their new quarters, now in the course of renovation, at the corner of Maiden Lane and Water Street. This is necessitated by the increased business of the company, the present location being inadequate to take care of the demand on "Savaronas."

Much attention is being attracted by the handsome cut-out of the company, which is finding favor with the distributors. The supply will be quickly exhausted, if the present demand continues.

That "Savaronas" are popular, goes without saying. Among the visitors to the Cayey-Caguas Company lately who swear by the brand were Allen and Charles Straus, of the Straus Cigar Company, Richmond, Va., and Mr. Poinsett, of Overholt & Poinsett, of Kansas City. Splendid business is being done by both firms on this well known brand.

Retail Tobacconists Incorporate

At a recent meeting of the Retail Tobacconists' Association last week it was announced that this association has been incorporated under the laws of the State of New York.

Bursting of Water Main Damages Cigars

The bursting of a water main at Thirty-third Street and Madison Avenue recently damaged the humidors of the Waldorf-Astoria Segar Company to the extent of several thousand dollars. It is possible that the City of New York may be called upon to settle the bill.

Disclaims Connection With "United Cigars Stores of Canada"

The following notice is being sent out to its stockholders by the United Cigar Stores Company:

"Our attention has been called to a circular letter, signed by a brokerage firm of Toronto, Can., offering for sale stock of the 'United Cigar Stores Company of Canada.' So that there may be no misunderstanding on account of similarity in names, we advise that this company has no connection with the 'United Cigar Stores Company of Canada.'"

George J. Whelan, who is now aboard one of the big ocean liners for Europe, has planned for himself quite a pleasant trip. After spending a brief period in London and Paris, he intends to cruise in the Mediterranean on his yacht "Cassandra" until the latter part of May, when it is his intention to return to New York.

West India Cigar Company Has Fire Loss

A fire recently gutted the building at 104 Water Street and did damage to the amount of $5000. The fire began in the basement, which together with the first floor, is used as a cigar factory by the West India Cigar Company.

Key West

Cortez Cigar Factory Now Running Normal—New Mill for Key West Cigar Box Factory—Henry E. Moss, Tobacco Expert, Dead—Cataracts Successfully Removed from E. H. Gato, Sr.

KEY WEST, FLA., April 10, 1914.

THE tourist travel, which has been larger than ever this past winter season, has about come to an end. Steamboat lines and the Florida East Coast Railway system have announced and inaugurated their summer time tables, which are about the same as those of last year.

Through various causes several of our larger shops have been inactive, but will all again be in full blast by the end of the month.

Politics is warming up here at present and Key West will make strenuous efforts to elect William H. Malone, of the Professional Cigar Company, United States Representative. Mr. Malone is a progressive Democrat and is fully in accord with the policies of President Wilson on questions of importance. He will also, if elected, make a valuable addition to those already in Congress who can be depended on to do the right thing at the right time for the cigar industry of the entire country.

The work on the new factory building of Moreda & Company goes on and the structure will no doubt be ready for occupancy the early part of the coming winter. At the factory business is good and a full force is enrolled on the cigarmaking and stripping floors. Tom Johnson, who very recently succeeded Ferris Lowe as office manager, has resigned and Teddy Bayly has taken his position.

Ramon Castro, a local cigar manufacturer, is exhibiting to the public quite a novelty in the way of a box of fifty cigars. The packing contains one cigar forty inches long and at the end forty-nine smokes three-quarters of an inch in length, showing to what extremes the cigarmaking art can be carried. The cigars are of the very finest workmanship and are perfect in every detail.

Leodoro Perez, formerly in the leaf trade of New York and Havana, but now engaged in business in Tampa, Fla., passed through the city recently being en route to Cuba.

At the Havana-American Company's shop business is fair and steady. Recently they received a shipment of 124 bales of very fine tobacco from Havana.

After a shut down of about ten days the big factory of the Cortez Cigar Company is again in operation, with the same force seated as at time of suspension. Vivian Myers and Factory Manager Claude H. Roberts, who have been spending several days in Cuba visiting the leaf growing districts and making purchases of stock in the markets of Havana, got back last week. Chas. R. Curry, for many years office manager of the Ferdinand Hirsch Company (now the "Mi Favorita" Cigar Company), has succeeded J. Newton Curry, office manager of the Cortez Company, who resigned recently and will leave shortly on an extended trip to Western sections for the purpose of recuperating his health.

Fecundo Arguelles, of Arguelles Lopez & Brother, passed through town last week, being en route from Tampa to Havana.

George W. Nichols & Company closed down on Saturday for a recess of two weeks, during which time the factory building will be repainted both inside and outside and everything thoroughly overhauled and put in perfect shape.

Emilio P. Cordiso, maker of the famous "Mi Hogar" cigars, whose plant is located in New York City, passed through the city last week, being en route to New York from Cuba, where he has been putting in several weeks visiting the leaf growing districts. He was accompanied by his wife.

President W. C. Tragessa, of the Key West Cigar Box Company, who has been spending the winter in this city, left for New York on Saturday. Before leaving for the North he let the contract for the erection of a building 40 x 60 feet, which will be used as a saw mill and will extend into the water, making it very convenient in handling cedar logs. This is a much needed addition to the box plant and when completed the company will do their own log sawing and will not be compelled to import their lumber already sawed from Cuba, as they have been doing in the past.

After a recess of a week the big Ruy Lopez Ca's factory resumed on Monday. President John Wardlow left this week for a business run to New York. Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Tuell, who have been spending days in the city visiting Mrs. Tuell's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wardlow, left on Saturday for their home in Rhode Island.

Henry E. Moss passed away here on the morning of the 8th and was interred the same day. The deceased was the father-in-law of Walter J. Lightbaum, vice-president of the Cortez Cigar Company, and at one time was a partner and general manager of "La Rosa Espanola" factory, of Seidenberg & Company. He was a tobacco expert of note and was among leaders of the industry in this city. He was fifty-seven years of age and leaves a widow, three daughters and four sons to mourn their loss.

Arthur L. Robinson, of the Jacksonville office of R. G. Dun & Company, arrived in town this week and will spend several days making new ratings for some of our business houses.

Advices received in this city state that President E. H. Gato, Sr., of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, had been successfully operated on for cataracts by one of the leading eye specialists of Havana on the morning of the 6th inst.

At the Martinez-Havana Company's office, Eladio Martinez has taken charge of the office, and John R. Delaney, who formerly filled that position, has succeeded Chas. R. Curry as office manager of the "Mi Favorita" Cigar Company.

Secretary Thomas H. Gato, of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company, accompanied by his family, returned last week from Havana, where they have been spending a vacation of several weeks. Mr. Gato will leave again tomorrow night for Cuba.

Herman H. Pinder, the cigarist and cigar manufacturer of Miami, Fla., is the city on a visit to relatives and friends. Before leaving for the Magic City he will purchase stock of tobacco here for the use of his factory.

D. Hevia, the leaf dealer of New York, passed through town this week, being en route from Cuba to headquarters.

While the "Mi Favorita" Cigar Company has a large force of strippers at work in the bonded portion of their factory, there have not as yet been any cigars made under the new system. It is estimated that the tobaccos will not be in condition to be made up into cigars until the coming month, when the first shipments will be made.

Imports of leaf in bond for two weeks ending April 6, 1914:

Gottlieb Company Dissolves

Inability of the company to meet its obligations with the resources at hand, was the reason assigned for the recent petition requesting the dissolution of the I. M. Gottlieb Company, dealers in cigars, tobacco and candy, at 96 Main Street, Poughkeepsie, N. Y. The request was granted, resulting in the closing of the store and the appointment of a temporary receiver. In the schedules filed, the liabilities of the company were given as $8,263.60 and the assets $5,448.51. According to the report a suit had been brought against the company by E. Greenfield's Sons, of New York, for $53, who stated in their documents that the company is not in possession of sufficient capital to meet present demands, and has failed in the securing of an extension of time in which to satisfy obligations. At present it is uncertain whether the store will be again re-opened, but it is the intention of Mr. Gottlieb to associate himself with his father in the same business at Newburgh, New York. It is possible that the local territory shall receive attention from the Newburgh end.

The Store of An Enterprising Young Man

Ed Mayhew, who has charge of the cigar humidor rooms at the main house of the Stone-Ordean-Wells Company, in Duluth, Minn., is an enterprising young man, as the illustration herewith testifies. Some time ago his mother opened a small store in West Duluth, but the growth in business has enabled Ed to secure a larger location, and also to put in a first-class cigar store. The location is cited as one of the most desirable in the West End.

The store features "El Roi-Tan," "Lucius," "Royal Banner," "La Preferencia," "Class," and "Charles Denby," which are the leading sellers, with "Lucius" and "El Roi-Tan" at the top.

Stone-Ordean-Wells Company have no connection whatever with the store, either directly or indirectly.

San Francisco

Exposition Cigar Stand Privileges Center of Interest—Gunst Stores Managers Organize—Arthur Bachman Preparing for a Trip to Europe—Nevada County, California, Tobacco Company Organized

SAN FRANCISCO, April 4, 1914.

THE long-expected boom in the San Francisco cigar trade has not yet put in an appearance, and not a few words of discouragement are heard around town, though there are plenty who take a more optimistic view, and some seem to be making steady progress. It is obvious, however, that business conditions are not normal, the only consolation for that being that San Francisco is probably no worse off than most parts of the country, or even of the world, for that matter. The Exposition is helping out to some extent, and will help much more with the approach of fall; while the April showers that are now falling are putting the finishing touches on the greatest crops that California has ever produced. The crops, however, are still for the future; and two dry years have left very little money in the hands of the country population, which would account for the lack of snap to the outside business.

One of the most absorbing matters now before the local trade is the disposition of the cigar stand privileges at the Exposition. This has just been settled in regard to some of the more important stands, M. A. Gunst & Co. getting the stand at the Van Ness Avenue entrance, which opens on the part of the grounds devoted to concessions and amusements, while the Fillmore Street entrance has been allotted to H. L. Judell & Co. There are to be eight other stands at various points in the grounds, and bids are now being received for these, but no definite announcement has been made as to who will get the privileges. There has been some talk of dividing the business between a number of houses, but even this is not known on authority, and it is not definitely known what firms are bidding. It is generally admitted, however, that the bids are running into high figures.

About a week ago the various managers of the branches and departments of M. A. Gunst & Co. held an important meeting in San Francisco, with a banquet at a downtown cafe. This was something more than one of the ordinary gatherings which have been held occasionally by the Gunst managers, as on this occasion a definite organization was formed, with the name of "M. A. Gunst Retail Store Managers' Association," with the object of comparing notes and keeping a definite policy in view. Those in attendance, aside from the heads of the house, M. A. Gunst, Milton Esberg and Morgan Gunst, were David Byrnes, P. Neuman, Gus Simon, I. N. Carlson, F. W. Welch, W. Rouston, N. Clarity and several others. The meeting was followed by another shifting in the personnel of the force, Mr. Neuman being given the management of the Spokane, Wash., branch. His work here will be carried on by D. Byrnes, whose former place is filled by L. Cheney.

M. A. Gunst & Co. are now introducing the "Invincible" size of the "Robert Burns" cigar. The goods are now being shown to dealers all over the territory, and the booking of orders will not begin until the trade at large has had a chance to see the goods.

M. A. Gunst and Morgan Gunst left a few days ago for a trip to Europe.

Ed Marshall, representing the house of Sig. Mayer, is now in San Francisco. He states that he has added an important Manila agency to his other lines, and expects to do a big business with it.

The H. Bercovich Co. is now thoroughly organized, and expects to enter the jobbing field shortly on more aggressive lines than in the past. The company has very attractive displays of the "Flor de Valentine" in all its stores. Victor Thorsch, representative of the "Bachelor" cigar, has been visiting the H. Bercovich Co. He reports splendid progress with his line all over the United States. He is accompanied on the trip by Mrs. Thorsch, and is now making a tour of Southern California.

Harry Robard, representing V. Guerra, Diaz & Co., manufacturers of "La Mega" cigar, spent a few days in San Francisco recently. He is now visiting Mason, Ehrman & Co., his distributors in Portland, Ore., and will remain there for some time.

Marc Brummer, representing Regensburg & Sons, is calling on the local trade this week.

H. H. Manley, representing the American Cigar Company, has just returned from a trip to Portland, Ore.

Arthur Bachman, head of S. Bachman & Co., is preparing to start shortly for an extended trip to Europe. He has given his attention closely to business for a long time past, and desires to get a good rest before starting upon the strenuous work of the Exposition year. During his absence the business will be looked after by Monroe Falkenstein.

Emil Judell left the first of the week for a round of the Nevada towns, and will be away about three weeks.

E. M. Elam, manager of the cigar department of the P. Lorillard Co., spent the week at Portland, Ore.

O. J. Lansing, Coast representative of Sanchez y Haya, has just returned from a trip through the Northwest.

J. A. Neides, of J. J. Gans & Bro., of Los Angeles, passed through San Francisco a few days ago on his way home from Nevada.

Frank Gonzales was arrested a few days ago on a charge of entering Ehrman Bros.' store at 134 First Street, March 8, and stealing 10,000 cigars.

Ellis Cohn, a Los Angeles cigar man, is now in the city.

It is announced that a New York syndicate, which bought a large part of the California tobacco crop last year, will build a large warehouse at Fresno, Cal., with the intention of starting a cigarette factory there later.

A new tobacco-growing promotion scheme is being started at Grass Valley, Cal., where a resident is said to have had good returns from the manufacture of cigars. The Nevada County California Tobacco Co. has been organized there, it is said, with the purpose of experimenting with tobacco growing on a large scale. Those interested are F. H. Bredimus, Fritz Roehnert, Ray Hays, A. H. Mooser and R. A. Bowden.

I. Samuelson, Memphis, Tenn., is taking care of the local distribution of the "New Bachelor," T. J. Dunn & Co.

Moritz Neuberger, of the Griffin-Neuberger Tobacco Company, was in Philadelphia recently, calling on the trade.

Frederick C. Peper

FREDERICK C. PEPER, millionaire president of the Christian Peper Tobacco Company, died suddenly at his home, 4448 Washington Boulevard, St. Louis, Mo., on April 2nd. His death was due to heart disease from which he had been suffering from some time past. He had not been at his office for a week, but had not been confined to his bed. He was fifty-nine years old and unmarried.

Members of the family talked to Peper a few minutes before his brother, Charles G. Peper, of Louisville, Ky., entered the room where he had been reading and found him dead in his chair. Charles G. Peper has been in St. Louis several days on business.

Peper was one of the most widely known men in St. Louis. He lived with his sister, Mrs. Caroline Peper, and her daughter, Miss Estelle Peper Bushman, and, although he had many friends, spent most of his leisure at home. He had the reputation among his acquaintances of being at home by nine o'clock every evening.

At the death of his father, Christian Peper, eleven years ago, he assumed the presidency of the tobacco company, founded by his father. Besides his brother and the sister and niece with whom he lived, he is survived by two nephews, sons of Mrs. Caroline Peper. They are Clarence F. Peper, who virtually was adopted by his grandfather, Christian Peper, and Peter C. Bushman.

Charles M. Logue

Charles McClellan Logue, aged fifty years, a prominent business and club man of Pittsburgh, Pa., died recently at his home, 349 Graham Street, that city.

For a number of years the deceased was president of the Union American Cigar Company and of the American Stogie Company. He was a member of the Duquesne Club, the Pittsburgh Country Club, the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, and the Sons of the American Revolution. He was a director in the Bank of Pittsburgh of North America, and was a member of Allegheny Lodge, F. and A. M.; Cyrus Chapter, R. A. M.; Chartiers Commandery Knights Templar, and of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. of M. S.

The deceased is survived by his widow, one son and one daughter. His mother, two brothers and four sisters are also living.

Nevin H. Curry

Nevin H. Curry, eighty-one years of age, a retail cigar dealer, residing at 3260 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, is dead, having lived at the address given for quite a number of years. Mr. Curry is survived by a widow and one daughter.

Charles Schulmerich

Charles Schulmerich, a retired tobacco merchant of Brooklyn, N. Y., died recently of Bright's disease, after a long illness, at his home, 161 East Eighth Street. The deceased, who was fifty-nine years old, is survived by a widow and three sisters.

Henry G. Reiter

Henry G. Reiter, whose home was located at Sixth and York Streets, Philadelphia, and who carried on a wholesale and retail cigar business for forty years, died recently at the above address. Mr. Reiter was a Civil War veteran and is survived by a widow and two daughters.

John Hull

John Hull, a former well-known resident of Lancaster, Pa., died at the Masonic Home recently of pneumonia, having been a resident of that institution for the past several years. Mr. Hull, who was seventy-nine years of age, opened a retail cigar store in Lancaster on West King Street in 1866, where he carried on business for sixteen years, after which he devoted himself to the manufacture and wholesaling of cigars. He is survived by a widow, one son and one daughter.

Harrison G. Shirk

Harrison G. Shirk, seventy-five years old and a retired tobacco dealer, died suddenly of heart disease recently at his home near Harrisburg, Pa. The deceased served in the Seventy-ninth Regiment, Pennsylvania Volunteers, in the Civil War. He was a member of several fraternal organizations in Lancaster. He is survived by a widow, five children, two brothers and three sisters.

James W. Reed

James W. Reed, a widely-known resident of Sioux City, Ia., and a cigar manufacturer of that city, died on March 31st, of apoplexy, at his home, 512 West Eighth Street, that city. The deceased, who was forty-eight years old, is survived by a widow, four sons, his mother, a brother and three sisters.

Heard on Broadway

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Logan Tobacco Company is being held today, April 15th, at their offices, 107 Liberty Street, where they will elect a new board of directors for the coming year. The call for the meeting was issued by John D. Manton, as secretary.

Quite an attractive display of "La Mega" cigars, V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, is being shown this week in the window of Hoffstetter's Cigar Store, on Beaver Street, near Bowling Green. "La Megas," with the bonded stamp, also are being pushed through the H. M. Miller stores in the downtown section.

Richard B. Cowley, a cigar salesman of recognized ability, has connected with the Martinez-Havana Company and will represent this well known firm in Western territory. He is expected in New York shortly for a conference with Mr. Connor, following which he will immediately start out for his new field.

Joseph Kaften is making his initial trip on the road for the Levi-Kaften Company and is at the present in northern New York. Good reports are being received from young Mr. Kaften, who is a brother of Henry Kaften, of the company. Mr. Levi, of the firm also, has seen to it that his connection is well maintained, and states that his son, Morris J. Levi, is now office manager and assistant treasurer of the company, having assumed his new duties during the past week.

Good humor is prevalent at T. J. Dunn & Company headquarters these days as the result of the increased business being done on the company's well known brands. Orders are coming in continuously, and it is the prediction of this well known firm that the production and sales of 1914 will take a mighty big leap over previous years. Optimistic reports are not only coming in from Pennsylvania, New Jersey and the South, but quite a splendid record is being maintained on the Pacific Coast.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 12

The San Francisco Commercial Club

(This is the twelfth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

Articles in this series have appeared on the following clubs:

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.
No. 5—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
No. 6—The Chicago Athletic Association.
No. 7—The Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.
No. 8—The Union League Club, Chicago.
No. 9—The Fellowcraft Club, Detroit.
No. 10—University Club, Chicago.
No. 11—Hamilton Club, Chicago.

THE San Francisco Commercial Club stands out as a sort of official "glad hand" of the business community of San Francisco. It is the place where strangers are taken in, and given a more or less formal "welcome to our city," a concrete expression of the community's hospitality. It is, moreover, intended as the home and fireside of the city's commercial life, not only for the welcoming of guests, but for family councils as well; a place where the leaders in various forms of activity can get together to discuss the public welfare.

The Commercial Club is not a place for the tired business man to forget business; it is rather a place for the untiring business man to remember business; not his own little personal affairs, indeed, but those of the community as a whole. It is a place to get together and boost. Unlike clubs of a purely social nature, it is inclusive rather than exclusive. It doesn't ask who your grandfather was, or whether you can tango, or are a member of the "four hundred." If you are a live wire, a booster, a man of affairs with the advancement and upbuilding of San Francisco at heart, the Commercial Club wants you.

The club's quarters are in keeping with its purpose. They are located on the top floor of the great Merchants' Exchange Building, it is in the heart of the city's financial and commercial life, at California and Montgomery streets. On the ground floor below are the principal exchanges, and within a radius of a few blocks are conducted the financial deals which direct the industrial and commercial activities of the Pacific Coast. Yet, in keeping with its ideals, it is raised well above the "fumum et opes strepitumque," giving perspective and breadth of view, physically as well as mentally, over the battlefield of conflicting interests. As they ascend the elevators, men leave behind their bullish or bearish characteristics, and become plain boosters for the common good.

The quarters occupy the entire fourteenth floor, and include a comfortable lounging room, billiard room, public dining hall and bar, in addition to six private dining rooms, which are always engaged about two weeks ahead. These rooms are used mainly by business or semi-official organizations, committees, etc., and are ideal for this purpose, as a quorum of practically any organization or committee connected with business affairs can always be found here between 1 and 2 P. M. The quarters at present are unpretentious in their furnishings and general effect, though plans are under way for many improvements in preparation for the Exposition year. One interesting feature at present is a large painting, occupying the south end of the lounging room, giving a view of San Francisco from the Bay during the fire of April 18, 1906. This painting, by W. A. Coulter, is a never-failing object of interest to strangers and residents alike.

The Commercial Club is the outgrowth of the old Merchants' Club, organized twenty-five years ago with a membership of about 200. After the fire it was reorganized, starting with a few members on Sansome Street near Sacramento. After drifting for several years, it took the present name and quarters, and started a campaign for membership, resulting in a growth from 247 members to about 1400 within three months. It now has about 1500 members. Naturally, the activities leading to the Panama-Pacific Exposition brought the club into great prominence, and practically all the important meetings connected with Exposition affairs, including the entertainment of visitors and commissioners from other states and countries, have taken place within its doors. The membership now includes practically all the more prominent business men of the city; bankers, shipping men, heads of wholesale and retail houses, manufacturers. A few of the more prominent are Charles C. Moore, president of the Exposition; William H. Crocker, A. B. C. Dohrmann, M. H. Robbins. The officers are Allen L. Chickering, president; P. S. Teller, vice-president; Alexander Russell, vice-president; and Clarence M. Oddie, secretary.

With such a membership and such purposes, it is obvious that the Commercial Club well maintains San Francisco's reputation for using large quantities of high-grade cigars. No special facilities are provided for the sale of cigars at present, all the business being done over the bar; though there are a number of boys to look after the requirements of diners in the various rooms. Considering that this is not a residence club, is regularly open only from 8 A. M. to 6 P. M., and does by far the greatest part of its business between the hours of 12 to 2 P. M., an average cigar and cigarette business of $50 to $60 per day is considered a good showing.

The cigar business is personally supervised by Victor Reiter, the house manager, who does all the buying. Mr. Reiter states that the club does not aim to push any brand whatever, but to give people just what they call for; and consequently quite a large assortment is carried. It is, of course, necessary, to draw a line in regard to those interested in unknown brands, who call for them simply to get them introduced; but little trouble is experienced on this score. No cigar cheaper that a "bit," or two for a quarter, is carried, and Manila goods are ruled out entirely. Mr. Reiter says there is quite a large demand for cigarettes, all popular brands of which are carried.

Notwithstanding the lack of emphasis on any particular line, the club's own brand, "San Francisco Commercial Club," made by Boltz, Clymer & Company, Mr. Reiter says is the largest seller. Imported goods make up about twenty to twenty-five per cent. of the cigar sales, and there is not much demand for anything costing over twenty-five cents. Next to the club brand, the "St. Francis," made by Manuel Garcia, is one of the most popular. A great many "Partagas" are sold; and other prominent brands are "Lords of England," "Jose Vila," and "Cristofforo" (a local make). "La Natividad" is another local cigar that has considerable popularity; and such old standbys as the "Van Dyck," "Sanchez y Haya," "Gato" and "Optimo," as well as the "Roi Tan" and "La Amita," are always in demand.

It is interesting to note that the Commercial Club is now preparing to add the thirteenth floor of the building to its quarters, and elaborate plans for its furnishings and decorations are being completed by Architect C. W. Ratcliff. The improvements will cost altogether about $130,000, and of this $60,000 was subscribed by members within two weeks. The fund is now nearly complete, and the changes, which will doubtless involve an increase in the cigar facilities, will soon be under way.

Detroit

March, 1914, Shows Increase Over Previous Year—Perry Bland New Salesman for "Rey-Oma"—Retailers Worried Over Proposed Cigarette Ordinance—"Havana Ribbon" Banners on Delivery Conveyances

DETROIT, MICH., April 10, 1914.

OWING to the Easter holidays, of which there are many for the Polish Catholics—this being the faith of most of the people working in the cigar factories—the majority of concerns making cigars closed down their plants on April 8th to remain closed until the 16th inst. This fact, however, does not cast any bad reflection on the cigar industry for Detroit; it is something that happens each year, and the employers are prepared for it. While there are a few cigarmakers who would be willing to remain at their post during the week in question, the proprietors believe it best to dispense with the operation of their plants entirely, so that when the start is made again everybody is on hand and ready to "pitch in" harder than ever.

Some leaf tobacco salesmen passed the remark the other day that business among the cigar factories was quiet. Apparently this chap did not thoroughly investigate conditions, because, as the following figures will show, the first district of Michigan—which practically means Detroit—made a splendid increase in the manufacture of cigars for the month of March as compared with that month of a year ago:

	March, 1914.	March, 1913.
Cigars	24,467,860	22,526,268
Tobacco	2,274,564 pounds	1,993,798 pounds
Snuff	8,150 "	8,945 "

These figures represent an increase of 1,941,597 cigars for March of this year over last. How then can anyone say that business in the cigar line is quiet? True, the currency bill, the question of increased freight rates, the Mexican situation, and such issues of the day, are causing business men to "go slow," but as for business itself, it is exceedingly good in the city of Detroit, as is most of the other lines of industry.

Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, is still in Los Angeles, where he is assisting the Bachman company perfect an organization for the handling and boosting of the "S. & W. Hand-Made," for which they are now jobbers. The Bachman people have been getting shipments of "S. & W." cigars since the first of January, and the sales have been so good that the Wayne Cigar Company now has a standing order to ship no less than 40,000 of this brand of cigars per week. As soon as the Wayne is able to increase its facilities, and put on more cigarmakers, the size of the order will be increased. The Wayne now make only two brands, the "Niles & Moser Hand-Made" and the "S. & W. Hand-Made," having only two accounts, J. S. Bachman in Los Angeles, who take the "S. & W.," and Niles & Moser, of Kansas City, who take an average of 200,000 "Niles & Moser Hand-Made" per day.

Perry Bland, representing Sig. Mayer, of Philadelphia, was in town the first part of the month, and transferred the representation in Detroit from McAllister & Smith to the Revere Cigar Company, who are live wires and who now have a splendid selling organization. "Rey-Oma" is the brand will be pushed very actively for the time being. Mr. Bland, the new salesman in this territory for the Mayer concern, Sig. Mayer having decided to retire from the road, was formerly salesman for Louis Martinez and is very popular in this section of the country. His many friends take pleasure in wishing him success in his new undertaking.

There will be but one cigar store in the New Whitney Arcade, at Woodward Avenue and Grand Circus Park, and running through to Washington Boulevard, which will be operated by Mr. Schettler in connection with a drug emporium. Mr. Schettler is now running three drug stores in Detroit, two of which have cigar departments, they being at the corner of Shelby and Fort Streets and the other in Grosse Pointe. The New Whitney Arcade is now under way and will be completed in about six or eight months. It will be on the order of the Arcade in Cleveland and will be fifteen stories high, the Arcade feature covering about three floors.

One of the best known retail cigar managers in town, William B. Somerville, manager of the Dietsche Store on Woodward Avenue and West Larned Street, died on April 4th of pneumonia after an illness of twenty-four hours at his home, 353 Greenwood Avenue. The Dietsche Store, which handles every kind of smoking novelty, as well as a very complete line of smokes, is one of the most popular in the city, particularly during the summer months. Mr. Somerville was in active charge and did all of the buying and overseeing, while A. C. Dietsche, proprietor, devoted his interests to the wholesale postcard business. Pending a successor to Mr. Somerville, Mr. Dietsche will assume charge of the retail store.

W. M. Gleason has arrived in Marquette, Mich., to take charge of the Upper Peninsula territory for the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company, Fatima department. He succeeded C. M. Hatch, who has been transferred to St. Paul. He had been in charge of the Upper Peninsula for many months and his departure from the Northern country was very much regretted by the many friends he had made there. He will make St. Paul his permanent headquarters, and will cover the entire State of Minnesota.

Retailers are very much worried over the proposed ordinance recently introduced into the Common Council, and referred to the Ordinance Committee, making it a felony to sell cigarettes where a cigar store is less than six hundred feet distant from a school, and also making it necessary for every cigar store handling cigarettes to pay a license fee of $100 per year. A hearing was scheduled to take place in the Council chamber on Tuesday evening, April 7th, at which the public was to be invited, but it was postponed and will take place at a later date.

The Emblem Cigar Company, Detroit, has been incorporated to the extent of $1000 for the purpose of manufacturing cigars.

P. M. Roach, a man of long experience in the cigar business, has assumed charge of the cigar department of the Habeltine & Perkins Drug Company in Grand Rapids, Mich., who are wholesalers, and will call on the druggists handling cigars throughout the western part of the state. Mr. Roach was formerly with the Lee & Cady cigar department in Detroit.

The Post Tavern in Battle Creek, Mich., has recently installed a new humidor for its cigar department capable of holding 14,000 cigars.

The Mehrtens Hotel owners announce that a new hotel will be built in Grand Rapids, Mich., which will have over three hundred rooms and cost over $750,000, to be one of the most modern in the state.

A duck is taking walks every day in the down-town streets of Detroit advertising "Miss Detroit" cigar, which is made by the Mazer Cigar Company and jobbed now by McAllister & Smith. For a few days an advertisement was put in the daily papers telling exactly where the duck would be at certain hours of the day. This unique form of getting publicity has proved a winner, not only from the standpoint of arousing public curiosity, but also from the point of increased sales.

Detroit feels proud of its beautiful electric signs in the down-town district, but particularly so of three of them; one is the "Fatima" sign on top of the Barbour Building, Monroe Avenue and the Campus, the sign facing the Campus; another is the "Pastora" sign at the corner of Woodward Avenue and Adams Avenue, west; this is a flash sign, containing a reproduction of the cigar box label with the words "Pastora" at the top and "Cigar" at the bottom; the third sign is that of the Lillies Cigar Company, advertising the "La Azora" cigar, which is located at the corner of Woodward Avenue and Jefferson, and is similar in design to that of the "Pastora," the cigar box label being reproduced with the word "La Azora" on top and the word "Cigar" at the bottom. Both of these cigars are made in Detroit.

Mr. Ackerman, general sales representative with Mr. Pendas, of the firm of Pendas & Alvarez, manufacturers of the "Webster" cigars, paid Detroit a visit the latter part of March, remaining a few days. Mr. Pendas said he had been hearing considerable about Detroit in the past four or five years, but never had an opportunity to get there before this. It is hardly necessary to add that Mr. Pendas went away with a wonderful impression of the town, to say nothing at being highly elated because of the large sale which the "Webster" cigar has in Detroit.

John Jasperse has sold his interest in the Princess Juliana Cigar Company, of Grand Rapids, Mich., to his former partner in the same business, Joe Steghuis, who will continue the factory at the same address and under the same name.

George Littlefield succeeds A. W. Jahrus in the cigar and tobacco business in Traverse City, Mich.

Practically all of the boats running out of Detroit have opened their regular season, which means that the consumption of cigars and cigarettes will be materially increased, most of the goods being purchased from Detroit jobbers.

A small safe in the cigar store of Shahwan Brothers, 1564 Mt. Eliott Avenue, Detroit, was broken into on March 31st and $93 in cash taken. The burglars also supplied themselves with a liberal quantity of cigars and cigarettes.

Frank Calabreese has purchased the Wallingford restaurant, cigar and tobacco stock in Owosso, Mich., at chattel mortgage sale, the consideration being $275.

G. J. Johnson, of the G. J. Johnson Cigar Company in Grand Rapids, has returned from a hurried trip to Chicago. Mr. Johnson says that the sale of "Dutch Master" cigars is showing an increase every month over the same month of the previous year, and that the increase is a good, big one. Guy Caverly looks after sales of this cigar around Grand Rapids territory.

Clarence Barkley succeeds John Hinkle in the restaurant and cigar business on East Main Street, Kalamazoo.

J. L. Marcero, of the J. L. Marcero Company, Detroit and Pontiac, has returned from a trip to Florida. He visited Tampa and was taken through some of the leading cigar factories.

Frank Stevens succeeds George E. Bayley in the restaurant and cigar business at 113 South Washington Avenue, Lansing.

F. Brady has opened a restaurant and cigar store in Mulliken, Mich.

Frank Smith, who operates the cigar stand in the Hammond Building, is also doing nicely as the lessee of the cigar stand in the Palestine Lodge, which association now has separate club rooms in a building which it owns at First and Fort Streets.

Business in the cigar department at the Wolverine Club in the Springfield Building is picking up. On account of increased membership the club recently took another floor of the building and installed several pool and billiard tables.

Haas-Baruch & Company Prepared "To Deliver the Goods"

The well-known Los Angeles house of Haas-Baruch & Company has determined to increase their facilities by adding an automobile to their cigar department delivery service.

This company represents the Jose Lovera Company, in California, and is doing a wonderful business. They are also distributors of the famous "Charles Denby" smoke, which is a great favorite along the Coast.

Los Angeles

Big Campaign on in Interest of "Jose Lovera"—"London Life" Cigarettes Taking With Smokers—Klingenstein Company Thinks Business Good—Mussatti-Boggio Company Gets First Shipment of "Reynaldos"

LOS ANGELES, CAL., April 5, 1914.

D. E. ALBERT, formerly connected with Valrance & Woodward Cigar Company, has severed connections with that firm and has leased the store at 217-219 West Sixth Street for a term of two years. He expects to open for business on the sixteenth of this month, his first retail cigar store in this city. He has not spared a cent to fit his store up with the best of everything for his trade.

J. A. Neides just returned from the San Joaquin Valley and can be seen these days preaching "La Natividad" and "Lawrence Barrett" to the trade.

One of the strongest campaigns has just been mapped out by Ike Wentworth, representing the José Lovera Company, of New York, manufacturers of the "Lovera" cigar, handled and distributed in this territory by the hustling house of Haas-Baruch & Company. Mr. Wentworth and Wm. Veith, city salesman for Haas-Baruch & Company, are both working with much success on the new "Lovera," Presidents and Carnival sizes. These two exquisite sizes are moving with splendid results.

W. A. Frutiger, representing the P. Lorillard Company, is paying a visit to Anthony Schwamm, the Coast representative for P. Lorillard Company. Mr. Frutiger is very much pleased with the way the "London Life" cigarettes are moving, these cigarettes being placed but a very short time ago, but with the able assistance of Mr. Schwamm and his salesforces this brand of cigarettes is becoming fast a leader.

"Union Leader" tobacco in ten-cent tins are being offered to the trade with lead pencils, silver mounted, for one price of ten cents. This bit of advertising is placing "Union Leader" up to the front very fast.

Charles Smith is working in conjunction with Beck & Company carrying on a window campaign and distributing the new size of "Rosa del Valle" cigars. He is meeting with splendid results.

Some of the jobbers hereabouts say business is not as good as it should be. The Klingenstein Company are of contrary opinion, claiming they cannot get enough "Cinco" and "Y-B" to supply their trade.

The House of Quality has some elegant window displays of "Duke of York" and "Milo" cigarettes. Also showing "La Preferencia" cigars. They are showing the different sizes. W. A. Pichar, manager of the house, reports business very good.

"Milo" cigarettes, in yellow labels, are being extensively pushed by the Klingenstein Company. "Cinco" and "La Preferencia" are reported as moving satisfactorily with the above house.

C. W. McCormick and Mr. Alvarez were recent visitors, calling on the Klingenstein Company.

Fred Barman & Brothers are showing nice window displays this week in their eight stores of "Jose Vila," made-in-bond, by Berriman Brothers. This splendid cigar is shown to advantage in every one of these displays. M. A. Newmark & Company are distributors for this brand in this territory.

Cameron C. Trau, manager of the cigar department of Haas-Baruch & Company, reports business as good. He is putting out a new cigar in a tin box called the "Coupon" broadleaf smoke. The initial sales of the "Coupon" cigar are entirely satisfactory to Mr. Trau.

The Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company received the first shipment of "Reynaldo" cigars, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa. They are very much pleased with the way placements are being made for this cigar. They are also working on a new five-cent cigar, manufactured by the same firm, called "Piquant."

Marc A. Brunner, of E. Regensburg & Sons, is working the "American" and "Admiration" cigars to good advantage.

The Klingenstein Company have put on a young man, W. B. Richardson, to work Surbrug's products exclusively. He will look after "Duke of York," their new fifteen-cent cigarette; "Arcadia" and "Golden Sceptre" and "Floss Cut" tobaccos and "Zig Zag" papers.

The A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company have out at the present time about forty window displays of the "Ruy Lopez" cigar and is being well distributed by the above named house.

H. Gladstone, representing Bondy & Lederer, is making a strong campaign on "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett" cigars. J. J. Gans & Brothers are distributors for these cigars in this territory. They are just commencing to catch up with back orders, this state of affairs being brought about by a shortage of goods.

Scranton Cigar Company Buys Property

Rosenthal & Fleishman Company, of New York City, operating in Scranton, Pa., as the Scranton Cigar Company, have recently purchased the factory building and ground occupied by them at Jefferson Avenue and Ash Street. The factory is a large one and it is stated that about four hundred hands will now be employed. The price consideration is said to have been $21,000.

Lawrence Tobacco Jobber Marries

Fred Tepper, of Lawrence, Mass., a wholesale tobacconist, of 40 Hampshire Street, was married recently to Mrs. Fannie Miller. Mr. Tepper is well known in the city of Lawrence.

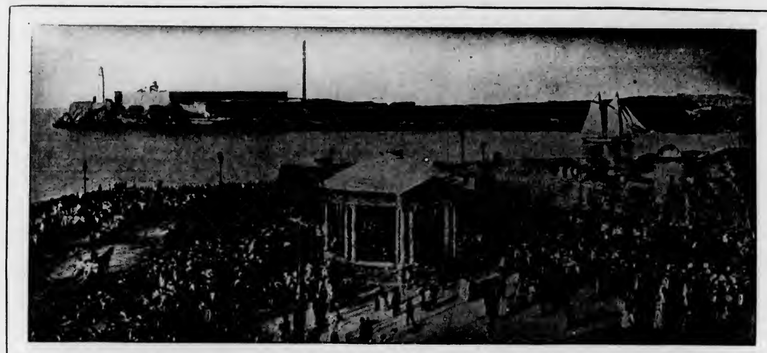
Patterson Tobacco Company to Increase Capital

The stockholders of the Patterson Brothers Tobacco Company, Incorporated, Richmond, Va., have authorized an increase of $250,000 capital stock, making a total capitalization of half a million dollars.

This increase was found necessary in order to care for the rapidly-growing demand for "Whip" smoking tobacco. The success of this brand has been phenomenal.

The Pattersons are famous for their more than a half century policy of "merit to win," believing in full tobacco quality and no coupons or presents.

Their other brands are "Queed" pipe smoking tobacco and "Green Turtle," three for five cents, cigars.



The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, April 8, 1914.

UPON April 3rd rains fell in the Vuelta Abajo, which produced the necessary blandura (humidity) to enable the veguеros to handle the dried leaves hanging on the poles, and place them into bundles. However, the experienced farmers, who understand their business, prefer to await the second blandura before commencing operations, as the first one is often enough followed by another drying spell, which prevents the fermentation process from being a perfect one. As there is no urgent need for the new leaf to come to our market, it would be wiser if every veguero should be conservative and calmly await for the second, or real blandura, to take place, but unfortunately there are always some people that cannot afford to conform to the advices of experienced veguеros, and who will bundle and pile their tobacco in a hurry under the erroneous impression that by being the first in the field they will stand a better chance of disposing of their leaf. In most cases they will discover their mistakes later on, as the buyers will either refuse to take hold of their packed tobacco, or will only pay very low figures for same. As we have quite a relatively large stock of old leaf unsold in our market, and the demand is slack for it, the chances of seeing a revival in the demand at an early date do not appear to be promising at the moment.

Don Avelino Pazos stated that he will begin his escogida on the fifteenth of April, in Bejucal, of his renowned vega, "La Lechuga," as he has had his temprano leaf in piles for about four weeks already, having taken advantage of a blandura in the Partido region at that time. This part of his crop has been planted before the rains of last November, which had done no harm to the vigorous young plants, and on the contrary benefited them. Later on, having seedlings, he continued his planting operations right after the November rainfalls, so he has been fortunate in harvesting an early crop.

There are no particular news from the Santa Clara province, although we presume that the light part of the crop perhaps may be packed during the month of May, while the heavier portion could not be handled the earliest before the month of June. The trouble with Remedios this year will be that the crop will be large and unless our packers could purchase the same at considerably lower figures than last year the veguеros would have to do their own packing. Our packers lost money on the 1913 crop.

Our leaf market has continued very dull, owing to the absence of American buyers in town. Evidently the latter are waiting for more concrete news of the 1914 crop before they will commence operations. In the meantime, as business in Tampa seems to be improving, and the manufacturers are diminishing their stocks stored here, the conditions for the future are shaping themselves in a more satisfactory manner. A few commission merchants and a firm with a New York connection operated moderately for the United States. A lot of Oriente leaf was bought and shipped to Bremen, the exporters to South America made a few transactions, and our local cigarette manufacturers increased their holdings of leaf, as well as a limited number of cigar manufacturers. Prices continued to favor buyers.

Buyers were: Americans, 1817; exporters to Europe, 781; shippers to South America, 520, and our local manufacturers of cigars and cigarettes, 2352 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for three weeks ending April 4th were: To all ports of the United States, 11,508 bales; to Bremen, 740; to London, England, 44; to Buenos Aires, 685; to Valparaiso, 178; thus making a total of 13,155 bales.

Cigars.

Our exports of cigars from the port of Havana during the month of March this year, and the comparison with last year, show the following figures, viz.:

From March 1 to March 31, 1913,	13,331,495	cigars
From March 1 to March 31, 1914,	12,678,128	"
Decrease during the month of March, 1914.	653,367	"

There are seven countries which show decreases over 50,000 cigars during the past month, as compared with 1913, thus:

Great Britain and Ireland	781,470	cigars
United States	218,110	"
Chile	207,553	"
Argentine Republic	184,813	"
Canada	135,500	"
British Africa	58,620	"
Brazil	52,320	"

Three countries show increases in the same period of time, viz.:

Spain	599,470	cigars
Australia	341,015	"
Germany	78,419	"

The total exports of cigars from the port of Havana from January 1st to March 31st in both years compare as follows:

From January 1 to March 31, 1913,	40,924,755	cigars
From January 1 to March 31, 1914,	37,673,567	"
Decrease during the first three months of 1914	3,251,188	"

Of the principal countries which show decreases there are six, viz.:

United States	1,708,255	cigars
Great Britain and Ireland	1,688,785	"
Canada	751,864	"
Argentine Republic	571,772	"
Chile	485,715	"
Italy	91,500	"

We note increases in five countries thus:

Spain	1,306,495	"
Australia	721,706	"
France	115,168	"
Peru	110,000	"
Germany	51,845	"

The above figures indicate that the turn in the tide has not come yet, and it is not likely that we shall see a change for the better for the next three months to come, although we confidently hope that the second half of this year will make up for the present shortage.

Romeo y Julieta has seated a few more cigarmakers in order to fill some rush orders from the United States, which surely proves that stocks of cigars must be low. Don Pepin Rodriguez enjoyed his trip to the Panama Canal, and speaks in glowing terms of this wonderful undertaking.

Partagas has not reduced the number of its cigarmakers since the holiday season of last December and is well supplied with orders.

H. Upmann & Company are working steadily on a good order slate from the chief consuming countries.

Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., state that they are busy and have no fault to find.

Por Larrañaga is not lagging behind; on the contrary, while business is not as brisk as during the rush times before the holidays, orders are coming forward in fair shape.

Sol has received some good sized regalia orders from the United Kingdom at high prices.

Castañeda and Fonseca does not care to say much as regards business, but judging by the number of people employed it is easy to see that the factory must be working good.

Punch, Hoyo de Monterrey, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, La Flor de José Otero, Eden, Belinda, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, El Rey del Mundo and C. E. Beck & Company are all working in accordance with the season.

Leaf Tobacco.

Emilio Muñez, the senior partner of Muñez & Company, at 81 Reina Avenue, begs to state that he has not been connected with the firm of Loeb-Nuñez-Havana Company, of Philadelphia, for some time back and that he has no interest whatsoever in the above named company.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez were sellers of 908 bales of leaf tobacco of all kinds during the last two weeks.

Francisco R. Diaz, of the firm of V. Guerra, Diaz & Company, of Tampa, was a buyer of 475 bales of choice vegas from the Vuelta Abajo.

Cifuentes, Fernandez & Company, the owners of the Partagas factory, were buyers of 673 bales of leaf from the Vuelta Abajo.

José C. Puente & Company disposed of 300 bales of Remedios and Partido tobacco to their customers.

Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., purchased through the Cuban Land and Leaf Tobacco Company 770 bales of Vuelta Abajo.

Ernest Ellinger & Company have removed their warehouse from 35 Estrella Street to 15 Salud Street.

Exporters of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana for the last three weeks, ending April 4, 1914, and above 200 bales, were:

Prince Company Will Market Ten-Cent Brand

Shortly after the first of May, the Prince Cigar Manufacturing Company, which recently embarked in business in Trenton, N. J., with a factory on High Street, will put on the market, their first offerings in a ten-cent grade of high-class Havana and Sumatra wrapper cigars, under the brand name of "Hall of Honor."

The company reports that they have been so rushed with orders on their "Red Magnet" five-cent goods, since they started in business that they have not had the cigarmakers necessary to get out the new ten-cent goods, but the packings are all ready now, and they hope to be ready to market in three weeks at the latest.

Fire Sweeps Hartford Cigar House

Fire recently gutted the wholesale and retail tobacco shop of Max G. Sandler, of 232 Trumbull Street, Hartford, Conn., and destroyed upwards of 12,000 cigars. He estimates his loss at $2500, which is covered by insurance. The fire was caused by an oil stove being accidentally kicked over in the cigar store.

Fire Burns Out Cigar Store

Fire and water ruined the stock in the cigar store of Max Gold, 30 North Main Street, Paterson, N. J., recently. The loss on the cigars, cigarettes and tobacco amounted to $500, covered by insurance. The loss to the building is about $300.

Cleveland

Outlook for Increasing Business Good—"La Saramitas" Are Having Big Sales—Petition Circulated to Close Saloons at Ten P. M.—Sunday Closing Law Brings Cigar Dealers to Court

CLEVELAND, O., April 11, 1914.

THE weather opening up here has brought on a big increase in business, and things in general look very good for an increased spring business. The traveling men from all over the country coming in here report prospects for a splendid year.

Fred Singer, of S. Rosin & Sons, was in town the past week and says that business is unusually good all over his territory.

J. B. Shields, of the Shields-Wertheim Company, has just returned from a trip through the Central States, and reports business is very good on "La Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives." He went over this territory with Bert Smith, who is just recovering from his recent illness.

J. C. Leverence, of the above-mentioned firm, has left for a trip through the Southern States and will put on a big campaign of "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" in this section and expects to be gone quite a while. Local business in "Saramitas" and "Saramita Fives" is showing a steady increase, which is due a great deal to the unusually heavy amount of advertising that the Shields-Wertheim Company are doing in the local market. They have put on a window campaign which has been very effective.

Grover Mendelsohn, of the Mendelsohn Cigar Company, left for his home in New York, where he will spend a few days visiting his folks.

Mr. Mitchel, of the Euclid Arcade Cigar Store, reports his business is showing a steady increase. Mr. Mitchel should make his stand very good, as he is working up a big acquaintanceship among the boys, which is unusual for a stranger. Mr. Mitchel was originally from Boston.

Fred Gollmar, of Gollmar Cigar Company, claims that his business is showing a big increase over last year. All his stores are running away ahead of their last year's business, which is a very good showing for this time of the year. The Gollmar Cigar Company has installed the best system of keeping their cigars in good condition that there is in this section.

They pride themselves in the fact that they have a minority of dissatisfied customers.

The Federal Cigar Company, located on East Sixth Street, are coming ahead nicely. They are right in the heart of the down-town district and cater to a big patronage.

There is a petition being circulated throughout the city to close all saloons and drinking places at ten o'clock. They have already secured thousands of signatures to this new reform measure, and it is entirely possible that they will force a ten o'clock closing ordinance. All these new-fangled rules and regulations are causing the wet-goods merchants no end of concern and worry. If this new measure is forced through it will affect the cigar and tobacco industry to the extent of thousands upon thousands of dollars.

They have not recuperated from the abandoning of the dice game as yet, and this new turmoil would set them back still farther.

Some new fanatics popped up here during the past few weeks and started to enforce the closing of every store of any description on Sundays. They caused the arrests of scores of confectionery and cigar store proprietors and took them before a justice of the peace in one of the suburbs and fined them. It was kept a deep mystery as to who were the perpetrators of this new fanatic scheme, until the police force became active and had all involved arrested. When they had them all in tow they found that they had a young girl who was swearing out the warrants, a justice of the peace and several others. It came out when they were questioned that it was a new money making scheme.

J. W. Klein, representing Larus Brothers Company on "Edgeworth" and "Qboid" tobaccos, expects to leave shortly on a trip over the territory. Mr. Klein is enjoying much success with these brands.

Sam Haas, who is running the cigar store in the American Trust Building, is coming ahead with leaps and bounds. He is handling a high grade line of cigars, tobaccos and smokers' articles of all kinds, which is winning the approval of his ever-increasing trade.

Morris Gluckman, who is operating several stands in the down-town section, reports business as being entirely satisfactory. He handles a big line of popular goods along with several private label brands of his own.

The Unger Cigar Store, located at 1050 Euclid Avenue, changed hands the past week and is being run by F. H. Cofall, who also operates the barber shop in connection. Mr. Cofall should build up this business to big proportions, as he is well known in this section, having been in the barber business around the Euclid Avenue corners for a great many years.

Charley Schutthelm, manager of the cigar department of the Standard Drug Store in the old Arcade, is making the natives around there sit up and take notice. He is constantly increasing the patronage of this stand and is holding the trade by his genial personality and good fellowship.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA

LANCASTER, PA.

The movement to form a pool in Lancaster County is making some headway, but is not taken seriously by many of the prominent tobacco men. Some of them seem to favor it, and one tobacco packer remarked the other day to a representative of the "Tobacco World" that he hoped the pool would be formed and that they would stop growing tobacco in Lancaster County for about three years. He said that then some of the packers might be able to sell the Pennsylvania that has been accumulating for a number of years.

The crop is not considered a good one, and it may be for this reason that buying is practically at a standstill. The growers are complaining that the local packers are not buying their crops, and the answer has been given that their prices, until recently, have been too high.

With excellent old tobacco of the 1911 and 1912 crops only bringing 15 to 16 cents a pound, the packers felt that it was unreasonable for the growers to ask 10 and 11 cents for the new crop. As it costs four cents a pound to put a crop on the market a year after it is packed, there could be little or no profit at 10 or 11 cents paid the grower.

Besides, the local leaf trade is very dull. In the past week a number of factories in Lancaster have shut down because of lack of orders.

WISCONSIN

EDGERTON, WIS.

At prices ranging from eight down to six cents considerable leaf, heretofore neglected, has been moved and the movement now under way is likely to clean up the balance of the crop in short order. The indications are that very little will be left in growers' hands by the time the seed is sown for another crop.

The warehouse help is thinning out as the spring approaches, but there is work in sight with the larger operators for several weeks yet. The bundle bulks remain in prime condition for handling.

The market for old leaf reflects of the nature of the eastern centers, which is reported dull at this time of the year.

The almost impassable condition of the country roads has pretty effectually interfered with tobacco movements from the farms during the week. However, the cheaper end of the crop for stemming purposes is being sought after with more vigor than at any time of the season.

CONNECTICUT

SUFFIELD, CONN.

May 1 is the date set for the establishment of the sub-stations of the United States Weather Bureau in the Connecticut tobacco belt. It is hoped that the service will be able to benefit the growers by forecasting storms and frosts. The stations will be sub-stations located at Suffield, Hazardville, Tariffville and East Windsor Hill.

Ewald Wever, who packs for Kaiser & Boasberg, of Buffalo, N. Y., has closed down his large warehouse. A number of girls will be retained to finish up the work in the bulk sweat tobacco.

The 56-acre farm, known as the George S. Phelps place, has been sold to Thomas J. Byrnes. The farm consists of 14 acres of tobacco shed room, and is made up of three strips of land and a large farmhouse.

The trustees of the estate of the late L. P. Bissell have sold the 60½ acres of the Sheldon Street section to Matthew Leahy, who is the packer for the American Cigar Co. The plot contains 50 acres of tobacco land, with shed room for hanging that amount of tobacco.

Many farmers are already testing tobacco seed. Fertilizer is now arriving on the railroad sidings, and appearances indicate that the crop to be raised will be a large one.

KENTUCKY

OWENSBURG, KY.

Two of the tobacco growers' organizations in Western Kentucky have voted unanimously to curtail the tobacco acreage. These organizations are located in what is known as the stemming district, where prices in the last two years have not been satisfactory to the producers.

Tobacco prices unquestionably would be better if the growers did not overreach themselves in acreage. It is not an easy matter to limit production. A movement by organized growers to reduce the acreage usually results in a corresponding effort on the part of independent growers to put out larger crops. It is a fact also that some of those who vote for the curtailment of acreage expect the other fellow to do all the curtailing.

The growers' organizations are trying to systematize the production and marketing of tobacco and in truth system is greatly needed. So long as so many of the tobacco farmers sacrifice quality while striving for quantity in their crops, there will be complaints of unsatisfactory returns.

THE CAROLINAS

GEORGETOWN, S. C.

Three weeks ago it was estimated that the tobacco crop would suffer hurt of only about 10 per cent.; now the estimate runs as high as 33 per cent., assuming that the remainder of the season will be favorable. It is practically certain, too, that the harvest will be two to three weeks late, which is expected to have some bearing upon the price that will be received for the output of the tobacco fields.

GREENVILLE, N. C.

Farmers now find that all tobacco plants have not been killed and are preparing for a big crop. The fact that the crop will be late may make the crop not so good. Many beds are showing young plants, but last year this time many had plants near large enough to set out. The last snow did not hurt the beds at all it now seems.

A gentleman speaking of the crop a few days ago said it would be the largest ever grown if plants could be had. He said that over in Greene County there would be no setting out of tobacco this year, as all open land had been sowed for beds and that all that would have to be done would be to thin out the beds and cultivate those plants that are left. Many new barns are being built and more marwets are expected to be in operation next season. But it will be a late crop and a late crop means a poor crop. And a tobacco man remarked a few days ago that prices may be expected to be cut in half compared to last season.

Mail Order House Plans to Include Cigars

Plans are in the air for the establishment of a large mail order house in Chicago, which will pool the interests of a number of the smaller mail order houses of the city and will handle a large variety of goods, including cigars and tobacco. The idea was developed among the heads of a number of the mail order houses mentioned. Owing to the fact that the large catalogues put out by the more pretentious mail order houses have such a wide circulation and make such a prepossessing appearance it has been found impossible for the smaller houses to compete with their humbler catalogues with the smaller distribution. Capital to the extent of $25,000 is said to be involved in the new plan. The money is all ready, say the promoters. In the mind of the writer, however, who has seen many a stupendous combine formed on paper, there are certain conditions which will prevent such a plan from ever becoming a reality. The idea, in spite of this fact, seems thoroughly practical.

Lithograph Salesman Robbed of a Valise

Henry Voice, Jr., representing the firm of Kaufman, Pasbach & Voice, art lithographers, in the State of Pennsylvania, while in the Quaker City recently, was robbed of his valise. He reported the matter to the police and a detective placed on the case promptly advertised in a daily newspaper for the return of the article. The following morning the detective was at breakfast when a man called at his home with the valise. He evidently expected a reward and was surprised to find himself under arrest. He then attempted to escape, but a couple of shots from the detective's revolver caused him to surrender. As the man was walking along with the detective he pointed out a man whom he said had given him the valise. The second man was also arrested and both were held under bail for a hearing.

Small Fire in Utica Tobacco Store

Fire and water recently caused a loss of about $300 to the stock and fixtures of the cigar store of C. A. Whelan & Company, located on the Busy Corner, in Utica, N. Y. A large amount of goods in the back room was saved from damage owing to the fact that they were in sealed cartons. The assistant manager of the store had $100 in a cigar box in the rear room, and $200 in the safe. He was much relieved to find that the cigar box containing the $100 had not been destroyed.

The new cigar store of Edward C. Shauroth in the Richter Hotel Building is a great improvement over the old one. The fixtures are practically all new and the arrangement of the cases has improved its appearance one hundred per cent. Instead of being dreary it is now flooded with electric lights and is very attractive from the outside as well as on the interior.

A. J. Knepley, formerly sales manager of the Harry W. Watson Company, resigned the first of April and is now working the Middle West territory for Ruy Suarez & Company, and will boost for the "El Planco" cigar.

The Watson Company in Detroit have equipped a number of their delivery wagons and automobiles with large banners advertising the "Havana Ribbon" cigar.

The last cigar in the factory of the Spiets & Worch factory, Detroit, was made on Saturday, March 21st. Since that time all of the fixtures and stock have been disposed of and the manufacturing will take place at one of the Eastern factories of the United Cigar Manufacturers Company. The present building at 722 East Forest Avenue is being offered for sale. Manager Schloss, who has charge of the plant since January, 1913, and G. Franklin Nale, superintendent, will be transferred to the East.

Burley Tobacco Society Goes Out of Existence

The Burley Tobacco Society, whose membership included more than forty thousand farmers in Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio, practically ended its existence recently when checks for $316,000 were distributed among the members. This represents the final funds for the tobacco pools which resulted in the farmers receiving more than $20,000,000 for tobacco during the life of the society. The Burley Tobacco Company, a co-operative organization has succeeded the society. The society which ended its existence was organized about five years ago.

Tobacco Growing Urged in South Jersey

Isaac Ridgway, of Greenwich, N. J., has recently called the attention of the farmers in South Jersey to the profitable growing of tobacco in Lancaster County, Pa. In a letter to a newspaper, Mr. Ridgway says that tobacco-growing is paying the Lancaster County farmers more than double the amount that the crops of the South Jersey farmers pay.

Mr. Ridgway calls attention to a recent statement that the Lancaster County farmers have more than $100,000,000 invested in mortgages and securities. He says that in Cumberland County, N. J., many of the farmers are carrying notes in banks. He thinks that tobacco growing would help the Cumberland County farmers considerably.

How I Pushed Cigars

"Making a Drug Store Pay," is the title of a book recently published by Frank Farrington, who is known throughout the country from his contributions to trade papers.

"How I Pushed Cigars," is the title of one of the chapters and it contains many thoughts that might be successfully used by any retail tobacconist.

The book contains nearly two hundred actual advertisements of all kinds, showing the many ways of using limited newspaper space and desirable forms of circular letters.

This book is published by the Ronald Press Company, New York. It is cloth bound and contains 303 pages. The price is two dollars, postpaid, and orders for the same will be accepted by THE TOBACCO WORLD.

Bode Brothers Remodel Cigar Store

Bode Brothers, who own a cigar store at 1103 Washington Avenue, Cairo, Ill., are remodeling the entire first floor and will use the front for displaying and selling stock. The three rooms in the rear of the building are being converted into one large room and the cigar factory will be moved there. When the renovations are completed Bode Brothers will have one of the most attractive cigar stores in Southern Illinois.

Advertising Wins for A. Bloch & Son

Attention has been drawn to the successful newspaper campaign of A. Bloch & Son, of Troy, N. Y., which has recently been inaugurated on their favorite "B & S" brands and other goods. The firm set aside $5000 for the first year's campaign, with the idea of giving advertising a fair trial with that amount. In less than three months, using the Troy Times exclusively, the business increased to such an extent that eight cigarmakers were added to the force to take care of the growing demand for the cigars.

The firm of A. Bloch & Son was established in 1876 and never did any advertising until this year, being content to let the goods advertise themselves. This experiment has convinced the firm of the value of newspaper advertising.

A petition in voluntary bankruptcy was filed recently by Edwin M. Leonard, a retail tobacco dealer, of Watertown, N. Y., setting the liabilities at $3383 and assets at $3480.

New Man With National Lithographic Company

Garrett H. Smith, formerly of Moller, Kokeritz & Company, is now officially connected with the National Lithographic Company. He will shortly call upon his many friends in the trade with a full and complete line of domestic cigar labels, bands and advertising signs. Mr. Smith desires to thank his friends and customers for their kind co-operation in the past. He will also supervise the importation of the very finest grades of imported cigar labels and cigar bands in both gold leaf and bronze for the firm.

In order to meet the growing demands in his business, Leo Hirsch, the leaf tobacco dealer, formerly located at 165 Front Street, New York City, found it necessary to secure larger quarters. He is now occupying offices at 162 Water Street, that city, having leased four additional floors at the latter address. Mr. Hirsch is very optimistic about the future.

ANTI-COUPON BILL PIGEON-HOLED BY COMMITTEE UNTIL DECEMBER

Ways and Means Committee Springs Surprise—New Draft Was Expected to Pass Without Delay—Opposition Claims Such Bill Unconstitutional

(Special Dispatch to "The Tobacco World.")

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 29, 1914.

THE Ways and Means Committee gave the supporters of the anti-coupon bill a shock yesterday when they postponed further action on the question until next December. The new draft of the bill, which is appended to this article, was supposed to be popular with the Democratic leaders, and it was believed that the same would be favorably reported and immediately passed by both the House and the Senate.

In view of the hearty support which this bill has received from every section of the country, it is somewhat of a shock to its many supporters to learn that the vote to hold up further action on the question until next December stood 11 to 7 in favor of the pigeon hole.

Despite the fact that opposition to the bill has apparently come from the sources that would be most harmed by it, it was not thought that it was strong enough to carry weight with the committee. However, Congressman Garner, of Texas, has loomed up as being decidedly opposed to the passage of such a bill on the grounds that it is unconstitutional and that further he would oppose any bill that had for its object the use of taxing power to ruin any single corporation. That such a bill is unconstitutional was the opinion recently given by the Massachusetts Attorney-General on a similar bill that was to be considered by the Massachusetts legislature.

The Sub-committee on Ways and Means finished the new draft of the bill a few days ago. It was thought at the time that it had been revised so that it removed all objections, retaining the good points and leaving no loophole that might nullify the power of such an act.

The bill as revised follows:

Section 1. The term tobacco products shall be held to include manufactured tobacco, snuff and cigars and the term cigars shall be held to include one or more cigars, one or more little cigars and one or more cigarettes.

The term tobacco coupon shall be held to include any coupon, fractional coupon, prize ticket, or other device which is attached to, connected with, packed in or with, forms a part of, encircles, accompanies the sale or gift, or is given with any tobacco product or any stamped package or receptacle thereof, if any such coupon, fractional coupon, prize ticket, or other device, contains any direct or indirect promise, or proposition or offer, to make redemption or payment in cash or merchandise therefor, or for any number of same or to exchange property therefor, or for any number of same, whether such redemption, payment, or exchange, is made or is to be made by a manufacturer of or dealer in tobacco products, or by any other person, firm or corporation.

The term tobacco gift shall be held to include all articles of value, other than tobacco coupons, matches and cigarette paper, which accompany the sale or gift of or are given with any tobacco product or any stamped package or receptacle thereof. If any tobacco product accompanies the sale or gift of or is given with any article or thing of value except a tobacco coupon, such tobacco product shall be held to be included in the term tobacco gift.

The term tobacco attachment shall be held to include any article or thing or part of an article or thing other than a tobacco coupon or a tobacco gift which at any time is attached to, connected with, packed in or with, forms a part of, encircles, accompanies the sale or gift of or is given with any tobacco product or any stamped package or receptacle thereof.

EXPECT NEW JOBBING HOUSES AS RESULT OF OPEN MARKET

Few Survivors Preparing to Take Advantage—Planning to Extend Their Business—Others Preparing to Enter Field—Metropolitan Will Fight to the End

NEW YORK, N. Y., April 27, 1914.

WITH the declaration by the big tobacco companies of the open market policy for New York and vicinity, the jobbing business in that territory is taking an upward trend, and for the first time in fifteen years those who want to go into the jobbing business will be in a position to do so on an even basis with the Metropolitan Tobacco Company. The Metropolitan Tobacco Company, however, is not going to withdraw from the field without a struggle, as is evidenced by the petition which they have recently circulated among their customers.

With its salesmen able to control considerable business by their personal solicitation, with its facilities for almost perfect distribution, and the tremendous amount of goodwill that still exists among the dealers for them, it is easy to see that the Metropolitan is still a force to be reckoned with by any new houses that seek to enter the jobbing field. The Metropolitan has recently circulated a petition among its dealers, which it will probably use at Washington if any further efforts are made to disturb its business operations. The petition was the result of appeals from a number of dealers who feared that they would have to come to New York to secure their goods in the future if the present zone of the Metropolitan was curtailed or its distribution methods interrupted.

In addition to the petition, the Metropolitan has added to their deal propaganda one of free matches, which will undoubtedly bring joy to the hearts of many small dealers who have never looked with any degree of favor on this item of expense.

A result of the open market policy has been the dragging forth into the light of day some of the old-time jobbers who had almost been forgotten, but who are now polishing their armor and are preparing to enter the lists.

Several of the established firms are preparing to expand their business. New parties are planning to enter the field and the manufacturers outside are rubbing their hands with glee, for they see a chance for themselves to cut down expenses.

With a strong array of jobbers in New York, many outside manufacturers will be able to close their New York offices and place their brands in the hands of one of the jobbers. With competition keen and a good house to handle his goods in the district of Manhattan, the manufacturer may well be pleased.

Whether the Metropolitan contemplates further steps or not, is not known. It is sufficient, however, to count their strength well, and not to underestimate the mighty power that they wield.

Jobbers Pleased With Open Market

The declaration of an "open market" in New York and vicinity has caused the old-time jobbers to look about and make plans to get back into the field. In addition there are a number of new men who are planning to enter the jobbing field, too, as they feel that the present policy will leave room for all.

Aside from the effect of this movement on the part of the several tobacco companies involved, on the jobbing trade, it means much to manufacturers outside of New York City. With new jobbing houses in the field, those who have never tried to place their goods in Manhattan because of the existing conditions, will now be encouraged to extend their territory; manufacturers who, because of the same condition, have maintained offices in New York, will now be able to turn their work over to a jobbing house and save the expense of a Manhattan establishment.

At any rate the outlook for a big boom in business in New York is good, and it is safe to predict that competition in the cigar and cigarette lines will be keener than at any previous time in the history of Broadway.

Anti-Coupon Bill Sidetracked

After a strenuous fight on the part of the independent manufacturers, jobbers and retailers to secure immediate action on the Underwood Anti-Coupon Bill, it is quite a disappointment to learn that the Ways and Means Committee, to which it was referred, had decided to lay it over until next December.

Opposition claims that the bill is unconstitutional and Congressman Garner is quoted as saying that he is not in favor of a bill that has for its object the destruction of a single corporation.

It appears to those who view the debate from the gallery that the bill does not attack a single corporation, but rather seeks to have discontinued a practice that is held by many sound business men to be harmful. There are hundreds of successful cigar manufacturers and retailers who have built up their trade without the use of coupons and premiums, and who continue to hold their trade without their use. Legislation against coupons and premiums would, undoubtedly, make a tremendous difference in the trade of manufacturers and stores using them; but then, on the other hand, it simply puts them on a footing with those in the trade who manufacture and sell, successfully, without their use.

If such a bill is unconstitutional, then, for the present, at least, much good effort has been wasted.

War and the Tobacco Trade

Although the Mexican situation does not seem to be progressing with any degree of rapidity, the acceptance of mediation by the United States caused the stock market to show a favorable turn, and indications are that there will be no war—at present, at least.

War is an unhealthy condition; it may cause a certain artificial business boom for a time, but the relapse that follows generally causes a slow recovery.

In raising war funds the tobacco business has been one of the first to feel it and the last to be released from its grip. The money spent to carry on warfare goes into shot and shell that produce no revenue, and the empty purse must be refilled. In this case it seems probable that should there be a war there will be no immediate effort made to raise funds. Should such, however, be the case, it has been suggested that the Income Tax be increased. That would, of course, affect those best able to pay, but sooner or later the methods of raising funds would have to be made more general.

Business conditions have not been very steady of late and a war would not help matters. We hope there will be no war, but at the same time we believe that the dignity and honor of the United States should be upheld at any cost.

Already some of the steamships of lines important to the tobacco trade have been commandeered by the government. This will hamper the importation of leaf, and should war be declared the importers might find themselves facing a very serious situation.

CORRECTION.

In our April 1st issue we published the name and address of E. G. Keller & Son, Springet, Pa., as being listed under Factory No. 583, Ninth District of Pennsylvania. We have since been informed that this is incorrect, the correct listing being A. F. Burg, East Prospect, Pa.

MY friend McDonnell, of Yahn & McDonnell, prominent Philadelphia distributors, has in his employ one of the neatest and most polite errand youngsters I have encountered in a long time. Recently the little chap was sent to deliver a bill of goods to a pool room cigar stand not many blocks distant from his firm's headquarters. The bill amounted to $3.99, and when presented the proprietor of the stand was tendered a penny in exchange by the errand lad.

Thereupon the proprietor took occasion to compliment the boy on his celerity and faithfulness in delivering his goods, and told him as a mark of his esteem he would give him the penny change for a tip. The youngster, as is his wont, removed his cap and thanked the man, and then started for his store. Just as he had reached the exit the man called after him and said: "Come back here. Didn't I just give you a penny for a tip and tell you what a good boy you were?"

"Yes," replied the youth.

"Then," answered the proprietor, "what sort of a chap are you to take my tip and leave this room passing all of the slot machines on the way?"

How to handle loafers in the retail cigar store is one of the questions which has worried dealers from the most ancient times. It is a fact known to every dealer that the loafers are often boisterous to the extent of harming trade. By congregating in the front of the store and endeavoring to solve one of the national problems they many times forget themselves and indulge in loud words and scuffles which are likely sooner or later to damage either trade or property. Now, the question is, how to maintain a check over the loafers without offending them; for loafers or not, they are bound to spend a certain amount of money with the dealer. If he "calls" them outright, they leave in a disgruntled state, and in certain small towns, not only boycott the dealer themselves, but work actively against him. On the other hand, the dealer must run the risk of having his high-class trade harmed, with the additional personal humiliation of feeling that he is not the boss in his own place of business, when it comes right down to tacks.

One dealer in a small town solved the problem by establishing a large gong in the outer room, which could be operated from the rear of the store. He said nothing to the boys, but on the next occasion when the crowd became loud with customers in the place, the gong sounded three times in rapid succession. The loafers took the hint, and were amused instead of offended at the tactful manner in which the proprietor protested. In another town a dealer solved the problem by organizing a mandolin club. When a loafer made too much noise he was promptly silenced by the rest, who wanted to hear the music. Furthermore, the orchestra in time became an organization of real class and proved a drawing card for trade. Thus did this dealer turn what looked like a liability into an asset.

While walking along the shady side of Chestnut Street the other day with an over-zealous friend, I was much amused at a rebuke that his impertinence brought him, and at the same time I gleaned some information.

Ahead of us was a well-dressed man of about sixty years who seemed intent on finding some object which he had apparently lost and for which he seemed to be diligently searching.

As we were walking somewhat faster than he was, we soon caught up to the old gentleman, and were both astounded to see him just knocking the fire from the end of a half-smoked cigar butt and dropping it in a bag.

It made so much of an impression on my friend that he went up to the man and in no uncertain tones said: "If I were in your place I would choose some other place and time for shooting cigar stumps rather than a public thoroughfare during rush hours."

With the eye of a trained measurer of men, the old gentleman straightened up, looked my friend over from head to foot, and then looking him full in the eye, said with the irony that comes from years of practice: "Young man, if you never spent any more money for that filthy weed than I have, you would be better off than you are this minute. The reason I am engaged in this occupation at present is because there is a room at my home filled with plants that will shortly have to be transplanted, and I have found that the only thing this nicotine filth is good for is to kill the bugs which will soon infest them."

She had merely wished to put his love to the test. It had not occurred to her that he might impulsively say goodbye and go out of her life forever, but apparently she had misjudged him, and now he was gone—gone, alas! and she was left alone to nurse a vain regret.

Half-swooning, she sank into a chair and covered her face with her hands. Tears trickled between her fingers and bitterly she reproached herself.

"Why," she sobbed, "did I let him go? I have lost him! Oh, foolish girl that I was not to have put my arms around his neck before it was too late and asked him to forgive me!"

But hist!

Suddenly she raised her head and listened.

Yes, there was some one at the door.

It is he!

Hastily dashing the tears from her eyes, she assumed an uncompromising look. He had returned to sue for peace. She must compel him to humbly admit that he had been wrong. It was her duty to herself to insist he must surrender unconditionally.

He rang the bell, but she did not rush to let him in. Not until he rang again did she go to the door.

For a moment they stood facing each other. Proudly she waited for him to begin his plea for mercy.

At last he spoke.

"I'm sorry to trouble you," he said, "but I forgot my cigarettes."—Exchange. THE ONLOOKER.

IRREGULAR PAGINATION

"Cado," a New Fifteen-cent Cigarette

THE Cado Company, manufacturers of the well-known "56" cigarette, which took the trade by storm only a short time ago, are now preparing to market a new ten-for-fifteen-cents cigarette to be known as "Cado." Aside from the attractive package in which "Cado" is offered to the consumer, it makes its chief appeal on quality, and smokers of "Cado" will quickly appreciate the high standard that the makers have set for this new cigarette. This blend makes its appearance to the trade on May 1.

At a recent meeting of the Cado Company, Inc., Paul A. Drucklieb was elected president to fill the office made vacant by the death of his father, Charles A. Drucklieb. Other officers elected were: Henry L. Drucklieb, vice-president; George H. Roeschke, general manager, and Albert H. Francis, auditor.

Good Sumatra Purchases by H. Duys & Company

Nearly half of all the new Sumatra bought by American importers to date has been purchased by H. Duys & Company, and they are now offering this stock at reasonable prices despite the fact that they were compelled to face a high market themselves. This old and reliable house states that despite reports to the contrary, they believe that the new crop will prove satisfactory to the trade.

They also state that they have some of last year's tobaccos, having purchased practically every suitable lot obtainable in the European markets. They are also holders of fine old and new Java tobacco, both Havana and Sumatra style.

Creditors of British-American to Sue

It is understood that the Metropolitan Tobacco Company, the largest creditor of the British-American Cigar Stores Company, through their attorneys are co-operating with Clifford G. Ludvigh, the trustee in bankruptcy, to recover some $6000 or $7000 alleged to have been illegally paid out of the funds of the now bankrupt company. W. W. St. John, the company's former president, and S. I. Davis & Company, are to be made the defendants in the action. If this money is recovered it is said that the creditors will receive a very fair dividend.

New Coupon Company to Serve All

The United Profit-Sharing Corporation announce that they have now worked out the details of their business and that the new coupon will be ready for issuance in a month or so. A feature of the policy of the new company is that retailers and manufacturers, regardless of their affiliations, will be allowed to use the coupons.

C. E. Barker, who has had wide experience with a coupon corporation, well known to the tobacco trade, has resigned from that firm to become the manager of the United Profit-Sharing Corporation. Mr. Barker's wide experience should be of great assistance to the new company in placing their coupons.

"Naturals" Now Marketed With Cork Tips

SCHINASI BROTHERS, makers of the famous "Natural" cigarettes, have recently sent an announcement to the trade to the effect that they are now making "Naturals" in both cork and plain tips at the same price. "Natural" cigarettes, plain tips, have been a standard on the market for a long time, and all that has been needed to increase their sales has been to make them in cork tips as well, at the same price. In catering to that class of consumers who demand a cork tipped cigarette, Schinasi Brothers have taken a step that is bound to win a larger following for their already popular brand.

Austin Nichols & Co. Get "Charles Denby"

The establishment of the "Charles Denby" cigar in New York is now in the hands of Austin Nichols & Company, and those acquainted with the methods of placing a brand can readily believe that the "Charles Denby" cigar will soon be very well known to Manhattan smokers.

"Charles Denby" is a nickel smoke made by H. Fendrick, Evansville, Ind., and it is one of the leading smokes of the Middle West and Coast sections. The Fendrick factory is one of the largest of its kind in the world.

Fifty Years for E. Spingarn & Co.

On May 1, 1864, E. Spingarn & Company moved into their present quarters, 5 Burling Slip, and shortly afterwards abandoned cigar manufacturing to enter the leaf tobacco business. This house was among the first to import Sumatra into this country, and aside from being one of the foremost Sumatra houses they are also extensive dealers in Pennsylvania.

The firm is now composed of Elias Spingarn and his sons, Harry J. and Sigmund.

Bernard Simpson Composition Confirmed

John Alvarez, of Y. Pendas & Alvarez, is back again in New York, having recently returned from a very extensive trip in the interests of the company's "Webster." Practically every large city from New York to San Francisco was covered.

"Charles Denby" Cigars in Denver

This display of "Charles Denby" cigars recently appeared in one of the windows of the H. F. Totman Drug Store, Fifteenth and Stout Streets, Denver, Colo. Mr. Totman states that the window display has attracted a great deal of attention and that it has increased the sales of "Charles Denby" cigars materially, in fact that it has secured first place among the 5-cent sellers. Mr. Totman also says that both o his stores in Denver handle the "Charles Denby", and that he has yet to receive his first complaint regarding the quality.

"Havana Ribbons" Close Successful Month

Bayuk Brothers Company are closing their books on a most successful month's business, having received a nice increase over same month of 1913.

"Havana Ribbon" distribution is being actively pushed by all of their men and very encouraging reports are received from the various territories as to the repeating business on the brand.

D. S. Achenbach, Pennsylvania and New York representative, has just completed a trip through Western Pennsylvania and has forwarded the office some substantial orders on "Ribbons."

A. G. Bucher, Iowa and Nebraska representative, has now recovered from his recent spell of bad health and has already started an active sales campaign to cover his entire territory.

W. H. Yochem, Coast representative, is just winding up a successful campaign with Ehrman Brothers Company, San Francisco, and will leave this week for the Northwest with Portland as his objective point, and where he intends working in conjunction with the sales force of Mason, Ehrman & Company, who have control of the brand in that territory.

The Arnheim-Herz Company, Pittsburgh, Pa., who are distributors for the "Reynaldo" cigar, made by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, have been of material assistance in causing three times as many cigars to be manufactured bearing the "Reynaldo" label, as was manufactured for the same period in 1913.

Strikes Causes Removal of Factories

Owing to continued strikes in the Puerta de Tierra and Bayomon factories of the Porto Rican-American Tobacco Company, at San Juan, P. R., it has been decided to open two factories in the United States in the vicinity of New York. According to the figures now in mind it is expected that fully eight hundred cigar makers will be needed to continue an output of 1,000,000 cigars a week.

Cigarettes With Standard Pure Tobacco Binders

The Tobacco Production Company, of New Milford, Conn., has had a quantity of cigarettes made up with the company's patent binder used instead of the customary paper wrapper, and those that have tried them say the cigarettes are enjoyable. The company is now planning to make a thinner and lighter grade of their product to supply the cigarette trade.

Uhl Estate $100,000

The will was dated April 3. The real estate is valued at $50,000 and the personal property at the same amount. The entire estate is left to his wife.

The Tobacco Products Corporation has sent H. W. Jones out to Pittsburgh, to take charge of the corporation's line in that territory.

CAPITOL.

Kissimmee to Enter the Field

Realizing the vast possibilities in the cigar manufacturing business, the Kissimmee Board of Trade, Kissimmee, Fla., recently took preparatory steps towards the incorporation of a company to engage in the business of manufacturing Havana cigars. The new company, which is to be known as the Key West Havana Cigar Company, will have a capital stock of $10,000, to consist of 1,000 shares of the par value of $10 each.

Trade Jottings

Quite an elaborate lighting system is being installed in the store of John D. Ross, one of the "live wires" of Denver.

A cigar store has been opened on South Main Street by John Munley, Pittston, Pa.

The new cigar stand in the Hotel Chisca, Memphis, Tenn., is proving quite a success. It is operated by Best & Russell.

A voluntary petition in bankruptcy was recently filed by Frank Rathbun, a retail cigar dealer of San Bernardino, Cal.

Kingshaker & Co., Kansas City, are doing well on their "Peter White," a recent five-cent acquisition. A good business is also being done by this house on "William Penn," invincible size.

"B. B. B. Panatellas" (Brudno Stogie Company, Cleveland, O.), are being featured quite extensively by Simon Shissler & Son, Lancaster, Pa., local distributors. An attractive window display, also, forms a part of the campaign.

The Peoples Cigar Stores Company, Boston, recently used quite extensive newspaper advertising to inform the public that during a two days' special sale of "Lucky Strike," a 25-cent Manhattan briar pipe would be given free with each 50-cent glass jar of the tobacco.

Through the recent installation of a cigarette making machine, Carlos Cremata, a Key West cigar manufacturer, will be able to cater to the local trade. Before the machine was acquired, Mr. Cremata manufactured cigarettes as a side line only.

Quite a busines is being done on "Havana Seconds," one of the leading brands of Moss & Lowenhaupt, up-to-the-minute retailers, located in St. Louis. Messrs. Moss & Lowenhaupt claim that they are the largest direct Cuban cigar importers in St. Louis.

"Stanlico" is the name of a new five-cent brand that is being exploited by the Charles P. Stanley Cigar Company, St. Louis, Mo. The company does not make much of an effort pushing new brands, inasmuch as an established trade on sterling goods keeps them hustling.

A new jobbing house has been opened up in New Bedford, Mass., and is known as the Converse Tobacco Company. The owner of the new enterprise is George Converse, for many years connected with the plug tobacco department of the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company.

"Sani-Head," a five-cent cigar, manufactured by the Consumers Cigar Company, Chicago, Ill., is a new brand that has been taken on by the Western Cigar Company, Kansas City, Mo. This company recently appointed H. Reiter as representative in Missouri and Arkansas territory. Mr. Reiter was formerly with the Oberholtz & Poinsett Cigar Company.

"United" Will Invade British Isles

According to a special cable from London to the Chicago "Tribune," their correspondent has it on the highest authority that despite all denials the United Cigar Stores Company has decided to invade the British field. Industrial circles are already awaiting the first gun in the battle between the British Imperial Tobacco Company and the "United."

George J. Whelan, president of the United Cigar Stores Company, arrived in London on the 26th, having crossed on the "Imperator." It is stated on the best authority that Mr. Whelan has been looking very carefully over the field in England for the past few years, while his agents have been on the ground for a long time making arrangements and combining some of the independent cigarette firms of England.

It is further stated that arrangements for the invasion were completed a year ago, but that one firm of cigarette manufacturers held aloof and the beginning of the battle was delayed. It is understood that this firm has now definitely joined the forces of the United Cigar Stores Company and that the invasion is assured.

Wants to Use Parcel Post

HAVANA, CUBA, April 23, 1914.

The Cuban Government is making a strong effort to secure a parcel post treaty with the United States, whereby carriage of general merchandise in the mails may be secured. Especial emphasis is laid by Havana men interested in this matter upon the practicability of sending by post cigars in lots of less than 3000. The Cuban Government is pointing out to the postal authorities that inauguration of such a treaty between these countries would very probably pave the way for introduction of many kinds of American merchandising in Cuba. The Cubans point out that the only privilege of exceptional value to them in return would be facility for shipping cigars by post to their customers throughout the United States. The Havana cigar trade is taking more than ordinary interest in the project.

American Trade Helped Turkish Tobacco

The Franco-Ottoman Regie (tobacco monopoly) has furnished the following interesting figures showing the increase in the tobacco crop, which is said to be caused by the growth of the American trade.

In 1909 the crop amounted to 10,765,455 pounds; in 1910 it advanced to 16,803,355 pounds; but in 1911 and 1912 there was a decline to 14,700,885 pounds and 13,661,955 pounds, respectively, due to disturbed conditions during the Balkan war; however, in 1913 there was a decided increase, the reduction amounting to 16,238,390 pounds.

The contract between the Turkish Government and the Regie, which has recently been renewed for a term of 15 years, will not affect the export trade, and the trade with the United States, which has amounted usually to sixty per cent. of the total output, should continue to grow.

Shearer Boosting "Tadema" Cigars

W. B. Shearer, representing I. Samelson & Company, Memphis, Tenn., in the Louisiana territory, was accompanied on his trip through the State last month by Robert E. Breder, factory representative of Aguelles Lopez & Brother, Tampa, manufacturers of "Tadema" cigars. The "Tadema" brand is possibly the largest clear Havana seller in Louisiana, and the increase in sales the past year has been very gratifying to both the manufacturers and I. Samelson & Company, who are distributors for Louisiana and Mississippi.

Banquet for Salesmen of M. A. Newmark & Co.

(By Telegraph to "The Tobacco World.")

LOS ANGELES, CALIF., APRIL 27, 1914.

For the fine work done by the salesmen of M. A. Newmark & Company on "Don Remo," made by the firm of A. Davis Sons & Company, of Cincinnati, O., an elaborate banquet was tendered them at the Hollenbeck Hotel, Los Angeles, on the evening of April 25. J. W. Hoyt, Pacific Coast representative of A. Davis Sons & Company, and Joseph L. Goldsmith, manager of M. A. Newmark & Company, were hosts to more than fifty guests.

In speaking of banquets, this affair was the equal if not the superior of any of its kind ever given in the famous Los Angeles hostelry; the arrangements were perfect and reflected great credit on the hosts. William Latimer, the hotel steward, who had charge of the preparation of the food for the dinner, was toasted, and much praise was given to him for the splendid menu.

Music was furnished by a large orchestra, while the guests were further entertained by a cabaret show, which included three very pretty young women whose singing and dancing brought forth continued applause.

In the course of the evening speeches were made by Messrs. Hoyt, Goldsmith, Flatau, McKinney, Baker and others, including Morris Burke. A letter was read from A. Davis Sons & Company, while telegrams from Allen Davis and Marco Newmark were received with cheers.

"Don Remo" cigars were the smokes of the evening.

Herman Flatau, of M. A. Newmark & Company, was toastmaster.

ALKALI.

Member of the Benson & Hedges Firm in the West

A. P. Hedges, of the cigar and cigarette firm of Benson & Hedges, recently arrived in New York and has since gone West. He was accompanied as far as Chicago by S. P. Hubley, New York manager. Mr. Hedges will continue on to San Francisco and Los Angeles. The firm of Benson & Hedges has headquarters in New York, Montreal and London.

Playing No Favorites, Says the Department

WASHINGTON, D. C., APRIL 25, 1914.

The Treasury Department does not like the insinuation that some one has made that they have been playing favorites in the matter of the Bonded Factory Law. They claim that they have been doing their best to fulfill the letter of the law and not to favor certain territories and factories.

As proof of this statement the fullest investigation is going on in re of the matter now being argued and upon which the New York and Tampa manufacturers disagree. The words, "Spanish Method," on the label used by New York manufacturers has been questioned by the Tampa cigar men, as the latter claim that this term does not explain the New York method used on clear Havana work. Meanwhile New York manufacturers are awaiting the outcome.

Derry-Bradfield Company Report Good Increase

That business conditions generally are improving is the firm belief of the Derry-Bradfield Cigar Company, Grand Junction, Colo. For instance: The business done in March, 1914, was forty per cent. over that of March, 1913, while the business of the first three months of 1914 shows and increase of thirty-three per cent. over the same period of the preceding year. The Derry-Bradfield Company state that their increased business is not due to any expansion in territory, inasmuch as there has been but little change in this connection during the last year or so.

Philadelphia Notes

Charles Bobrow, of Bobrow Brothers, makers of the "Bold" cigar, left Philadelphia on the 28th, on a trip through the New England States.

George Becker, of Arguelles, Lopez & Company, of "Tadema" and "Romeo y Julieta" fame, was a visitor to the Quaker City trade this week.

"Tony" Banyan, of Jose Escalante & Company, Tampa, Fla., left Philadelphia recently with a well-filled order book for "Corina" cigars, manufactured by this firm.

L. M. Walters, Eastern representative for Bobrow Brothers, has been cutting a swath through New York State with "Bold" cigars. He is now on his way to Ohio, and has been sending in daily "repeat" orders that have demonstrated to the home office that this is surely a "Bold" year.

B. Harry Moulsdale, general sales manager for the Sanchez & Haya Company, factory number 1, Tampa, was accompanied on his recent trip throughout the eastern territory by A. Torry, treasurer of the company. This old bulwark of clear Havana goods is operating under the new bond law, the management as usual doing everything in their power for the protection of the dealer and consumer.

The Juniper and Market Streets store of Yahn & McDonnell is making a special display of "Tungsten" cigars, manufactured by Jeitles & Blumenthal, Ltd., 119 South Eleventh Street, Philadelphia.

The "Statesman" cigar, also manufactured by this firm, continues in firm demand, being especially strong throughout the recently developed teritory of the Middle West.

The Rofelda Cigar Company finds that business is quite brisk on their "Rofelda" and "Quaker Ben" brands in Brooklyn and New York City, where they are receiving a nice duplication business. Orders from the West and Middle West are keeping the factory busy, and indications are that the demand from that section will continue to grow.

The store located at 111 South Broad Street, Philadelphia, formerly operated by J. G. Atherholt, Inc., is now catering to smokers who use the east side of Broad Street, under the name of the Manhattan Cigar Company.

As stated in a prior issue, J. T. Gaine is the active head of the new enterprise, and his experience should qualify him to give the best service possible to patrons new and old.

The Bulgarian Law in New Territories

The British Minister at Sofia reports that he has been informed by the Bulgarian Minister of Foreign Affairs that, from January 14 last, the Bulgarian law relating to tobacco has been in force in the new territories. Under this law all tobacco, save that required for internal consumption, may be exported by private persons free of all taxation. The Bulgarian Government has no present intention of instituting a tobacco monopoly in Bulgaria.

Ben Hampton Goes Abroad

Benjamin Hampton, who recently took charge of the Smoking Tobacco Department of the American Tobacco Company, sailed for Europe on the 18th. It is said that the trip was made in an effort to recuperate Mr. Hampton's health, which, of late, has not been of the best.

Baum Brothers Find Good Demand for Brands

BAUM BROTHERS, makers of the well-known "A. J. Cassatt," "Little A. J. Cassatt" and "Coiner" brands, report that business is good and that they are working to their full capacity.

The Reading Cigar Company, Fifth and Elm Streets, Reading, has recently taken on the distribution of the above brands and reports that the cigars are becoming quite popular with Reading consumers.

Nathan Baum is now on a trip through Pennsylvania and New York State, and his reports indicate that there is no let-up in the demand in that section.

Interesting Engagement Announced

Of considerable interest to the trade in Philadelphia, as well as to the many friends of the fortunate young man, is the announcement of the betrothal of Miss Rose Bobrow, a sister of Messrs. Charles and Harry Bobrow, manufacturers of the "Bold" cigar, to Harry Tetrosky, of the Independent Cigar Stores Company. It is rumored that the wedding will take place some time in June.

Lloyd E. Goss Has Good Tobacco Stand

Lloyd E. Goss, the popular druggist at Fifteenth and Master Streets, enjoys a cigar and tobacco trade that is almost equal to that of an exclusive cigar store. Although he has been located in the neighborhood only a few years, his trade is continually on the increase, and his genial smile and obliging ways have won him hosts of friends.

Located on the southeast corner of Master and Fifteenth Streets, in the heart of a rapidly growing apartment house district, and on one of the most travelled car lines in the city, the cigar stand has proven a valuable adjunct to his business. "Cinco" "Havana Ribbon" and a number of other popular five-cent smokes are carried. Jeitles & Blumenthal's brands are quite popular and he has a good trade on their "Royal Peer" Panatela. The stand also is provided with a good variety of clear Havana goods as well as smoking tobaccos and the better grades of cigarettes.

J. G. Durand Has Popular Smoke Shop

J. G. Durand, Fifty-seventh and De Lancey Streets, who enjoys much of the cigar and cigarette trade in the vicinity of Fifty-seventh and Spruce Streets, reports that his business is going nicely. "Cincos," "Havana Ribbons," "Bolds," "44s" and "Little William Penns" rank among the best of his five-cent sellers, while "Girard" seems to have the call in the ten-cent goods. Prompt and courteous treatment is one of the things that brings and keeps for him many of his customers.

Business Good With M. J. Dalton Company

ALTHOUGH there is some complaint among jobbers and distributors in the down town section of the city, the stores and stands operated by the M. J. Dalton Company are slowly but surely forging ahead of the business accomplished for the same period of last year.

One line that is selling and repeating better than ever in the history of this house is the F. Lozano brand, which is rapidly approaching an unparalleled sale for clear Havana goods made in Tampa.

One feature of these goods is their uniform quality, as the firm long ago decided upon just what grade of tobacco secured the best results, and are continually striving to maintain the same high standard.

New Scheme for Automobile Advertising

The well-known jobbing firm of Dusel, Goodloe & Company, 112 and 114 North Seventh Street, Philadelphia, are the first cigar concerns to utilize the exhaust on their automobile delivery car for advertising purposes.

On the top of the car is a cigar-shaped sign calling the attention of the public to the "Goodloe" cigar and by connecting the exhaust to the end of the sign which represents the end which is being burned, a steady vapor is released, and the effect is that a mammoth cigar is being carried on top of the car and by some means remains lighted.

Through the efforts of this wide awake firm, the Havana-American Company has recently opened a number of new accounts in Lackawanna and a part of Luzerne County, Pennsylvania. "La Preferencia" and "Principe de Gales" have proven their claim that they repeat.

Henry Reisenberg, after a visit to New Orleans, will start north to spread tidings of "Bold" cigars. He has recently been visiting the MacPike Drug Company and has sent in a fine bunch of duplicate business. The MacPike Drug Company is reported to be very enthusiastic over the "Bold" way things are going.

Finley Acker Takes On "Blue Peter"

The Finley Acker Company have placed the "Blue Peter" cigarette in the store located at Twelfth and Chestnut Streets, and these goods are finding a ready sale to smokers who desire a distinctive quality.

Another piece of goods recently added to this store is the "Edwins Juniors," made by the Edwins Cigar Company, New York City, which are sold in packages of seven for fifteen cents. This smoke is panatela shaped, and is bound to meet the requirements for a short, satisfactory puff.

Cigar Factories Have Dull Time—Bubonic Plague Causes Rush to Get Tobacco Out of Havana—Hjaimer K. Cold, City Clerk, Disappears—E. H. Gato Factory Still Closed by Strike

KEY WEST, FLA., April 25, 1914.

BUSINESS among our cigar factories is still very dull and there are no great prospects now for any revival in trade until autumn. Shipments have been very small since last report owing to the close-down of one of our shops to have necessary repairs made to their building and the fact that owing to a labor difficulty among its employees one of the largest factories on the island has been inactive.

C. L. Poston, representing the American Tobacco Company, was in town this week in the interest of his firm. During the recent conflagration which destroyed a large portion of St. Augustine, Fla., Mr. Poston distinguished himself for bravery in rescuing people from the burning buildings and had all of his hair burned off his head as a consequence, from which misfortune he is still suffering. He is very modest about the incident; in fact, absolutely refuses to talk on the subject. The above information was furnished by a friend of his who knows all about the affair and is the truth.

Although at present there have been no cases of bubonic plague found among those who are employed in the tobacco warehouses of Havana, but owing to the fact that twenty-eight squares are being fumigated and for fear that any day a case may be found, the warehouses have been fumigated with sulphur and thousands of dollars' worth of tobacco ruined. Our manufacturers will try and bring over all their leaf stocks within the next two weeks and have same stored here. It would be a good idea for all cigar manufacturers in the United States who have leaf stored there to have same brought to this country, for, according to the official statement of Dr. R. H. Creel, Past Assistant Surgeon, U. S. H. S., now in Havana, the bubonic plague situation in Havana is serious and things may come to the worst at any time. In the close of his report he says: "No false sense of security should be engendered by recent modification of quarantine. The plague situation in Havana is serious and merits the heartiest co-operation of all citizens to prevent the spread of the disease."

Hjaimer K. Cold, city clerk and known to everyone in the local trade as "Mazzantine," who was office manager of P. Pohalski & Company when they had their plant located here some years ago, disappeared about two weeks ago and no trace as to his whereabouts can be found. His financial accounts with the city are said to be O. K. and he has had no family difficulties. He has not, however, being enjoying very good health for some time and this may account for his mysterious disappearance.

Walter Moore, representing P. Lorillard Tobacco Company, was a caller on the trade this week in the interest of "London Life" cigarettes and other products of his house.

J. Steinberg, of the American Tobacco Company, was in the city recently in the interest of "Sovereign" cigarettes.

The workmen of the E. H. Gato Cigar Company went out recently on a strike and the big shop has been inactive ever since, although they have a fair demand for their products. The cigarmakers demanded an increase in price on certain vitolas and the discharge of the foreman. The firm readily acceded to the first demand, but as the foreman is satisfactory to them they will not very likely give in to the latter demand. So the matter remains in statu quo. The company got in a heavy shipment of leaf from Havana on Saturday night. Advices received in the city state that E. H. Gato, Sr., who recently underwent an operation in a hospital in Havana for cataracts, had been discharged and that the vision of his eyes had been fully restored.

C. L. Knowles, of the Alonso Reijas Ca., left recently on a drumming trip through western sections in the interest of his house.

Business is in excellent shape at the factory of the Cortez Cigar Company and a full force is being carried. The board of directors of the company met recently and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Lee Roy Myers, president; Vivian Myers, vice-president; Joseph D. Myers, secretary and treasurer; Claude H. Roberts, factory manager, and Chas. R. Curry, office manager.

The inspector for the bonded factory of the M. Perez Company has been appointed and assumed the duties of his position on Monday morning. Strippers are at work and as soon as they get sufficient material ahead the manufacture of cigars under the new system will be started.

W. A. Griffin, auditor of the Havana-American Company, was in the city recently and has since left for Tampa.

Luis Martinez, president of the Martinez-Havana Company, left this week for Cuba, where he will spend some time at his tobacco plantations at Guira de Melema. It is very probable that by the time he returns to this city the stock of tobaccos at the factory will be sufficiently worked down to enable them to make application for the made-in-bond privilege.

The big Solace factory of Geo. W. Nichols & Company, after a recess of two weeks, during which several alterations and improvements were made to their building, resumed on Monday.

Jaime Pendas, manager of Moreda & Company, got back this week from a business trip to Tampa. C. E. Browne and T. R. Sciple, of McGucken & Hyer, the architects, of Tampa, have arrived in the city. They will supervise the construction of the company's new building now under way. Mr. Sciple will remain in town until the structure is completed, while Mr. Browne, who is a concrete expert, will only be here for a couple of weeks or more.

The sign "United States Bonded Factory, Mi Favorita Cigar Company," has been placed on the bonded portion of the above company's building. A large force of strippers are still at work getting material in shape and it is very likely by the time this is printed the actual making of cigars under the new system will have begun.

R. E. Edwards and wife arrived on Monday from Tampa. Mr. Edwards was recently appointed inspector at the bonded factory of the M. Perez Company and assumed his duties on Tuesday morning.

At a recent meeting of the board of directors of the Peninsular & Occidental S. S. Company, held in Jacksonville at the company's headquarters, the following officers were elected: R. W. Parsons, president; M. F. Plant, first vice-president; J. P. Beckwith, second vice-president; C. L. Myers, general manager, and P. J. Saunders, assistant manager, with headquarters at Jacksonville, Fla. Mr. Saunders passed through the city recently en route to Cuba on an inspection tour. The rumor that the Florida East Coast Railway System had acquired the Peninsular & Occidental S. S. Company and that both interests would be consolidated has been officially denied.

J. H. Cayrro, the leaf dealer of Havana, was in town this week and has since left for New Mexico.

Colonel Sam. J. Wolf, of S. Wolf's Sons, this week tendered the services of himself and the Key West Militia to the United States Goverment for the Mexican campaign. This is one of the best equipped and drilled body of men in the country and all of the members are enthusiastic over the prospect of active service.

Emilio Pons and Ernest Berger, of the Tampa-Cuba Company, passed through town this week being en route to the leaf markets of Havana, where they will make purchases of leaf for the use of their house.

Robert Lee McClintock, the local cigarette manufacturer, is making a vigorous campaign for his brand "La Beldad" among the makers of the paper rolls in this city. These cigarettes are made of the very finest qualities of Cuban tobaccos and should gain many patrons for the firm.

William H. Malone, of the Professional Cigar Company, left this week to attend the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows at Lake Land, Fla.

A prominent cigar man who visited the city recently in conversation about the New York factories which had been recently bonded, and owing to some hitch were compelled to close down, said: "The made-in-bond law reminds me very much of the 16 to 1 platform of William Jennings Bryan, in that the more it was explained the less it appeared the matter was understood. Nearly every day something new is cropping up and there is entirely too much red tape connected with it for the good of the cause."

Son of Julius Sirlin Chain Store Manager

Harold Sirlin, son of Julius Sirlin, the well-known cigar manufacturer of Syracuse, N. Y., has recently been appointed manager of the Associated Cigar Stores of America, following the resignation of John Stevens, the former head of the concern. Mr. Sirlin succeeded Mr. Simpson, who has acted as temporary manager.

Mr. Sirlin is in his early twenties, but has been one of the most prominent boosters that the club has had. His enthusiasm and ability, it is believed, will help him to carve a successful career from this opportunity.

Window Displays Feature "Jose Vila" Campaign

The recent "Jose Vila" campaign inaugurated in Los Angeles by M. A. Newmark & Company, distributors in that territory for the brand, is being started off with elaborate window displays. Herewith is produced the window arrangement recently shown in the Third and Broadway store of Fred Barman & Bro. "Jose Vila" cigars have taken Los Angeles by storm and Berriman Brothers, Tampa, Florida, the makers, are much pleased with the advancement they are making in that territory.

San Martin & Leon to Make in Bond—Cliff Berger to Act as Salesman in Chicago—Quiros, Villazon & Company Get Sam Caro

TAMPA, April 27, 1914.

SAN MARTIN & LEON, makers of the "El Briche," notify the trade that they have decided to "make in bond." Just so soon as the necessary papers are received from Washington, the new method will be begun.

Cliff Berger, son of the general manager of the Tampa-Cuba Cigar Company, and city salesman for the same company, has left for the Chicago branch of the Tampa-Cuba Company, where he will act in a similar capacity.

R. E. Edwards, in charge of the tobacco of the M. Perez Cigar Company, Key West, was a recent visitor to Tampa, as was J. Pendas, manager of the Moreda Cigar Company, Key West.

Before returning to Jacksonville, where he makes his headquarters, W. B. Moore, P. Lorillard Tobacco Company's salesman, who was visiting here a short time ago, plans to spend a few days in Plant City.

Joaquin Lopez, our well-known cigar manufacturer, has been elected a member of the Board of Public Works.

Cuesta, Rey & Company are "going some." Starting in 1884 with 600 square feet of floor space, in thirty years they have increased their space to 112,200 square feet (including the new addition now being erected), which, if computed on a yearly average, gives them an increase of 3720 square feet per year.

Quiros, Villazon & Company are much elated over their latest acquisition in the way of a representative. Their new salesman is Sam Caro, who will represent them on the Pacific Coast.

Weller Brothers Have Popular Cigar Store

Weller Brothers, who for a number of years have operated a cigar store on Main Street, Hightstown, N. J., continue to hold a bulk of the trade of the city and surrounding country. Saturdays, from the time the farmers begin to come to market, until the late hours of the evening, "Tote" and "Charlie," as they are popularly known, are busy supplying the demands of the customers.

They carry a full line of five- and ten-cent goods, together with smoking and chewing tobacco and cigarettes. The lines have been carefully chosen and they are able to supply the wants of the travelling man as easy as those of their customers.

"Tote" for a number of years has played a high-grade class of baseball and is well known throughout the surrounding towns. The Peddie Institute for Boys is located in Hightstown, and the store is a popular visiting place for them. Both the Wellers are hearty supporters of Peddie athletics, as well as of the town, and they have earned the popularity which they now enjoy.

A Foolish Stunt

After having locked himself in a room, stopped all the crevices and turned on the gas, Charles Bills, of Shreveport, La., couldn't resist his desire to smoke a cigarette, and accordingly struck a match. Poor Bill, it is stated, will recover, having only been blown through a window. But the house was partially wrecked.

Chicago

Conditions in Middle West Show Improvement—Retailers Say Consumer Is Not Buying Up to Normal—Weeghman, of "Chi-feds," Gives Away Folding Cigar Cases—Millionaire Oliver W. Norton Gets Bequest for Cigars

CHICAGO, ILL., APRIL 27, 1914.

WHILE general conditions in the cigar and tobacco business in this city might be much better, on the other hand they might be much worse. Several conditions have conspired during the past week to place obstacles in the path of good business. Most important of these is the approach of the time when the saloons and cafes must pay license. Following May 1, the date set by the city ordinance for this painful extraction of money for which no visible return is given, jobbers expect business to improve by leaps and bounds. Just at present, however, the liquor men are inclined to retrench.

Leaf houses report good conditions. Collections are fair in the Middle West, and manufacturers are buying stock in a manner which indicates that they have confidence in the future of the trade. Travelers returned from road trips declare that general conditions in the smaller cities in their territories are good for the trade. If anything, the writer is of the opinion, after several conversations with leaf travelers, that conditions are worse in Chicago at the present time than they are on the outside.

Cigar box houses report that more than the usual number of new brands will be launched this spring by manufacturers throughout the Middle West.

In Chicago perhaps less than the usual number of cigars are being sold at the present time. The weather has been favorable for retail trade during the past two weeks, but there seems to be a general feeling on the part of the public that less money should be spent for luxuries. Fortunately for the trade, a good portion of the male population of this city regard tobacco as a necessity rather than a luxury.

E. B. McKenzie and George W. Anderson are working the trade together on "El Roi-Tan" cigar, and are getting the results. This is only to be expected. Mr. McKenzie is one of the most aggressive of the younger cigar salesmen of the city, while Mr. Anderson is one of the oldest. The former sells them getting acquainted and the latter renewing old acquaintance. Between the two of them few get away.

The cigar department of Reid, Murdock & Company, now completely installed in the fine new building of the company, declares that trade is good for the season on "El Roi-Tans," "Julianas" and "Reubens." The department has felt in a marked degree the influence of the adverse conditions which are working against the jobbers at the present time, but they are inclined to be optimistic.

Arthur C. Sloman, who was formerly a member of the sales force of the J. & B. Moos Company, has accepted a position with Bondy & Lederer. He will work in co-operation with the sales force of the Steele-Wedeles Company, local distributors for "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barrett," which are the brands of Bondy & Lederer.

S. M. Rosenthal, of H. Schermerhorn, has left the city behind him while he is taking a two weeks' vacation at French Lick Springs.

P. L. Lovell, who was formerly a member of the sales force of G. F. Faber, Inc., has accepted an offer to become the Chicago representative of the Camp Cigarette Company.

Abe Marco will open a cigar store at Greenwood Avenue and Forty-third Street on May 1. Mr. Marco is well known to the trade here, having been in business before.

John Wardlow, president, and A. V. Jockel, vice-president of the Ruy Lopez Company, were in the city last week on their way to St. Louis and other points in the Southwest. They were accompanied by Leo Weiss, western representative.

Charles Weeghman, the enterprising restaurant man, who owns a large portion of the stock in the Chicago Federal League baseball club, showed that he knew what he was doing last week when he began to give away as souvenirs in his restaurants an imitation leather folding cigar case, made for three cigars. The case furnishes ample protection to cigars carried in the pocket. Reinforced varieties are given to lovers on request. Nothing is said on the exterior of the case about the Chi-feds. Perhaps Weeghman does not consider that necessary. In view of the newspaper publicity, anything that could be said now would be near superfluous. The Weeghman restaurants are heavy dispensers of cigars.

Speaking of restaurants, it is said that a stock company has bought the entire chain of John R. Thompson restaurants for $6,000,000. Little publicity has been given to the big deal, as it is assumed that the new company does not want the patrons of the restaurant to know that John R. Thompson's will no longer be the guiding hand.

B. P. Cunningham is a new city salesman for the Best & Russell Company. Mr. Cunningham was formerly salesman for Morrison, Plummer & Company.

Few cigar stands in the city have a higher class of trade than the one conducted in the grill of the Blackstone Hotel. The leader of a wide variety of high-grade imported cigars is "The Blackstone," the private brand of the hotel. The cheapest at which any of the various sizes of this cigar retails is fifteen cents. The wrappers are both Seed and Sumatra, and in either case have apparently been so well selected that the burn is perfect.

The Llanz Company has been incorporated for $30,000 to deal in cigars and tobacco. The incorporators are C. M. Aldridge, James Donahue and Thomas Redding.

The "High Sovereign," made by Barron Brothers, has been having an excellent run in this city at several of the stands during the past few weeks.

That there has passed through the world at least one woman who had the right idea in regard to cigars and tobacco was demonstrated last week, when the will of Mrs. E. C. Vincent, a wealthy lady of Chicago, was admitted to probate.

"To Oliver W. Norton, to be expended for the best cigars he can buy, I give and bequeath $250."

Thus read the document.

The two families are old residents of Chicago, and it is said that Mrs. Vincent had often taken occasion to remark upon the great pleasure which Mr. Norton took in smoking. In leaving to him the sum to be spent as designated, she believed that she was giving him the greatest possible pleasure which he could secure for such a sum.

"I shall carry out the spirit of the bequest to the letter," said Mr. Norton.

"Will you buy banquet size imported cigars in cases, or will you hold to you own favorite brand and spend the money bit by bit until it is all gone?" was the question put to Mr. Norton by the correspondent for THE TOBACCO WORLD.

"I think I shall follow the latter course," he replied. "My favorite cigar costs ten cents, and I think it is the best I can buy."

G. W. WHITCOMB.

Important Trade Change on the Coast

The sale of his interests in the stores of B. Bercovich, B. Bercovich & Company, and the Bercovich Smokers' Emporium, by Bert Bercovich has caused considerable comment in Oakland, Calif., and is looked upon as one of the most important trade changes in some time.

The purchaser of Mr. Bercovich's interests is said to be A. Samuels, of Stockton, Calif. Mr. Samuels represents the Samuels' Smoke Shops. In the linking of the Bercovich stores with the Samuels' Smoke Shop chain it will be noticed that the stores of the former will not suffer, as both chains have always been considered cigar stores of a high grade.

Mr. Bercovich did not include the Hotel Oakland cigar stand in the sale, and it will continue to be run by his brother Billy. For a number of years Bert Bercovich controlled the cigar business at Twelfth and Broadway, and for that reason was known for a long time as the "Monarch of Twelfth and Broadway."

Martin-Breitt Appointed Agent for "United"

From St. Louis comes the announcement that the Martin-Breitt Real Estate Company has been appointed agent for the stores of the United Cigar Stores Company and that it will manage the company's holdings in St. Louis and the vicinity in the future. The agency will also negotiate leases for new locations. The company has numerous sections of stores that are leased to other tenants.

Continental Cigar Company May Move

The Continental Cigar Company, now located in Wichita, Kansas, is contemplating removing to Salina, Kansas, according to a recently published rumor. It is said that B. P. Hollingworth, manager, has written to a party in Salina to recommend a location there. The Continental Cigar Company produced the well-known "Gallant Knight," "Hollingworth," "Special," "Lord Selkirk" and "Major Paul."

New Cigar Stand for Chicago

Ralph H. Hamburger and Thomas W. Clayton, both for a decade employees of the United Cigar Stores in Chicago, has recently taken a lease of the store at the northeast corner of Clark and Madison Streets, for a term of eleven years, at a rental for the term of $102,000. The premises will be occupied as a cigar store.

SEED LEAF GROWERS TALK OF NEW BANK

Will Organize if Local Banks Do Not Aid Company—Company to Prevent Tobacco Being Sold at Unprofitable Prices—Purposes of Company

LANCASTER, PA., April 25, 1914.

THAT fifty per cent. of the tobacco sales are made for less than reported to the trade and other papers, is the statement made by some of the Lancaster County tobacco growers who are now lining up with R. L. Krimbrough against the bargain-driving buyer.

As the new company has been somewhat handicapped in planning for financial aid for its members, and as the banks of Lancaster have not looked upon the movement with any degree of favor, there is considerable talk of a bank being started by members of the association. At a recent meeting it was brought out that the packers have usually held the ruling power in the county banks when it came to dealing with members of the association. In view of this situation, Mr. Kimbrough said that it was not the intention of the company to antagonize anyone, but if the members could not get reasonable credit at the banks where they dealt, then he was in favor of starting a new bank. Following this statement pledges of stock were immediately made by some of the members present.

However, before going further with the idea, a resolution was adopted, inviting the banks of Lancaster to offer some means of extending the company a line of credit. Mr. Kimbrough was authorized to call upon the banks with the resolution.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Seed Leaf Tobacco Growers' Company at the warehouse of the association, No. 59 North Duke Street, the following officers were elected: Dr. J. H. Pickle, president; C. H. Habecker, vice-president; S. F. Sweigart, treasurer; S. R. Nissley, secretary, and R. L. Kimbrough, general manager. The president appointed as the three members of the Executive Committee Messrs. Jonas Shenk, Martin Esbenshade and A. R. Landis.

At a meeting of the Advisory Board of Directors of the Seed Leaf Tobacco Growers' Company the Press Committee gave out the following statement of the object of the organization:

First. To establish, by first leasing and contracting for, and later building large central Lancaster and smaller township sales floors and packing houses, where the grower can bring his future tobacco crops as soon as stripped and baled to be properly graded by experts and sold by regularly stated public auction floor sales to the buyers of the trust and independent packers at the best prices the grades and quality of the tobacco will justify, with the privilege of rejecting any sale and ordering his crop to be packed in the company packing house so as to work out the best possible prices for his tobacco. In that event, the grower is to be paid by the company a fair cash price for his crop so ordered packed.

Second. To encourage the growers in every right way possible to reduce the acreage and increase the production per acre so as to produce a maximum of quality and weight.

Third. To build up a trade for manipulated goods direct with manufacturers over all the world, so as to secure a wide and profitable market for Lancaster seed leaf tobacco, distinctively known, advertised and guaranteed as such.

Fourth. To keep in immediate touch with each individual stockholder of the company, so as to keep him thoroughly informed on the acreage, condition, prices and all other tilling, cultivating, growing, curing and marketing conditions pertaining to tobacco.

ATTORNEY GENERAL CONDEMNS BILL

Proposed Enactment Said to be Unconstitutional—Ruling in Similar Case Cited

THAT it would be unconstitutional to license the distribution of trading stamps in Massachusetts is the opinion handed down by Attorney General Thomas J. Boynton in reference to House Bill 1643, which is accompanied by a petition of the Massachusetts Retail Cigar and Tobacco Dealers' Association, which provides that a license costing $6000 shall be taken out for every place of business in the State furnishing coupons, trading stamps, etc.

The Attorney General cites the case of O'Keefe v. the City of Somerville, a test case wherein the Supreme Judicial Court considered the validity of an act passed by the Legislature of 1904, imposing an excise tax on the giving or delivering of trading stamps or similar devices.

The court ruled that these stamps contravened nothing in law, pointing out that Constitutional liberty means the right to use one's faculties in all lawful ways, as one will in earning a living. Restrictions on this the court says may be made in the interest of public health, safety or morals, but nothing more. The Attorney General adds that the same court has ruled that the exercise of a natural right is not a "commodity," this point being in view of the provisions restricting the Legislature in imposing taxes or excises. Among the restrictions is one that they must be "reasonable" and if regulatory must be no more than the cost of inspection.

"The business," says the Attorney General, "or the method of doing business at which this bill is aimed is not, then, according to the decisions of the Supreme Judicial Court, a commodity, and therefore cannot be subject to an excise tax.

"If the stamps or similar devices mentioned in this bill are used in such a way as to constitute a lottery or game of chance, such use may be punished under criminal statutes already in existence.

"The method of doing business with trading stamps or similar devices is one which the Legislature has no authority under the Constitution to prohibit, and since it is not a commodity no excise tax can be levied upon it.

"The license fee fixed in the proposed bill is greatly in excess of the probable cost of inspection of the business and is evidently intended to prohibit the transaction of a business that the Supreme Court has held to be lawful."

Bubonic Plague Causes Tobacco Importers Worry

Importers of Havana tobacco are worried over the possibility of the plague district of Havana extending to the tobacco warehouse region, for it is said that if this happens the necessary fumigation will cause heavy loss to them. A special cable to "The New York Times" says that $1,000,000 worth of tobacco was in danger of injury by fumigation. It was said in the local market that fully 90 per cent. of this tobacco was owned by Americans. It is said to be a trade custom to leave the tobacco in storage in Havana until needed, and the present dull state of trade has made withdrawals unusually light of late. Consequently severe loss is faced. According to a letter received from Havana by a well-known tobacco importer, it had been intimated there that the Cuban Government would attempt to reimburse any losses caused by fumigation, but the importer in question was not inclined to take the report seriously. It is said that while fumigation does not actually ruin the tobacco, it affects the taste and aroma to such a degree that it cannot be used for the American trade.

In 1907 the late Mr. Meagher constructed the three-story brick plant at 568 St. Paul Street, Rochester, and business so rapidly increased following the addition to the firm of two of Mr. Meagher's sons that larger quarters were shortly afterward secured in the same building.

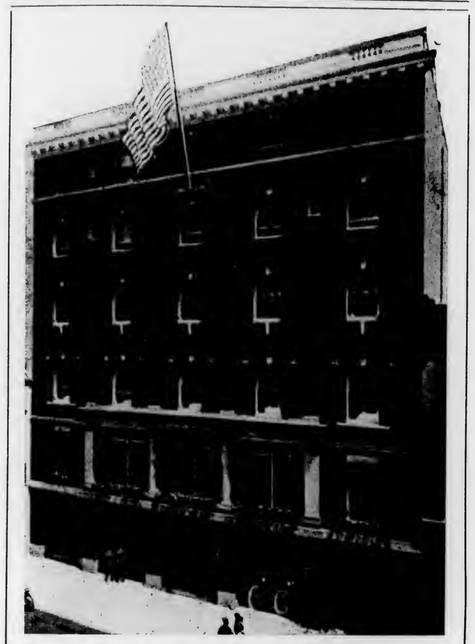
Thieves plundered the cigar store of C. H. Hinton, 100 East Fourth Street, St. Paul, Minn., recently and escaped with cigar samples worth $20 and $5 in cash. They took no chances on leaving anything, for they opened sealed letters on the desk, which were to be mailed in the morning, and broke open two slot machines and took the small sums of money they contained.

G. Landerfield has opened a new cigar store in Dayton, O., at 222 East Fifth Street.

CLUBDOM SMOKING No. 13



The Chicago Automobile Club.

(This is the thirteenth of a series of sketches of the leading social clubs of the United States, paying particular attention to the cigar departments, purchasing agents and the favorite brands of each club.)

Articles in this series have appeared on the following clubs:

No. 1—Lambs' Club, New York.
No. 2—Union League, Philadelphia.
No. 3—City Club, Chicago.
No. 4—Olympic Club, San Francisco.
No. 5—The Pittsburgh Athletic Association.
No. 6—The Chicago Athletic Association.
No. 7—The Illinois Athletic Club, Chicago.
No. 8—The Union League Club, Chicago.
No. 9—The Fellowcraft Club, Detroit.
No. 10—University Club, Chicago.
No. 11—Hamilton Club, Chicago.
No. 12—Commercial Club, San Francisco.

WHEN it comes to investigating the trend of the cigar, cigarette and tobacco trade of the clubs of the city, no record would be complete without some mention of the Chicago Automobile Club.

In the first place, what is the Chicago Automobile Club? Is it an organization of rich men whose interest in gasoline wagons goes no farther than the sporting page of the newspapers? By no means is such the case, as the reader can tell by observing the picture of the club which is reproduced with this article. The entire first floor is devoted to a garage, where members can keep their cars while they are at the club. It's just the same as the stable for horses at the village inn, minus the oats. The remainder of the floors are much the same as those of other clubs in the city, but the details of this feature will be taken up in another place.

H. G. Wallace is in charge of the cigar department. Mr. Wallace has been with the club only a year, but he is a man experienced in all the branches of the cigar business, and while he said nothing himself, the writer learned from another source that he is making a showing with the cigar department which compares well with the results secured by the managers of some of the larger stands in the clubs of the city. Before Mr. Wallace took charge of the department at the Chicago Automobile Club he was manager of the cigar department of the Illinois Athletic Club. Previous to that he was manager of the National Cigar Store in the First National Bank Building, at Dearborn and Monroe Streets, which has graduated so many successful cigar managers. He is a young man, and one of the sort to make good with the class of men who form the membership of the Chicago Automobile Club. He is a good fellow, with a genial smile, a warm hand, and none of the cold suspicion which characterizes some of the club cigar department managers whom the writer has met.

The Chicago Automobile Club is one of the youngest clubs in the city, having been organized only twelve years ago. To walk through the richly furnished rooms, with their trophies in chased silver and gold, one might imagine that more than this length of time had elapsed since the beginning of the organization. The location of the club in Plymouth Court is a peculiar one. Plymouth Court is one of the largest printing and paper districts in the world. One gigantic publishing house after another rises like the last grenadier of France in endless succession down the street. There are few business houses on the street which take automobiles into consideration in any manner. In fact, Plymouth Court is so narrow and poorly paved that it would not be possible to safely drive a machine down the street at any great speed. However, the location of the club at the entrance to this district is caused by the fact that it is near to Jackson Boulevard, which is a part of the great boulevard system of the city. In addition, the location is about as nearly central as any which could be found and is a boon to business men who wish to put their machines somewhere while they are at work.

While no doubt this is all most interesting, it has nothing to do with cigars or tobacco, and the prime purpose of writing this article is to give an idea of the nature of the trade in a club of this sort. Perhaps it would be best to quote Mr. Wallace at this point.

"The trend of the trade in the different clubs of the city varies a little," said Mr. Wallace, "depending upon the class of the members. For instance, in the University Club many more cigarettes are smoked than in some of the other clubs of the city, where the men are older and more conservative, such as, for example, the Union League Club. I have been told that the cigarette trade is large in the Press Club, which is caused, no doubt, by the fact that newspaper men, owing to the strenuous nature of the game, have little time for extended attention, such as is demanded by a cigar.

"In this club the trade for the most part is on high grade cigars. We have but one stand, which is located on the second floor, at the opening of the elevator and the head of the stair. The lounging room is in front, as you see, within sight and easy reach. The dining rooms are on the floor above, but most of the other places where the members congregate, such as the billiard and pool room, for instance, are on this floor. For that reason we do not need more than one large stand, and as our bell boys are demons for speed, we have little inconvenience and no complaint at all. Having one large stand permits us to centralize our attention and devote our best efforts to making that stand a good one.

"We handle, as you can see, the usual brands of high-grade domestic and imported cigars. The club brand is

Local Cigar Business Shows Improvement—Saturday Night Closing Will Affect Retail Cigar Stores—Business Boomed On Safety Matches—"S. & W. Hand-made" Going Big

DETROIT, MICH., APRIL 26, 1914.

LOCAL business with the cigar factories is improving. Orders seem to be coming in at a better clip than thirty days ago, the amounts are larger and collections are better. Regarding the retail situation, this is the time of year when it always improves. The warm weather, the increase in transient traffic and the baseball season all have a tendency to stimulate trade. Generally the various industries of Detroit are enjoying prosperity. Traveling men in all lines state that while they find business conditions quiet elsewhere, in Detroit they are exceptionally good. Hotels are all playing to nearly capacity, and in another few weeks they will be turning them away.

A problem of much concern, and which ultimately will affect the retail cigar business, is the strong movement now on for Saturday night closing. This movement was started a year ago and many of the larger retail ready-to-wear stores decided to close at 6 P. M. This year stronger efforts than ever are being made in that direction; 100,000 dodgers asking people not to do any Saturday night shopping of any kind, and cards asking people to sign pledges not to shop are being distributed; already all of the furniture stores have agreed to keep closed, and the cigar stores have been approached not only in the downtown district, but throughout the entire city. There is one thing certain, the cigar stores will be the last to close, and it is very doubtful if they can ever be induced to do it. The people have got so that they look for cigar and drug stores to be open at all hours of the day and night. Nevertheless, if the retail stores are all closed on Saturday nights, it will mean that fewer people will be out and in that way the cigar stores will lose business. As it is now, Saturday nights are the best of the week for the cigar business.

Twice arrested for embezzlement from the John T. Woodhouse Company, Horatio F. Richmond was held in the Recorder's Court on April 24 by Justice Stein. Richmond is the youth who first was charged with the technical embezzlement of $25.47, though he really was short several hundreds of dollars. The charge was reduced to simply larceny, and the prisoner was let off with a sentence of ninety days. The Woodhouse Company, his employers, then swore out a new warrant charging Richmond with taking more than $600.

The G. J. Johnson Cigar Company, of Grand Rapids, had an exhibit in connection with the Industrial Show held in that city from April 18 to 25. They made a display of their "Dutch Master" and other brands which they make.

The Michigan Tobacco Company, of Detroit, who are distributors for the "Sol Smith Russell" and "Vincello" cigars, say business is coming along nicely, and considering the short time they have been established, they feel well satisfied. New accounts are being opened and the outlook for them is very bright. They have an automobile to make deliveries.

A. C. Dietsche, corner of Woodward and Larned Streets, has been having a very interesting display in his Woodward Avenue window of matches. Nothing but matches was shown. He had one card giving the prices and another saying: "We sell more matches than any other store in Detroit. The writer dropped in and asked whether such a window display produced results, and he answered: "We certainly have sold a lot of matches through this window. We find that you can sell anything if pushed properly. We have always made a feature of matches, and we have built up a big business on this one item. The thing to do is to educate people to get in the habit of carrying a small box of matches around with them."

Oscar Buehler, of the Corona Leaf Tobacco Company, Detroit, left April 30 for a two weeks' trip through the Middle West. He goes as far west as Iowa.

A. L. Gifford has succeeded C. D. Pool in the billiard and cigar business in Pentwater, Mich.

Oscar Rosenberger, of the San Telmo Cigar Manufacturing Company, makers of the "Pastora" cigar, is spending a few weeks at French Lick Springs, in Indiana.

There is very little activity in Detroit in the buying of Sumatra. Samples of the first few inscriptions have been shown by salesmen, but they have not made a very good impression. There are several on hand, and they are in no hurry to buy. They believe that prices reasons; in the first place, the samples have not been up to the standard, and secondly, the prices have been too high. Local manufacturers have a good supply of last year's Sumatra on hand, and they are in no hurry to buy. They believe that prices will be lower in another thirty days, and that the later inscriptions will show up better. Among the recent tobacco men here have been Howard Kinney, Billy Levison and C. S. Sarluy. This is the latter's first trip here since February, when he went to Europe for the first inscription. He represents F. & E. Cranz.

Charles Spietz reports excellent business in connection with the "S. & W. Hand-made," which is receiving the attention of a number of jobbers outside of the district covered by Niles & Moser on the "Niles & Moser Hand-made." The latest deal to be effected was the jobbing of "S. & W." cigars in Portland by the Hart Cigar Company, who have just received their first shipment. Bachman & Company, who handle the "S. & W." in Los Angeles, are "tickled to death" with the way it is selling. The "S. & W." will soon be jobbed in Chicago through the firm of Vorhauer & Company, which has just been organized, and which is headed by William A. Vorhauer, formerly city salesman in the Windy City for Best & Russell. Albert Worch, of the Wayne Cigar Company, who has been looking after the company's interests on the west coast, will be back in Detroit the first week in May.

Charlie Spietz was in Dayton on April 25. He went to inspect the Ohio tobacco crop.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Soper Segar Company, Dime Bank Building, Detroit, the same officers were re-elected for another year, consisting of Walter O. Briggs, president; Abe Mannheim, vice-president, and Mel Soper, secretary and treasurer. The company has just completed its first year in business, which was very gratifying.

Guisseppi Massana, cigar dealer, at 329 Champlain Street, Detroit, charged with having sold cigars on which internal revenue had not been paid, was arraigned on April 17 before United States Commissioner Stanley Hurd, and was held to the federal grand jury. He was released on $500 bail.

John R. MacDonald, a former proprietor of a cigar store in Flint, Mich., and now mayor of that city, is making good in that capacity.

The Wolverine Cigar Store, which has been located at 31 East Main Street, Battle Creek, for the last six years, will move May 1 to 58 East Main Street, where he will be established in a modern location and undergo a general rearrangement and improvement. A four-year lease has been taken on the first floor of the building. The company will install new pool and billiard tables and increase its facilities for handling cigars, wholesale and retail.

Fifty hotel men from all parts of Michigan gathered at Kalamazoo on April 24 and formed the Michigan Hotel Men's Association. It is fully expected that within a year they will have 150 members. The purpose of the organization is to fight for just legislation.

Business at the Hotel Griswold, the Edelweiss, the Frontenac and the Penobscot has taken a big jump in the past ten days. All of these places have increased the quality of their cabaret entertainment and added many new acts. The result has been better business. Even the clerks at the cigar stands report their business to be a great deal better. Cigarettes are proving to be very popular with the people who patronize cafes, particularly in those places which permit dancing.

The Park-American Hotel, in Kalamazoo, which is spending over $100,000 in repairs and remodelling, have a very up-to-date cigar department.

The Soper Segar Store and the Hotel Ponchartrain have decided to eliminate several brands as soon as the present stock has been used up. They do not care to say which brands will lose out, but both places feel that they would rather have less brands than to carry too many. This brings up a point: "How many brands should a cigar store carry?" One dealer puts it this way: "I think if a store would carry fewer brands and push them to the limit, it would be better. Then he does not have to carry such a large stock and by doing business with fewer houses can give them better results. The matter of trying to carry every brand that is put on the market is a mistake; a dealer has to feel out his patrons and give them what they want, of course, but it is not necessary to have every brand made just because somebody asks for it. In the clear Havana cigars, he should carry several leaders and feature them. For instance, if he carried the 'Webster,' he should push that to the limit and get a reputation for that particular brand, as well as one or two others. In the other grades of cigars he should do likewise. No use trying to please everybody. If you put in too many brands, you are sure to find some of them poor sellers, and the result is that the cigars become old. It must be remembered that there are dozens of cigar stores that do not have humidors, and all their stock is in their cases. The hotels and stores that get a larger amount of transient and out-of-town business have to carry a larger variety of brands than the average small retail store. The latter can easily concentrate his efforts on a few brands. The cigar dealer can 'specialize' just the same as any other merchant does. He should have a few leaders and try to work up a clientele on them."

Bert Perry has engaged in the cigar business in Cheboygan, Mich.

Gordon Bailey, formerly salesman for the Tobacco Products Company, is now western representative for the Lee & Cady cigar department. Gordon is doing nicely.

The Colonial Cigar Store, at 68 Griswold Street, has been purchased by McAllister & Smith, who will make "Miss Detroit," made by the Mazer Cigar Company, Detroit, their leader among the five-cent brands. Clarence Cherry is now in charge of the Watson cigar store, at 117 Woodward Avenue, succeeding Ed S. Crahill, who has gone to the Hotel Downey, in Lansing, to take charge of the cigar stand formerly managed by Mr. Cherry. In other words, Cherry and Crahill have "switched" jobs.

Sid Kahn, of E. Regensburg & Co., makers of Havana cigars, was a recent visitor among the trade. The Regensburg line is a feature of the stores of the Central Cigar Company, who operate four emporiums in Detroit.

Mike Rosenfeld, with "Charles the Great" cigars, made by Salvador Rodriguez in Tampa, was in town ten days ago and took some good-sized orders.

"Golden" Cigar Well Featured Here

The Broadway Smoke Shop, Second and Broadway, Los Angeles, recently devoted their window to a display of "Golden" cigars, distributed in that territory by the A. B. Greenewald Cigar Company. The window arrangement attracted considerable attention to this popular nickel smoke.

Los Angeles

Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company Boosting "Reynoldos"—Cigar Brokers Off for San Francisco—Beck & Company Doing Well With Cressman's "Counsellor"

LOS ANGELES, CAL., APRIL 19, 1914.

ANGELO MUSSATTI, of the new Mussatti-Boggio Cigar Company, of this city, has just returned from a most successful trip around San Diego territory, making surprising headway with the "Reynaldo" cigar line, manufactured by Luckett, Luchs & Lipscomb, of Philadelphia, Pa. On this trip Mr. Mussatti made a great number of placements for the "Reynaldo," "Piquant" and "Hummer" cigars. This firm has just been started and has already begun to get its share of the jobbing business hereabouts.

They're off in a bunch for San Francisco tonight! Who? you ask. These names are all familiar wherever cigars are handled in this city: R. C. Hammond, Mr. Marshall and Morris Burke, each and every one of them a "dyed-in-the-wool" cigar broker. They are all going to strike the same spot, San Francisco, Cal., at the same time. Hammond and Marshall preferred the water voyage, making the trip on the steamer "Yale," while Burke says he had previous experience with fishes and salt water, etc., so he will board the "Lark" tonight. Of course, it is not to be a joy ride; no person ever heard of the above-named personages going away from this city just for "fun."

The Klingenstein Company are putting forth a strong campaign on "Milo," "Duke of York" and "Zig Zag" cigarette papers, which are coming with a ten per cent. free deal at present. The able management of the Klingenstein Company deserves much credit for the manner in which this campaign is being run through, as already increased demand for the above-named brands can be readily discerned.

Haas-Baruch & Company, of this city, received their first shipment of "Bandaros" cigars, manufactured by the Jose Lovera Company. This piece of goods goes to the trade at $37.50 and is a nickel brand. Cameron C. Trau, manager of the cigar department, is very much pleased with the first shipment, which amounted to fifty thousand, and the sales force of the above firm is pushing the cigar with much fervor.

"Ruy Lopez" cigars are surely going good, with accent on the GOOD. Due to the efficient sales force of the A. B. Greenwald Cigar Company, much satisfaction as to the manner in which this brand is moving can be seen around the above firm's headquarters. The "High Life" size of this brand is going exceptionally good.

The Morgan Cigar Company have opened another elegant cigar store at 410 South Hill Street. This makes the fourth retail store operated at the present time by the Morgan Cigar Company. They have furnished their places with the best of everything, with the final result that they are meeting with due success. They handle the "Rey Oma" cigars, manufactured by Sig. Meyer, of Philadelphia, Pa., and also the "Virginia" clear Havana cigar.

Beck & Company, successors to George W. Walker Cigar Company, are making the "Counsellor," "Straight Goods" and the "Henry the Fourth," manufactured by Bustillo y Diaz Company, move very fast nowadays. Orders for the above-named goods are streaming in at all times and the shipping department is trying to keep up to the pace set by the able force of salesmen.

"La Preferencia" cigar is being put before the public by a campaign of newspaper advertising. The Klingenstein Company are managing this campaign and are doing their work thoroughly.

Industrial and traffic possibilities of Southern California from a transportation point of view were carefully regarded a few days ago by as distinguished a body of railroad officials as ever gathered into one party in Los Angeles.

These were E. P. Ripley, president of the Santa Fe; William Sproule, president of the Southern Pacific; W. W. Atterbury, vice-president, in charge of operation of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Paul Shoup, president of the Pacific Electric Railroad, of this section; De Witt Cuyler, a member of the executive committee of the board of directors of the Santa Fe and a director of the Pennsylvania system; A. G. Wells, general manager of the Santa Fe Coast lines; Francis T. A. Junkin, general attorney for the Santa Fe, and others, including Charles D. Norton, formerly President Taft's secretary and Norton, a prominent railroad attorney, of Buffalo; Clarence R. Lewis, a well-known architect, of Philadelphia, and Allen Evans, a banker, of New York.

Andy W. Reynaud, of J. J. Gans & Brothers, reports a nice business on "Tom Keene" and "Lawrence Barretts" in his Southern California territory. "Andy" is a hustler.

The M. A. Gunst Cigar Stores, Inc., of this city, are putting out some magnificent window displays in every one of their stores in this city of "Robert Burns" cigar. Much credit must be tendered G. H. Spooner, the gentleman who dressed these windows. Roy Massie is the manager of the local Gunst Cigar Stores, while Mr. Eakin is general manager for the entire line of Gunst Stores in this part of the State. They are endeavoring to let the "Smoker" know that there IS a good cigar, and they are making the "Robert Burns" cigar fit that position.

This occurred yesterday in the Spring Street Gunst Cigar Store—Two women chanced to pass the window, which was gaily dressed with "Robert Burns" cigars and which contained numerous placards upon which was inscribed the terms "Sweet as the Heather." Says one lady to the other: "Why, what is heather, dear?" The other replied: "Why, that's the stuff John says 'Robert Burns' cigars are made of."

New Owners for Dubuque Stand

The cigar store of William Meyer, 1266 Clay Street, Dubuque, Ia., has recently been purchased by Frank Kinney and Ralph Adams. The new owners intend to have the place renovated and will put in a first-class equipment. Both young men are experienced in the cigar and tobacco business.

The Cuban Market

From Our Exclusive Bureau

Havana, Cuba.

HAVANA, APRIL 23, 1914.

OUR principal trouble during the past fortnight has been the drastic measures taken by our Board of Health in trying to stamp out our so called bubonic plague. Seventeen city blocks in the heart of the old city were closed to traffic, guarded by soldiers and the inhabitants driven out of them. The health officers not only thoroughly fumigated each building, but also flooded them with water to the depth of three feet in order to drown all rats that might have escaped the sulphur fumigation. In fact, if this should not prove sufficient, they might even burn those buildings, where the pest had originated. The poor people that had to leave their former homes were not allowed to take any of their furniture or clothing along, except what they were carrying on their backs, and a part of them were lodged in the quarantine station at Triscornia. The closed district consisted principally of provision houses and some drygoods firms, and as the fumigation will take about three weeks, it means a very serious interruption to business and also damage to merchandise, for which the city will be liable to the owners. Since then there have been a few more suspicious cases in other parts of the city and there has been talk of fumigating eventually some tobacco warehouses, particularly 109 Manrique Street, where the Henry Clay & Bock & Company, Ltd., have stored tobacco worth $300,000. Instead of sulphur, the Board of Health proposed to burn tobacco stems, and only in case this should not prove effective it might use cyanide of potash, which, it is claimed, (?) would not injure the tobacco as much as sulphur.

On the strength of these reports our commission merchants cabled to their customers last week, stating the facts and the eventual danger to their leaf stocks stored here, advising the hurried shipments of them. Most of them have answered in the affirmative, and for this reason the shipments will perhaps exceed 20,000 bales during this week. In fact, one party forwarded 2000 bales, without any linen, as there was not time to get them baled for the steamship "Manzanillo," and which we hear has taken 10,000 bales yesterday for New York.

The funny part, however, is that in face of the febrile anxiety of our Board of Health, the American doctors of the Marine Hospital Service of the United States, after a careful examination of the existing conditions, have lifted the quarantine regulations heretofore in force, and any person that wishes to go to the United States as a passenger can do so without any formalities about producing a certificate that he has not lived or visited the infected district or presenting himself before the doctor in order to show that he was in good health. This evidently proves that the American physicians do not look at our plague as being contagious and which could be transferred by personal contact.

The statistics of the pest are as follows, to date, viz.: 11 proven cases, of which 2 had died, 2 were cured completely, 4 are convalescing and 3 are still under treatment. Besides, there are two more suspicious cases, which may be declared as being positive ones, or suffering, perhaps, from other diseases. This shows, at all events, that our plague does not consist of the virulent character of the Asiatic kind and can be cured in the majority of cases by the application of the serum from the Pasteur Institute.

According to the saying, that an ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure, we may say, however, that this ounce of prevention has cost us already a large sum of money, and there is no telling how big the same may swell up to before we return to a normal state again. Business has been curtailed materially already, and the future looks blue indeed for our leaf dealers. The number of buyers that come here is exceedingly small, and unless there should be a change for the better soon, those dealers that have their capital locked up in their holdings of last year's crop will be unable to buy of the new crop, and as there is such a scarcity of money here, they will be coming before closed doors when they apply for loans to our banks or bankers. As the farmers in the country will have less buyers than usually, the prices are bound to fall this year, particularly as the war going on in Mexico makes it impossible to tell what the outcome may be, and whether the tobacco industry in the United States might not suffer, at least as far as our leaf is concerned.

The escogidas in the Vuelta Abajo and the Partido districts ought to become general during the month of May, while Remedios might be delayed until the month of June. It has repeatedly rained in the Santa Clara province, which is bad for the green leaves hanging on the poles in the drying sheds, and there may be considerable pole sweat, which would cut down the quantity perhaps quite a bit.

Our leaf market has been exceedingly dull, and prices are more or less nominal. Our cigarette manufacturers were the chief buyers, while the Spanish Regie came next in importance. For the American market only an insignificant quantity was taken.

Sales totaled from the beginning of this month to the 22nd inst., 3169 bales, divided between: Vuelta Abajo, 1750; Partido, 215, and Remedios, 1195 bales.

Buyers were: American, 640; exporters to Europe, 918; shippers to South America, 500, and our local manufacturers of cigarettes and cigars, 1102 bales.

Exports of leaf tobacco from the port of Havana, from April 6 to April 19, amounted to 10,665 bales, which were distributed as follows, viz.: To all ports of the United States, 9240; to Spain, 888; to Nottingham, 30; to Bremen, 4; to Gibraltar, 3; to Buenos Aires, 445; to Montevideo, 20, and to Valparaiso, 35 bales.

Cigars.

Business in our cigar factories is very quiet, as it cannot be denied, when we look at the exports and compare them with the previous year. We have again gone backwards over one and one-half millions in our exports during the first fifteen days of this month, and while the United States have now taken over two millions less this year up to the middle of April than in 1913, the decreased consumption of our cigars seems to extend all over the world, with the exception of Spain, which is still importing more from us. It almost looks as if there was a chronic panic all over the globe, and as our cigars are an article of luxury, which only the well-to-do people can afford to enjoy, our manufacturers are taking matters philosophically, although it is hard upon them, as the majority have had no previous fat years to draw upon. Well, as the longest lane must have a turn some time, we will only hope that the latter may come in sight before long.

As none of our factories had any special news to give we will only mention the principal ones that are working as well as the present circumstances will permit, viz.: Romeo y Julieta, H. Upmann, Partagas, Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., Por Larrañaga, Punch, Castañeda and Fonseca, Sol, Flor del Fumar, Hoyo de Monterrey, Eden, Belinda, La Flor de A. Fernandez Garcia, La Flor de José Otero, La Flor de Tomas Gutierrez, El Rey del Mundo, El Ambar and C. E. Beck & Company.

May Teach Cigar Making in Tampa Schools

Marshall Moore, superintendent of public instruction for Hillsboro County, Florida, in which the schools of Ybor City and West Tampa are located, has recently returned from a trip to Columbus, Ga., and Birmingham, Ala., where he visited the public schools.

In each of the above-named cities he found that the principal industries of the cities were linked with public instruction. In Columbus he found that the cotton industry was connected with the schools. In the manual training department Mr. Moore saw the boys being taught the use of spindles and other machines, how to weave the cotton cloth, to card the cloth, the use of the loom, etc.

In Birmingham the manual training work is linked with the principal industry also. Here Mr. Moore found that the work in the boys' department includes work at the forge, iron working and the like, along with the usual courses of manual training used in other cities.

Mr. Moore believes that the idea of connecting the principal industry of the city with the manual training department is a good one, and thinks that the boys in certain of the schools in his district would benefit by instruction in cigar making more than by anything else. While it would not be feasible or desirable to teach such a course in all the Tampa schools, Mr. Moore believes that it would be a good plan to follow in those schools where the boys expect to follow the trade of their fathers and become workers in the clear Havana factories of Tampa.

Alderman Goes Into Cigar Business

Alderman James F. Leary, of New London, Conn., has purchased the retail cigar business of Stephen R. Wightman, on State Street, and contemplates establishing a restaurant in connection with it.

St. Louis Still Plugging Along

The recently published trade review of the commerce of St. Louis for 1913 shows that the output of the plug tobacco from that city totaled 75,000,000 during the year. This was valued at $52,000,000.

Leaf Tobacco.

Sobrinos de A. Gonzalez purchased and shipped to the Compañia Arrendataria, the lessees of the Spanish Regie, 888 bales of leaf by the steamship "Reina Maria Cristina."

Lewis Cantor made good use of his time here, in picking around 400 bales of the choicest Vuelta Abajo, lowland, heavy quality vegas, for account of his customers. He has certainly secured the cream of last year's Vuelta Abajo, as part of his purchases came from the famous Romeo y Julieta's holdings.

Don Francisco Arango, the former manager of the Henry Clay and Bock & Company, Ltd., arrived here from Tampa on the 18th inst., to pay us a visit.

Pittsburgh

Weather Interferes With Business—Start Campaign on "London Life" Cigarettes—Jobbers Have Big Business With "Rey-Oma" Cigars

AS PITTSBURGH is in its rainy season at the present time, business is not up to the standard. In some sections of the city business is fair, but in the mill districts it is very poor.

Pittsburgh is very much pleased to hear that Schinasi Brothers, of New York, are going to make their "Natural" cigarettes with a cork tip. Owing to the great demand in this market for cork tip cigarettes they should have a big success on this popular brand. Mr. Levy, their well-known representative, has been in this section for the past few days visiting the trade and is very well pleased with the way "Natural" cigarettes, cork tip, are taking with the dealers.

Sam Rosen, of Oil City, Pa., who several years ago was with the Siller-Narten-Barnes Company, but is now in the retail cigar business, was in the city this week visiting old friends. Mr. Rosen reports business satisfactory.

The Anter Hotel cigar stand has two very nice window displays on "Webster" cigars, distributed by the Bock-Stauffer Company, and "Fatima" cigarettes.

L. J. Spuhler's Smithfield Street store are featuring "Bold" cigars this week.

The Seventh Avenue Hotel cigar stands are featuring "Camel" cigarettes. This is a new product of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company. Mr. Dawson and Mr. Quinn are having a big success with this brand.

The C. A. Gibbs Company have a very nice window display on Marcellino Perez Company's "Tuval" cigars.

The Huck Cigar Company, Third Avenue and Wood Street, are going out of business temporarily, as their lease expires on the first of May.

We are sorry to hear of the death of Wilbert Wently's father. Mr. Wently has charge of the Commonwealth Building cigar stand for Reymer Brothers.

Reymer Brothers have two very nice window displays on "Jose Vila" and "Savarona" cigars.

"Doc" Easton, of the Falk Tobacco Company, is in town placing some fine advertising on "Tareyton" tobacco and cigarettes. Both these brands are doing very nicely in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Mac Jones, of Washington, Pa., formerly manager of the John Slater Cigar Company, of Washington, Pa., will open a retail cigar store in Washington about May 10. Mr. Jones was in Pittsburgh this week buying in stock for his new store.

T. C. Jenkins, with the assistance of Mr. Joe Raubitschek, will shortly put a new two-for-five stogies on the market called "Buffalo." The dealer will receive a humidor gratis with his initial order.

M. J. O'Meara and A. L. Clark started a campaign this week on "London Life" cigarettes. With each package of 10 cigarettes the consumer receives a "September Morn" stick pin.

The Shipley-Massingham Drug Company report big business on "Rey-Oma." "That Mild Havana Cigar." They have just received a shipment of "Rey-Oma Ponies" and are having a big success with this size.

The W. J. Gilmore Drug Company, of Pittsburgh, Pa., are distributors for the "Steber" cigars. They report this cigar to be one of the best sellers they have. About June 1 they will start a big campaign on this brand.

The following visitors were in town:

L. B. McKetrick, National Products Company.
B. L. Hackett, representing "Milo" cigarettes.
S. M. Lennox, representing Garcia-Pando Company.
A. A. Jackles, representing Hull-Grummond Company.
S. P. Koenemann, representing Storm-Fisher Company.
P. G. Vincent, of the Stacey-Vincent Company, Cleveland.

Charles Diehl to Continue Jobbing End

To set at rest rumors that he would discontinue the jobbing end of his business, Charles Diehl, proprietor of the Rex Cigar Store, New Castle, Ind., states that he will continue to wholesale tobaccos, cigars and chewing gum as in the past, and that rumors to the contrary are without foundation. The Rex Cigar Store has established a good high-grade trade, and it is noted for the prompt and courteous treatment that its customers receive.

Fearing that their pet deer, who performs the wonderful stunt of chewing tobacco, might be shot by gunners prowling around, the citizens of Coolin, Ida., have provided protection for the animal by equipping it with a large cowbell and blanket.

The Chemistry of Tobacco Curing

That tobacco loses much more weight when cured on the stalk than when the leaves are picked in the field and cured separately has been demonstrated by an investigation of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the results of which have just been published in Bulletin 79 under the title of "Research Studies on the Curing of Leaf Tobacco." The experiments were carried on for a period of four years at a Connecticut grower's farm. They showed that for leaves of the cigar-wrapper type the average loss in dry weight in curing picked leaves was from 12 to 15 per cent., while leaves cured on the stalk lost approximately twice as much.

This difference is explained by the passing of certain substances from the leaf to the stalk during the process of curing. If the stalk is split in harvesting, a common practice in certain districts, it dies sooner than if simply severed near the base, and in consequence there is not so much loss to the leaf. Even under these conditions, however, the loss in the leaf's weight is greater than in curing picked leaves.

The increased cost of harvesting picked leaves must, of course, be taken into account. The new bulletin does not discuss this question, confining itself to the scientific and chemical aspect of tobacco-curing, but it does point out that tobacco intended for export, manufacturing and cigar-fillers is usually gathered in a riper condition than that for wrappers, and that in consequence it loses still more weight. Even with picked leaves this loss frequently amounts to thirty-five or forty-five per cent.

The data compiled by the investigators will be used for working out practical recommendations to growers. The present bulletin is a technical paper intended only for the information of chemists or tobacco-curing experts.

Bill Knaub Takes New Stand

Bill Knaub, formerly the well-known proprietor of Ye Smoke Shop, York, Pa., has taken another venture into the cigar business and is now in charge of the Corner Cigar Store, Market and Penn Streets, where his many old friends and patrons are greeting him.

H. L. Altland has purchased the cigar manufacturing plant at 303 Smyser Street, York, Pa., formerly controlled by Harry C. Welchans, and will continue the manufacturing of the "Nana," the "Campero" and "Lloyd Bullard" cigars. The newly acquired factory requires the services of 25 cigar makers. Mr. Welchans, the former owner of the plant, was at one time foreman of the United Cigar Company's factory on North Penn Street, York. He intends to engage in the leaf tobacco business at Lancaster.

J. A. Herr Speaks in North Carolina

J. Aldus Herr, president of the Lancaster County Tobacco Growers' Association, has recently been visiting in Pinehurst, N. C., where he delivered a lecture on Lancaster County methods of farming and cattle breeding before the Farm Agricultural Association of that place. Mr. Herr has had much experience in farming and made a very favorable impression.

Caught With Stolen Cigars

Charles Ward, of Detroit, Mich., was recently committed to jail for ninety days by Judge William L. Day, of Cleveland, O. Ward was arrested in Canton, O., and pleaded guilty to having in his possession 10,000 cigars, part of an interstate shipment stolen from Toledo, O.

To Operate Frederick Tobacco Store

F. K. Gilbert, for eight years with the firm of B. Rosenour & Sons, has recently purchased the tobacco store of Charles Cramer, at 37 South Market Street, Frederick, Md. In connection with the tobacco business Mr. Gilbert will continue his agency for a laundry and cleaning establishment.

Wilmington Notes

S. H. Durstein, manufacturer of the "Sen Auben" cigar, left on the 21st instant for a two weeks' trip to Florida. At the factory business continues steady.

Mr. Hoffman, of Selak & Hoffman, makers of the "Escanaba" cigar, recently secured a number of good "repeat" orders on this brand on his trip through the State. Selak & Hoffman are also distributors for the famous "Savarona" cigar, and a nice business is reported on this Porto Rican brand.

Charles Breuer, who has been established for several years at the old Hawkins stand on Market Street, reports that the demand for his "45" and "B. B." brands is showing an increase. The store is one of the oldest in Wilmington, and Mr. Breuer's efforts to keep a first-class stand have been well rewarded.

The Jones Cigar Emporium, at Seventh and Market Streets, has a nice display on the "Rose-O-Cuba," 5-cent cigar made by the Fleck Cigar Company in Reading, and an equally attractive arrangement of the various packings of "El Palencia," the famous high-grade product of the Boltz, Clymer & Company factories.

Tobacco Magnate's Body Found in River

The body of Russell Uhl, the missing president of the Penn Tobacco Company, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., was found on Saturday in the Susquehanna River at Plymouth. The body was discovered by Steven Krothe, of Wilkes-Barre. He was helped by two other men to bring it ashore. As the Uhl family has offered a reward of $1000 for the recovery of the body, the three men will share the money.

There had been much speculation as to whether Uhl had committed suicide or not. No one saw him jump in the river, and after it was dynamited and the body was not recovered, considerable doubt existed. Plymouth is several miles downstream from Wilkes-Barre.

the 'Automobile Club of Chicago,' which is made in a number of sizes and prices, for cigarettes as well as cigars. 'La Corona,' 'La Carolina,' 'General Shields,' 'Partagas,' 'Upman's,' 'Jose Vila,' 'Ben Bey,' and the other leaders are to be found in the cases. I believe in keeping the boxes full, as it makes a neater and better showing and gives an idea of class and prosperity which is proper in connection with a club."

The stand has two cases, one fronting on the lounging room and the other facing the elevators and the stairway from the garage. The glass used is heavy, and the height is greater than that of the average cigar case. This, by the way, is a feature of the cases in all the clubs which have been written up by the writer.

In the lounging room of the Chicago Automobile Club men, young and old, can be seen making the air blue with the smoke of cigars and cigarettes. On a table in the middle of the room rest a number of trophies, which have been won by the club in competitions of one sort or another. Smokers' outfits, about as high as the bottom of a chair, well provided with matches and all done in elegant brass, are plentiful around the room. Of course, all the smoking in the club is confined to the upper floors, as it is the theory of the members that gasoline and fire simply will not mix with any degree of quiet.

Window Display of "Robert Burns" Invincibles

This photograph shows one of the window displays that M. A. Gunst & Company are making in all their stores on the Pacific Coast, in the interests of "Robert Burns" Invincibles. The campaign on this cigar has demonstrated that the smokers of the Coast were ready to despond to a legitimate effort to give them a mild, high grade cigar for a mide.

San Francisco

Collections Picking Up Along the Coast—Demand for Manila Goods Shows Increase—Marx Brothers Make Rapid Gains With "Rose-O-Cuba"—"Robert Burns" Invincibles Selling Big

SAN FRANCISCO, APRIL 20, 1914.

THAT business is improving steadily and that prospects are moving along in the same general direction is shown by the more encouraging reports as to collections. There is no longer the talk of poor collections that was such a gloomy feature of the trade a few months ago. Money is also a little easier, but the banks are still a little rigid in making advances. The good crop prospects throughout the Coast have made credit better in all the agricultural sections, and somehow or other the mercantile community is a little better supplied with funds than it was. Traveling cigar and tobacco men are unanimous in talking of the splendid appearance of the country all along the Coast. As a rule, however, the jobbing trade is a little weary of living on "prospects," and the first real bit of actual improvement in "spot" business is decidedly welcome. The fact of the matter seems to be that all along the line from the smallest retailer to the largest jobber nobody is carrying any more stock than his trade actually requires; and, as everybody is selling very carefully, a good run of sales means that the retailer or jobber is at once provided with the wherewithal to buy more goods to replace those sold. Orders coming in to the wholesale trade just now are not of the largest size, but they are numerous, and the quality is first class.

The Edward Wolf Company now has five salesmen out on the road and they are all making an excellent showing. The demand for the Manila lines of cigars and cigarettes handled by this company is increasing right along, being helped out by a better buying demand, a more active selling campaign and an improvement in the goods themselves. The call for "La Insular" Manila cigarettes is increasing steadily, though the sales of Manila cigarettes is still small in comparison with that of long established Turkish goods. Mr. Wolf is confident that the cigarette of Manila make, like the Manila cigar, will find a large place in the American market. His company is already shipping the "Insular" line to points as far away as Alaska and the Atlantic seaboard. In spite of the fact that several big houses in the trade have decided to take an active place in the Panama-Pacific Exposition, Mr. Wolf will not show his goods on the Fair grounds, his policy being to work hard, to build up a steady and permanent market.

M. A. Gunst & Company just commenced delivery on their "Robert Burns Invincibles" and a window display campaign on this new size. The popularity obtained for this cigar almost instantly is, according to E. A. Cohen, of the Gunst Company, a result of a highly elaborate co-operation of the Gunst forces, especially of the men at the counter, organized into a regular Burns-squad. The twenty days' introductory campaign established "Robert Burns Invincibles" on the Coast market and demonstrated that the smokers were ready for a mild, high-grade ten cent cigar. Taking into consideration the Eastern visitors during the Exposition, Mr. Cohen announces a regular series of campaigns in behalf of eight brands, namely: "General Arthur," "Owl," "Chesterfield," "Robert Burns," "Van Dyke," "Reio," "Empire" and "Alhambra." All these brands are going to be "nationalized" by the Gunst Company, or, to use the words of Mr. Cohen, they will appear in all the Gunst stands in the same sizes and under the same names, so that a New Yorker will be able to obtain his favorite smoke all along the Pacific coast. The Gunst Company reports the business in a remarkably healthy condition. The orders are pouring in so rapidly that the shipping department is always behind. A shipment of 750,000 "Alhambra," just received from Manila, was at once absorbed by the trade. The "Owl" is selling at a rate of 1,000,000 a week. There is not enough "Chesterfield" in stock to satisfy the constant demand. "Empire," of the Porto Rico line, is also a very good seller. These big successes are to a very large extent due to the constant and costly window displays. As a matter of fact, the Gunst Company spends on the average for the windows about $20,000 yearly, but it gets adequate returns. According to Mr. Cohen, it takes at least two years of persistent advertising to establish a new cigar on the Coast, provided it has actual merits, for the Pacific smoker is very fastidious.

Annual Report of United Cigar Stores Company

The annual report of the United Cigar Stores Company of America for the year ended December 31, 1913, shows a balance, after preferred dividends, of $1,854,626, equal to 6.82 per cent. on $27,102,000 outstanding.

The sales increased $2,850,859 over the previous year. The company reports that in view of the general business conditions during 1913 it considers the increasing sales due to its old policy of putting back into the business a large part of its earnings. At the end of 1913 the operating companies had fully equipped and doing business thirty-six stores in addition to those maintained at the end of the previous year.

At the annual meeting the directors re-elected were: C. A. Whelan, J. F. Whelan, Edward Wise, Louis Biel, Elliott Averett, W. T. Posey, William Baeder, Charles R. Sherlock and George Wattley.

The income account for the year follows:

Dividends and interest received, less charges	$2,171,516
Preferred dividends paid	316,890
Balance for common stock	1,854,626
Common dividends	1,493,910
Surplus	360,716
Previous surplus	1,087,552
Total surplus	1,448,268

Large Cigarette Shipment to the Orient

When the Japanese steamer "Panama Maru" steamed out of Puget Sound the other day, bound for the Orient, she carried one of the largest cigarette shipments that has ever gone westward over the Pacific. The manifest contained an item of 500 cases of cigarettes valued at $39,375. This shipment should be sufficient to create a blue haze along the entire coast of Japan.

Marx Brothers, owners of a chain of retail stores, are handling "Rose O-Cuba" cigar, made by the Fleck Cigar Company, of Reading, Pa. Although "Rose-O-Cuba" was introduced to the Coast only about a year ago, it has rapidly smoked its way into the heart of the public.

H. H. Manley, the Coast representative of the American Cigar Company, has just returned from an extensive trip through Arizona and Southern California and is going next week to Oregon and Washington. Mr. Manley is pushing now a new six-inch size in the "El Belmont" line, under the quite familiar name, "The Tango." It is meeting with a general success and represents the finest size ever produced. M. Blaskower is the distributor of "El Belmont" on the Coast. The old, famous "Chancellor" is growing rapidly in the southern as well as in the northern territory, and has already reached Alaska.

H. L. Judell & Company report a big success with their 5-cent "Say-so" cigar. Emil Judell is now in Oregon and sending in nice orders. The company has altogether seven men on the field covering the whole western territory.

L. A. Sawyer, representing "El Griffo" clear Havana cigar, is pushing the new "Tuxedo" shape of that smoke. It seems to meet with good success.

The Hawaiian Cigar Company has been incorporated with a $50,000 capital stock by G. St. John, J. R. Wilson, J. L. Daniels, H. A. Yuzuk and C. W. Reed. The company will handle the Kona leaf tobacco grown in the Hawaiian Islands. J. L. Daniels, who is well known in the tobacco leaf trade on the Coast, will manage the business in San Francisco. Before the fire Mr. Daniels was for many years engaged in the leaf business in San Francisco, first as manager of the Pacific Coast branch of Mitchelson & Hibbard, and later as representative of Friedman & Company.

Five hundred cases of cigarettes, valued at $40,000, were sent on the Japanese steamer "Panama Maru," which left Tacoma on April 14 for the Orient.

Louis C. Erdt, representative of "Royal Nestor" cigarettes, reports the popularity of "Milo" and "Melachrino" constantly increasing. A forceful Tango Bear campaign inaugurated by Mr. Erdt will surely increase the sales. These Tango Bears seem to be very popular with children and consequently with fathers. Mr. Erdt asserts that they are also popular with mothers.

The Japanese steamer "Chiyo Maru" was cleared on the 10th with 81,998 pounds of tobacco for Japan.

OHIO NOTES

Cleveland goes to eastern standard time on May 1. In other words, when the clock strikes 12 midnight, April 30, people will shove the timepiece to read 1 P. M. This will mean the opening of stores at seven instead of eight, and the closing at five instead of six.

The Hotel Madison, Toledo, is to undergo complete remodelling, more than $30,000 to be spent in improvements. One of the added features will be a cigar stand, which at present the hotel is without.

There is under way a movement intended to result in the bringing forward of George A. Schneider, secretary and manager of the Cleveland Athletic Club, as a candidate for mayor in 1915.

Annual Report of United Cigar Stores Company

The annual report of the United Cigar Stores Company of America for the year ended December 31, 1913, shows a balance, after preferred dividends, of $1,854,626, equal to 0.82 per cent. on $27,102,000 outstanding.

The sales increased $2,850,859 over the previous year. The company reports that in view of the general business conditions during 1913 it considers the increasing sales due to its old policy of putting back into the business a large part of its earnings. At the end of 1913 the operating companies had fully equipped and doing business thirty-six stores in addition to those maintained at the end of the previous year.

At the annual meeting the directors re-elected were: C. A. Whelan, J. F. Whelan, Edward Wise, Louis Biel, Elliott Averett, W. T. Posey, William Baeder, Charles R. Sherlock and George Wattley.

The income account for the year follows:

Dividends and interest received, less charges	$2,171,516
Preferred dividends paid	316,890
Balance for common stock	1,854,626
Common dividends	1,493,910
Surplus	360,716
Previous surplus	1,087,552
Total surplus	1,448,268

Large Cigarette Shipment to the Orient

When the Japanese steamer "Panama Maru" steamed out of Puget Sound the other day, bound for the Orient, she carried one of the largest cigarette shipments that has ever gone westward over the Pacific. The manifest contained an item of 500 cases of cigarettes valued at $39,375. This shipment should be sufficient to create a blue haze along the entire coast of Japan.

SAN FRANCISCO

Marx Brothers, owners of a chain of retail stores, are handling "Rose O-Cuba" cigar, made by the Fleck Cigar Company, of Reading, Pa. Although "Rose-O-Cuba" was introduced to the Coast only about a year ago, it has rapidly smoked its way into the heart of the public.

H. H. Manley, the Coast representative of the American Cigar Company, has just returned from an extensive trip through Arizona and Southern California and is going next week to Oregon and Washington. Mr. Manley is pushing now a new six-inch size in the "El Belmont" line, under the quite familiar name, "The Tango." It is meeting with a general success and represents the finest size ever produced. M. Blaskower is the distributor of "El Belmont" on the Coast. The old, famous "Chancellor" is growing rapidly in the southern as well as in the northern territory, and has already reached Alaska.

H. L. Judell & Company report a big success with their 5-cent "Say-so" cigar. Emil Judell is now in Oregon and sending in nice orders. The company has altogether seven men on the field covering the whole western territory.

L. A. Sawyer, representing "El Griffo" clear Havana cigar, is pushing the new "Tuxedo" shape of that smoke. It seems to meet with good success.

The Hawaiian Cigar Company has been incorporated with a $50,000 capital stock by G. St. John, J. R. Wilson, J. L. Daniels, H. A. Yuzuk and C. W. Reed. The company will handle the Kona leaf tobacco grown in the Hawaiian Islands. J. L. Daniels, who is well known in the tobacco leaf trade on the Coast, will manage the business in San Francisco. Before the fire Mr. Daniels was for many years engaged in the leaf business in San Francisco, first as manager of the Pacific Coast branch of Mitchelson & Hibbard, and later as representative of Friedman & Company.

Five hundred cases of cigarettes, valued at $40,000, were sent on the Japanese steamer "Panama Maru," which left Tacoma on April 14 for the Orient.

Louis C. Erdt, representative of "Royal Nestor" cigarettes, reports the popularity of "Milo" and "Melachrino" constantly increasing. A forceful Tango Bear campaign inaugurated by Mr. Erdt will surely increase the sales. These Tango Bears seem to be very popular with children and consequently with fathers. Mr. Erdt asserts that they are also popular with mothers.

The Japanese steamer "Chiyo Maru" was cleared on the 10th with 81,998 pounds of tobacco for Japan.

OHIO NOTES

Cleveland goes to eastern standard time on May 1. In other words, when the clock strikes 12 midnight, April 30, people will shove the timepiece to read 1 P. M. This will mean the opening of stores at seven instead of eight, and the closing at five instead of six.

The Hotel Madison, Toledo, is to undergo complete remodelling, more than $30,000 to be spent in improvements. One of the added features will be a cigar stand, which at present the hotel is without.

There is under way a movement intended to result in the bringing forward of George A. Schneider, secretary and manager of the Cleveland Athletic Club, as a candidate for mayor in 1915.

L. J. Shaver Buys Glens Falls Store

L. J. Shaver, of Canajoharie, recently purchased the cigar and tobacco business of Thornton & Fitzgerald, located at Warren and Ridge Streets, Glens Falls, N. Y. Mr. Shaver has been in the retail tobacco business for a number of years. He will make a number of improvements on the new stand and will immediately stock a full line of imported and domestic cigars.

New Cigar Store for Shelbyville

Peter L. Demmer, who recently removed to Shelbyville, Ind., from Rushville, has opened his factory and cigar store at 48 East Washington Street. The store is up-to-date and carries a full line of cigars, cigarettes and smoking tobaccos. Mr. Demmer's store will be used as headquarters for the "Reserves" baseball club, the representative ball team of Shelbyville.

Woman Wills $250 to Buy "Best Cigars"

Because she had noticed the great pleasure that Oliver W. Norton, millionaire founder of the Norton Can Company, of Chicago, took in smoking, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Vincent, of Cincinnati, in her will recently filed, bequeathed Mr. Norton $250 "to be expended for the best cigars he can buy." The two families often exchanged visits and Mrs. Vincent often remarked on Mr. Norton's devotion to the weed.

Bridgeport Tobacconists Fail

Herbert D. Sherman and William J. Ewald, who have conducted a cigar and tobacco store in Bridgeport, Conn., have filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District Court. Partnership liabilities of $33,372.58, all unsecured, are shown, while the assets are figured to be $22,949.51.

Operations have been resumed at the cigar factory of A. Scott Frey, Red Lion, Pa., newly remodelled, following its partial destruction by the windstorm Sunday evening March 1st.

Notwithstanding many reports to the contrary, we believe that the new crop of Sumatra will prove satisfactory to the trade

We, ourselves, have purchased nearly half of all the new Sumatra bought by American importers up to date, and are offering this tobacco at the right prices—many lots costing from $5.00 to $5.50 per thousand cigars.

For those who prefer last year's tobaccos, we have on hand a complete stock, having purchased practically every suitable lot obtainable in the European market.

We are also the largest holders of fine old and new Java tobacco, both Havana and Sumatra style.

Leaf Tobacco Notes

PENNSYLVANIA.

LANCASTER, PA.

So anxious are the bulk of the Lancaster County tobacco growers who still hold their 1913 tobacco to sell that they are now offering it at sacrifice prices, in spite of all the efforts of the recently organized Seed Leaf Growers' Company to induce them to hold it. Many of the growers need the money their tobacco usually brings, while others have no time to look after the crop.

It is estimated that the 16,000 acres planted in 1913 only yielded about 60,000 cases, on account of the adverse weather conditions under which it was grown and because of disastrous hail storms. The county's average crop is about 80,000 cases.

In recent years the growers have been getting from ten to twelve cents a pound for their tobacco. This year, early in the selling season, they got nine cents and then prices broke, and for some weeks past the tobacco has been selling as low as five cents and on up to eight cents.

WISCONSIN.

EDGERTON, WIS.

Because of the fact that help is thinning out, the warehouse work is apt to drag along for several weeks yet. The tobacco has been kept in fine condition so far, but the recent warm spell has started the bundle bulks to heating.

The market for old goods is exceedingly quiet, although the last of the former season's crop is selling slowly. It seems that the buyers of stemming goods do not appear anxious to increase their holdings, and the bulk remaining in the growers' hands is thought to be of low grade.

The process of sterilizing the seed beds is being used by some of the growers in preparing for the coming season, and this work is arousing considerable comment. Most of the talk seems favorable and there is a feeling that process will become generally used. The seed beds are being prepared for another crop. A backward spring has given the tobacco growers a late start, but the new sterilizing process prevents any cause for worry.

TENNESSEE.

CLARKSVILLE, TENN.

There was a large rush the past week on tobacco to market, following a rainy day. Only two days afforded indication of a desire to get rid of the crop before the ground could be plowed, as the farmers are getting anxious to plant corn. One thing noticeable was the large amount being received by the prizing houses.

The prices are fully up to expectations, the sixteen dollar mark having been reached, and it is expected to climb over that before a great while.

Plants have begun to grow more rapidly since the hot sunshine has come, and by the time the upland corn is planted attention must be given to preparing tobacco land.

The rehandling houses have now but little in the country. But there is still a lot of tobacco unsold in the barns and that is coming here and being sold on the streets for what the owners can get, much or little.

THE CAROLINAS.

FLORENCE, S. C.

The latest reports from the farms is to the effect that the plant beds were not hurt so badly as the farmers thought and that if there is a good season for tobacco there will be a good crop in this section. Inquiries have been made by the tobacco warehousemen and buyers and they have personally investigated the situation and feel very much encouraged. There will be a great deal more tobacco planted around Florence than there has been in recent years, many of the former planters going back to the culture of the weed. The prospects for prices are still good. The warehousemen who are inclined to be ultra conservative say that if seasons are not very good the farmer will not waste time in trying to make tobacco, but will fall back on the old reliable, cotton, and put his tobacco lands in cotton, though the tobacco does offer best returns for labor and investment. It is a case of getting back in the rut if the new going is not smooth.

New Tobacco Stand for Springfield

Friends of Arthur R. and Clarence H. Marshman will be interested to learn that they have opened a cigar stand at 282 Main Street, Springfield, Mass., under the firm name of R. & C. H. Marshman. The new stand will carry a full line of cigars and tobacco, and in addition will be the downtown office for the sale of tickets for all games to be played at the League park. Both members of the firm have had a practical experience in the retail cigar business.

The Sumatra Situation

By John H. Duys, of H. Duys & Company.

When, in the latter part of February, the representatives of the various Sumatra houses boarded their respective steamers for their annual pilgrimage to Holland, they were all of one mind; to wit: to keep the market in Amsterdam on as low as possible a basis. The first inscription tobacco was shown and proved disappointing, as the quantity of light tobacco was less than half, compared with the first inscription of 1913. Notwithstanding this, nobody had any intention of paying high prices, but conservatism did not help in this instance, as the buyer for one of the leading United States cigar manufacturers purchased the three first lots at prices higher than in 1913. After this, all good intentions were forgotten, and with strong competition from the Austrian government, which purchased during the second inscription not less than seven parcels of so-called American tobacco, the market for light tobacco was established upon a high basis, and in my opinion, will not become lower during this present season. While this high market in Amsterdam may seem strange to the outsider, who considers only present poor business conditions throughout the entire world, it must not be forgotten that the only fancy part of a Sumatra crop of 250,000 bales is its light greenish tobaccos.

Suppose in a year like this ten per cent. less tobacco is consumed, if the fancy part of this crop should be thirty-three per cent. less than previous years, and this is probably the case, there would still be a shortage of twenty-three per cent., and this question of supply and demand is what the large operators in Sumatra tobacco must consider. As far as the new tobacco itself is concerned, I believe that same will prove satisfactory and better than at first anticipated, and when, in a few weeks from now, business conditions will be improved, I have no doubt that trading in the new Sumatra will become very lively.

If the large cigar manufacturers of the United States could only be convinced that they could buy their tobacco much cheaper by staying at home, lots of money would be saved for the entire trade. I want to go on record now, that the cigar manufacturers who buy their tobacco from the leading importers are doing so to better advantage than those who operate in the Amsterdam market. From personal observations I have seen instances where twenty-five to thirty cents per pound was overpaid on tobacco, which money could have been easily saved by careful operation.
